Dear Shareholder:

On behalf of Tyco's Board of Directors, we are pleased to deliver to you our proxy statement concerning the separation of our residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and our flow control business, to be effected by means of a pro rata distribution of 100% of the outstanding shares of common stock of The ADT Corporation ("ADT") and the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control International Ltd. ("Tyco Flow Control") to Tyco shareholders. As we previously announced, we, Tyco Flow Control and certain subsidiaries of Tyco Flow Control have entered into a merger agreement (the "Merger Agreement") with Pentair, Inc. ("Pentair"), providing that immediately following the distribution of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control and on the terms and subject to the other conditions of the Merger Agreement, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the merger as a wholly-owned, subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control (the "Merger"). We believe the spin-offs and the Merger will create value for Tyco shareholders through direct share ownership in the independent ADT and the combined Tyco Flow Control and Pentair business, while allowing Tyco shareholders to maintain ownership in a more focused Tyco.

Subject to shareholder approval as described in the accompanying proxy statement and satisfaction or waiver of other conditions described in the proxy statement, in connection with the spin-offs and the Merger:

- Tyco will distribute 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock and 100% of the outstanding Tyco Flow Control common shares to its shareholders on a pro rata basis in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying "contributed surplus;"
- each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the ADT special dividend will entitle its holder to receive 0.5 shares of ADT common stock;
- each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the Tyco Flow Control special dividend will entitle its holder to receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully-diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under generally accepted accounting principles in the United States ("GAAP")) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date (based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividend);
- ADT will cease to be a wholly owned subsidiary of Tyco and will become an independent, publicly-traded company operating the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada currently operated by Tyco, with its own management team and Board of Directors;
- immediately following the distribution of outstanding Tyco Flow Control common shares, Tyco Flow Control will cease to be a wholly owned subsidiary of Tyco and Panthro Merger Sub, Inc., a wholly-owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control, will merge with and into Pentair with Pentair surviving the Merger as a wholly owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control; at this time, Tyco Flow Control will be an independent, publicly-traded company operating the flow control business currently operated by Tyco and the business of Pentair, with its own management team comprised of Pentair's senior executives and its own Board of Directors comprised of Pentair's Board of Directors and up to two directors selected by Tyco prior to the mailing of the proxy statement and reasonably acceptable to Pentair; Tyco has selected only one designee to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors;

- as consideration for the Merger, shareholders of Pentair will receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control for every Pentair common share that they hold at the time of the Merger; after giving effect to the Merger, our shareholders as of the record date for the Tyco Flow Control distribution or their transferees will own approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully-diluted basis (excluding treasury shares);
- we expect shares of ADT common stock to commence trading on the New York Stock Exchange (the “NYSE”) under the symbol “ADT;”
- we expect Tyco Flow Control to change its corporate name to “Pentair Ltd.” and its common shares to commence trading on the NYSE under the symbol “PNR,” which is Pentair’s current trading symbol;
- Tyco common shares will continue to trade on the NYSE under the symbol “TYC;”
- Tyco’s corporate existence will be unaffected by the spin-offs, except that Tyco will no longer operate the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and the flow control business currently operated by it;
- Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control have entered into a Separation and Distribution Agreement related to the separation of the flow control business, Tyco and ADT will enter into a Separation and Distribution Agreement related to the separation of the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and Tyco, ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control will enter into other related agreements to govern the relationships among Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control subsequent to the completion of the spin-offs and the allocation among Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control of Tyco’s assets, liabilities and obligations attributable to periods prior to the spin-offs;
- it is proposed that two new members be elected to Tyco’s Board of Directors to in part replace certain directors who will resign from the Tyco Board of Directors to take director positions at ADT in connection with the spin-offs;
- it is proposed that Tyco will pay ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013, contingent on the record date for the distributions of each of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco’s annual general meeting on March 7, 2012; and
- it is proposed that stockholders consider and approve the Tyco 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan.

If shareholders approve the Distributions at the Special General Meeting, we currently expect that both the ADT special dividend and the Tyco Flow Control special dividend will have a record date as of September 17, 2012 and that they will occur on September 28, 2012.

Our Board of Directors has unanimously approved the spin-off of each of the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and the flow control business after careful deliberation. We will hold a special general meeting of shareholders on September 14, 2012 at 9:00 a.m, Central European Summer Time, at Tyco’s offices in Schaffhausen, Switzerland to obtain the approval of Tyco shareholders of: (i) subject to prior satisfaction of the conditions described in the accompanying proxy statement, the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, as further described in the accompanying proxy statement, (ii) subject to prior satisfaction of the conditions described in the accompanying proxy statement, the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, as further described in the accompanying proxy statement, (iii) to elect as directors the two nominees to the Board of Directors named in the accompanying proxy statement, for terms expiring at Tyco’s next annual general meeting, subject to consummation of the distributions of each of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares, (iv) to pay ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013, contingent on the record date for the distributions of each of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares (currently expected to be set for September 17, 2012, subject to shareholders approving the Distributions at the Special General Meeting) being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends and (v) the Tyco 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan.

The spin-off of ADT and the spin-off of Tyco Flow Control are not conditioned upon each other, such that if our shareholders approve one spin-off but not the other, we will complete the spin-off that our shareholders have approved (subject to the prior satisfaction of the conditions applicable to that spin-off, as described in the accompanying proxy statement).

Your vote is not required, and we are not seeking your vote, in connection with the Merger. We, as the sole shareholder of Tyco Flow Control, have already approved the Merger. However, the Merger will not take place unless our shareholders approve the distribution of Tyco Flow Control as further described in the accompanying proxy statement.

We encourage you to carefully review the accompanying proxy statement, including the annexes hereto, which contain important information concerning Tyco, ADT, Tyco Flow Control, Pentair, the proposed spin-offs, the Merger and the proposals to be voted upon by shareholders at the special general meeting. In addition, the section entitled "Risk Factors" beginning on page 74 contains a description of risks that you should consider in evaluating the proposals relating to the spin-offs.

Our Board of Directors unanimously recommends that you vote "FOR" each proposal described in the accompanying proxy statement.

Your vote is very important. Whether or not you plan to attend the special general meeting, please submit your proxy promptly by telephone or via the Internet in accordance with the instructions on the enclosed proxy card or by completing, dating and returning your proxy card in the enclosed envelope. Returning the proxy card or otherwise submitting your proxy does not deprive you of your right to attend the special general meeting and vote in person.

We are very excited about these transactions and believe they will promote the long-term strategy and growth of Tyco for the benefit of its shareholders. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

TYCO INTERNATIONAL LTD.
NOTICE OF SPECIAL GENERAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS
TO BE HELD ON SEPTEMBER 14, 2012

Capitalized terms used but not otherwise defined in this Notice of Special General Meeting of Shareholders have the meanings assigned to them under “Certain Terms.”

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Special General Meeting of Shareholders of Tyco International Ltd. will be held on September 14, 2012 at 9:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time, at Tyco’s offices at Freier Platz 10 CH-8200 Schaffhausen, Switzerland for the following purpose:

1. To approve, subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the conditions set forth below, the distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock (the “ADT Distribution”), to be made in the form of a special dividend out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus equity position in its statutory accounts, based on a distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each Tyco common share outstanding, as of the record date for the special dividend. In lieu of ADT fractional shares, shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT common stock in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT common stock in the special dividend.

Declaration and distribution of the special dividend shall be subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the following conditions:

- the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) shall have declared effective ADT’s Registration Statement on Form 10 (the “ADT Form 10”), including the preliminary information statement contained therein, under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the “Exchange Act”) and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 shall be in effect;
- ADT’s common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the Internal Revenue Service (the “IRS”), which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution, to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “Code”) except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the ADT Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the ADT Distribution substantially to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution; and
- based on the closing price of the ADT shares trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

2. To approve, subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the conditions set forth below, the distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control (the “Tyco Flow Control Distribution,” and together with the ADT Distribution, the “Distributions”), to be made in the form of a special dividend out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus equity position in its statutory accounts, based on a distribution ratio determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully-diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividend which record date is expected to be established by Tyco’s Board of Directors for September 17, 2012, subject to shareholders approving the Distributions at the Special General Meeting. In lieu of Tyco Flow Control fractional shares, shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of Tyco Flow Control in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share of Tyco Flow Control in the special dividend.

Declaration and distribution of the special dividend shall be subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the following conditions:

- the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco’s obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution); and
- each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger.

For detailed information regarding the conditions to Tyco’s and Pentair’s obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement see “The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger.”

If the Merger were to be discontinued for any reason and the Merger Agreement terminated, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control intend to proceed with the Tyco Flow Control Distribution as originally announced on September 19, 2011.

3. Subject to approval of the Distributions as set forth in Proposals 1 and 2 above and consummation of the Distributions, to elect as directors effective as of the date the Distributions are consummated the two nominees to the Board of Directors named in the accompanying proxy statement, for terms expiring at Tyco’s next annual general meeting.

4. Subject to approval of the Distributions as set forth in Proposals 1 and 2 above and the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends, to approve the payment of ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco’s annual general meeting on March 7, 2012.

5. To consider and approve the Tyco International Ltd. 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan (the “Stock and Incentive Plan”). The Stock and Incentive Plan was approved by our Compensation and Human Resources Committee and our Board of Directors on July 12, 2012, subject to the approval of shareholders.

Prior to receipt of shareholder approval at the Special General Meeting, we will have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the proposed distributions of the common stock of ADT, the common shares of Tyco Flow Control and the ordinary cash dividends comply with Swiss law and Tyco’s Articles of Association.

The election of two new members to the Tyco Board of Directors shall be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving the proposed Distributions and on the consummation of the Distributions. The payment of the ordinary cash dividends is also contingent on Tyco shareholders approving the proposed Distributions and on the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividend. If shareholders approve the Distributions at the Special General Meeting, the record date for the Distributions will be September 17, 2012.

This Notice of Special General Meeting and proxy statement (including the annexes hereto) and the enclosed proxy card are first being mailed on or about August 6, 2012 to each holder of record of Tyco common shares at the close of business on July 23, 2012. Whether or not you plan to attend the meeting, please complete, sign, date and return the enclosed proxy card to ensure that your shares are represented at the meeting. Tyco shareholders of record who attend the meeting may vote their common shares personally, even though they have sent in proxies.

By Order of the Board of Directors,

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE SEPARATION AND THE SPECIAL GENERAL MEETING ABOUT THE SEPARATION

Q: Why am I receiving this document?

A: Tyco's Board of Directors has determined that it is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders to pursue (i) separating its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada into a separate, independently traded company, which it intends to accomplish through a pro rata distribution of 100% of the outstanding common stock of ADT to Tyco's shareholders to be made in the form of a special dividend out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus and (ii) separating its flow control business into a separate company, which it intends to accomplish through a pro rata distribution of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control to Tyco's shareholders to be made in the form of a special dividend out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus, and thereafter combining Tyco Flow Control and Pentair pursuant to the Merger.

In addition, in connection with, and subject to approval of, the Distributions, it is proposed that (i) two new members be elected, contingent on the consummation of the Distributions, to Tyco's Board of Directors to in part replace certain directors who will resign from the Tyco Board of Directors to take director positions at ADT in connection with the spin-offs and (ii) Tyco pay ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013, contingent on the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends and in lieu of the ordinary cash dividends approved at the annual shareholders' meeting of March 7, 2012. If shareholders approve the Distributions at the Special General Meeting, the record date for the Distributions will be September 17, 2012.

Under the Swiss Code, in order for Tyco to effect these special dividends and the corresponding spin-offs, approval of the special dividends must be obtained from Tyco shareholders. Additionally, approval from Tyco's shareholders is required for (i) the election of two new members to the Tyco Board of Directors and (ii) the payment of the ordinary cash dividends. Tyco is holding the Special General Meeting in order to obtain these shareholder approvals. As described in further detail below, in addition to Tyco shareholder approval, the special dividends are subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions. Tyco is not required to obtain, and it is not seeking, the approval of Tyco shareholders for the Merger. However, the Merger will not take place unless Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

This proxy statement contains important information about the Special General Meeting and the proposed separations of the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business, including information relating to the special dividends, certain matters required to be undertaken by Tyco in anticipation of the Distributions, information relating to certain agreements and arrangements that have been entered into, or are to be entered into, between Tyco, ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control in connection with the spin-offs, and information relating to Tyco on a pro forma basis giving effect to the Distributions. This proxy statement also includes important information regarding the Merger, which we expect to consummate immediately following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. In addition, this proxy statement contains information about the new nominees to Tyco's Board of Directors, the contingent payment of ordinary cash dividends during the first and second fiscal quarters of 2013 and the Stock and Incentive Plan.

This proxy statement includes as Annex A a Preliminary Information Statement with respect to ADT that contains important information about the ADT Distribution, including audited combined financial statements of ADT, pro forma financial information for ADT after giving effect to the ADT spin-off, as well as certain risks involved in holding ADT common stock following the ADT Distribution and risks associated with ADT's business. Assuming shareholder approval of the matters required to effect the ADT spin-off is obtained at the Special General Meeting, the final version of ADT's Information Statement will be distributed to Tyco shareholders who hold Tyco common shares as of the record date for the ADT Distribution.

This proxy statement includes as Annex B a Prospectus with respect to Tyco Flow Control that contains important information about the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger, including audited financial statements of each of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair, pro forma financial information for Tyco Flow Control after giving effect to the Tyco Flow Control spin-off and the Merger, as well as certain risks involved in holding Tyco Flow Control common shares following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger and risks associated with Tyco Flow Control and Pentair's businesses. Assuming shareholder approval of the matters required to effect the Tyco Flow Control spin-off is obtained at the Special General Meeting, the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus will be distributed to Tyco shareholders who hold Tyco common shares as of the record date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

You should read this proxy statement and the annexes hereto carefully and in their entirety. The enclosed voting materials allow you to vote your shares without attending the Special General Meeting.

Your vote is very important. We encourage you to vote as soon as possible. For more information on how to vote your shares, please see the section entitled "The Special General Meeting."

Q: What is the reason for the ADT spin-off?

A: Tyco's Board of Directors has determined that the distribution of its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide the following key benefits:

- greater strategic focus of financial resources and management's efforts;
- direct and differentiated access to capital resources;
- enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities;
- improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency; and
- enhanced management incentive tools.

Q: What is the reason for the Tyco Flow Control Transactions?

A: In assessing and approving the spin-off on September 19, 2011, Tyco's Board of Directors had determined that the spin-off would be in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide a number of key benefits, including primarily:

- greater strategic focus of financial resources and management's efforts;
- direct and differentiated access to capital resources;
- enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities; and
- improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency.

In assessing and approving the entry by Tyco Flow Control, Panthro Acquisition and Panthro Merger Sub into the Merger Agreement and the Merger, Tyco's Board of Directors determined that the Merger would be in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide substantially the same key benefits as those underlying the Board of Director's reasons for approval of the spin-off, while adding the following key benefits:

- increased value to Tyco's shareholders, in particular relative to Tyco Flow Control's anticipated value on a stand-alone basis;
- increased size and market capitalization, which could further improve Tyco Flow Control's ability to use stock as an acquisition currency;

- a product and service offering that is broader but complementary to many of the products manufactured and sold by the flow control business; and
- the ability to incorporate Pentair's public company infrastructure and senior management team, who have significant experience managing a publicly-traded company.

See "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Tyco's Reasons for the ADT Distribution" and "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Tyco's Reasons for the Tyco Flow Control Transactions."

Q: What am I being asked to vote on?

A: You are being asked to vote upon the following matters listed below:

- Approval of the special dividends:

Subject to prior satisfaction of certain conditions described in further detail below, the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock and 100% of the outstanding shares of Tyco Flow Control, to be made in the form of special dividends out of qualifying contributed surplus, as further described in this proxy statement, which we refer to throughout this proxy statement as the "special dividend proposals."

- Election of the Board of Directors:

The election of Frank Drendel and George Oliver to the Tyco Board of Directors, effective as of the date of and subject to the completion of the Distributions.

- Approval of the ordinary cash dividends:

The payment of ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013, subject to shareholder approval of the Distributions and the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends, which we refer to throughout this proxy statement as the "ordinary cash dividends proposal." These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco's annual general meeting on March 7, 2012.

- Approval of the Tyco International Ltd. 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan

Approval of the Stock and Incentive Plan on the terms described herein. The Stock and Incentive Plan was approved by our Compensation and Human Resources Committee and our Board of Directors on July 12, 2012, subject to the approval of shareholders.

Tyco is not required to obtain, and it is not seeking, the approval of Tyco shareholders for the Merger. However, the Merger will not take place unless Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Q: What vote is required by Tyco shareholders in connection with each of the aforementioned proposals?

- A. The affirmative vote of a relative majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the Special General Meeting is required to approve (i) each of the special dividend proposals, (ii) the ordinary cash dividends proposal and (iii) the Stock and Incentive Plan. The affirmative vote of an absolute majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the Special General Meeting is required to approve the election of each director nominee.

The election of the two new nominees to Tyco's Board of Directors is also subject to the approval of the special dividend proposals and completion of the Distributions. The ordinary cash dividends proposal is contingent upon the approval of the special dividend proposals and the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends. If shareholders approve the Distributions at the Special General Meeting, the record date for the Distributions will be September 17, 2012.

Q: What will happen in the ADT Distribution?

A: If the ADT Distribution is approved at the Special General Meeting and all of the conditions to the effectiveness of the ADT Distribution are met, then all of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock, par value $0.01 per share, will be distributed to holders of Tyco common shares on the distribution date for the ADT Distribution. Each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividends will entitle its holder to receive 0.5 shares of ADT common stock. In lieu of ADT fractional shares, Tyco shareholders will receive a cash payment. Accordingly, if you hold fewer than two Tyco common shares, you will not be entitled to any shares of ADT common stock and you will only receive cash in lieu of the fractional shares to which you would otherwise be entitled. Following the ADT Distribution, Tyco will no longer hold any outstanding capital stock of ADT, all of which will be held by Tyco shareholders, and ADT will be an independent, publicly-traded company. It is anticipated that ADT's common stock will trade on the NYSE under the symbol "ADT."

Q: What will happen in the Tyco Flow Control Transactions?

A: If the Tyco Flow Control Distribution is approved at the Special General Meeting and all of the conditions to the effectiveness of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution are met, then all of the outstanding Tyco Flow Control common shares, par value CHF 0.50 per share, will be distributed to holders of Tyco common shares on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividends will entitle its holder to receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully-diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividend. In lieu of Tyco Flow Control fractional shares, Tyco shareholders will receive a cash payment. Accordingly, if you hold fewer Tyco common shares than are necessary to receive one Tyco Flow Control common share, you will only receive cash in lieu of the fractional share to which you would otherwise have been entitled. Following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, Tyco will no longer hold any outstanding capital stock of Tyco Flow Control, all of which will be held by Tyco shareholders.

We expect that the Merger will be consummated immediately following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. In the Merger, Panthro Merger Sub, a wholly owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control, will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the Merger and Tyco Flow Control remaining the parent company for the combined business. Tyco Flow Control shareholders will not receive any consideration in the Merger. Each Pentair common share outstanding as of the effective time for the Merger (the "Effective Time"), will be converted into the right to receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control, with the result that Tyco shareholders as of the record date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and their transferees will hold approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully-diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares).

We expect that Tyco Flow Control will apply to have its common shares listed on the NYSE under the symbol "PNR," which is Pentair's current trading symbol, and that prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, Tyco Flow Control will change its corporate name to "Pentair Ltd."

Q: What do I have to do to participate in the special dividends?

A: Other than shareholder approval of the Distributions, no action will be required of Tyco shareholders to receive ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares, which means that (1) you will not be required to pay for the ADT or Tyco Flow Control shares that you receive in the Distributions and (2) you do not need to surrender or exchange any Tyco common shares in order to receive ADT or Tyco Flow Control shares, or take any other action in connection with the special dividends.

Q: What if I want to sell my Tyco common shares prior to the distribution date for a special dividend?

A: If either Distribution is approved at the Special General Meeting and you decide to sell any of your Tyco common shares on or before the distribution date for such Distribution, you should consult with your stockbroker, bank or other nominee and discuss whether you want to sell only your Tyco common shares or your Tyco common shares along with the ADT common stock and the Tyco Flow Control common shares that you would otherwise receive in such special dividend. We currently expect the Distributions to occur on the same date. As a result, if you sell your Tyco common shares in the “regular-way” market up to and including the distribution date, you will be selling your entitlement to both ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares along with your Tyco common shares.

If you sell your Tyco common shares in the “regular-way” market up to and including the distribution date for the Distributions, you will be selling your right to receive shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions. If you own Tyco common shares as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date for the Distributions and sell those shares on the “ex-distribution” market up to and including the distribution date for the Distributions, you will still receive the shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares that you would be entitled to receive in respect of the Tyco common shares you owned at the close of business on the record date for the Distributions.

See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—General Summary of the Spin-Offs and the Merger—Results of the Distributions; Listing of ADT Common Stock and Tyco Flow Control Common Shares and Trading of Tyco Common Shares.”

Q: Are there conditions to the Distributions?

A: Yes. In addition to the Tyco shareholder approvals described above, consummation of the Distributions, the election of our two nominees to our Board of Directors and payment of each ordinary cash dividend will be subject to certain conditions being met or waived. The conditions to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution differ from the conditions to the ADT Distribution in important ways related to the Merger.

Consummation of the ADT spin-off will be subject to the following conditions being met or waived prior to the ADT Distribution:

- the SEC shall have declared effective the ADT Form 10, including the Preliminary Information Statement contained therein, under the Exchange Act, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 shall be in effect;
- ADT’s common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of the issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution, to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the ADT Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the ADT Distribution substantially to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution; and

- based on the closing price of the ADT stock trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

In the event that Tyco shareholders approve the ADT Distribution and the conditions described above are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the ADT Distribution. Conversely, if the conditions have not been satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, the ADT Distribution will not take place.

Consummation of the Tyco Flow Control spin-off will be subject to the following conditions being met or waived prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution:

- the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco’s obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution); and
- each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger.

For detailed information regarding the conditions to Tyco’s and Pentair’s obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement see “The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger.”

In the event that Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the conditions described above are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Conversely, if the conditions have not been satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, the Tyco Flow Control Distribution will not take place on the same terms as described herein.

If the Merger were to be discontinued for any reason and the Merger Agreement terminated, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT intend to modify or otherwise amend and restate the current Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement to remove those provisions applicable to the Merger and/or Pentair and proceed with the Tyco Flow Control Distribution as originally announced on September 19, 2011.

We expect that prior to receipt of shareholder approval at the Special General Meeting we will have received:

- the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- the opinion of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the proposed distribution of the common stock of ADT and common shares of Tyco Flow Control and the proposed ordinary dividend comply with Swiss law and Tyco’s Articles of Association.

Q: How will fractional shares be treated in the spin-offs?

A: In lieu of fractional shares of ADT and Tyco Flow Control, Tyco shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT, on the one hand, and Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT or Tyco Flow Control in the special dividends. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—General Summary of the Spin-Offs and the Merger—Manner of Effecting the Distributions.”

Q: Will there be working capital and/or cash adjustments in connection with the Transactions?

A: Pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution agreement, Tyco Flow Control is required to have working capital, defined as current assets minus current liabilities, in the amount of $798 million, as of the close of business on the day prior to the Distribution. If the actual amount of the working capital exceeds $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco Flow Control will pay to Tyco the full amount of the excess. If the actual amount of the working capital is less than $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco will pay to Tyco Flow Control the full amount of the deficit.

Before the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue an intercompany note to a subsidiary of Tyco in an amount not to exceed $500 million, which will be repaid at the closing of the Merger with proceeds to Tyco Flow Control from a third party financing upon terms negotiated by Pentair. If such third party financing is not available on terms acceptable to the parties, instead of a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control issuing to a subsidiary of Tyco the intercompany note that would be repaid at the closing of the Merger, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue a one year unsecured "bridge" note for up to $500 million to a subsidiary of Tyco in accordance with the Merger Agreement that will bear interest at a rate of 14.0% and be prepayable at any time. Tyco Flow Control is then to transfer cash and cash equivalents to Tyco such that, immediately prior to the Distribution, the net indebtedness of Tyco Flow Control will be $275 million.

Pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, the target amount of cash at ADT immediately following the ADT Distribution is $300 million. However, the actual amount that will be available will depend on the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries at the time of the ADT Distribution (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries). If such aggregate cash balance is less than $700 million after taking into account certain adjustments as provided in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT's cash balance shall be reduced by a proportionate amount of such shortfall determined based on ADT's relative contribution to free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters. If such aggregate cash balance is greater than $700 million, such excess cash will be allocated to each of ADT and Tyco on the basis of each parties' respective contribution to free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters.

Q: What are the U.S. federal income tax consequences to me of the Transactions?

A: Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distributions, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The private letter ruling relies, and the opinion will rely, on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, provided by Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters. The receipt by Tyco of the IRS private letter ruling and the opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP are conditions to effecting the Distributions and the Merger.

Assuming that the Distributions qualify under Section 355 of the Code, for U.S. federal income tax purposes no gain or loss will be recognized by a Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax, and no amount will be included in the income of a shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax, upon the receipt of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions. A Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax generally will recognize gain or loss with respect to any cash received in lieu of a fractional share.

Tyco shareholders are not expected to recognize any gain or loss, or include any amount in income, for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a result of the Merger.

See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences” and “Risk Factors—Risks Related to the Spin-Offs and the Merger—If the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions are determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we, our shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax and/or both ADT and Tyco Flow Control could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities” for more information regarding the potential tax consequences to you of the Distributions.

Each Tyco shareholder is urged to consult his, her or its tax advisor as to the specific tax consequences of the Distributions to that shareholder, including the effect of any state, local or non-U.S. tax laws and of changes in applicable tax laws.

Q: How will I determine the tax basis I will have in the shares of ADT common stock and the Tyco Flow Control common shares I receive in the Distributions?

A: Generally, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, your aggregate basis in the stock you hold in Tyco and the new Tyco Flow Control common shares and shares of ADT common stock received in the Distributions (including any fractional share interests in ADT and Tyco Flow Control for which cash is received) will equal the aggregate basis of Tyco common shares held by you immediately before the Distributions. This aggregate basis will be allocated among your Tyco common shares and the Tyco Flow Control common shares and the shares of ADT common stock you receive in the Distributions (including any fractional share interests in Tyco Flow Control and/or ADT for which cash is received) in proportion to the relative fair market value of each immediately following the Distributions. See the section entitled “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences” included elsewhere in this proxy statement for more information.

You should consult your tax advisor about how this allocation will work in your situation (including a situation where you have purchased Tyco shares at different times or for different amounts) and regarding any particular consequences of the Distributions to you, including the application of state, local and non-U.S. tax laws.

Q: What are the Swiss withholding tax and income tax consequences to me of the spin-offs and the Merger?

A: Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to our shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). Tyco has obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that the Distributions qualify as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distributions.

Shareholders who are not resident in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who, during the applicable year, have not engaged in a trade or business carried on through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who are not subject to corporate or individual income taxation in Switzerland for any other reason, will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the special dividends, including any cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares.

Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as private assets, will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distributions out of the qualifying contributed surplus, including any cash received in lieu of a fractional ADT share of common stock or Tyco Flow Control common share. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of ADT or Tyco Flow Control shares are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax and, conversely, capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as private assets.

Corporate and individual shareholders who are residents in Switzerland for tax purposes or who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland (or, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes), will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the special dividends, including any cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares, to the extent that the participation income cannot be reduced by a depreciation on the investment in Tyco and/or where the participation relief (Beteiligungsabzug) is not applicable.

It is a condition to closing of the Merger that, at the Effective Time, Tyco will have one or more rulings from the Swiss Tax Administrations, which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the closing date of the Merger, confirming: (i) that the Merger will be a transaction that is generally tax-free for Swiss federal, cantonal, and communal purposes (including with respect to Swiss stamp tax and Swiss withholding tax); (ii) the relevant Swiss tax base of Panthro Acquisition for Swiss tax (including federal and cantonal and communal) purposes; (iii) the relevant amount of capital contribution reserves (Kapitaleinlageprinzip) which will be exempt from Swiss withholding tax in the event of a distribution to the Tyco Flow Control shareholders after the Merger; and (iv) that no Swiss stamp tax will be levied on certain post-Merger restructuring transactions. The Swiss Tax Rulings do not address the Swiss income tax consequences of the Merger to Pentair shareholders. However, it is expected that for Swiss resident individual Pentair shareholders holding their Pentair shares as private assets (Privatvermögen) the Merger should be tax free for federal, cantonal and communal income tax purposes. For Swiss resident individual Pentair shareholders holding their shares as business assets (Geschäftsvermögen) and for Swiss resident corporate Pentair shareholders the Merger may not be recognized as tax neutral by the Swiss tax authorities. In such case, the difference between the fair market value of the shares and the relevant tax basis may be treated as taxable income even if no income has been booked in the Swiss statutory profit and loss statement.

For more information regarding the potential Swiss tax consequences to you of the Distributions and the Merger, see “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Material Swiss Tax Consequences” and “Risk Factors—Risks Related to the Spin-Offs and the Merger—If the Distributions or the Merger are determined to be taxable for Swiss withholding tax purposes, we, ADT and Tyco Flow Control could incur significant Swiss withholding tax liabilities.”

Q: What impact will the proposals have on Tyco’s ability to make dividends or other distributions in the future?

A: Under Swiss law, a Swiss corporation may pay dividends only if the corporation has sufficient distributable profits from previous years, or if the corporation has distributable reserves, such as “reserve from capital contributions” or “contributed surplus” (contributions received from shareholders), each as evidenced by its audited statutory balance sheet. Payments may be made out of registered share capital—the aggregate par value of a company’s registered shares—only by way of a capital reduction.

Tyco’s freely distributable reserves based on its statutory account for fiscal year 2011 are CHF 7.94 billion, representing CHF 8.17 billion of freely distributable reserves as of September 30, 2011 reduced by approximately CHF 0.23 billion of dividends declared by our shareholders’ annual meeting on March 7, 2012. That amount—the amount available for future distributions—will be reduced by any additional distributions approved by our shareholders, including, (i) the ordinary cash dividends out of qualifying contributed surplus in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share proposed in this proxy statement and (ii) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements). As a result of these distributions, we expect Tyco to have freely distributable reserves of CHF 2–3 billion immediately following the Distributions.

Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 is CHF 35 billion. That amount will be reduced by (i) the ordinary cash dividends and (ii) the greater of (x) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements) and (y) the aggregate trading value of all distributed ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares, respectively, distributed in the special dividends in kind by the opening trading price of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, respectively, on the first trading day after distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco's statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. As a result, Tyco's total shareholders' equity in its Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

Q: Will the Distributions affect the trading price of my Tyco common shares?

A: Yes. We expect the trading price of Tyco common shares immediately following the Distributions to be lower than immediately prior to the Distributions because its trading price will no longer reflect the value of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada or flow control business. Furthermore, until the market has fully analyzed the value of Tyco without its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business, the price of Tyco common shares may fluctuate.

In addition, it is also anticipated that shortly before the record date and continuing up to and including the distribution date for the Distributions, there will be two markets in Tyco common shares: a "regular-way" market and an "ex-distribution" market. Tyco common shares that trade on the regular-way market will trade with an entitlement to Tyco Flow Control and ADT shares distributed pursuant to the Distributions. Shares that trade on the ex-distribution market will trade without an entitlement to Tyco Flow Control and ADT shares distributed pursuant to the Distributions.

Q: Will the Distributions impact Tyco's financial performance?

A: Yes. The residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada generated revenue of $3.1 billion for fiscal year 2011 and $1.6 billion for the six months ended March 30, 2012. The flow control business generated revenue of $3.6 billion for fiscal year 2011 and $1.9 billion for the six months ended March 30, 2012. Following the Distributions, Tyco will no longer own the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada or the flow control business, and accordingly, Tyco's results of operations will no longer include the results of those businesses and certain other adjustments will be made. See "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements of Tyco."

Q: Will the Distributions impact any of Tyco's outstanding indebtedness or the credit rating of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries?

A: Tyco's outstanding indebtedness is expected to be reduced in connection with debt capital raised on behalf of ADT and Tyco Flow Control. See "Capitalization." We expect Tyco to maintain an investment grade rating following the Distributions. However, given the smaller size of Tyco and its different business mix after the Distributions relative to that of Tyco prior to the Distributions, after the Distributions Tyco may incur higher debt servicing costs on its indebtedness and may not have access to the same sources of capital from short-term debt markets.

Q: What adjustments will be made to equity awards and other compensation awards and programs held by, or established for the benefit of, Tyco employees or directors as a result of the Distributions?

A: Pursuant to its authority under the stock and incentive plans under which Tyco's outstanding stock options, performance share units, restricted stock units and deferred stock units (collectively, "Equity Awards") were issued, the Tyco Compensation Committee has authorized that various adjustments to outstanding Equity Awards be made to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Equity Awards. The adjustments to Equity Awards vary depending on several factors, including the type of award, the nature of the employee's post-spin-off employment and whether the Equity Award was granted prior to October 12, 2011 (the date of the annual grant for fiscal year 2012). The Tyco Compensation Committee has also modified the terms of outstanding Equity Awards to make certain provisions for employees who are terminated in connection with the spin-offs. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Adjustment to Tyco Equity Awards as a Result of the Distributions” for details regarding these adjustments.

Q: When will the Distributions be completed?

A: If the matters required to be approved in connection with the special dividends are approved by Tyco shareholders at the Special General Meeting (and assuming the conditions to the special dividends are otherwise satisfied), the distribution date for the special dividends, which is the date on which we will distribute shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, will be September 28, 2012. We expect that it will take the distribution agent, acting on behalf of Tyco, up to three business days after the distribution date to fully distribute the shares of each of ADT and Tyco Flow Control to Tyco shareholders, which will be accomplished in a book-entry form. It is also possible that factors outside our control could require us to complete the Distributions at a later time or, to the extent conditions remain unsatisfied as of March 31, 2013, not to complete them at all. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger.” We currently expect the Distributions to occur at the end of September 2012.

Q: Do I have appraisal rights in connection with the Distributions?

A: No. Holders of Tyco common shares do not have any appraisal rights in connection with the Distributions.

Q: Are there any risks in connection with the Distributions and the Merger that I should consider?

A: Yes. There are certain risks associated with the Distributions and the Merger. These risk factors are discussed in more detail in the section titled “Risk Factors” beginning on page 74 of this proxy statement. In addition, you should consider the matters discussed in the section titled “Risk Factors” in the ADT Preliminary Information Statement included as Annex A and the section titled “Risk Factors” in the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus included as Annex B for certain additional risks relating to the spin-offs, the Merger, ADT’s, Tyco Flow Control’s and Pentair’s businesses, and ADT’s and Tyco Flow Control’s shares following the Distributions and the Merger.

Q: Who are the director nominees and why are they proposed for election?

A: In connection with the Distributions, the new director nominees proposed for shareholder approval are Frank Drendel and George Oliver. Mr. Drendel and Mr. Oliver have been nominated to in part replace certain directors who will resign from the Tyco Board of Directors to take director positions at ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control in connection with the spin-offs. More information about these new director nominees is set forth in more detail on page 271 of this proxy statement.

Q: Is the election of the new directors conditional on shareholder approval of the Distributions?

A: Yes. The election of the new members to the Tyco Board of Directors is contingent on Tyco shareholders approving the Distributions and on the consummation of the Distributions.

Q: Are the ordinary cash dividends conditional on shareholder approval of the Distributions?

A: Yes. Payment of the ordinary cash dividends is contingent on shareholder approval of the Distributions and on the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends.

Q: Is implementation of the Stock and Incentive Plan conditional on shareholder approval of the Distributions?

A: No. Implementation of The Stock and Incentive Plan is not contingent on shareholder approval of the Distributions.

ABOUT THE SPECIAL GENERAL MEETING

Q: Who is receiving this document?

A: Tyco has sent this Notice of Special General Meeting and proxy statement, together with the enclosed proxy card or voting instruction card, to you because our Board of Directors is soliciting your proxy to vote at the Special General Meeting on September 14, 2012. This proxy statement contains information about the items being voted on at the Special General Meeting.

Tyco has sent these materials to each person who is registered as a holder of its common shares in its register of shareholders (such owners are often referred to as “holders of record” or “registered shareholders”) as of the close of business on July 23, 2012, the record date for receiving notice of the Special General Meeting. Any Tyco shareholder as of the record date who does not receive a copy of this Notice of Special General Meeting and proxy statement, together with the enclosed proxy card or voting instruction card, may obtain a copy at the Special General Meeting or by contacting Tyco at +41 52 633 02 44. In addition, Tyco shareholders may contact MacKenzie Partners Inc., our proxy solicitor in connection the Special General Meeting, at 800-322-2885.

Tyco has requested that banks, brokerage firms and other nominees who hold Tyco common shares on behalf of the owners of the common shares (such owners are often referred to as “beneficial shareholders” or “street name holders”) as of the close of business on July 23, 2012 forward these materials, together with a proxy card or voting instruction card, to those beneficial shareholders. Tyco has agreed to pay the reasonable expenses of the banks, brokerage firms and other nominees for forwarding these materials.

Tyco has also provided for these materials to be sent to persons who have interests in Tyco common shares through participation in Tyco’s retirement savings plans and other employee share plans. These individuals are not eligible to vote directly at the Special General Meeting. They may, however, instruct the trustees of these plans how to vote the common shares represented by their interests. The enclosed proxy card will also serve as voting instructions for the trustees of the plans.

Q: When and where will the Special General Meeting be held?

A: The Special General Meeting is scheduled to be held on September 14, 2012 at 9:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time at Tyco’s offices, which are located at Freier Platz 10 CH-8200 in Schaffhausen, Switzerland.

Q: Who is entitled to vote?

A. July 23, 2012 is the record date for the Special General Meeting. On July 23, 2012, there were 459,815,712 common shares outstanding and entitled to vote at the Special General Meeting. Shareholders registered in our share register with voting rights at the close of business on July 23, 2012 are entitled to vote at the Special General Meeting, except as provided below. A shareholder who purchases shares from a registered holder after July 23, 2012, but before August 31, 2012, and who wishes to vote his or her shares at the Special General Meeting must (1) ask to be registered as a shareholder with respect to such shares in our share register prior to August 31, 2012 and (2) obtain a confirmation of such purchase from the registered voting rights record holder of those shares as of the record date. If you are a record holder of our common shares (as opposed to a beneficial shareholder) on the record date but sell your shares prior to the Special General Meeting, you will not be entitled to vote those shares at the Special General Meeting.

In March 2009, Tyco changed its jurisdiction of incorporation from Bermuda to Switzerland. As described in our January 21, 2009 proxy statement/prospectus, you should exchange any certificates representing our common shares you own that were issued while we were a Bermuda company for book-entry shares recorded electronically in our share register, and simultaneously elect to be enrolled as a shareholder with voting rights. While you will continue to be entitled to dividends, preemptive rights and liquidation proceeds even if you do not submit your certificates, you may not be able to exercise any voting rights, prove your ownership interest in Tyco, transfer your shares or exercise other shareholder rights until you submit your certificates and are registered as a shareholder entitled to voting rights. Please contact our transfer agent, Computershare Shareowner Services LLC (“Computershare”), at 800-685-4509, to obtain the appropriate forms to surrender your old certificates. Beneficial holders of shares held in “street name” are not required to take any action in this regard.

Q: What constitutes a quorum for the Special General Meeting?

A: Our Articles of Association provide that all resolutions and elections made at a shareholders’ meeting require the presence, in person or by proxy, of a majority of all shares entitled to vote, with abstentions, broker non-votes, blank or invalid ballots regarded as present for purposes of establishing the quorum.

Q: How many votes do I have?

Every holder of a common share on the record date will be entitled to one vote per share on each matter presented at the Special General Meeting. However, if you own “Controlled Shares” representing voting power of 15% or more, your ability to vote shares exceeding 15% of the voting power is limited. “Controlled Shares” is defined in Article 8 of our Articles of Association and generally refers to shares held directly, indirectly, formally, constructively or beneficially by any individual or entity, or any individuals or entities acting together as a group, subject to certain limitations.

Q: How does the Board of Directors of Tyco recommend that I vote regarding each of the proposals?

A: The Board of Directors of Tyco unanimously recommends that Tyco shareholders vote “FOR” each proposal.

Q: How do I vote?

A: You can vote in the following ways:

- By Mail: If you are a holder of record, you can vote by marking, dating and signing the appropriate proxy card and returning it by mail in the enclosed postage-paid envelope. If you beneficially own your common shares, you can vote by following the instructions on your voting instruction card. If you received more than one proxy card (which means that you have shares in more than one account), you must mark, sign, date and return each proxy card or use an alternative voting method.
- By Internet or Telephone: If you hold your shares in “street name,” you can vote over the Internet at www.proxyvote.com by following the instructions on the proxy card or voting instruction card. You can vote using a touchtone telephone by calling 1-800-690-6903.
- At the Special General Meeting: If you are planning to attend the Special General Meeting and wish to vote your shares in person, we will give you a ballot at the meeting. Shareholders who own their shares in street name are not able to vote at the Special General Meeting unless they have a proxy, executed in their favor, from the holder of record of their shares.

Even if you plan to be present at the Special General Meeting, we encourage you to complete and mail the enclosed card to vote your common shares by proxy. Telephone and Internet voting facilities for shareholders holding their shares beneficially will be available 24 hours a day and will close at 5:59 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on September 13, 2012.

Q: What is the difference between holding shares as a shareholder of record and as a beneficial owner?

A: Most of our shareholders hold their shares through a stockbroker, bank or other nominee rather than directly in their own name. As summarized below, there are some differences between shares held of record and those owned beneficially.

Shareholder of Record

If your shares are registered directly in your name, as registered shares entitled to voting rights, in our share register operated by our transfer agent, Computershare, you are considered, with respect to those shares, the shareholder of record and these proxy materials are being sent to you directly by us. As the shareholder of record, you have the right to grant your voting proxy directly to the Tyco officers named in the proxy card or to the independent proxy (see the Q&A below entitled “How do I appoint and vote via an independent proxy?”) named in the proxy card, or to grant a written proxy to any person (who does not need to be a shareholder), or to vote in person at the Special General Meeting. We have enclosed a proxy card for you to use in which you can elect to appoint Tyco officers or the independent proxy as your proxy.

Beneficial Owner

If your shares are held in a stock brokerage account or by a bank or other nominee, you are considered the beneficial owner of shares held in street name, and these proxy materials are being forwarded to you by your broker, bank or other nominee who is considered, with respect to those shares, the shareholder of record. As the beneficial owner, you have the right to direct your broker, bank or other nominee on how to vote your shares and are also invited to attend the Special General Meeting. However, since you are not the shareholder of record, you may only vote these shares in person at the Special General Meeting if you follow the instructions described below under the Q&A titled “How do I attend the Special General Meeting?” and “How do I vote?” Your broker, bank or other nominee has enclosed a voting instruction card for you to use in directing your broker, bank or other nominee as to how to vote your shares, which may contain instructions for voting by telephone or electronically.

Q: How do I vote by proxy given to a Tyco officer?

A: If you properly fill in your proxy card appointing an officer of Tyco as your proxy and send it to us in time to vote, your proxy, meaning one of the individuals named on your proxy card, will vote your shares as you have directed. If you sign the proxy card but do not make specific choices, your proxy will vote your shares as recommended by the Board of Directors “FOR” each of the proposals described above. Alternatively, you can grant a proxy to the independent proxy as described below.

Whether or not you plan to attend the Special General Meeting, we urge you to submit your proxy. Returning the proxy card will not affect your right to attend the Special General Meeting. You must return your proxy cards by the times and dates set forth below under “Returning Your Proxy Card” in order for your vote to be counted.

Q: How do I appoint and vote via an independent proxy?

A: If you are a shareholder of record as of the record date, you may authorize the independent proxy, Dr. Harald Maag, Bratschi, Wiederkehr & Buob, Attorneys-at-Law, Bahnhofstrasse 70, P.O. Box 1130, CH-8021, Zürich, Switzerland, Fax + 41 58 258 1099, with full rights of substitution, to vote your common shares on your behalf by checking the appropriate box on the enclosed proxy card. If you authorize the independent proxy to vote your shares without giving instructions, your shares will be voted in accordance with the recommendations of the Board of Directors with regard to the items listed in the notice of meeting.

Whether or not you plan to attend the Special General Meeting, we urge you to submit your proxy. Returning the proxy card will not affect your right to attend the Special General Meeting. You must return your proxy cards by the times and dates set forth below under “Returning Your Proxy Card” in order for your vote to be counted.

Q: How do I attend the Special General Meeting?

A: All shareholders are invited to attend and vote at the Special General Meeting. For admission to the Special General Meeting, shareholders of record should bring the admission ticket attached to the enclosed proxy card to the registered shareholders check-in area and a form of photo identification, where their ownership will be verified. Those who beneficially own shares should come to the beneficial owners check-in area. To be admitted, beneficial owners must bring a proxy executed in their favor by the record holder of their shares, as of the record date, account statements or letters from their banks, brokers, nominees or other custodians showing that they own Tyco common shares as of July 23, 2012 and a form of photo identification. Registration will begin at 8:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time and the Special General Meeting will begin at 9:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time.

Q: What if I return my proxy or voting instruction card but do not mark it to show how I am voting?

A: Your common shares will be voted according to the instructions you have indicated on your proxy or voting instruction card. If you sign and return your proxy card or voting instruction card but do not indicate instructions for voting, your common shares will be voted “FOR” each of the proposals to be considered at the Special General Meeting.

Q: May I change or revoke my vote after I return my proxy or voting instruction card?

A: You may change your vote before it is exercised by:

- notifying our Secretary in writing before the Special General Meeting that you are revoking your proxy or, if you beneficially own your common shares, following the instructions on the voting instruction card;
- submitting another proxy card (or another voting instruction card if you beneficially own your common shares) with a later date (so long as we receive such later dated proxy card by September 13, 2012);
- if you are a holder of record or a beneficial owner with a proxy from the holder of record, voting in person at the Special General Meeting, provided that record holders must first revoke any proxy previously given to a Company officer or the independent proxy. See “Organizational Matters Required by Swiss Law—Granting of Proxy” below; or
- if you beneficially hold your shares and voted by telephone or the Internet, submitting subsequent voting instructions through the telephone or Internet prior to September 13, 2012.

If you have granted your proxy to the independent proxy and wish to revoke or change the proxy, you should send a revocation letter, and new proxy, if applicable, directly to the independent proxy, Dr. Harald Maag, Bratschi, Wiederkehr & Buob, Attorneys-at-Law, Bahnhofstrasse 70, P.O. Box 1130, CH-8021, Zürich, Switzerland, Fax +41 58 258 10 99.

Q: What does it mean if I receive more than one proxy or voting instruction card?

A: It means you have multiple accounts at the transfer agent and/or with banks and stockbrokers. Please vote all of your common shares. If you are the beneficial owner, but not the record holder, of Tyco’s common shares, your broker, bank or other nominee may deliver only one copy of the proxy statement to multiple shareholders who share an address unless that nominee has received contrary instructions from one or more of the shareholders. Tyco will deliver promptly, upon written or oral request, a separate copy of the proxy statement to a shareholder at a shared address to which a single copy of the documents was delivered. Shareholders who wish to receive a separate written copy of the proxy statement should submit their request to Tyco by telephone at +41 52 633 02 44 or by submitting a written request to Tyco Shareholder Services, Tyco International Ltd., Freier Platz 10, CH-8200 Schaffhausen, Switzerland.

Q: What is the effect of broker non-votes and abstentions?

A: A broker non-vote occurs when a broker holding shares for a beneficial owner does not vote on a particular agenda item because the broker does not have discretionary voting power for that particular item and has not received instructions from the beneficial owner. Although brokers have discretionary power to vote your shares with respect to “routine” matters, they do not have discretionary power to vote your shares on “non-routine” matters pursuant to NYSE rules. We believe that Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT), Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control), Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) and Proposal 5 (Approval of Stock and Incentive Plan) will be considered non-routine under NYSE rules and therefore your broker will not be able to vote your shares with respect to these proposals unless the broker receives appropriate instructions from you. We strongly encourage you to submit your proxy card and exercise your right to vote as a shareholder.

Both (i) the election of the new members to the Tyco Board of Directors described in Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) and (ii) the proposed distributions of ordinary cash dividends described in Proposal 4 (Approval of Ordinary Cash Dividends), are contingent on Tyco shareholders approving each of Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT) and Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control).

Common shares owned by shareholders electing to abstain from voting with respect to Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT), Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control), Proposal 4 (Approval of Ordinary Cash Dividends) or Proposal 5 (Approval of Stock and Incentive Plan) and broker non-votes will be regarded as present at the meeting for purposes of the determination of the presence of a quorum but will not be counted towards the determination of the votes cast with respect to such proposals for the Special General Meeting. As a result, abstentions and broker non-votes with respect to such agenda items will have no effect on the outcome of Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT), Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control), Proposal 4 (Approval of Ordinary Cash Dividends) or Proposal 5 (Approval of Stock and Incentive Plan).

Common shares owned by shareholders electing to abstain from voting with respect to Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) and broker non-votes with respect to Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) will be regarded as present at the meeting for purposes of the determination of the presence of a quorum and will be counted towards the determination of the votes cast with respect to Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) for the Special General Meeting. As a result, abstentions and broker non-votes will have the same effect as a vote against Proposal 3 (Election of Directors).

If you sign the proxy card but do not make specific choices, your proxy will vote your shares as recommended by the Board of Directors “FOR” each of the proposals described above.

Q: What happens if I sell my shares after the record date but before the Special General Meeting?

A: The record date of the Special General Meeting is earlier than the date of the Special General Meeting, the date that the Distributions are expected to be completed and the dates that the ordinary cash dividends are expected to be paid. In order to be eligible to receive shares of ADT in the ADT Distribution and shares of Tyco Flow Control in the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, you must hold your shares through the record date for the special dividends, which will be different from the record date for the Special General Meeting. In order to be eligible to receive the ordinary cash dividends, you must hold your shares through the record date for such ordinary cash dividends, which will be different from the record date for the Special General Meeting and the record date for the special dividends. Shareholders who have sold their shares prior to the Special General Meeting are not entitled to vote those shares.

Q: Will a proxy solicitor be used?

A: Yes. Tyco has retained MacKenzie Partners Inc. to assist in the distribution and solicitation of proxies for the Special General Meeting and will pay MacKenzie Partners Inc. a fee of $9,500 plus reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses. In addition, Tyco’s directors, officers and employees may solicit proxies in person or by telephone, e-mail, facsimile transmission or other means of communication, but no additional compensation will be paid to them.

Q: Who should I call with questions?

A: Tyco shareholders should call the following persons with any questions about the spin-offs, the special dividends and the other matters to be voted on at the Special General Meeting or about the Merger, or to obtain additional copies of this proxy statement or additional proxy cards:

Organizational Matters Required by Swiss Law

ADMISSION TO THE SPECIAL GENERAL MEETING

Shareholders who are registered in the share register on July 23, 2012 will receive the proxy statement and proxy cards from us. Beneficial owners of shares will receive an instruction from their broker, bank, nominee or custodian acting as shareholder of record to indicate how they wish their shares to be voted. Beneficial owners who wish to vote in person at the Special General Meeting are requested to obtain a proxy executed in their favor from their broker, bank, nominee or other custodian that authorizes you to vote the shares held by them on your behalf. In addition, you must bring to the Special General Meeting an account statement or letter from the broker, bank or other nominee indicating that you are the owner of the shares. Shareholders of record registered in the share register are entitled to vote and may participate in the Special General Meeting. Each share carries one vote. The exercise of the voting right is subject to the voting restrictions set out in our Articles of Association, a summary of which is contained in the Q&A above titled "How many votes do I have?" For further information, refer also to the Q&A above entitled "Who is entitled to vote?," "What is the difference between holding shares as a shareholder of record and as a beneficial owner?," "How do I vote by proxy given to a company officer?," "How do I appoint and vote via an independent proxy?" and "How do I attend the Special General Meeting?"

Shareholders who purchase our shares and, upon application, become registered as shareholders with respect to such shares after July 23, 2012 but on or before August 31, 2012 and who wish to vote those shares at the Special General Meeting, will need to obtain a proxy, executed in their favor, from the registered holder of those shares as of the record date to vote their shares in person at the Special General Meeting. Shareholders registered in our share register (as opposed to beneficial shareholders) who have sold their shares prior to the Special General Meeting are not entitled to vote those shares.

GRANTING OF PROXY

If you are a shareholder of record and do not wish to attend the Special General Meeting, you have the right to grant your voting proxy directly to the Tyco officers named in the proxy card. Alternatively, you can appoint Dr. Harald Maag, Bratschi Wiederkehr & Buob, Attorneys-at-Law, as independent proxy, in accordance with Article 689c of the Swiss Code of Obligations, with full rights of substitution, by checking the appropriate box on the enclosed proxy card, or grant a written proxy to any other person, which person does not need to be a shareholder. For further information, refer to the Q&A above entitled "How do I vote by proxy given to a Tyco officer?" and "How do I appoint and vote via an independent proxy?"

Written revocations should be directed to the Secretary of Tyco at the same addresses listed above used for proxy submissions.*

For further information, refer to “What is the difference between holding shares as a shareholder of record and as a beneficial owner?”

PROXY HOLDERS OF DEPOSITED SHARES

Proxy holders of deposited shares in accordance with Article 689d of the Swiss Code are kindly asked to inform Tyco of the number of the shares they represent as soon as possible, but no later than September 14, 2012, at 8:00 a.m. Central European Summer Time at the registered shareholders check-in area.

SUMMARY OF THE SPIN-OFFS AND THE MERGER

This summary contains selected information from this proxy statement relating to the spin-offs and the Merger and may not contain all of the information that is important to you. To fully understand the spin-offs and the Merger, and to obtain a more complete description of the legal terms thereof, you should carefully read this entire document, including the annexes, and the documents to which we refer you. See “Where You Can Find More Information.”

The Spin-Offs

Tyco’s Board of Directors has determined that it is in the best interest of Tyco and its shareholders to pursue (i) the separation of its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada into a separate, independent and publicly-traded company, which it intends to accomplish through the pro rata distribution to Tyco’s shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common stock of ADT, such distribution to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus and (ii) the separation of its flow control business into a separate company, which it intends to accomplish through the pro rata distribution to Tyco’s shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control, such distribution to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, and immediately thereafter the combination of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair through the Merger.

Tyco shareholders will not be entitled to fractional shares of ADT common stock or Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions. In lieu of fractional shares of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT, on the one hand, and Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT or Tyco Flow Control in the special dividend. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—General Summary of the Spin-Offs and the Merger—Conditions to the Distributions.” Immediately following the ADT Distribution, ADT will be an independent, publicly-traded company owned by the holders of Tyco common shares as of the record date for the ADT Distribution and their transferees. Immediately following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger, Tyco Flow Control will be a separate, publicly-traded company holding Tyco’s flow control business and the business of Pentair with holders of Tyco common shares as of the record date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and their transferees holding approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control and former shareholders of Pentair holding approximately 47.5%, in each case on a fully diluted basis (excluding treasury shares). Tyco will not own any capital stock of ADT or Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions. We anticipate that ADT’s common stock will, following completion of the ADT Distribution, trade on the NYSE under the symbol “ADT.” We anticipate that Tyco Flow Control will change its corporate name to “Pentair Ltd.” shortly before the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, and that following completion of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger, its common shares will trade on the NYSE under the symbol “PNR,” which is Pentair’s current trading symbol.

In addition, in connection with each of the special dividends, it is proposed that (i) the two new director nominees, Frank Drendel and George Oliver, be elected effective as of completion of the Distributions to the Tyco Board of Directors, contingent on the consummation of the Distributions and (ii) Tyco pay ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013, contingent on the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such cash dividend. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco’s annual general meeting on March 7, 2012.

We have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and, before the ADT Distribution, we will enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement. We will also enter into other agreements with ADT and Tyco Flow Control to effect the spin-offs and provide a framework for our relationship with ADT and Tyco Flow Control after the Distributions. These agreements will govern the relationships among ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco up to and subsequent to the completion of the spin-offs and provide for the allocation among ADT, Tyco Flow Control and us of various assets, liabilities and obligations attributable to periods prior to the Distributions. See “The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements,” and the annexes for further information regarding the Distributions and the agreements that Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control have entered into or will enter into in connection with the spin-offs.

Risk Factors

There are risks associated with the spin-offs and the Merger, which are described in the section titled "Risk Factors" beginning on page 74. You should carefully read and consider these risks, which include, without limitation, the following:

- we may be unable to realize the benefits of the spin-offs and the Merger;
- following the Distributions, the value of your Tyco common shares, ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares may collectively trade at an aggregate price less than that at which Tyco shares might trade had the Distributions not occurred; and
- following the Distributions and the Merger, Tyco shareholders who receive shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares from the special dividends will, in addition to holding Tyco shares, hold shares of ADT common stock and shares of Tyco Flow Control, and Tyco Flow Control will include the business currently conducted by Pentair. Each of the ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares will have different terms than Tyco common shares, and ADT, as a Delaware corporation, will be governed by different laws than Tyco, a Swiss company limited by shares.

There are also certain risks related to holding ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares following the Distributions and the Merger and risks related to the businesses of ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair. For further information regarding these risks, you should read carefully the section entitled “Risk Factors” in the ADT Preliminary Information Statement included as Annex A and the section entitled “Risk Factors” in the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus included as Annex B.

The Special General Meeting

When and Where. The Special General Meeting of Tyco shareholders is scheduled to be held on September 14, 2012 at 9:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time, at Tyco’s offices at Freier Platz 10, CH-8200, Schaffhausen, Switzerland.

Purpose of the Special General Meeting. The purpose of the Special General Meeting is to consider and vote on the proposals described below.

1. A proposal to approve, subject to prior satisfaction of the conditions described in this proxy statement, the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, as further described in this proxy statement.
2. A proposal to approve, subject to prior satisfaction of the conditions described in this proxy statement, the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, as further described in this proxy statement.
3. A proposal to elect as directors effective as of the date of the Distributions the two nominees to the Board of Directors named in this proxy statement, for terms expiring at Tyco’s next annual general shareholders’ meeting.
4. A proposal to approve payment of ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013, subject to prior shareholder approval of the Distributions and the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco’s annual general meeting on March 7, 2012.
5. A proposal to approve the Stock and Incentive Plan on the terms described herein. The Stock and Incentive Plan was approved by our Compensation and Human Resources Committee and our Board of Directors on July 12, 2012, subject to the approval of shareholders.

In lieu of fractional shares of ADT or Tyco Flow Control shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT, on the one hand, and Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control, as applicable, in the special dividends.

The special dividends are not conditioned upon each other, such that if our shareholders approve one special dividend but not the other, we will complete the special dividend that our shareholders have approved (subject to the prior satisfaction of certain conditions described in this proxy statement). Tyco, as the sole shareholder of Tyco Flow Control, has already approved the Merger. Tyco is not required to obtain, and it is not seeking, the approval of Tyco shareholders for the Merger. However, the Merger will not take place unless Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Record Date; Shares Entitled to Vote. Tyco has fixed the close of business on July 23, 2012 as the record date for the determination of holders of Tyco common shares entitled to notice of the Special General Meeting. Shareholders registered in Tyco’s share register with voting rights at the close of business on July 23, 2012 are entitled to vote at the Special General Meeting, except as provided below. A shareholder who purchases shares from a registered holder after July 23, 2012, but before August 31, 2012, and who (1) is registered as a shareholder with respect to such shares in Tyco's share register prior to August 31, 2012 and (2) obtains a proxy from the registered voting rights record holder of those shares as of the record date will be entitled to vote such purchased shares in lieu of the holder as of the record date. At the close of business on the record date for the Special General Meeting, there were 459,815,712 common shares outstanding and entitled to vote at the Special General Meeting. Every holder of a common share on the record date will be entitled to one vote per share on each matter presented at the Special General Meeting. However, if you own "Controlled Shares" representing voting power of 15% or more of the outstanding voting power, your ability to vote shares exceeding 15% of the voting power is limited. "Controlled Shares" is defined in Article 8 of our Articles of Association and generally refers to shares held directly, indirectly, formally, constructively or beneficially by any individual or entity, or any individuals or entities acting together as a group, subject to certain limitations.

Required Votes. The affirmative vote of a relative majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the Special General Meeting is required to approve proposals 1, 2, 4 and 5. The affirmative vote of an absolute majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the Special General Meeting is required for the election of the nominee pursuant to proposal 3. The election of the two new members to the Tyco Board of Directors shall be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving each of the special dividend proposals and on the consummation of the Distributions, and the ordinary cash dividends proposal shall be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving each of the special dividend proposals and on the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends. The ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco's annual general meeting of March 7, 2012. The implementation of the Stock and Incentive Plan, if approved, is not conditioned on the approval of any other proposal.

Tyco's Reasons for the ADT Distribution

Tyco's Board of Directors has determined that pursuing a distribution of its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide the following key benefits:

- Greater Strategic Focus of Financial Resources and Management's Efforts. The residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada has historically exhibited different financial and operating characteristics from Tyco's other businesses and employs different capital expenditure and acquisition strategies.
- Direct and Differentiated Access to Capital Resources. Our Board of Directors and senior management believe that direct and differentiated access to capital resources will allow ADT to better optimize the amounts and terms of the capital needed for its business, aligning financial and operational characteristics with investor and market expectations.
- Enhanced Investor Choices by Offering Investment Opportunities in Separate Entities. We believe that after the spin-off, investors will be better positioned to evaluate the financial performance and strategy of ADT within the context of its markets and that this will enhance the likelihood that ADT will achieve an appropriate market valuation.
- Improved Ability to Use Stock as an Acquisition Currency. The spin-off will enable ADT to use its stock as currency to pursue certain financial and strategic objectives, including acquisitions. We expect that ADT will be able to more easily facilitate future strategic transactions with similar businesses through the use of their stand-alone stock as consideration.
- Improved Management Incentive Tools. ADT expects to use its equity to compensate current and future employees. By granting stock linked to its business, ADT will be able to offer its managers equity compensation that is linked more directly to their work product than Tyco's current equity compensation.

In view of the wide variety of factors considered in connection with the evaluation of the spin-off and the complexity of these matters, Tyco's Board of Directors did not find it useful to, and did not attempt to, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the factors considered.

Reasons for the Tyco Flow Control Transactions

Tyco's Board of Directors has determined that pursuing a distribution of its flow control business and combining its flow control business with Pentair pursuant to the Merger is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide the following key benefits:

- Greater Strategic Focus of Financial Resources. The flow control business represents has historically exhibited different financial and operating characteristics than Tyco's other businesses. Pentair's business and operations reflect many of the same characteristics as the flow control business, including significant manufacturing operations and overseas presence.
- Direct and Differentiated Access to Capital Resources; Enhanced Investor Choices. Our Board of Directors and management believe that direct and differentiated access to capital resources would allow the flow control business to better optimize the amounts and terms of the capital needed for its business, aligning financial and operational characteristics with investor and market expectations. Tyco also believes that, as the majority of Pentair's product and service offerings are complementary to those of Tyco Flow Control, the combined business will similarly benefit from direct access to capital resources, but with the added benefit of increased scale. In addition, in approving the spin-off and the Merger, Tyco concluded that it believed that the flow control business' investment characteristics as a stand-alone, independent public company could appeal to types of investors who differ from Tyco's current investors.
- Increased Size and Broader Offering. Our Board of Directors and management concluded that one of the benefits of the spin-off and the Merger would be to enable the flow control business to use its stock as currency to pursue certain financial and strategic objectives, including acquisitions, and that it would be able to more easily facilitate potential future transactions with similar businesses through the use of Tyco Flow Control's stand-alone stock as consideration.
- Complementary Business; Synergy Opportunities. In approving the Merger Agreement and the Merger, our Board of Directors considered a number of factors relating to or arising from the complementary nature of the flow control and Pentair businesses, including the potential cost savings resulting from the Merger and the broader product and service offering offered by a combined flow control-Pentair business.
- Existing Public Company Infrastructure. In assessing the relative benefits to pursuing the Merger in addition to the spin-off, our Board of Directors also considered that Tyco shareholders, as shareholders in a combined flow control-Pentair business, would benefit from Pentair's existing public company infrastructure.
- Appropriate Value for the Business. Our Board of Directors considered the fact that it believed that after the spin-off, investors would have been better positioned to evaluate the financial performance and strategy of the flow control business within the context of Tyco Flow Control's markets and that this would have enhanced the likelihood that the flow control business achieve an appropriate market valuation. In approving the Merger, our Board of Directors, acting with the assistance of Tyco management and its outside advisors, further considered that it believes that the Tyco Flow Control Transactions as a whole would be more favorable to Tyco shareholders from a financial point of view due to the anticipated value to be generated through the realization of potential synergies resulting from the Merger and the relative ownership of Tyco shareholders in the combined business immediately following the Merger.

In view of the wide variety of factors considered in connection with the evaluation of the spin-off, the evaluation of the Merger, and the complexity of these matters, our Board of Directors did not find it useful to, and did not attempt to, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the factors considered.

Our Board of Directors unanimously recommends that you vote "FOR" the proposal to complete the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Opinion of Goldman Sachs

Goldman, Sachs & Co. (“Goldman Sachs”) delivered its opinion to Tyco’s Board of Directors that, as of March 27, 2012 and based upon and subject to the factors and assumptions set forth therein, the Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement was fair from a financial point of view to Tyco Flow Control.

The full text of the written opinion of Goldman Sachs, dated March 27, 2012, which sets forth assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken in connection with the opinion, is attached as Annex G. Goldman Sachs provided its opinion for the information and assistance of Tyco’s Board of Directors in connection with its consideration of the Merger. The Goldman Sachs opinion is not a recommendation as to how any holder of Tyco common shares should vote with respect to any matter. Pursuant to an engagement letter between Tyco International Management Company, LLC, an affiliate of Tyco, and Goldman Sachs, Tyco International Management Company, LLC has agreed to pay Goldman Sachs a transaction fee of $18 million, all of which is payable upon consummation of the Merger.

Opinion of Duff & Phelps

The Board of Directors will receive an opinion from Duff & Phelps to the effect that each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control will be solvent and adequately capitalized immediately after the Distributions. The form of opinion of Duff & Phelps is included as Annex C to this proxy statement. The opinion will set forth, among other things, the assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken by Duff & Phelps in connection with the opinion.

Conditions to the Distributions

The ADT Distribution requires that our shareholders shall have approved the special dividend of ADT common stock to Tyco shareholders at the Special General Meeting, and the resolution proposed at the Special General Meeting will require that the following conditions are met or waived prior to the ADT Distribution:

- the SEC, shall have declared effective the ADT Form 10, including the Preliminary Information Statement contained therein, under the Exchange Act, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 shall be in effect;
- ADT’s common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution, to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the ADT Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the ADT Distribution substantially to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution; and

- based on the closing price of the ADT shares trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

In the event that Tyco shareholders approve the ADT Distribution and the conditions described above are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the ADT Distribution. Conversely, if the conditions have not been satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, the ADT Distribution will not take place.

Consummation of the Tyco Flow Control spin-off will be subject to the following conditions being met or waived prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution:

- the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco’s obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution); and
- each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger.

For detailed information regarding the conditions to Tyco’s and Pentair’s obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement see “The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger.”

In the event that Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the conditions described above are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Conversely, if the conditions have not been satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, the Tyco Flow Control Distribution will not take place on the same terms as described herein.

If the Merger were to be discontinued for any reason and the Merger Agreement terminated, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT intend to modify or otherwise amend and restate the current Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement to remove those provisions applicable to the Merger and/or Pentair and proceed with the Tyco Flow Control Distribution as originally announced on September 19, 2011.

We expect that prior to receipt of shareholder approval at the Special General Meeting we will have received:

- the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- the opinion of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the proposed distribution of the common stock of ADT and common shares of Tyco Flow Control and the proposed ordinary dividend comply with Swiss law are Tyco’s Articles of Association.

The election of two new members to the Tyco Board of Directors shall be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving the Distributions and shall be effective upon the consummation of the Distributions. The payment of the ordinary cash dividends shall also be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving the Distributions and on the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividend. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco’s annual general meeting on March 7, 2012.

Separation and Distribution Agreements

We have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and we intend to enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement prior to the ADT Distribution. These agreements, together with the other agreements we intend to enter into with ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control in connection with the Distributions are described under “The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements” in this proxy statement. The form of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement is included as Annex D to this proxy statement. We urge you to read the Separation and Distribution Agreements in their entirety because they will be the primary legal documents governing the relationships among Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the spin-offs.

Expected Timing of the Distributions

Assuming the Special General Meeting is not adjourned or postponed and that Tyco shareholders approve the proposals required to complete the Distributions, we would expect to complete the Distributions on September 28, 2012, subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions described in this proxy statement. We expect that it will take the distribution agent for the special dividends, acting on behalf of Tyco, up to three business days after the distribution date to fully distribute the shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares to Tyco shareholders.

Adjustment of Tyco Equity Awards

Under the terms of the stock and incentive plans under which Tyco’s outstanding Equity Awards were issued, the Tyco Compensation Committee has the authority to make equitable adjustments to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards in the event of certain transactions, including the distribution of ADT’s common stock and Tyco Flow Control’s common shares. Accordingly, the Tyco Compensation Committee has made various adjustments to outstanding Equity Awards to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Equity Awards. The adjustments to Equity Awards vary depending on several factors, including the type of award, the nature of the employee’s post-spin-off employment and whether the Equity Award was granted prior to October 12, 2011 (the date of the annual grant for fiscal year 2012). The Tyco Compensation Committee has also modified the terms of outstanding Equity Awards to make certain provisions for employees who are terminated in connection with the spin-offs. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Adjustment to Tyco Equity Awards as a Result of the Distributions” for details regarding these adjustments.

Interests of Tyco’s Directors and Executive Officers in the Distributions

In considering the recommendation of the Tyco Board of Directors with respect to the Distributions, Tyco stockholders should be aware that Tyco’s directors and executive officers have interests in the Distributions that may be different from, or in addition to, Tyco’s stockholders generally. The Tyco Board of Directors was aware of these interests, and considered these interests, among other matters, in recommending to the stockholders that the Distributions be approved.

These interests and arrangements include:

- appointments to the Boards of Directors of, or executive officer positions with, Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control in connection with the Distributions;
- adjustments to outstanding equity awards, including conversion of certain Equity Awards into Equity Awards of ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control; and
- severance arrangements with respect to executive officers whose employment will be terminated in connection with the Distributions.

Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences

Tyco shareholders are not expected to recognize any gain or loss, or include any amount in income, for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a result of the Distributions or the Merger except to the extent of cash received in lieu of fractional shares in the Distributions. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences” for a more detailed description of the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Distributions.

Material Swiss Tax Consequences

Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to our shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). Tyco has obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that the Distributions qualify as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distributions.

Shareholders who are not resident in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who, during the applicable year, have not engaged in a trade or business carried on through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who are not subject to corporate or individual income taxation in Switzerland for any other reason, will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distributions, including any cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and fractional Tyco Flow Control common shares.

Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as private assets will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distributions, including any cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and fractional Tyco Flow Control common shares. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax and, conversely, capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss Private Shareholders. Special rules may apply to (i) Swiss resident individuals who hold Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as private assets and transfer, individually or together with other shareholders, 5% or more of the outstanding common shares into a personal (partially) owned corporation or (ii) a shareholder who sells, individually or together with other shareholders, more than 20% of the outstanding common shares out of his private assets to a buyer who owns the shares as business assets.

Corporate and individual shareholders who are residents in Switzerland for tax purposes or who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland (or, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes), will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the Distributions, including any cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and fractional Tyco Flow Control common shares, to the extent that the participation income cannot be reduced by a respective depreciation on the investment in Tyco and/or where the participation exemption (Beteiligungsabzug) is not applicable.

Each shareholder is urged to consult his, her or its tax advisor as to the specific U.S., state, local or foreign income tax consequences of the Distributions and the Merger to that shareholder.

Impact of the proposals on Tyco’s ability to make dividends or other distributions in the future

Under Swiss law, a Swiss corporation may pay dividends only if the corporation has sufficient distributable profits from previous fiscal years, or if the corporation has distributable reserves, each as evidenced by its audited statutory balance sheet. Freely distributable reserves are generally booked either as “free reserves” or as “contributed surplus” (contributions received from shareholders) in the “reserve from capital contributions.” Payments may be made out of registered share capital—the aggregate par value of a company’s registered shares—only by way of a capital reduction.

Tyco’s freely distributable reserves based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 are CHF 7.94 billion, representing CHF 8.17 billion of freely distributable reserves as of September 30, 2011 reduced by approximately CHF 0.23 billion of dividends declared by our shareholders’ annual meeting on March 7, 2012. That amount—the amount available for future distributions—will be reduced by any additional distributions approved by our shareholders, including, (i) the ordinary cash dividends out of qualifying contributed surplus in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share proposed in this proxy statement and (ii) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements). As a result of these distributions, we expect Tyco to have freely distributable reserves of CHF 2–3 billion immediately following the Distributions.

Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 is CHF 35 billion. That amount will be reduced by (i) the ordinary cash dividends and (ii) the greater of (x) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements) and (y) the aggregate trading value of all distributed ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares, respectively, distributed in the special dividends in kind by the opening trading price of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, respectively, on the first trading day after distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco’s statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. As a result, Tyco’s total shareholders’ equity in its Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

See “The Special General Meeting” for a table showing the impact of the Distributions and the ordinary cash dividends.

Regulatory Approvals

Apart from the filing of this proxy statement with the SEC and distribution of the proxy statement to Tyco shareholders in connection with the Special General Meeting, ADT is required to file with the SEC the ADT Form 10 together with certain exhibits thereto, including the final version of the Information Statement for ADT, in order to register its common shares under the Exchange Act. Tyco Flow Control is required to file with the SEC a Registration Statement on Form S-1 under the Securities Act, together with certain exhibits thereto and the final version of the Prospectus for Tyco Flow Control, in order to register the Tyco Flow Control Distribution under the Securities Act. Tyco Flow Control is not required to file with the SEC a Registration Statement on Form 10 in order to register its common shares under the Exchange Act because Tyco Flow Control will become the successor registrant to Pentair upon consummation of the Merger. Tyco Flow Control is also required to file the Form S-4, which will include a prospectus with respect to the offering of Tyco Flow Control common shares to Pentair shareholders as consideration for the Merger as well as a proxy statement with respect to the vote of Pentair shareholders with respect to the Merger. The final version of the ADT Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus will be delivered to Tyco shareholders holding Tyco common shares on the record date for the special dividends. Copies of the ADT Preliminary Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus are included in this proxy statement as Annex A and Annex B, respectively.

In addition, in connection with the ADT Distribution, ADT will apply to have its shares listed on the NYSE under the trading symbol “ADT,” and in connection with the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Tyco Flow Control will apply to have its shares listed on the NYSE under the trading symbol “PNR,” which is Pentair’s current trading symbol. The declaration by the SEC of the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 (and the absence of a stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10) and acceptance of ADT shares for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance, are each conditions to the completion of the ADT Distribution. The declaration by the SEC of the effectiveness of each of the Form S-1 and the Form S-4 (and the absence of a stop order suspending their effectiveness) and the acceptance of Tyco Flow Control shares for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance, are each conditions to completion of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

The Merger is subject to regulatory approvals. Under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act (the “HSR Act”) and related rules, certain transactions, including the Merger, may not be completed until notifications have been given and information furnished to the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice (the “Antitrust Division”) and the statutory waiting period requirements have been satisfied. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control filed Notification and Report Forms with the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division on April 17, 2012, and early termination of the HSR Act waiting period was granted on April 25, 2012.

In addition, Pentair and Tyco Flow Control are required to provide notifications to the European Union, Chinese and Turkish competition authorities. Subsequent to a notification filed on June 15, 2012, Pentair and Tyco Flow Control received on July 11, 2012 a decision from the European Commission under Council Regulation (EC) No. 139/2004 January 20, 2004 on the control of concentrations between undertakings declaring that the Merger is compatible with the internal market and with the Agreement of the European Economic Area. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control are also seeking clearance under the Chinese Anti-Monopoly Law with a notification submitted to the Anti-Monopoly Bureau of China’s Ministry of Commerce on May 4, 2012. The Anti-Monopoly Bureau of China’s Ministry of Commerce initiated the formal review period for the notification on July 3, 2012. Further, subsequent to a notification submitted to the Competition Board of the Turkish Competition Authority on June 27, 2012, Pentair and Tyco Flow Control received on July 19, 2012 a decision granting clearance under the Turkish Law on Protection of Competition No. 4054 and the Turkish Competition Authority Communiqué No. 2010/4 on Mergers and Acquisitions Requiring the Approval of the Competition Board. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control, as appropriate, also may provide notice and seek regulatory clearance in other jurisdictions to be determined.

Tyco and Pentair have agreed to use their reasonable best efforts, subject to specified limitations, to obtain as promptly as practicable all consents, registrations, approvals, waivers, permits, authorizations, clearances, and other actions of or by any governmental authority that are necessary or advisable under or in respect of any other antitrust law in order to consummate the Merger and the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. Under the Merger Agreement, the use of such reasonable best efforts does not require Tyco or Pentair to agree to or accept any term or condition to any regulatory approval if the terms and conditions of or to the regulatory approvals would reasonably be expected to have a material and adverse impact on the value, financial condition or credit quality of Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole and including for such purposes Pentair and its subsidiaries.

It is possible that any of the above governmental entities with which filings are made may seek, as a condition for granting approval of the Merger, various regulatory concessions. There can be no assurance that:

- Tyco Flow Control, Tyco or Pentair will be able to satisfy or comply with such conditions;
- compliance or non-compliance will not have adverse consequences on Tyco Flow Control after completion of the Merger; or
- the required regulatory approvals will be obtained within the time frame contemplated by Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair or on terms that will be satisfactory to Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair.

At any time before or after the completion of the Merger, the Antitrust Division, the Federal Trade Commission or others (including states and private parties) could take action under antitrust laws, including seeking to prevent the Merger, to rescind the Merger or to conditionally approve the Merger. Such conditions could possibly include, among others, the divestiture of assets of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or Pentair. There can be no assurance that a challenge to the Merger on antitrust grounds will not be made or, if such a challenge is made, that it would not be successful.

You are urged to read carefully and in its entirety the ADT Preliminary Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus as they contain additional important information relating to the spin-offs and the Merger, ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair. We expect that one or more amendments to those documents may be filed with the SEC between the date of this proxy statement and the date of the Special General Meeting, and we expect that each of those documents will be amended between the date of this proxy statement and the date that it is mailed to Tyco holders as of the record date for the special dividends. Tyco shareholders holding Tyco common shares as of the record date for the special dividends (assuming shareholder approval is received at the Special General Meeting) are encouraged to read the final information statements to be mailed to Tyco shareholders as of such date.

In addition to the foregoing U.S. federal securities law requirements, each of ADT and Tyco Flow Control may be required to undertake certain registrations required under U.S. state securities or blue sky laws in connection with the Distributions.

Apart from the matters described above, Tyco is not aware of any other material regulatory requirements or approvals that must be complied with or obtained in connection with the Distributions or the Merger.

Appraisal Rights

Holders of Tyco common shares are not entitled to appraisal rights in connection with the spin-offs or the Merger.

Accounting Treatment of the Distributions and the Merger

The Distributions

Upon completion of the Distributions, Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business are each expected to be treated as discontinued operations for Tyco's financial reporting purposes.

In addition, the Distributions will lead to reductions to Tyco's freely distributable reserves and contributed surplus, as described under above under "—Impact of the proposals on Tyco's ability to make dividends or other distributions in the future" and as reflected in tabular form under "The Special General Meeting."

The Merger

Accounting Standards Certification ("ASC") Topic 805, Business Combinations, requires the use of the purchase method of accounting for business combinations. In applying the purchase method, it is necessary to identify both the accounting acquiree and the accounting acquirer. In a business combination effected through an exchange of equity interests, such as the Merger, the entity that issues the interests (Tyco Flow Control in this case) is generally the acquiring entity. In identifying the acquiring entity in a combination effected through an exchange of equity interests, however, all pertinent facts and circumstances must be considered, including the following:

- The relative voting interests in Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. In this case, Tyco shareholders are expected to receive approximately 52.5% of the equity ownership and associated voting rights in Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions.
- The composition of the governing body of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. In this case, the composition of the Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions will be comprised of the ten current members of the Board of Directors of Pentair plus up to two members designated by Tyco prior to the mailing of the proxy statement and reasonably acceptable to Pentair. Tyco has selected only one designee to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors. As more fully described in "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Comparison of Rights of Current Tyco Shareholders, ADT Shareholders and Tyco Flow Control Shareholders following the Distributions and the Merger,” Tyco Flow Control’s board of directors will be divided into three classes substantially equivalent in size, with each class serving a three-year term. One class will be elected at each annual general meeting of shareholders. As a result, any significant shift in the composition of the board of directors proposed by Tyco Flow Control would take at least two years.

- The composition of senior management of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. In this case, Tyco Flow Control’s executive officers following the Merger will be the executive officers of Pentair.

Pentair and Tyco Flow Control have determined that Pentair will be the accounting acquiror in this combination based on the pertinent facts and circumstances, including those outlined above. Tyco Flow Control will apply purchase accounting to the assets and liabilities of Tyco’s flow control business upon consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. Upon completion of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, the historical financial statements of Tyco Flow Control will be those of Pentair.

Description of ADT Common Stock and Tyco Flow Control Common Shares; Rights of ADT Shareholders and Tyco Flow Control Shareholders

The rights of Tyco shareholders are currently governed by Tyco’s Articles of Association and Swiss law. In the event that Tyco shareholders approve the special dividend proposals set forth in this proxy statement and the Distributions are completed, those Tyco shareholders who receive ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares in the special dividends will also become shareholders of ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control upon completion of the Distributions. The rights afforded to shareholders of ADT common stock will be governed by ADT’s certificate of incorporation, ADT’s bylaws, and Delaware law. The rights afforded to shareholders of Tyco Flow Control common shares will be governed by Tyco Flow Control’s Articles of Association and Swiss law. As a result, you will have different rights with respect to your Tyco shares relative to your ADT shares due to the differences in the governing documents and laws of Tyco and ADT. The Articles of Association of Tyco Flow Control are expected to contain some provisions that are similar to, and some provisions that are different than, those of Tyco. The key differences are described in the section titled “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Comparison of Rights of Current Tyco Shareholders, ADT Shareholders and Tyco Flow Control Shareholders following the Distributions and the Merger” in this proxy statement.

SELECTED CONSOLIDATED HISTORICAL FINANCIAL DATA OF TYCO

The following table sets forth selected consolidated financial data of Tyco. The consolidated statement of operations and balance sheet data as of and for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011 have been derived from our unaudited consolidated financial statements. The consolidated statement of operations and balance sheet data as of and for the fiscal years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010, September 25, 2009, September 26, 2008 and September 28, 2007 are derived from our audited consolidated financial statements. The unaudited consolidated financial statements have been prepared according to GAAP on the same basis as the audited consolidated financial statements and, in the opinion of our management, include all adjustments, consisting only of normal recurring adjustments, necessary for a fair presentation of the information set forth herein. During the third quarter of fiscal year 2010, Tyco's European water business was classified as a discontinued operation. As a result, the selected financial data presented in Tyco's Form 10-K for the year ended September 25, 2009 has been recast below to reflect the European water business as a discontinued operation. The selected historical consolidated financial data presented below should be read in conjunction with Tyco's consolidated financial statements and related notes and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" incorporated by reference in this proxy statement from Tyco's Annual Report on Form 10-K for fiscal year 2011 and Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q for the second quarter of fiscal year 2012. Tyco has a 52- or 53-week fiscal year that ends on the last Friday in September. Fiscal years 2010, 2009, 2008 and 2007 were all 52-week years, while fiscal year 2011 was a 53-week year.

Tyco divested a business during fiscal year 2012 which has been classified in discontinued operations in its interim consolidated financial statements for the quarters and six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011. The effect of reclassifying the business in discontinued operations is not material to previously issued annual and interim financial statements. As a result, the financial statements included in this proxy statement have not been recasted to reflect the business as a discontinued operation. The recasting of the financial statements will not have an effect on previously reported net income or loss, total assets and liabilities, shareholders' equity or cash flows from operating, investing and financing activities for the fiscal years ended September 30, 2011, September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010, September 25, 2009 and September 26, 2008.

This selected financial data should be read in conjunction with Tyco's Consolidated Financial Statements and related Notes incorporated by reference in this proxy statement.

UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF TYCO

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements were derived from our Historical Consolidated Financial Statements and give effect to the spin-offs and the related transactions. These unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements should be read together with our Historical Consolidated Financial Statements and accompanying Notes.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011 and fiscal years 2011, 2010 and 2009 present our results of operations assuming the spin-offs and the related transactions had been completed as of the first day of fiscal year 2009 (September 26, 2008). The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated balance sheet as of March 30, 2012 presents our consolidated financial position assuming that the spin-offs and the related transactions had been completed on that date. Specifically, the pro forma adjustments include giving effect to the following:

- distribution of the common stock of ADT and common shares of Tyco Flow Control to our shareholders, on a pro rata basis, through a tax-free dividend;
- our anticipated post-Distribution capital structure;
- the execution of the Separation and Distribution Agreements and the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations do not include any adjustments related to the retirement of $2.6 billion of Tyco's outstanding debt securities. On June 27, 2012, Tyco and its finance subsidiary commenced tender offers for an aggregate of $2.6 billion of various series of notes issued by Tyco and/or its finance subsidiary. On July 12, 2012, Tyco accepted for payment, and paid, $2.1 billion in principal amount of notes tendered. In addition, on July 16, 2012, Tyco issued redemption notices with respect to an aggregate of approximately $473 million in principal amount of notes due in 2013 and 2014 that were not tendered. These notes are expected to be redeemed on August 15, 2012. In connection with these transactions Tyco has incurred, or will incur, debt refinancing charges of $451 million (on a pre-tax basis), which includes $17 million of unamortized deferred financing costs that will be written off.

The assumptions underlying the pro forma adjustments are described in the accompanying notes, which should be read in conjunction with the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements. We believe the assumptions used and pro forma adjustments derived from such assumptions, are reasonable under the circumstances and are based upon currently available information. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations do not reflect material non-recurring charges related to costs of the Distributions and the Merger, which we anticipate will affect the consolidated statement of income within 12 months following the distribution date. In addition, the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations do not reflect adjustments to decrease historical corporate expense, which we expect to be approximately $225 million annually post-separation. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations also do not reflect adjustments to historical allocations between our commercial and residential security businesses, or to reflect increased operating costs that we expect to incur as a result of the split of these two businesses. These costs primarily relate to information technology, finance, human resources, customer service, marketing, real estate and other functions. We estimate the aggregate of these amounts to be in the range of $40 to $60 million annually.

These unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements are not necessarily indicative of our results of operations or financial condition had the Distributions and the Merger been completed on the dates assumed. Additionally, these statements are not necessarily indicative of our future results of operations or financial condition.

TYCO INTERNATIONAL LTD.
NOTES TO PRO FORMA CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS (UNAUDITED)

- (a) Reflects the operations, assets, liabilities and equity of ADT and Tyco Flow Control (prior to the Merger).
The Distributions include the allocation of interest included in other expense, net. The interest amounts were proportionally allocated to Tyco Flow Control and ADT based on an assessment of historical data.
- (b) Represents an adjustment of $98 million for costs of the Distributions and the Merger for the six months ended March 30, 2012, which are non-recurring direct and incremental costs related to the Distributions and the Merger.
- (c) Reflects the impact on interest expense of the completion of the anticipated post-Distributions capital structure. No tax benefit is expected. Interest expense decreased by $69 million and $65 million to reflect total interest of $49 million and $59 million for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, respectively. Interest expense decreased by $134 million, $128 million and $110 million to reflect total interest of $107 million, $151 million and $185 million for the years ended 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively.
- (d) Reflects a reduction of $2.6 billion in long-term debt to bring the total debt level to the $1.5 billion expected at the completion of the spin-offs. The anticipated post-separation debt balance was determined based on internal capital planning and considered the following factors and assumptions: anticipated business plans, operating activities, general economic conditions and certain contingencies, optimal debt levels and desired financial capacity.
- (e) Reflects a $164 million decrease to deferred tax assets for net operating loss carryforwards and tax reserves that will be transferred to Tyco Flow Control upon the spin-off.
Reflects a $372 million increase to deferred tax liabilities for U.S. federal and certain foreign net operating loss carryforwards that will be transferred to ADT upon the spin-off.
- (f) Reflects an increase to guarantee liabilities of $72 million for contingent tax liabilities related to unresolved tax matters that will be transferred to us in connection with the separation, as defined by the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that we will enter into with ADT and Tyco Flow Control. As discussed under “Agreements between Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control Relating to the Distributions,” the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain tax liabilities with respect to periods or portions thereof ending on or before the date of the Distributions. The actual amounts that we may be required to accrue or pay under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will depend upon a variety of factors, including the outcome of the unresolved tax matters, which may not be resolved for several years.

The number of ADT shares outstanding has been computed by multiplying the number of Tyco common shares outstanding at the end of each period, which has been derived from Tyco's quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended March 30, 2012 and its annual report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2011, by the distribution ratio of 0.5 ADT shares for every 1 Tyco share. ADT's historical earnings per share has been computed by dividing income from continuing operations of Tyco's ADT North America Residential Security Business, which has been derived from the interim and annual financial statements included in Annex A, by the weighted average number of ADT shares outstanding for each period. The weighted average number of ADT shares outstanding has been computed by multiplying the distribution ratio of 0.5 ADT shares per 1 Tyco share by the weighted average number of Tyco shares outstanding, which has been derived from Tyco's quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended March 30, 2012 and its annual report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2011, for each period.

The number of Tyco Flow Control common shares outstanding has been computed by multiplying the number of Tyco common shares outstanding at the end of each period, which has been derived from Tyco's quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended March 30, 2012 and its annual report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2011, by an assumed distribution ratio of approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control shares for every 1 Tyco share. Tyco Flow Control's historical earnings per share has been computed by dividing income from continuing operations of Tyco's Flow Control Business, which has been derived from the interim and annual financial statements included in Annex B, by the weighted average number of Tyco Flow Control shares outstanding for each period. The weighted average number of Tyco Flow Control shares outstanding has been computed by multiplying the assumed distribution ratio of approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control shares per 1 Tyco share by the weighted average number of Tyco shares outstanding, which has been derived from Tyco's quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended March 30, 2012 and its annual report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2011, for each period.

During fiscal year 2011, the Company contributed $19 million to its U.S. plans and $55 million to its non-U.S. plans, which represented the Company's minimum required and voluntary contributions to its pension plans for fiscal year 2011.

The Company sponsors a number of pension plans and other postretirement benefit plans. The Company measures these plans as of its fiscal year end. ### Liquidity and Capital Resources

We will rely primarily upon cash flows from operations to fund our liquidity and capital requirements for fiscal year 2012. On June 22, 2012, we entered into a five year senior unsecured revolving credit facility in the amount of $1.0 billion, which we expect to have access to upon the spin-offs of ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

Cash flows from operations are subject to a number of factors, including, but not limited to, the performance of our business, changes in working capital levels, commodity prices and general market conditions. Generally, the Company estimates that over the cycle operating cash flow less capital expenditures, including acquisitions of dealer generated customer accounts, approximates net income.

Overview

We are a leading global provider of security products and services, fire detection and suppression products and services and life safety products. Our broad portfolio of products and services, sold under well-known brands such as Tyco, SimplexGrinnell, Sensormatic, Wormald, Ansul, Simplex, Grinnell and Scott, serve security, fire detection and suppression and life safety needs across commercial, industrial, retail, institutional, and governmental markets, as well as residential and small business markets. We hold market-leading positions in large, fragmented industries, and we believe that we are well positioned to leverage our global footprint, deep industry experience, strong customer relationships and innovative technologies to expand our business in both developed and emerging markets.

We utilize our extensive global footprint of over 1,200 locations, including manufacturing facilities, service and distribution centers, monitoring centers and sales offices, to provide tailored solutions and localized expertise to our global customer base. Our products are sold in more than 100 countries through multiple channels based on the business segment, local market conditions and demand. Our revenues are broadly diversified across the United States and Canada (collectively, “North America”); Central America and South America; Europe, the Middle East and Africa (collectively, “EMEA”) and the Asia-Pacific region. We refer to Central America, South America, EMEA and the Asia-Pacific region collectively as “Rest of World” or “ROW.” The following chart reflects our fiscal year 2011 revenue by region and segment.

Fiscal Year 2011 Revenue by Region

Fiscal Year 2011 Revenue by Segment

After giving effect to the Distributions, we will operate and report financial and operating information in the following three segments:

- North America Systems Installation & Services (“NA Installation & Services”). NA Installation & Services designs, sells, installs, services and monitors electronic security systems and fire detection and suppression products and services for commercial, industrial, retail, institutional and governmental customers in North America.

- Rest of World Systems Installation & Services (“ROW Installation & Services”). ROW Installation & Services designs, sells, installs, services and monitors electronic security systems and fire detection and suppression products and services for commercial, industrial, retail, institutional and governmental customers in the Rest of World regions. ROW Installation & Services also sells, installs, services and monitors electronic security systems for residential and small business customers.
- Global Products. Global Products designs, manufactures and sells fire protection, security and life safety products, including fire detection and suppression products, intrusion security, anti-theft, access control and video management systems, and breathing apparatus, for commercial, industrial, retail, institutional, governmental and residential and small business customers worldwide, including products installed and serviced by NA Installation & Services and ROW Installation & Services.

We will also provide general corporate services to our segments which will be reported as a fourth, non-operating segment, Corporate and Other.

On a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Distributions, our net revenue by segment for our fiscal year 2011 would have been as follows ($ in billions):

	Net Revenue	Percent of Total Net Revenue	Key Brands
NA Installation & Services	$4.0 billion	39%	Tyco, Tyco Integrated Security, SimplexGrinnell, Sensormatic
ROW Installation & Services	$4.5 billion	44%	Tyco Fire & Security, Wormald, Sensormatic, ADT
Global Products	$1.8 billion	17%	Tyco, Simplex, Grinnell, Ansul, DSC, Scott

Each of our segments serves a highly diverse customer base and none is dependent upon a single customer or group of customers. For fiscal year 2011, no customer accounted for more than 5% of our revenues, and more than 50% of our revenues were derived from customers outside of North America.

Our end-use customers, to whom we may sell directly or through wholesalers, distributors, commercial builders or contractors, can generally be grouped in the following categories:

- Commercial customers, including residential and commercial property developers, financial institutions, food service businesses and commercial enterprises.
- Industrial customers, including companies in the oil & gas, power generation, mining, petrochemical and other industries.
- Retail customers, including international, regional and local consumer outlets, from national chains to specialty stores.
- Institutional customers, including a broad range of healthcare facilities, academic institutions, museums and foundations.
- Governmental customers, including federal, state and local governments, defense installations, mass transportation networks, public utilities and other government-affiliated entities and applications.
- Residential and small business customers, including owners of single-family homes and local providers of a wide range of goods and services.

As discussed under “—Competition” below, the markets in which we compete are generally highly fragmented. We therefore compete with many other businesses in markets throughout the world, including other large global businesses, significant regional businesses and many smaller regional and local businesses.

We believe our strategy to leverage our global reach, premier brands and customer solutions will drive sustained, profitable growth across our businesses. As we continue to enhance our product and service offerings, we believe we are well positioned to expand our customer base in each of our strategic markets.

Our Strengths

Leading market positions and brands

We are one of the few largest players in the global fire and security industry, with market leadership positions in installation, service and products. We believe that we offer best-in-class products and services to our customers worldwide. ### Global reach and significant scale of operations

We are a global company in terms of sales, manufacturing and installation and services. We conduct business in more than 100 countries, with over 50% of our fiscal year 2011 revenue generated outside of North America. We believe the global nature of our businesses, our expertise with local customers, governments, municipalities and codes and standards, and our extensive sales networks allow us to offer our services and products worldwide to our multinational customers while opportunistically pursuing growth in the most attractive regions and sub-sectors of our markets. In addition, we have an extensive global manufacturing presence and operate over 38 manufacturing facilities around the world. Our global manufacturing footprint and our significant scale of operations provide us with greater flexibility to reduce our costs through manufacturing efficiencies, purchasing power and resources for product design, marketing and customer management relative to our smaller competitors.

Diverse portfolio of services and products

We offer a broad portfolio of products, services and integrated solutions to both multinational and local customers around the world. As we operate through the full lifecycle of the fire and security industry, from design and installation to ongoing maintenance and upgrades, we are able to provide our customers with tailored solutions that fully address their needs. We believe our sales force of 7,000 professionals is the most capable and specialized in the industry. Their focus on building long-term relationships and cultivating an open dialogue enables us to be responsive to and, in many cases, anticipate our customers' needs, thus enabling us to provide industry leading solutions, products and services.

Diverse customer base

Our customers operate in many different industries and countries, which allows us to leverage our skills and experience across many end markets. In fiscal year 2011, we sold products or services to approximately 2.5 million customers worldwide, including many Fortune 500 companies. We provide our electronic security and fire protection services to many of the world's largest retailers and many of the leading banks in North America and in millions of business locations globally.

Strong cash flow supported by a stable, recurring revenue base

Historically, we have generated significant cash flow from our operations. The breadth of our product and service offerings, the diversity of our end markets and the breadth of our geographic presence results in strong and stable revenues and cash flows. In addition, approximately 45% of our revenues are service based. Our cash flow provides us with the financial flexibility to invest in new products and acquisitions to enhance our industry leading businesses.

Technology leader

Our businesses have a long history of technological innovation and leadership in the industry with over 2,500 patents. Our 11 research and development facilities worldwide enable us to maintain our leading technical position and capitalize on attractive long-term trends in our key markets, such as heightened security demands and more stringent fire codes. We have long-standing customer relationships with global customers whose requirements demand innovative and industry leading solutions.

Experienced management team

We believe that our senior management team is highly regarded in the industry and has the experience necessary to effectively execute our strategy and advance our product and brand leadership. Collectively, our executive officers have on average nearly twenty years of experience in managing large global organizations and/or Fire and Security businesses. They are supported by a strong management team with a proven track record of recognizing and capitalizing on attractive opportunities, driving innovation, reducing costs, improving working capital and executing operating efficiencies.

Our Vision and Strategies

Our goal is to build upon our position as a leading provider of fire and security services and products. We operate in a number of highly fragmented markets where we believe we have a number one or two market position that translates into a relatively small market share. We believe we have opportunities to increase our market share and accelerate revenue growth by expanding our customer base and by generating new business from our existing customers. In addition, we believe we have opportunities to improve our margins. Our business strategy includes the following strategic priorities:

Expand our customer base

We believe that we have significant opportunities to attract customers and increase our market share by focusing our sales and marketing efforts and our product development efforts on key vertical markets, such as retail, oil and gas, mining and marine. Additionally we intend to expand our presence in emerging markets, including China, India, Latin America and the Middle East, where we continue to see significant and growing customer demand through both economic development and the implementation of local codes and standards in our industry. We believe our extensive global reach, industry leading positions, strong reputation, wide portfolio of products and service offerings, and broad manufacturing and distribution network will enable us to deliver quality products and services in an efficient and timely manner to these regions and key vertical markets.

Generate new business from existing customers

We believe that our long-standing customer relationships and targeted sales and marketing efforts that emphasize the breadth of our portfolio and that focus on product and service opportunities within each customer's industry, will enable us to increase our market penetration and generate increased sales and service revenue from existing customers. Additionally, we believe new product development is very important to our businesses and we continually evaluate developing technologies in areas that we believe will enhance our product and service offerings to our existing customers. This includes leveraging web, mobile and cloud technologies as next-generation growth platforms for our products and services.

Improve productivity and efficiency

We intend to increase the profitability of our global portfolio of services and products by focusing on further improvements to our cost structure. We will continue to reduce our manufacturing costs by leveraging our purchasing power to reduce procurement costs and enhance our manufacturing productivity through continued use of tools such as Six Sigma. Additionally, we are implementing initiatives that include optimizing our footprint, leveraging our existing asset base, reducing our overhead expenses and furthering our project selectivity initiatives for installation to both improve margin and develop a more profitable business mix.

Pursue disciplined acquisition process and continue to optimize our portfolio

Acquisitions are an integral part of our growth strategy. We will continue to evaluate and selectively pursue strategic acquisitions that strengthen our market position, broaden our core product and services portfolio, expand our geographic footprint, provide access to attractive adjacent markets, or increase our technological capabilities. In addition, we expect to manage small markets locally for value and evaluate strategic exits from non-core businesses.

Industry Overview

The global fire and security industry generates approximately $100 billion in annual revenue and includes fire detection and suppression, electronic security and life safety products as well as system design, installation and services. The market is highly fragmented and consists of a few large, international companies and many small local and regional players. Products are sold directly to end customers or through dealers and distributors. Our end customers can generally be grouped into the following categories: commercial, industrial, retail, institutional, governmental and other end-users requiring fire, life safety and security protection.

We operate through the full lifecycle of the fire and security industry, from product design and installation to ongoing maintenance and upgrades. Globally, we estimate the product sector consists of five large players that accounted for 30%-40% of the approximately $30 billion in sales in 2011. In addition, we estimate the services and installation sectors, both of which are highly fragmented, generated sales of approximately $30 billion and approximately $40 billion, respectively, in 2011.

Innovation and product development are critical to success in this industry. The convergence between security and IT, as well as continually developing fire suppression applications and products, has driven growth in both emerging and developed markets. Additionally, customers, particularly in the retail, oil and gas, and power markets, have increased expectations for vertical market-specific value propositions and solutions tailored to their needs, resulting in increased innovation in these end-markets.

Developed markets continue to evolve and grow, driven by new applications, product and service innovations, and operations-enabling technologies. There is an increased emphasis on fire codes and standards worldwide, with both governments and private industry investing heavily in new systems and existing system upgrades. As governments in emerging markets continue to develop more rigorous fire codes and standards, we expect these regions to account for at least 40% of industry growth between 2011 and 2015.

Our Segments, Services and Products

We operate in three business segments providing industry-leading and pioneering product and service offerings: NA Installation & Services, ROW Installation & Services and Global Products.

The following table illustrates our revenue, operating income and operating margin on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Distributions for each of our business segments for the fiscal years of 2011, 2010 and 2009.

Installation & Services

NA Installation & Services and ROW Installation & Services (collectively, “Installation & Services”) design, sell, install, service and monitor electronic security systems and fire detection and suppression products and services for retail, commercial, industrial, governmental and institutional customers around the world. Additionally, ROW Installation & Services designs, sells, installs, services and monitors security systems for residential and small business customers under the ADT brand name.

Security Services

Our Installation & Services segments design, sell, install and service security systems to detect intrusion, control access and react to movement, fire, smoke, flooding, environmental conditions, industrial processes and other hazards. These electronic security systems include detection devices that are usually connected to a monitoring center that receives and records alarm signals where skilled security monitoring specialists verify alarm conditions and initiate a range of response scenarios. For most systems, control panels identify the nature of the alarm and the areas where a sensor was triggered. Our other security solutions include access control systems for sensitive areas such as government facilities and banks; video surveillance systems designed to deter theft and fraud and help protect employees and customers; and asset protection and security management systems designed to monitor and protect physical assets as well as proprietary electronic data. Our offerings also include anti-theft systems utilizing acousto magnetic and radio frequency identification tags and labels in the retail industry as well as store performance solutions to enhance retailer performance. Many of the world’s leading retailers use our Sensormatic anti-theft systems to help protect against shoplifting and employee theft. Many of the products that we install for our Installation & Services security customers are designed and manufactured by our Global Products segment. Additionally, our deep experience in designing, integrating, deploying and maintaining large-scale security systems—including, for example, centrally managed security systems that span large commercial and institutional campuses—allows us to install and/or service products manufactured by third parties.

Purchasers of our intrusion systems typically contract for ongoing security system monitoring and maintenance at the time of initial equipment installation. These contracts are generally for a term of one to three years. Systems installed at customers' premises may be owned either by us or by our customers. Monitoring center personnel may respond to alarms by relaying appropriate information to local fire or police departments, notifying the customer or taking other appropriate action. In certain markets, we directly provide the alarm response services with highly trained and professionally equipped employees. In some instances, alarm systems are connected directly to local fire or police departments.

In addition, our ROW Installation & Services segment is a leading provider of monitored residential and small business security systems. In addition to traditional burglar alarm and fire detection systems, installation and monitoring services, ROW Installation & Services provides patrol and response services in select geographies, including South Africa and Korea. Our ROW Installation & Services segment continues to expand its offering of value-added residential services worldwide, such as an interactive services platform. The interactive services platform allows for remote management of the home security system, as well as lifestyle applications, which currently include remote video, lighting control, and energy management.

Our customers are often prompted to purchase security systems by their insurance carriers, which may offer lower insurance premium rates if a security system is installed or require that a system be installed as a condition of coverage.

Fire Protection Services

Our Installation & Services segments design, sell, install and service fire detection and fire suppression systems in both new and existing facilities. Commercial construction as well as legislation mandating the installation and service of fire detection and suppression systems drives the demand for our products. Our Installation & Services segments offer a wide range of fire detection and suppression systems, including those designed and manufactured by our Global Products segment and those designed by third parties. These detection systems include fire alarm control panels, advanced fire alarm monitoring systems, smoke, flame detection systems, heat and carbon monoxide detectors and voice evacuation systems. Our Installation & Services segments also offer a wide range of standard water-based sprinkler and chemical suppression systems and custom designed special hazard suppression systems, which incorporate specialized extinguishing agents such as foams, dry chemicals and gases in addition to spill control products designed to absorb, neutralize and solidify spills of hazardous materials. These systems are often especially suited to fire suppression in industrial and commercial applications, including oil & gas, power generation, mining, petrochemical, manufacturing, transportation, data processing, telecommunications, commercial food preparation and marine applications. Our Installation & Services segments continue to focus on system maintenance and inspection, which have become increasingly significant parts of our business.

Customers

Our Installation & Services customers range from Fortune 500 companies with diverse worldwide operations who look to us to provide integrated, global solutions for their fire and security needs, to single location commercial customers and individual homeowners. Our Installation & Services customer relationships generally fall into either or both of two markets: the market for new construction or retrofit projects, which represented 46% of Installation & Services fiscal year 2011 revenue on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Distributions, and the market for aftermarket products and services, which accounted for the remaining 54% of Installation & Services fiscal year 2011 revenue on the same basis.

New construction projects are inherently long-lead in nature and we strive to become involved in the planning process for these projects as early as possible. We believe that by actively participating in the preliminary design stages of a new construction project and by offering our design services that combine our global expertise and knowledge of local codes and standards, we can increase our value to customers relative to many smaller local and regional competitors. With respect to fire detection and suppression installations, we prefer to become involved at the time an architectural or engineering design firm is selected. With respect to security system design and installation, we generally become involved in the later stages of a construction project or as tenants take occupancy.

Our relationships with customers in the aftermarket may include any combination of alarm monitoring, fire and security maintenance and or testing and inspection services. We also provide aftermarket services to many customers whose fire and security systems were manufactured or installed by third parties.

Global Products

Our Global Products segment designs, manufactures and sells fire protection, electronic security and life safety products, including fire detection and suppression products, intrusion security, anti-theft, access control and video management systems as well as breathing apparatuses. In addition to the $1.8 billion of annual external revenue reported by our Global Products segment, Global Products generates approximately $700 million of intercompany annual revenue related to products installed and serviced by Installation & Services.

Fire Protection Products

Fire Protection Products designs, manufactures, distributes and sells fire alarm and fire detection systems, automatic fire sprinkler systems and special hazard suppression systems, including many of the fire protection products that our Installation & Services segments install and service. Fire Protection Products also manufactures and sells grooved products for the rapid joining of piping in both the fire and non-fire markets. The fire protection products are marketed under various leading trade names, including Simplex, Wormald, Ansul, Grinnell and Tyco and include fire alarm control panels, advanced fire alarm monitoring systems, smoke, heat and carbon monoxide detectors and voice evacuation systems. Fire Protection Products also offers a wide range of water-based sprinkler systems and custom designed special hazard suppression systems, which incorporate specialized extinguishing agents such as foams, dry chemicals and gases. These systems are often especially suited to fire suppression in industrial and commercial applications, including oil & gas, power generation, mining, petrochemical, manufacturing, transportation, data processing, telecommunications, commercial food preparation and marine applications.

Fire Protection Products' systems typically are purchased by facility owners through construction engineers and electrical contractors as well as mechanical or general contractors. In recent years, retrofitting of existing buildings has grown as a result of legislation mandating the installation of fire detection and fire suppression systems, especially in hotels, restaurants, healthcare facilities and educational establishments. In September 2008, the International Residential Code Council, a non-profit association that develops model codes that are the predominant building and fire safety regulations used by state and local jurisdictions in the United States, adopted a proposal advanced by firefighters and other life-safety advocates to require sprinkler systems in new one and two family dwellings beginning in January 2011. This national code is not binding on state and local jurisdictions and must be adopted locally before it becomes mandatory for new homes being built in these areas. The timing of adoption, if at all, will vary by jurisdiction. However, we believe that this development may offer opportunities to expand our residential fire suppression business in the United States.

Security Products

Security Products designs and manufactures a wide array of electronic security products, including integrated video surveillance and access control systems to enable businesses to manage their security and enhance business performance. Our global access control solutions include integrated security management systems for enterprise applications, access control solutions applications, alarm management panels, door controllers, readers, keypads and cards. Our global video system solutions include digital video management systems, matrix switchers and controllers, digital multiplexers, programmable cameras, monitors and liquid interactive crystal displays. Our security products for homes and businesses range from basic burglar alarms to comprehensive interactive security systems including alarm control panels, keypads, sensors and central station receiving equipment used in security monitoring centers. Our offerings also include anti-theft systems utilizing acousto magnetic and radio frequency identification tags and labels in the retail industry. Our security products are marketed under various leading trade names, including Software House, DSC, American Dynamics, Sensormatic, and Visonic. Many of the world's leading retailers use our Sensormatic anti-theft systems to help protect against shoplifting and employee theft. Security Products manufactures many of the security products that our Installation & Services business installs and services.

Life Safety Products

Life Safety Products manufactures life safety products, including self-contained breathing apparatus designed for firefighter, industrial and military use, supplied air respirators, air-purifying respirators, thermal imaging cameras, gas detection equipment, gas masks and personal protection equipment. The life safety products business operates under various leading trade names, including Scott Safety and Protector. Our breathing apparatus are used by the military forces of several countries and many U.S. firefighters rely on the Scott Air-Pak brand of self-contained breathing apparatus.

Customers

Global Products sells products through our Installation & Service segments and indirect distribution channels around the world. Some of Global Products' channel business partners act as dealers selling to smaller fire and security contractors that install fire detection and suppression, security and theft protection systems, whereas others act as integrators that install the products themselves. Global Products' customers include ADT, which installs certain of our residential and small business security products in the United States and Canada. Builders, contractors and developers are customers for our sprinkler products. End customers for our breathing apparatus and related products include fire departments, municipal and state governments and military forces as well as major companies in the industrial sector.

Competition

The markets that we serve are generally highly competitive and fragmented with a small number of large, global firms and thousands of smaller regional and local companies. Competition is based on price, specialized product capacity, breadth of product line, training, support and delivery, with the relative importance of these factors varying depending on the project complexity, product line, the local market and other factors. Rather than compete primarily on price, we emphasize the quality of our products and services, the reputation of our brands and our knowledge of customers' fire and security needs. Among large industrial, commercial, governmental and institutional customers, we believe that our comprehensive global coverage and product and service offerings provide a competitive advantage. We also believe that our systems integration capabilities, which allow us to offer global solutions to customers that fully integrate our security and/or fire offerings into existing IT networks, business operations and management tools, and process automation and control systems, set us apart from all but a small number of other large, global competitors.

Competitive dynamics in the fire and security industry generally result in more direct competition and lower margins for installation projects compared to aftermarket products and services. We generally face the greatest competitive pricing pressure for the installation of products that have become more commoditized over time, including standard commercial sprinkler systems and closed-circuit television systems.

Sales, Marketing and Distribution

Our direct sales force of over 7,000 employees sells our products and services into more than 100 countries worldwide. Our sales force is segmented by product, geography and vertical market. In addition, some of our Installation & Services salespeople specialize either in sales to new construction projects or in aftermarket agreements for services and maintenance. As discussed above, our Global Products segment generally sells its products through wholesalers, distributors and contractors rather than directly to customers, although in many cases Global Products will work directly with customers, regulators, industry organizations and standards bodies to generate demand for its products and services. In our Installation & Services segments, we continue to align our sales efforts against vertical markets to develop industry expertise and segment specific solutions in order to best serve customers and accelerate growth by differentiating our solutions in the marketplace.

Properties and Facilities

Our locations include research and development facilities, manufacturing facilities, warehouse and distribution centers and sales and service offices. Additionally, our locations include approximately 30 monitoring call centers located around the world. All of our monitoring facilities operate 24 hours a day on a year-round basis. Incoming alarm signals are routed via an internal communications network to the next available operator. Operators are quickly updated with information including the name and location of the customer and site, and the nature of the alarm signal. Depending upon the type of service specified by the customer contract, operators respond to emergency-related alarms by calling the customer by telephone (for verification purposes) and relaying information to local fire or police departments, as necessary. Additional action may be taken by the operators as needed, depending on the specific situation.

We operate from more than 1,200 locations in more than 50 countries. These properties total approximately 14 million square feet, of which approximately 4 million square feet are owned and 10 million square feet are leased. NA Installation & Services occupies approximately 450 locations and approximately 6 million square feet throughout North America. ROW Installation & Services occupies approximately 530 locations in over 30 countries and approximately 1 million square feet. Global Products occupies approximately 220 locations in over 30 countries and approximately 7 million square feet worldwide.

We consider the many offices, manufacturing facilities, warehouses, and other properties that we own or lease to be in good condition and generally suitable for the purposes for which they are used. We do not anticipate difficulty in renewing existing leases as they expire or in finding alternative facilities.

Intellectual Property

Patents, trademarks, copyrights and other proprietary rights are important to our business. We also rely upon trade secrets, manufacturing know-how, continuing technological innovations and licensing opportunities to maintain and improve our competitive position. We review third-party proprietary rights, including trademarks, patents and patent applications, in an effort to develop an effective intellectual property strategy, avoid infringement of third-party proprietary rights, identify licensing opportunities and misappropriation of our proprietary rights, and monitor the intellectual property claims of others.

After giving effect to the Distributions, we will own a portfolio of patents that principally relates to electronic security systems; fire protection products and systems, including fire detection and fire suppression with chemical, gas, foam and water agents; personal protective products and systems for fire and other hazards; and integrated systems for surveillance and control of public transportation and other public works. We will also own a portfolio of trademarks and will be a licensee of various patents and trademarks. Patents for individual products extend for varying periods according to the date of patent filing or grant and the legal term of patents in the various countries where patent protection is obtained. Trademark rights may potentially extend for longer periods of time and are dependent upon national laws and use of the marks.

While we consider our patents to be valuable assets that extend the commoditization life cycle of our products, we do not believe that our overall operations are dependent upon any single patent or group of related patents.

Research and Development

We are engaged in research and development in an effort to introduce new products, to enhance the effectiveness, ease of use, safety and reliability of our existing products and to expand the applications for which the uses of our products are appropriate. For example, in order to position ourselves to participate in and lead the development of residential interactive platforms, enterprise-wide integrated access control platforms and transition IP video platforms, we have made significant investments in our security products portfolio. In addition, we continually evaluate developing technologies in all areas that we believe will enhance our business for possible investment. Our research and development expense would have been $129 million in 2011, $112 million in 2010 and $105 million in 2009, after giving effect to the Distributions. We expect to continue to increase investments in research and development.

Raw and Other Purchased Materials

We are a large buyer of metals and other commodities, including gasoline. We purchase materials from a large number of independent sources around the world and have experienced no shortages that have had a material adverse effect on our businesses. We enter into long-term supply contracts, using fixed or variable pricing to manage our exposure to potential supply disruptions. Significant changes in the costs of certain raw materials, including steel, brass and certain fluorochemicals used in our fire suppression agents, may have an adverse impact on costs and operating margins.

Governmental Regulation and Supervision

Our operations are subject to numerous federal, state and local laws and regulations, both within and outside the United States, in areas such as consumer protection, government contracts, international trade, environmental protection, labor and employment, tax, licensing and others. For example, most U.S. states in which we operate have licensing laws directed specifically toward the alarm and fire suppression industries. Our security business currently relies extensively upon the use of wireline and wireless telephone service to communicate signals, and wireline and wireless telephone companies in the United States are regulated by the federal and state governments. In addition, government regulation of fire safety codes can impact our fire protection business. These and other laws and regulations impact the manner in which we conduct our business, and changes in legislation or government policies can affect our worldwide operations, both positively and negatively. For a more detailed description of the various laws and regulations that affect our business, see “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to Our Business” and “Risk Factors—Risks Related to Legal, Regulatory and Compliance Matters.”

Environmental Matters

We are subject to numerous foreign, federal, state and local environmental protection and health and safety laws governing, among other things, the generation, storage, use and transportation of hazardous materials; emissions or discharges of substances into the environment; and the health and safety of our employees.

Certain environmental laws assess liability on current or previous owners or operators of real property for the cost of removal or remediation of hazardous substances at their properties or at properties at which they have disposed of hazardous substances. In addition to cleanup actions brought by governmental authorities, private parties could bring personal injury or other claims due to the presence of, or exposure to, hazardous substances or pursuant to indemnifications provided by us in connection with asset disposals. We have received notification from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and from state environmental agencies that conditions at a number of sites where we and others disposed of hazardous substances require cleanup and other possible remedial action and may require that we reimburse the government or otherwise pay for the cost of cleanup of those sites and/or for natural resource damages. We have projects underway at a number of current and former manufacturing facilities to investigate and remediate environmental contamination resulting from past operations.

Given uncertainties regarding the extent of the required cleanup, the interpretation of applicable laws and regulations and alternative cleanup methods, the ultimate cost of cleanup at disposal sites and manufacturing facilities is difficult to predict. In view of our financial position and reserves for environmental matters, we believe that any potential payment of such estimated amounts will not have a material adverse effect on our financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

Employees

After giving effect to the Distributions, we expect to employ approximately 69,000 people worldwide, of which approximately 20,000 would have been employed in the United States and 49,000 would have been employed outside the United States. We expect approximately 15% of these employees to be covered by collective bargaining agreements or works councils and we believe that our relations with the labor unions are generally good.

History and Development

Tyco International Ltd. is a company organized under the laws of Switzerland. Effective June 29, 2007, Tyco International Ltd. completed the spin-offs of Covidien Ltd. (“Covidien”) and TE Connectivity Ltd. (“TE Connectivity”), formerly our Healthcare and Electronics businesses, respectively, into separate, publicly traded companies (the “2007 Separation”) in the form of a distribution to Tyco shareholders.

On December 22, 2010, we sold a majority interest in our Electrical and Metal Products business. See Note 3 to our 2011 Consolidated Financial Statements, incorporated by reference herein.

Tyco’s registered and principal office is located at Freier Platz 10, CH-8200 Schaffhausen, Switzerland. Its management office in the United States is located at 9 Roszel Road, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

RISK FACTORS

In addition to the other information included or incorporated by reference in this proxy statement, you should carefully consider the matters described below relating to the proposed spin-offs, the Merger and our business following the spin-offs in deciding whether to vote for approval of the proposals presented in this proxy statement. The risks described below give effect to, or relate to, the spin-offs, assuming that the Distributions are approved by our shareholders and consummated as described in this proxy statement. Information about risks to our business as it is currently conducted is available from our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended September 30, 2011 and the other documents incorporated by reference into this proxy statement. See “Where You Can Find Additional Information” for instructions to obtain those documents.

In addition to the matters described below, you should also carefully consider the matters described under the sections titled “Risk Factors” in the ADT Preliminary Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus for certain additional risks relating to the spin-offs, the Merger, ADT’s, Tyco Flow Control’s and Pentair’s businesses, and ADT’s and Tyco Flow Control’s shares following the Distributions and the Merger assuming approval of the proposals required for the Transactions.

If any of the risks described below actually occurs, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected. Any such adverse effect may cause the trading price of our common shares to decline and as a result you could lose all or part of your investment in us. Additional risks and uncertainties not presently known to us or risks that we currently believe to be immaterial also may adversely affect the spin-offs and Tyco, ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control as separate companies.

Risks Relating to Our Business

General economic and cyclical industry conditions may adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Our operating results have been and may in the future be adversely affected by general economic conditions and the cyclical pattern of certain markets that we serve. For example, demand for our services and products is significantly affected by the level of commercial and residential construction, industrial capital expenditures for facility expansions and maintenance and the amount of discretionary business and consumer spending, each of which historically has displayed significant cyclicity. Even if demand for our products is not negatively affected, the liquidity and financial position of our customers could impact their ability to pay in full and/or on a timely basis.

Much of the demand for installation of security products and fire detection and suppression solutions is driven by commercial and residential construction and industrial facility expansion and maintenance projects. Commercial and residential construction projects are heavily dependent on general economic conditions, localized demand for commercial and residential real estate and availability of credit. Many commercial and residential real estate markets have experienced excess capacity since the beginning of the global financial crisis, and in some markets demand may not improve significantly for years, if at all. In addition, most commercial and residential real estate developers rely heavily on project financing from banks and other institutional lenders in order to initiate and complete projects. The decline in real estate values in many parts of the world that accompanied the global financial crisis has led to significant reductions in the availability of project financing, even in markets where demand may otherwise be sufficient to support new construction. These factors have in turn hampered demand for new fire detection and suppression and security installations.

Levels of industrial capital expenditures for facility expansions and maintenance turn on general economic conditions, economic conditions within specific industries we serve, expectations of future market behavior and available financing. Additionally, volatility in commodity prices can negatively affect the level of these activities and can result in postponement of capital spending decisions or the delay or cancellation of existing orders.

The businesses of many of our industrial customers, particularly oil and gas companies, chemical and petrochemical companies and general industrial companies, are to varying degrees cyclical and have experienced periodic downturns. During such economic downturns, customers in these industries historically have tended to delay major capital projects, including greenfield construction, expensive maintenance projects and upgrades. Additionally, demand for our products and services may be affected by volatility in energy and commodity prices and fluctuating demand forecasts, as our customers tend to be more conservative in their capital planning, which may reduce demand for our products and services. Although our industrial customers tend to be less dependent on project financing than real estate developers, disruptions in financial markets and banking systems, such as recent disruptions related to the European sovereign debt crisis, could make credit and capital markets difficult for our customers to access, and could raise the cost of new debt for our customers to prohibitive levels. Any difficulty in accessing these markets and the increased associated costs can have a negative effect on investment in large capital projects, including necessary maintenance and upgrades, even during periods of favorable end-market conditions.

Many of our customers outside of the industrial and commercial sectors, including governmental and institutional customers, have experienced budgetary constraints as sources of revenue, including tax receipts, general obligation and construction bonds, endowments and donations, have been negatively impacted by the global financial crisis. These budgetary constraints have in the past and may in the future reduce demand for our products among governmental and institutional customers.

Reduced demand for our products and services could result in the delay or cancellation of existing orders or lead to excess manufacturing capacity, which unfavorably impacts our absorption of fixed manufacturing costs. This reduced demand may also erode average selling prices in our industry. Any of these results could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We face competition in each of our businesses, which results in pressure on our profit margins and limits our ability to maintain or increase the market share of our products. If we cannot successfully compete in an increasingly global market-place, our operating results may be adversely affected.

We operate in competitive domestic and international markets and compete with many highly competitive manufacturers and service providers, both domestically and on a global basis. Our manufacturing businesses face competition from lower cost manufacturers in Asia and elsewhere and our service businesses face competition from alternative service providers around the world.

For example, in the market for the installation and service of certain types of fire detection and suppression systems, particularly water sprinkler systems, we face intense pricing pressure from local contractors who may have significantly lower labor costs and general overhead expenses than we do. Similarly, the monitored security alarm industry is subject to competitive pricing pressures on installation, monitoring and service fees, including from smaller regional and local companies.

Currently, key components of our competitive position are our ability to adapt to changing competitive environments and to manage expenses successfully. This, however, requires continuous management focus on reducing costs, maintaining our competitive position and improving efficiency through cost controls, productivity enhancements and regular appraisal of our asset portfolio. If we are unable to achieve appropriate levels of scalability or cost-effectiveness, or if we are otherwise unable to manage and react to changes in the global marketplace, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Our future growth is largely dependent upon our ability to continue to adapt our products, services and organization to meet the demands of local markets in both developed and emerging economies and by developing or acquiring new technologies that achieve market acceptance with acceptable margins.

Our businesses operate in global markets that are characterized by evolving industry standards. Although many of our largest competitors are also global industrial companies, we compete with thousands of smaller regional and local companies that may be positioned to offer products produced at lower cost than ours, particularly in emerging markets, or to capitalize on highly localized relationships and knowledge that are difficult for us to replicate. We have found that in several emerging markets potential customers prefer local suppliers, in some cases because of existing relationships and in other cases because of local legal restrictions or incentives that favor local businesses.

Accordingly, our future success depends upon a number of factors, including our ability to: adapt our products, services, organization, workforce and sales strategies to fit localities throughout the world, particularly in high growth emerging markets; identify emerging technological and other trends in our target end-markets; and develop or acquire, manufacture and bring competitive products and services to market quickly and cost-effectively. Adapting our businesses to serve more local markets will require us to invest considerable resources in building our distribution channels and engineering and manufacturing capabilities in those markets to ensure that we can address customer demand. Even when we invest in growing our business in local markets, we may not be successful for any number of reasons, including competitive pressure from regional and local businesses that may have superior local capabilities or products that are produced more locally at lower cost. Our ability to develop or acquire new products and services can affect our competitive position and requires the investment of significant resources. These acquisitions and development efforts divert resources from other potential investments in our businesses, and they may not lead to the development of new technologies, products or services on a timely basis. Moreover, as we introduce new products, we may be unable to detect and correct defects in the design of a product or in its application to a specified use, which could result in loss of sales or delays in market acceptance. Even after introduction, new or enhanced products may not satisfy consumer preferences and product failures may cause consumers to reject our products. As a result, these products may not achieve market acceptance and our brand images could suffer. In addition, the markets for our products and services may not develop or grow as we anticipate. As a result, the failure to effectively adapt our products and services to the needs of local markets, the failure of our technology, products or services to gain market acceptance, the potential for product defects or the obsolescence of our products and services could significantly reduce our revenues, increase our operating costs or otherwise materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We face risks relating to doing business internationally that could adversely affect our business.

Our business operates and serves consumers worldwide. There are certain risks inherent in doing business internationally, including:

- economic volatility and the current global economic recession;
- the difficulty of enforcing agreements, collecting receivables and protecting assets, especially our intellectual property rights, through non-U.S. legal systems;
- possibility of unfavorable circumstances from host country laws or regulations;
- fluctuations in revenues, operating margins and other financial measures due to currency exchange rate fluctuations and restrictions on currency and earnings repatriation;
- trade protection measures, import or export restrictions, licensing requirements and local fire and security codes and standards;
- increased costs and risks of developing, staffing and simultaneously managing a number of foreign operations as a result of distance as well as language and cultural differences;

- issues related to occupational safety and adherence to local labor laws and regulations;
- potentially adverse tax developments;
- longer payment cycles;
- changes in the general political, social and economic conditions in the countries where we operate, particularly in emerging markets;
- the threat of nationalization and expropriation;
- the presence of corruption in certain countries; and
- fluctuations in available municipal funding in those instances where a project is government financed.

One or more of these factors could adversely affect our business and financial condition.

In order to manage our day-to-day operations, we must overcome cultural and language barriers and assimilate different business practices. In addition, we are required to create compensation programs, employment policies and other administrative programs that comply with laws of multiple countries. We also must communicate and monitor standards and directives across our global network. Our failure to successfully manage our geographically diverse operations could impair our ability to react quickly to changing business and market conditions and to enforce compliance with standards and procedures.

A significant percentage of our future growth is anticipated to come from emerging markets, and if we are unable to expand our operations in emerging markets, our growth rate could be negatively affected.

One aspect of our growth strategy is to seek significant growth in emerging markets, including China, India, Latin America and the Middle East, which in turn depends on economic and political conditions in those markets. Emerging markets generally involve greater financial and operational risks than more mature markets, where legal systems are more developed and familiar to us. In some cases, emerging markets have greater political and economic volatility and greater vulnerability to infrastructure and labor disruptions. Negative or uncertain political climates in developing and emerging markets could also adversely affect us.

We cannot guarantee that our growth strategy will be successful. If we are unable to manage the risks inherent in our growth strategy in emerging markets, including civil unrest, international hostilities, natural disasters, security breaches and failure to maintain compliance with multiple legal and regulatory systems, our results of operations and ability to grow could be materially adversely affected.

Our international operations expose us to fluctuations in foreign currency exchange rates.

A significant portion of our revenue and certain of our costs, assets and liabilities, are denominated in currencies other than the U.S. dollar. Certain of the foreign currencies to which we have exposure have undergone significant devaluation in the past, which can reduce the value of our local monetary assets, reduce the U.S. dollar value of our local cash flow and potentially reduce the U.S. dollar value of future local net income. Although we intend to enter into forward exchange contracts to economically hedge some of our risks associated with transactions denominated in certain foreign currencies, no assurances can be made that exchange rate fluctuations will not adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

In addition, we are a large buyer of metals (including steel, ductile iron and copper) and other non-metal commodities, including fossil fuels for our manufacturing operations and our vehicle fleet, the prices of which have fluctuated significantly in recent years. Increases in the prices of some of these commodities could increase the costs of manufacturing our products and providing our services. We may not be able to pass on these costs to our customers or otherwise effectively manage price volatility and this could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows. Further, in a declining price environment, our operating margins may contract because we account for inventory using the first-in, first-out method.

We monitor these exposures as an integral part of our overall risk management program. In some cases, we enter into hedge contracts to insulate our results of operations from these fluctuations. These hedges are subject to the risk that our counterparty may not perform. As a result, changes in currency exchange rates, commodity prices and interest rates could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Failure to maintain and upgrade the security of our information and technology networks, including personally identifiable and other information; non-compliance with our contractual or other legal obligations regarding such information; or a violation of the Company's privacy and security policies with respect to such information, could adversely affect us.

We are dependent on information technology networks and systems, including the Internet, to process, transmit and store electronic information, and, in the normal course of our business, we collect and retain significant volumes of certain types of personally identifiable and other information pertaining to our customers, stockholders and employees. The legal, regulatory and contractual environment surrounding information security and privacy is constantly evolving and companies that collect and retain such information are under increasing attack by cyber-criminals around the world. A significant actual or potential theft, loss, fraudulent use or misuse of customer, stockholder, employee or our data, whether by third parties or as a result of employee malfeasance or otherwise, non-compliance with our contractual or other legal obligations regarding such data or a violation of our privacy and security policies with respect to such data could adversely impact our reputation and could result in significant costs, fines, litigation or regulatory action against us. In addition, we depend on our information technology infrastructure for business-to-business and business-to-consumer electronic commerce. Security breaches of this infrastructure can create system disruptions and shutdowns that could result in disruptions to our operations. Increasingly, our security products and services are accessed through the Internet, and security breaches in connection with the delivery of our services via the Internet may affect us and could be detrimental to our reputation, business, operating results and financial condition. We cannot be certain that advances in criminal capabilities, new discoveries in the field of cryptography or other developments will not compromise or breach the technology protecting the networks that access our products and services.

We are continuously upgrading and consolidating our systems, including making changes to legacy systems, replacing legacy systems with successor systems with new functionality and acquiring new systems with new functionality. These types of activities subject us to inherent costs and risks associated with replacing and changing these systems, including impairment of our ability to fulfill customer orders, potential disruption of our internal control structure, substantial capital expenditures, additional administration and operating expenses, retention of sufficiently skilled personnel to implement and operate the new systems, demands on management time, and other risks and costs of delays or difficulties in transitioning to new systems or of integrating new systems into our current systems. Our system implementations may not result in productivity improvements at a level that outweighs the costs of implementation, or at all. In addition, the implementation of new technology systems may cause disruptions in our business operations and have an adverse effect on our business and operations, if not anticipated and appropriately mitigated.

If we cannot obtain sufficient quantities of materials, components and equipment required for our manufacturing activities at competitive prices and quality and on a timely basis, or if our manufacturing capacity does not meet demand, our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may suffer.

We purchase materials, components and equipment from unrelated parties for use in our manufacturing operations. If we cannot obtain sufficient quantities of these items at competitive prices and quality and on a timely basis, we may not be able to produce sufficient quantities of product to satisfy market demand, product shipments may be delayed or our material or manufacturing costs may increase. In addition, because we cannot always immediately adapt our cost structures to changing market conditions, our manufacturing capacity may at times exceed or fall short of our production requirements. Any of these problems could result in the loss of customers, provide an opportunity for competing products to gain market acceptance and otherwise materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Failure to attract, motivate, train and retain qualified personnel could adversely affect our business.

Our culture and guiding principles focus on continuously training, motivating and developing employees, and in particular we strive to attract, motivate, train and retain qualified engineers and managers to handle the day-to-day operations of a highly diversified organization. Many of our manufacturing processes, and many of the integrated solutions we offer, are highly technical in nature. Our ability to expand or maintain our business depends on our ability to hire, train and retain engineers and other technical professionals with the skills necessary to understand and adapt to the continuously developing needs of our customers. This includes developing talent and leadership capabilities in emerging markets, where the depth of skilled employees is often limited and competition for resources is intense. Our geographic expansion strategy in emerging markets depends on our ability to attract, retain and integrate qualified managers and engineers. If we fail to attract, motivate, train and retain qualified personnel, or if we experience excessive turnover, we may experience declining sales, manufacturing delays or other inefficiencies, increased recruiting, training and relocation costs and other difficulties, and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

We may be required to recognize substantial impairment charges in the future.

Pursuant to accounting principles generally accepted in the United States, we are required to assess our goodwill, intangibles and other long-lived assets periodically to determine whether they are impaired. Disruptions to our business, unfavorable end-market conditions and protracted economic weakness, unexpected significant declines in operating results of reporting units, divestitures and market capitalization declines may result in material charges for goodwill and other asset impairments. We maintain significant goodwill and intangible assets on our balance sheet, and we believe these balances are recoverable. However, fair value determinations require considerable judgment and are sensitive to change. Impairments to one or more of our reporting units could occur in future periods whether or not connected with the annual impairment analysis. Future impairment charges could materially affect our reported earnings in the periods of such charges and could adversely affect our financial condition and results of operations.

Divestitures of some of our businesses or product lines may materially adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

We continually evaluate the performance of all of our businesses and may sell businesses or product lines. Divestitures involve risks, including difficulties in the separation of operations, services, products and personnel, the diversion of management's attention from other business concerns, the disruption of our business, the potential loss of key employees and the retention of uncertain environmental or other contingent liabilities related to the divested business. In addition, divestitures may result in significant asset impairment charges, including those related to goodwill and other intangible assets, which could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operations. We cannot assure you that we will be successful in managing these or any other significant risks that we encounter in divesting a business or product line, and any divestiture we undertake could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our business strategy includes acquiring companies and making investments that complement our existing business. These acquisitions and investments could be unsuccessful or consume significant resources, which could adversely affect our operating results.

We will continue to analyze and evaluate the acquisition of strategic businesses or product lines with the potential to strengthen our industry position or enhance our existing set of product and services offerings. We cannot assure you that we will identify or successfully complete transactions with suitable acquisition candidates in the future. Nor can we assure you that completed acquisitions will be successful.

Acquisitions and investments may involve significant cash expenditures, debt incurrence, operating losses and expenses that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Acquisitions involve numerous other risks, including:

- diversion of management time and attention from daily operations;
- difficulties integrating acquired businesses, technologies and personnel into our business;
- inability to obtain required regulatory approvals and/or required financing on favorable terms;
- potential loss of key employees, key contractual relationships, or key customers of acquired companies or of us;
- assumption of the liabilities and exposure to unforeseen liabilities of acquired companies; and
- dilution of interests of holders of our common shares through the issuance of equity securities or equity-linked securities.

It may be difficult for us to complete transactions quickly and to integrate acquired operations efficiently into our current business operations. Any acquisitions or investments may ultimately harm our business or financial condition, as such acquisitions may not be successful and may ultimately result in impairment charges.

We depend on third-party licenses for our products and services.

We rely on certain software technology that we license from third parties and use in our products and services to perform key functions and provide critical functionality, particularly in our commercial security business. Because our products and services incorporate software developed and maintained by third parties we are, to a certain extent, dependent upon such third parties' ability to maintain or enhance their current products and services, to ensure that their products are free of defects or security vulnerabilities, to develop new products and services on a timely and cost-effective basis, and to respond to emerging industry standards and other technological changes. Further, these third-party technology licenses may not always be available to us on commercially reasonable terms or at all. If our agreements with third-party vendors are not renewed or the third-party software fails to address the needs of our software products and services, we would be required to find alternative software products and services or technologies of equal performance or functionality. We cannot assure that we would be able to replace the functionality provided by third-party software if we lose the license to this software, it becomes obsolete or incompatible with future versions of our products and services or is otherwise not adequately maintained or updated. Furthermore, even if we obtain licenses to alternative software products or services that provide the functionality we need, we may be required to replace hardware installed at our monitoring centers and at our customers' sites, including security system control panels and peripherals, in order to effect our integration of or migration to alternative software products. Any of these factors could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

A material disruption of our operations, particularly at our monitoring and/or manufacturing facilities, could adversely affect our business.

If our operations, particularly at our monitoring facilities and/or manufacturing facilities, were to be disrupted as a result of significant equipment failures, natural disasters, power outages, fires, explosions, terrorism, sabotage, adverse weather conditions, public health crises, labor disputes or other reasons, we may be unable to effectively respond to alarm signals, fill customer orders and otherwise meet obligations to or demand from our customers, which could adversely affect our financial performance.

Interruptions in production could increase our costs and reduce our sales. Any interruption in production capability could require us to make substantial capital expenditures to fill customer orders, which could negatively affect our profitability and financial condition. We maintain property damage insurance that we believe to be adequate to provide for reconstruction of facilities and equipment, as well as business interruption insurance to mitigate losses resulting from any production interruption or shutdown caused by an insured loss. However, any recovery under our insurance policies may not offset the lost sales or increased costs that may be experienced during the disruption of operations, which could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flow.

Infringement or expiration of our intellectual property rights, or allegations that we have infringed the intellectual property rights of third parties, could negatively affect us.

We rely on a combination of patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, know-how, confidentiality provisions and licensing arrangements to establish and protect our proprietary rights. We cannot guarantee, however, that the steps we have taken to protect our intellectual property will be adequate to prevent infringement of our rights or misappropriation of our technology, trade secrets or know-how. For example, effective patent, trademark, copyright and trade secret protection may be unavailable or limited in some of the countries in which we operate. In addition, while we generally enter into confidentiality agreements with our employees and third parties to protect our trade secrets, know-how, business strategy and other proprietary information, such confidentiality agreements could be breached or otherwise may not provide meaningful protection for our trade secrets and know-how related to the design, manufacture or operation of our products. If it became necessary for us to resort to litigation to protect our intellectual property rights, any proceedings could be burdensome and costly, and we may not prevail. Further, adequate remedies may not be available in the event of an unauthorized use or disclosure of our trade secrets and manufacturing expertise. Finally, for those products in our portfolio that rely on patent protection, once a patent has expired, the product is generally open to competition. Products under patent protection usually generate significantly higher revenues than those not protected by patents. If we fail to successfully enforce our intellectual property rights, our competitive position could suffer, which could harm our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

In addition, we may be subject to claims of intellectual property infringement by third parties. The litigation process is costly and subject to inherent uncertainties, and we may not prevail in litigation matters regardless of the merits of our position. Intellectual property lawsuits or claims may become extremely disruptive if the plaintiffs succeed in blocking the trade of our products and services and they may have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our business may be adversely affected by work stoppages, union negotiations, labor disputes and other matters associated with our labor force.

After giving effect to the spin-offs, we expect to employ approximately 65,000 people worldwide. Approximately 15% of these employees will be covered by collective bargaining agreements or work councils. Although we believe that our relations with the labor unions and work councils that represent our employees are generally good and we have experienced no material strikes or work stoppages recently, no assurances can be made that we will not experience in the future these and other types of conflicts with labor unions, works councils, other groups representing employees or our employees generally, or that any future negotiations with our labor unions will not result in significant increases in our cost of labor. Additionally, a work stoppage at one of our suppliers could materially and adversely affect our operations if an alternative source of supply were not readily available. Stoppages by employees of our customers could also result in reduced demand for our products.

The European debt crisis may affect our business, results of operations and financing.

In 2012, the financial crisis in Europe continued, triggered by high sovereign budget deficits and rising direct and contingent sovereign debt in Greece, Ireland, Italy, Portugal and Spain, which created concerns about the ability of these EU countries to continue to service their sovereign debt obligations. Despite assistance packages to certain of these countries, concerns persist regarding their debt burden and their ability to meet future financial obligations, the overall stability of the Euro and the suitability of the Euro as a single currency given the diversity of the Eurozone countries. These concerns could lead to the re-introduction of individual currencies in one or more Eurozone countries, or, in more extreme circumstances, the possible dissolution of the Euro currency entirely. A weaker European economy may transcend Europe, cause investors to lose confidence in the safety and soundness of European financial institutions and the stability of European member economies, and likewise negatively affect U.S.-based financial institutions, the stability of the global financial markets, and the economic recovery underway in the United States. These potential developments, or market perceptions concerning these and related issues, could adversely affect our businesses in Europe. In addition, concerns over the effect of this financial crisis on financial institutions in Europe and globally could have an adverse impact on the capital markets generally, and more specifically on our ability and the ability of our customers, suppliers and lenders to finance their respective businesses, to access liquidity at acceptable financing costs, if at all, and on the availability of supplies and materials.

Risks Related to Legal, Regulatory and Compliance Matters

We are subject to a variety of claims and litigation that could cause a material adverse effect on our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

In the normal course of our business, we are subject to claims and lawsuits, including from time to time claims for damages related to product liability and warranties, litigation alleging the infringement of intellectual property rights, litigation alleging anti-competitive behavior, and litigation related to employee matters and commercial disputes. The Separation and Distribution Agreements generally will require us to indemnify Tyco Flow Control and ADT for certain claims related to our activities those of our former subsidiaries and also provide that under certain circumstances we may be liable for certain legal liabilities incurred by Tyco Flow Control or ADT following the spin-off. See “Business of Tyco” and “Governance of Tyco—Other Directorships, Conflicts and Related Party Transactions” for additional information regarding our potential legal liabilities. In certain circumstances, patent infringement and anti-trust laws permit successful plaintiffs to recover treble damages. Furthermore, we face exposure to product liability claims in the event that any of our products results in personal injury or property damage. If any of our products prove to be defective, we may also be required to recall or redesign such products, which could result in significant unexpected costs. Any insurance we maintain may not be available on terms acceptable to us or such coverage may not be adequate for liabilities actually incurred.

The defense of these lawsuits may involve significant expense and diversion of our management’s attention. In addition, we may be required to pay damage awards or settlements, become subject to injunctions or other equitable remedies or suffer from adverse publicity that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We are exposed to greater risks of liability for employee acts or omissions, or system failure, than may be inherent in other businesses.

If a customer or third party believes that he or she has suffered harm to person or property due to an actual or alleged act or omission of one of our employees or a security or fire system failure, he or she may pursue legal action against us, and the cost of defending the legal action and of any judgment could be substantial. In particular, because our products and services are intended to protect lives and real and personal property, we may have greater exposure to litigation risks than businesses that provide other consumer and small business products and services. We could face liability for failure to respond adequately to alarm activations or failure of our fire protection systems to operate as expected. The nature of the services we provide exposes us to the risks that we may be held liable for employee acts or omissions or system failures. In an attempt to reduce this risk, our installation, service and monitoring agreements and other contracts contain provisions limiting our liability in such circumstances. However, in the event of litigation with respect to such matters, it is possible that these limitations may be deemed not applicable or unenforceable.

Police departments could refuse to respond to calls from monitored security service companies.

Police departments in a limited number of U.S. cities do not respond to calls from monitored security service companies, either as a matter of policy or by local ordinance. We have offered affected customers the option of receiving responses from private guard companies, in most cases through contracts with us, which increases the overall cost to customers. If more police departments, whether inside or outside the U.S., were to refuse to respond or be prohibited from responding to calls from monitored security service companies, our ability to attract and retain customers could be negatively impacted and our results of operations and cash flow could be adversely affected.

Our business operates in a regulated industry.

Our operations and employees are subject to various U.S. federal, state and local licensing laws, fire and security codes and standards and other laws and regulations. In certain jurisdictions, we are required to obtain licenses or permits to comply with standards governing employee selection and training and to meet certain standards in the conduct of our business. The loss of such licenses, or the imposition of conditions to the granting or retention of such licenses, could have an adverse effect on us. Furthermore, our systems generally must meet fire and building codes in order to be installed, and it is possible that our current or future products will fail to meet such codes, which could require us to make costly modifications to our products or to forgo marketing in certain jurisdictions.

Changes in laws or regulations could require us to change the way we operate or to utilize resources to maintain compliance, which could increase costs or otherwise disrupt operations. In addition, failure to comply with any applicable laws or regulations could result in substantial fines or revocation of our operating permits and licenses. If laws and regulations were to change or if we or our products failed to comply, our business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our international operations are subject to a variety of complex and continually changing laws and regulations.

Due to the international scope of our operations, the system of laws and regulations to which we are subject is complex and includes regulations issued by the U.S. Customs and Border Protection, the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Industry and Security, the U.S. Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control and various non U.S. governmental agencies, including applicable export controls, customs, currency exchange control and transfer pricing regulations, as applicable. No assurances can be made that we will continue to be found to be operating in compliance with, or be able to detect violations of, any such laws or regulations. In addition, we cannot predict the nature, scope or effect of future regulatory requirements to which our international operations might be subject or the manner in which existing laws might be administered or interpreted.

We are party to asbestos-related product litigation that could adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We, along with numerous other companies, are named as defendants in a substantial number of lawsuits based on alleged exposure to asbestos-containing materials. These cases typically involve product liability claims based primarily on allegations of manufacture, sale or distribution of industrial products that either contained asbestos or were attached to or used with asbestos-containing components manufactured by third parties. Each case typically names between dozens to hundreds of corporate defendants. We have observed an increase in the number of these lawsuits over the past several years, including lawsuits by plaintiffs with mesothelioma-related claims. A large percentage of these suits have not presented viable legal claims and, as a result, have been dismissed by the courts. Our strategy has been, and continues to be, to mount a vigorous defense aimed at having unsubstantiated suits dismissed, and, where appropriate, settling suits before trial. We cannot predict the extent to which we will be successful in litigating or otherwise resolving lawsuits in the future and we continue to evaluate different strategies related to asbestos claims filed against the Company. Unfavorable rulings, judgments or settlement terms could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We currently record an estimated liability related to pending claims and claims estimated to be received over the next seven years, including related defense costs, based on a number of key assumptions and estimation methodologies. These assumptions are derived from claims experience over the past five years and reflect our expectations about future claim activities over the next seven years. These assumptions about the future may or may not prove accurate, and accordingly, we may incur additional liabilities in the future. A change in one or more of the inputs or the methodology that we use to estimate the asbestos liability could materially change the estimated liability and associated cash flows for pending and future claims. Although it is possible that the Company will incur additional costs for asbestos claims filed beyond the next seven years, we do not believe there is a reasonable basis for estimating those costs at this time. On a quarterly and annual basis, we perform analyses to review and update as appropriate, the underlying assumptions.

We also record an asset that represents our best estimate of probable recoveries from insurers or other responsible parties for the estimated asbestos liabilities. There are significant assumptions made in developing estimates of asbestos-related recoveries, such as policy triggers, policy or contract interpretation, success in litigation in certain cases, the methodology for allocating claims to policies, and the continued solvency of the insurers or other responsible parties. The assumptions underlying the recorded asset may not prove accurate, and as a result, actual performance by our insurers and other responsible parties could result in lower receivables and cash flows expected to reduce our asbestos costs. Due to these uncertainties, as well as our inability to reasonably estimate any additional asbestos liability for claims that may be filed beyond the next seven years, it is not possible to predict the ultimate outcome of the cost, nor potential recoveries, of resolving the pending and all unasserted asbestos claims. Additionally, we believe it is possible that the cost of asbestos claims filed beyond the next seven years, net of expected recoveries, could have a material adverse effect on our financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

Our operations expose us to the risk of material environmental liabilities, litigation and violations.

We are subject to numerous U.S. federal, state, local and non-U.S. environmental protection and health and safety laws governing, among other things:

- the generation, storage, use and transportation of hazardous materials;
- emissions or discharges of substances into the environment;
- investigation and remediation of hazardous substances or materials at various sites; and
- the health and safety of our employees.

We cannot assure you that we have been or will be at all times in compliance with environmental and health and safety laws. If we violate these laws, we could be fined, criminally charged or otherwise sanctioned by regulators.

Certain environmental laws assess liability on current or previous owners or operators of real property for the cost of removal or remediation of hazardous substances at their properties or at properties at which they have disposed of hazardous substances. In addition to cleanup actions brought by governmental authorities, private parties could bring personal injury or other claims due to the presence of, or exposure to, hazardous substances.

We have received notification from the United States Environmental Protection Agency and from state environmental agencies, that conditions at several sites where we and others disposed of hazardous substances require cleanup and other possible remedial action and may require that we reimburse the government or otherwise pay for the cost of cleanup of those sites and/or for natural resource damages. We have projects underway at several current and former manufacturing facilities to investigate and remediate environmental contamination resulting from past operations by us or by other businesses that previously owned or used the properties. These projects relate primarily to a variety of activities, including:

- solvent, oil, metal and other hazardous substance contamination cleanup; and
- structure decontamination and demolition, including asbestos abatement.

These projects involve both remediation expenses and capital improvements. In addition, we remain responsible for certain environmental issues at manufacturing locations previously sold by us.

The ultimate cost of cleanup at disposal sites and manufacturing facilities is difficult to predict given uncertainties regarding the extent of the required cleanup, the interpretation of applicable laws and regulations and alternative cleanup methods. Environmental laws are complex, change frequently and have tended to become more stringent over time. While we have budgeted for future capital and operating expenditures to maintain compliance with such laws, we cannot provide assurance that our costs of complying with current or future environmental protection and health and safety laws, or our liabilities arising from past or future releases of, or exposures to, hazardous substances will not exceed our estimates or materially adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. We may also be subject to material liabilities for additional environmental claims for personal injury or cleanup in the future based on our past, present or future business activities or for existing environmental conditions of which we are not presently aware.

Legislative action by the U.S. Congress could adversely affect us.

Legislative action could be taken by the U.S. Congress which, if ultimately enacted, could override tax treaties, or modify statutes or regulations, upon which we rely, which could materially adversely affect our effective corporate tax rate. We cannot predict the outcome of any specific legislative proposals. If proposals were enacted that had the effect of disregarding our incorporation in Switzerland or limiting our ability as a Swiss company to take advantage of the tax treaties between Switzerland and the United States, we could be subject to increased taxation.

Changes in legislation or governmental regulations or policies in the jurisdictions in which we operate could have a significant impact on our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

We operate in regulated industries in various domestic and international markets. Our U.S. operations are subject to regulation by a number of federal, state and local governmental agencies with respect to safety of operations and equipment, labor and employment matters and financial responsibility. Intrastate operations in the United States are subject to regulation by state regulatory authorities, and our international operations are regulated by the countries in which they operate and by extra-territorial laws. We and our employees are subject to various U.S. federal, state and local laws and regulations, as well as non-U.S. laws and regulations, including many related to consumer protection. Most states in which we operate have licensing laws covering the monitored security services industry and the construction industry. Changes in laws or regulations could require us to change the way we operate, which could increase costs or otherwise disrupt operations. In addition, failure to comply with any applicable laws or regulations could result in substantial fines or revocation of our operating permits and licenses. If laws and regulations changed or we failed to comply, our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

We could be adversely affected by violations of the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and similar anti-bribery laws outside the United States.

The U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (the “FCPA”) and similar anti-bribery laws in other jurisdictions generally prohibit companies and their intermediaries from making improper payments to government officials or other persons for the purpose of obtaining or retaining business. Recent years have seen a substantial increase in anti-bribery law enforcement activity, with more frequent and aggressive investigations and enforcement proceedings by both the Department of Justice (“DOJ”) and the SEC, increased enforcement activity by non-U.S. regulators, and increases in criminal and civil proceedings brought against companies and individuals. Our policies mandate compliance with these anti-bribery laws. We operate in many parts of the world that are recognized as having governmental and commercial corruption and in certain circumstances, strict compliance with anti-bribery laws may conflict with local customs and practices. Because many of our customers and end users are involved in infrastructure construction and energy production, they are often subject to increased scrutiny by regulators. We cannot assure you that our internal control policies and procedures will always protect us from reckless or criminal acts committed by our employees or third party intermediaries. In the event that we believe or have reason to believe that our employees or agents have or may have violated applicable anti-corruption laws, including the FCPA, we may be required to investigate or have outside counsel investigate the relevant facts and circumstances, which can be expensive and require significant time and attention from senior management. Violations of these laws may result in criminal or civil sanctions, which could disrupt our business and result in a material adverse effect on our reputation, business, results of operations or financial condition.

Furthermore, we are subject to investigations by the DOJ and the SEC related to allegations that improper payments have been made by our subsidiaries and third party intermediaries in recent years in violation of the FCPA. We have continued to report to the DOJ and the SEC the remedial measures that we have taken in response to the allegations and our own internal investigations, and in February 2010, we initiated discussions with the DOJ and SEC aimed at resolving these matters, which remain ongoing. Although we have recorded our best estimate of potential loss related to these or other similar matters, it is possible that this estimate may differ from the ultimate loss determined in connection with the resolution of this matter, as we may be required to pay material fines, consent to injunctions on future conduct, consent to the imposition of a compliance monitor, or suffer other criminal or civil penalties or adverse impacts, including being subject to lawsuits brought by private litigants, each of which could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Risks Relating to Our Liquidity and Financial Markets

Disruptions in the financial markets could have adverse effects on us, our customers and our suppliers, by increasing our funding costs or reducing the availability of credit.

In the normal course of our business, we may access credit markets for general corporate purposes, which may include repayment of indebtedness, acquisitions, additions to working capital, repurchase of common shares, capital expenditures and investments in our subsidiaries. Although we believe we have sufficient liquidity to meet our foreseeable needs, our access to and the cost of capital could be negatively impacted by disruptions in the credit markets. In 2009 and 2010, credit markets experienced significant dislocations and liquidity disruptions, and similar disruptions in the credit markets could make financing terms for borrowers unattractive or unavailable. These factors may make it more difficult or expensive for us to access credit markets if the need arises. In addition, these factors may make it more difficult for our suppliers to meet demand for their products or for prospective customers to commence new projects, as customers and suppliers may experience increased costs of debt financing or difficulties in obtaining debt financing. Disruptions in the financial markets have had adverse effects on other areas of the economy and have led to a slowdown in general economic activity that may continue to adversely affect our businesses. These disruptions may have other unknown adverse effects. Based on these conditions, our profitability and our ability to execute our business strategy may be adversely affected.

Covenants in our debt instruments may adversely affect us.

Our bank credit agreements contain customary financial covenants, including a limit on the ratio of debt to earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization and limits on incurrence of liens and subsidiary debt. In addition, the indentures governing our bonds contain customary covenants including limits on negative pledges, subsidiary debt and sale/leaseback transactions.

Although we believe none of these covenants are restrictive to our operations, our ability to meet the financial covenants can be affected by events beyond our control, and we cannot provide assurance that we will meet those tests. A breach of any of these covenants could result in a default under our credit agreements or indentures. Upon the occurrence of an event of default under any of our credit facilities or indentures, the lenders or trustees could elect to declare all amounts outstanding thereunder to be immediately due and payable and, in the case of credit facility lenders, terminate all commitments to extend further credit. If the lenders or trustees accelerate the repayment of borrowings, we cannot provide assurance that we will have sufficient assets to repay our credit facilities and our other indebtedness. Furthermore, acceleration of any obligation under any of our material debt instruments will permit the holders of our other material debt to accelerate their obligations, which could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition.

Material adverse legal judgments, fines, penalties or settlements could adversely affect our financial health and prevent us from fulfilling our obligations under our outstanding indebtedness.

We estimate that our available cash, our cash flow from operations and amounts available to us under our credit facilities will be adequate to fund our operations and service our debt for the foreseeable future. However, material adverse legal judgments, fines, penalties or settlements arising from litigation and similar contingencies could require additional funding. If such developments require us to obtain additional funding, we cannot provide assurance that we will be able to obtain the additional funding that we need on commercially reasonable terms or at all, which could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Such an outcome could have important consequences to you. For example, it could:

- require us to dedicate a substantial portion of our cash flow from operations to payments on our indebtedness, thereby reducing the availability of our cash flow to fund working capital, capital expenditures, research and development efforts and other corporate purposes, including dividend payments;
- increase our vulnerability to adverse economic and industry conditions;
- limit our flexibility in planning for, or reacting to, changes in our businesses and the industries in which we operate;
- restrict our ability to introduce new technologies or exploit business opportunities;
- make it more difficult for us to satisfy our payment obligations with respect to our outstanding indebtedness; and
- increase the difficulty and/or cost to us of refinancing our indebtedness.

We may increase our debt or raise additional capital in the future, which could affect our financial health, and may decrease our profitability.

We may increase our debt or raise additional capital in the future, subject to restrictions in our debt agreements. If our cash flow from operations is less than we anticipate, or if our cash requirements are more than we expect, we may require more financing. However, debt or equity financing may not be available to us on terms acceptable to us, if at all. If we incur additional debt or raise equity through the issuance of additional capital stock, the terms of the debt or capital stock issued may give the holders rights, preferences and privileges senior to those of holders of our common stock, particularly in the event of liquidation. The terms of the debt may also impose additional and more stringent restrictions on our operations than we currently have. If we raise funds through the issuance of additional equity, your percentage ownership in us would decline. If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, it could affect our financial health, which could negatively affect your investment in us.

Risks Relating to Tax Matters

We share responsibility for certain of our, Covidien's and TE Connectivity's income tax liabilities for tax periods prior to and including June 29, 2007.

In connection with the 2007 Separation, Tyco entered into a tax sharing agreement (the "2007 Tax Sharing Agreement") that governs the rights and obligations of each party with respect to certain pre-2007 Separation tax liabilities and certain tax liabilities arising in connection with the 2007 Separation. More specifically, Tyco, Covidien and TE Connectivity share 27%, 42% and 31%, respectively, of income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to Tyco's, Covidien's and TE Connectivity's U.S. and certain non-U.S. income tax returns and certain taxes attributable to internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the 2007 Separation. In addition, in the event the 2007 Separation, or certain related transactions, is determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the 2007 Separation by Tyco, Covidien, or TE Connectivity, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on Tyco, Covidien, or TE Connectivity as a result thereof. If none of the companies is responsible for such failure, then Tyco, Covidien, and TE Connectivity would be responsible for such taxes in the same manner and in the same proportions as other shared tax liabilities under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Costs and expenses associated with the management of these shared tax liabilities are generally shared equally among the parties.

If any party to the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement were to default in its obligation to another party to pay its share of the distribution taxes that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be required to pay, equally with any other non-defaulting party, the amounts in default. In addition, if another party to the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement that is responsible for all or a portion of an income tax liability were to default in its payment of such liability to a taxing authority, we could be legally liable under applicable tax law for such liabilities and required to make additional tax payments. Accordingly, under certain circumstances, we may be obligated to pay amounts in excess of our agreed-upon share of our, Covidien's and TE Connectivity's tax liabilities.

With respect to years prior to and including the 2007 Separation, tax authorities have raised issues and proposed tax adjustments that are generally subject to the sharing provisions of the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which may require Tyco to make a payment to a taxing authority, Covidien or TE Connectivity. Tyco has recorded a liability of $411 million as of March 30, 2012 which it has assessed and believes is adequate to cover the payments that Tyco may be required to make under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Tyco is reviewing and contesting certain of the proposed tax adjustments.

With respect to adjustments raised by the IRS, although Tyco has resolved a substantial number of these adjustments, a few significant items remain open with respect to the audit of the 1997 through 2004 years. As of the date hereof, Tyco has not been able to resolve certain open items, which primarily involve the treatment of certain intercompany debt issued during the period, through the IRS appeals process. As a result, Tyco expects to litigate these matters once it receives the requisite statutory notices from the IRS, which is likely to occur within the next six months. However, the ultimate resolution of these matters is uncertain and could result in Tyco being responsible for a greater amount than it expects under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement.

Examinations and audits by tax authorities, including the IRS, could result in additional tax payments for prior periods.

The Company and its subsidiaries' income tax returns periodically are examined by various tax authorities. In connection with these examinations, tax authorities, including the IRS, have raised issues and proposed tax adjustments, in particular, with respect to tax years preceding the 2007 Separation. We are reviewing and contesting certain of the proposed tax adjustments. Although we expect to resolve a substantial number of the proposed tax adjustments with the IRS, a few significant items are expected to remain open with respect to the audit of the 1997 through 2004 years. As of the date hereof, it is unlikely that we will be able to resolve these open items, which primarily involve the treatment of certain intercompany transactions during the period related to the audits, through the IRS appeals process. As a result, we may be required to litigate these matters. The calculation of our tax liabilities involves dealing with uncertainties in the application of complex tax regulations in a multitude of jurisdictions across our global operations. We recognize potential liabilities and record tax liabilities for anticipated tax audit issues in the United States and other tax jurisdictions based on our estimate of whether, and the extent to which, additional income taxes will be due. These tax liabilities are reflected net of related tax loss carry-forwards. We adjust these liabilities in light of changing facts and circumstances. We have assessed our obligations under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and determined that the recorded liability is sufficient to cover the indemnifications made by us under such agreement. However, such amount could differ materially from amounts that are actually determined to be due, and any such difference could materially adversely affect our financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

If the distribution of Covidien and TE Connectivity common shares to our shareholders or certain internal transactions undertaken in connection with the 2007 Separation is determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities.

We have received private letter rulings from the IRS regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the distribution of Covidien and TE Connectivity common shares to our shareholders substantially to the effect that the distribution of such shares, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares, will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and 368(a)(1)(D) of the Code. The private letter rulings also provided that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the 2007 Separation would qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. The private letter rulings relied on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from Tyco, Covidien and TE Connectivity regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters. Notwithstanding the private letter rulings and the opinions, the IRS could determine on audit that the distribution or the internal transactions should be treated as taxable transactions if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings are not correct or have been violated, or that the distributions should be taxable for other reasons, including as a result of significant changes in stock ownership or asset ownership after the distribution. If the distribution ultimately is determined to be taxable, we would recognize gain in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of the Covidien and TE Connectivity common shares distributed to our shareholders on June 29, 2007 over our tax basis in such common shares, but such gain, if recognized, generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. However, we would incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if it ultimately is determined that certain internal transactions undertaken in connection with the 2007 Separation are taxable.

Risks Relating to Our Jurisdiction of Incorporation in Switzerland

Swiss laws differ from the laws in effect in the United States and may afford less protection to holders of Tyco's securities.

Because of differences between Swiss law and U.S. state and federal laws and differences between the governing documents of Swiss companies and those incorporated in the U.S., it may not be possible to enforce in Switzerland, court judgments obtained in the United States against Tyco based on the civil liability provisions of the federal or state securities laws of the United States. As a result, in a lawsuit based on the civil liability provisions of the U.S. federal or state securities laws, U.S. investors may find it difficult to:

- effect service within the United States upon Tyco or its directors and officers located outside the United States;
- enforce judgments obtained against those persons in U.S. courts or in courts in jurisdictions outside the United States; and
- enforce against those persons in Switzerland, whether in original actions or in actions for the enforcement of judgments of U.S. courts, civil liabilities based solely upon the U.S. federal or state securities laws.

Original actions against persons in Switzerland based solely upon the U.S. federal or state securities laws are governed, among other things, by the principles set forth in the Swiss Federal Act on International Private Law. This statute provides that the application of provisions of non-Swiss law by the courts in Switzerland shall be precluded if the result was incompatible with Swiss public policy. Also, mandatory provisions of Swiss law may be applicable regardless of any other law that would otherwise apply.

Switzerland and the United States do not have a treaty providing for reciprocal recognition of and enforcement of judgments in civil and commercial matters. The recognition and enforcement of a judgment of the courts of the United States in Switzerland is governed by the principles set forth in the Swiss Federal Act on Private International Law. This statute provides in principle that a judgment rendered by a non-Swiss court may be enforced in Switzerland only if:

- the non-Swiss court had jurisdiction pursuant to the Swiss Federal Act on Private International Law;
- the judgment of such non-Swiss court has become final and non-appealable;
- the judgment does not contravene Swiss public policy;
- the court procedures and the service of documents leading to the judgment were in accordance with the due process of law; and
- no proceeding involving the same position and the same subject matter was first brought in Switzerland, or adjudicated in Switzerland, or that it was earlier adjudicated in a third state and this decision is recognizable in Switzerland.

Our status as a Swiss corporation may limit our flexibility with respect to certain aspects of capital management and may cause us to be unable to make distributions or repurchase shares without subjecting our shareholders to Swiss withholding tax, or at all.

Swiss law allows our shareholders to authorize share capital that can be issued by the Board of Directors without additional shareholder approval, but this authorization is limited to 50% of the existing registered share capital and must be renewed by the shareholders every two years. Our current authorized share capital will expire on March 9, 2013. Additionally, subject to specified exceptions, Swiss law grants preemptive rights to existing shareholders to subscribe for new issuances of shares. Swiss law also does not provide as much flexibility in the various terms that can attach to different classes of shares as the laws of some other jurisdictions. In the event we need to raise common equity capital at a time when the trading price of our shares is below the par value of the shares (currently CHF 6.70 (or approximately $7.05 based on the exchange rate in effect on June 29, 2012)), we will need to obtain approval of shareholders to decrease the par value of our shares. As of June 29, 2012 the closing price of our ordinary shares on the NYSE was $52.85 (however, we expect this to be significantly lower immediately following the Distribution). We cannot provide assurance that we would be able to obtain such shareholder approval in a timely manner. Obtaining shareholder approval would require filing a preliminary proxy statement with the SEC and convening a meeting of shareholders which would delay any capital raising plans. If we were to receive shareholder approval to reduce the par value of our registered shares, the reduction would decrease our ability to pay dividends as a repayment of share capital, which may in the future subject shareholders to Swiss withholding tax. Swiss law also reserves for approval by shareholders certain corporate actions over which a board of directors would have authority in some other jurisdictions. For example, dividends must be approved by shareholders. These Swiss law requirements relating to our capital management may limit our flexibility, and situations may arise where greater flexibility would have provided substantial benefits to our shareholders.

Under Swiss law, a Swiss corporation may pay dividends only if the corporation has sufficient distributable profits from previous fiscal years, or if the corporation has distributable reserves, each as evidenced by its audited statutory balance sheet. Distributable reserves are generally booked either as “free reserves” or as “contributed surplus” (contributions received from shareholders) in the “reserve from capital contributions.” Payments may be made out of registered share capital—the aggregate par value of a company’s registered shares—only by way of a capital reduction.

Tyco’s freely distributable reserves based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 are CHF 7.94 billion, representing CHF 8.17 billion of freely distributable reserves as of September 30, 2011 reduced by approximately CHF 0.23 billion of dividends declared by our shareholders’ annual meeting on March 7, 2012. That amount—the amount available for future distributions—will be reduced by any additional distributions approved by our shareholders, including, (i) the ordinary cash dividends out of contributed surplus in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share proposed in this proxy statement and (ii) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements). As a result of these distributions, we expect Tyco to have freely distributable reserves of CHF 2–3 billion immediately following the Distributions.

Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 is CHF 35 billion. That amount will be reduced by (i) the ordinary cash dividends and (ii) the greater of (x) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements) and (y) the aggregate trading value of all distributed ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares, respectively, distributed in the special dividends in kind by the opening trading price of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, respectively, on the first trading day after distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco’s statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. As a result, Tyco’s total shareholders’ equity in its Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

Furthermore, generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to our shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder, unless the distribution is made to shareholders (i) by way of a reduction of par value or (ii) assuming certain conditions are met out of qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlage) accumulated on or after January 1, 1997. If we are not successful in our efforts to make dividends through a reduction of par value or out of qualifying contributed surplus, then any dividends paid by us generally will be subject to a Swiss federal withholding tax. The withholding tax must be withheld from the gross distribution and paid to the Swiss Federal Tax Administration. A U.S. holder that qualifies for benefits under the Convention between the United States of America and the Swiss Confederation for the Avoidance of Double Taxation with Respect to Taxes on Income, which we refer to as the “U.S.-Swiss Treaty,” may apply for a refund of the tax withheld in excess of the 15% treaty rate (or in excess of the 5% reduced treaty rate for qualifying corporate shareholders with at least 10% participation in our voting stock, or for a full refund in the case of qualified pension funds). Even if we are able to pay dividends in the future, there can be no assurance that we will meet the requirements to pay such dividends free from Swiss withholding tax or that Swiss withholding rules will not be changed in the future. We cannot provide assurance that the current Swiss law with respect to distributions out of qualifying contributed surplus will not be changed or that a change in Swiss law will not adversely affect us or our shareholders, in particular as a result of distributions out of qualifying contributed surplus becoming subject to additional corporate law or other restrictions. There are currently motions pending in the Swiss Parliament that purport to limit the distribution of qualifying contributed surplus. In addition, over the long term, the amount of par value available to us for par value reductions and the amount of qualifying contributed surplus available to us to pay out as distributions is limited (although we expect the combined amount to be in excess of CHF 5 billion immediately following the Distributions).

Under present Swiss tax laws, repurchases of shares for the purposes of cancellation are treated as a partial liquidation subject to 35% Swiss withholding tax on the difference between the repurchase price and the par value except, since January 1, 2011, to the extent attributable to qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlagereserven) if any. If, and to the extent that, the repurchase of shares is out of retained earnings or other taxable reserves, the Swiss withholding becomes due. No partial liquidation treatment applies and no withholding tax is triggered if the shares are not repurchased for cancellation but held by us as treasury shares. However, should we not resell such treasury shares within six years, the withholding tax becomes due at the end of the six year period.

Although we may follow a share repurchase process for future share repurchases, if any, similar to a “second trading line” on the SIX Swiss Exchange in which Swiss institutional investors sell shares to us and are generally able to receive a refund of the Swiss withholding tax, if we are unable to use this process successfully, we may not be able to repurchase shares for the purposes of capital reduction without triggering Swiss withholding tax if and to the extent that the repurchase of shares is made out of retained earnings or other taxable reserves. No withholding tax would be applicable if and to the extent that tax free qualifying contributed surplus is attributable to the share repurchase.

Risks Related to the Spin-Offs and the Merger

If the spin-offs are completed, our operational and financial profile will change and we will be a smaller, less diversified company.

If completed, the spin-offs will result in Tyco being a smaller, less diversified company with a narrower business focus than we currently have. We will have a more limited business with greater concentration in the commercial market and may be more vulnerable to changing market conditions, which could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition and results of operations. In addition, our diversification of revenues, costs, and cash flows will diminish. As a result, it is possible that our results of operations, cash flows, working capital and financing requirements may be subject to increased volatility and it may be difficult or more expensive for us to obtain financing. Our operations may also be impacted by a limited ability to attract new employees in a timely manner.

We may be unable to achieve some or all of the benefits that we expect to achieve from the spin-offs and the Merger.

Although we believe that separating the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and the flow control business by means of the spin-offs, and combining the flow control business with Pentair’s business, will provide financial, operational, managerial and other benefits to Tyco and its shareholders, including those discussed under “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Tyco’s Reasons for the ADT Distribution” and “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Tyco’s Reasons for the Tyco Flow Control Transactions,” the spin-offs may not provide the results on the scope or on the scale we anticipate, and the assumed benefits of the spin-offs and the Merger may not be fully realized. Accordingly, the spin-offs and the Merger might not provide Tyco and its shareholders benefits or value in excess of the benefits and value that might have been created or realized had Tyco retained the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and/or the flow control business or undertaken another strategic alternative involving the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and/or the flow control business.

We will share responsibility for certain of our, Tyco Flow Control's and ADT's income tax liabilities for tax periods prior to and including the distribution date.

In connection with the Distributions, we will enter into the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement with Tyco Flow Control and ADT that will be separate from the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which will govern the rights and obligations of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control for certain tax liabilities before the Distributions, including Tyco's obligations under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement, as more fully described in "The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements—2012 Tax Sharing Agreement," below. In addition, we will enter into a non-income tax sharing agreement with ADT in connection with the ADT Distribution. To the extent we are responsible for any liability under these agreements, there could be a material adverse impact on our financial position, results of operations, cash flows or our effective tax rate in future reporting periods.

The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement is also expected to provide that, if any party were to default in its obligation to another party to pay its share of the Distribution Taxes (as defined in the section "The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements—2012 Tax Sharing Agreement") that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be required to pay, equally with any other non-defaulting party, the amounts in default. In addition, if another party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that is responsible for all or a portion of an income tax liability were to default in its payment of such liability to a taxing authority, we could be legally liable under applicable tax law for such liabilities and required to make additional tax payments. Accordingly, under certain circumstances, we may be obligated to pay amounts in excess of our agreed-upon share of our, Tyco Flow Control's and ADT's tax liabilities.

The trading price of Tyco common shares may experience volatility and will decline following the Distributions.

We expect the trading price of Tyco common shares immediately following the Distributions to be significantly lower than immediately prior to the Distributions because the trading price for our shares will no longer reflect the value of the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and the flow control business. In addition, until the market has fully analyzed the value of Tyco without our residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and the flow control business, the price of our common shares may fluctuate.

Furthermore, investors holding our common stock may hold our common stock because of a decision to invest in a company that is large and operates in multiple markets with a diversified product and services portfolio. If the proposed spin-off transactions are completed, shares of our common stock will represent an investment in a smaller company with its business concentrated in the fire detection and suppression business, the commercial security business and the residential security business outside of the United States and Canada. These changes may not match some holders' investment strategies or meet minimum criteria for inclusion in stock market indices or portfolios, which could cause investors to sell their shares of our common stock. Excessive selling pressure could cause the market price of our common stock to decrease following the completion of the proposed spinoff.

Following the Distributions, the value of your Tyco common shares, ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares may collectively trade at an aggregate price less than that at which Tyco shares might trade had the Distributions not occurred.

For a number of factors, including the future performance of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control as separate, independent companies, the future shareholder base and market for Tyco common shares, ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares and the prices at which these shares individually trade, and other factors described elsewhere in this proxy statement, the Tyco common shares, ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares that you may hold following the Distributions may collectively trade at a value less than the price at which Tyco common shares might have traded had the Distributions not occurred and Tyco continued to own the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and the flow control business.

If the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions are determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we, our shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax and/or both ADT and Tyco Flow Control could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities.

Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Distributions to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distributions will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of ADT common stock or of Tyco Flow Control common shares. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The private letter ruling relies and the opinion will rely on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from us, Tyco Flow Control and ADT regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters.

Notwithstanding the private letter ruling and the opinion, the IRS could determine on audit that the Distributions or the internal transactions should be treated as taxable transactions if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings is not correct or has been violated, or that the Distributions or the internal transactions should be taxable for other reasons, including as a result of significant changes in stock ownership (which might take into account changes in Tyco Flow Control stock ownership resulting from the Merger) or asset ownership after the Distributions. An opinion of counsel represents counsel's best legal judgment, is not binding on the IRS or the courts, and the IRS or the courts may not agree with the opinion. In addition, the opinions will be based on current law, and cannot be relied upon if current law changes with retroactive effect. If the Distributions ultimately are determined to be taxable, the Distributions could be treated as a taxable dividend or capital gain to you for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and you could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities. In addition, we would recognize gain in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of the Tyco Flow Control common shares and the shares of ADT common stock distributed to our shareholders on the distribution date over our tax basis in such common shares, but such gain, if recognized, generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. However, we, Tyco Flow Control or ADT could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if it is ultimately determined that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions are taxable.

In addition, under the terms of the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, in the event the Distributions or the internal transactions were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distributions by us, Tyco Flow Control or ADT, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on us, Tyco Flow Control or ADT as a result thereof. If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distributions by us, Tyco Flow Control or ADT, then we, Tyco Flow Control and ADT would be responsible for any taxes imposed on us, Tyco Flow Control or ADT as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as we share Shared Tax Liabilities (as defined in the section "The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements"). Such tax amounts could be significant. In the event that any party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement defaults in its obligation to pay Distribution Taxes (as defined in the section "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—2012 Tax Sharing Agreement") to another party that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be responsible for an equal amount of the defaulting party's obligation to make a payment to another party in respect of such other party's taxes.

If the Distributions or the Merger are determined to be taxable for Swiss withholding tax purposes, we, ADT and Tyco Flow Control could incur significant Swiss withholding tax liabilities.

Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to Tyco's shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). Tyco has obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that the Distributions qualify as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distributions.

It is a condition to closing of the Merger that, at the Effective Time, Tyco will have obtained one or more tax rulings from the Swiss Tax Administrations, which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the closing date of the Merger, confirming: (i) that the Merger will be a transaction that is generally tax-free for Swiss federal, cantonal, and communal tax purposes (including with respect to Swiss stamp tax and Swiss withholding tax); (ii) the relevant Swiss tax base of Panthro Acquisition for Swiss tax (including federal and cantonal and communal) purposes; (iii) the relevant amount of capital contribution reserves (Kapitaleinlageprinzip) which will be exempt from Swiss withholding tax in the event of a distribution to the Tyco Flow Control shareholders after the Merger; and (iv) that no Swiss stamp tax will be levied on certain post-Merger restructuring transactions.

These tax rulings rely on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from Tyco. Notwithstanding these tax rulings, the Swiss Federal Tax Administration could determine on audit that the Distributions or the Merger should be treated as a taxable transaction for withholding tax or other tax purposes if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings is not correct or has been violated. If the Distributions or the Merger ultimately are determined to be taxable for withholding tax or other tax purposes, Tyco and Tyco shareholders could incur material Swiss withholding tax liabilities that could significantly detract from, or eliminate, the benefits of the Distributions and the Merger. In addition, Tyco could become liable to indemnify Tyco Flow Control for part of any Swiss withholding tax liabilities to the extent provided under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. See "The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements—2012 Tax Sharing Agreement."

We might not be able to engage in desirable strategic transactions and equity issuances following the Distributions because of restrictions relating to U.S. federal income tax requirements for tax-free distributions.

Our ability to engage in significant equity transactions could be limited or restricted after the Distributions in order to preserve, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the tax-free nature of the Distributions. Even if the Distributions otherwise qualify for tax-free treatment under Section 355 of the Code, it may result in corporate-level gain to Tyco and certain of its affiliates under Section 355(e) of the Code if 50% or more, by vote or value, of our shares, Tyco Flow Control's shares or ADT's shares are acquired or issued as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distributions. Any acquisitions or issuances of our shares, Tyco Flow Control's shares or ADT's shares within two years after the Distributions generally will be presumed to be part of such a plan, although we, Tyco Flow Control or ADT may be able to rebut that presumption.

To preserve the tax-free treatment to us of the Distributions, under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that we will enter into with Tyco Flow Control and ADT, we will be prohibited from taking or failing to take any action that prevents the Distributions and related transactions from being tax-free. Further, for the two-year period following the Distributions, without obtaining the consent of Tyco Flow Control and ADT, a private letter ruling from the IRS or an unqualified opinion of a nationally recognized law firm, we may be prohibited from:

- approving or allowing any transaction that results in a change in ownership of more than 35% of our common shares when combined with any other changes in ownership of our common shares,
- redeeming equity securities,

- selling or otherwise disposing of more than 35% of Tyco Flow Control’s assets, or
- engaging in certain internal transactions.

These restrictions may limit our ability to pursue strategic transactions or engage in new business or other transactions that may maximize the value of our business. Moreover, we expect the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement to also provide that we will be responsible for any taxes imposed on Tyco Flow Control or any of its affiliates or on ADT or any of its affiliates as a result of the failure of the Distributions or the internal transactions to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code if such failure is attributable to certain actions taken after the Distributions by or in respect of us, any of our affiliates or our shareholders.

There is no existing market for ADT common stock or Tyco Flow Control common shares and we cannot be certain that an active trading market will develop or be sustained after the Distributions, and following the Distributions, ADT’s or Tyco Flow Control’s or both of their stock prices may fluctuate significantly.

There is currently no public market for ADT common stock. Although Pentair’s common shares have been trading on the NYSE since 1978, there is currently no public market for Tyco Flow Control common shares. It is anticipated that before the distribution date for the special dividends, trading of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares will begin on a “when-issued” basis and such trading will continue up to and including the distribution date. When-issued trading in the context of a spin-off refers to a sale or purchase of securities effected on or before the distribution date and made conditionally because the securities of the distributed entity have not yet been distributed. When-issued trades generally settle within four trading days of the distribution date. On the first trading day following the distribution date, any when-issued trading in respect of our common shares will end and “regular-way” trading will begin. Regular-way trading refers to trading after the security has been distributed and typically involves a trade that settles on the third full trading day following the date of the sale transaction. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—General Summary of the Spin-Offs and the Merger” for more information. We cannot predict the trading prices for our common shares before or after the distribution date. There can be no assurance that an active trading market for ADT’s common stock or Tyco Flow Control’s common shares will develop as a result of the Distributions and the Merger or be sustained in the future. The lack of an active market may make it more difficult for you to sell ADT shares and/or Tyco Flow Control shares and could lead to the share price for ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares being depressed or more volatile.

Substantial sales of shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares may occur in connection with the Distributions and the Merger, which could cause ADT’s and/or Tyco Flow Control’s stock price to decline.

The shares of ADT common stock that we may distribute to our shareholders generally may be sold immediately in the public market, and Tyco Flow Control common shares that we may distribute to our shareholders generally may be sold after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and consummation of the Merger. Although we have no actual knowledge of any plan or intention on the part of any significant shareholder to sell shares of ADT common stock or Tyco Flow Control common shares following the Distributions and the Merger, it is likely that some of our shareholders will sell shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares received in the Distributions if, for reasons such as ADT’s and/or Tyco Flow Control’s business profile or market capitalization as an independent company, ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control does not fit their investment objectives. In particular, we are a member of the S&P 500 Index, while Tyco Flow Control and ADT will not initially be and may not be in the future. Accordingly, certain of our shareholders may elect or be required to sell ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control shares following the Distributions due to investment guidelines or other reasons. The sales of significant amounts of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares or the perception in the market that this will occur may result in the lowering of the market price of their respective common shares.

The ADT shares and Tyco Flow Control shares to be received by Tyco shareholders as a result of the Distributions will have different rights from Tyco common shares.

Following completion of the Distributions, Tyco shareholders receiving ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares will be shareholders of ADT, a Delaware corporation, and shareholders of Tyco Flow Control, a Swiss corporation, in addition to shareholders of Tyco, a Swiss company limited by shares. The rights afforded to shareholders of ADT common stock will be governed by ADT's certificate of incorporation, ADT's bylaws, and Delaware law. The rights afforded to shareholders of Tyco Flow Control common shares will be governed by Tyco Flow Control's articles of association and Swiss law. As a result, you will have different rights with respect to your Tyco shares relative to your ADT shares due to the differences in the governing documents and laws of Tyco and ADT, and certain different rights with respect to your Tyco shares relative to your Tyco Flow Control shares due to differences in the articles of association of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control. The key differences are described in the section titled "Comparison of Rights of Tyco Shareholders, ADT Shareholders and Tyco Flow Control Shareholders following the Distributions and the Merger" in this proxy statement.

Failure to complete the Distributions and the Merger could negatively impact the stock price and future business and financial results of Tyco.

If the Distributions and the Merger are not completed, our ongoing businesses may be adversely affected and we will be subject to certain risks and consequences, including the following:

- we will be required to pay certain costs and expenses relating to the Distributions and the Merger, such as legal and accounting fees, whether or not they are completed; and
- matters relating to the Distributions and the Merger may require substantial commitments of time and resources by Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control management, which could otherwise have been devoted to other opportunities that may have been beneficial to Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

In addition, if the Distributions and the Merger are not completed, we may experience negative reactions from the financial markets.

Tyco and ADT will enter into non-compete and non-solicit restrictions that will prohibit (i) Tyco from competing with ADT in the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and (ii) ADT from competing with Tyco in the commercial fire and security businesses, in each case for a period of time following the ADT Distribution.

We expect that the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement to be entered into in connection with the spin-offs will include non-compete provisions pursuant to which (i) Tyco will be prohibited from competing with ADT in the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and (ii) ADT will be prohibited from competing with Tyco in the commercial fire and security businesses, subject to certain small business related exceptions, in each case for two years from the date of the ADT Distribution. In addition, we expect that the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will contain non-solicitation provisions preventing (i) Tyco from soliciting ADT's residential small business customers in the United States and Canada and (ii) ADT from soliciting Tyco's security customers, in each case for two years following the ADT Distribution. This will effectively prevent each of Tyco and ADT from expanding its respective business into these restricted markets in these jurisdictions during the restricted periods. These factors could materially and adversely affect Tyco's and ADT's business, financial condition, results and operations and cash flows.

The combined Tyco Flow Control and Pentair may not realize the growth opportunities and cost synergies that are anticipated from the Merger.

The benefits that we expect to achieve as a result of the Merger will depend, in part, on the ability of the combined company to realize anticipated growth opportunities and cost synergies. The combined company's success in realizing these growth opportunities and cost synergies, and the timing of this realization, depends on the successful integration of Tyco Flow Control's business and operations and Pentair's business and operations. Even if the combined company is able to integrate the Tyco Flow Control and Pentair businesses and operations successfully, this integration may not result in the realization of the full benefits of the growth opportunities and cost synergies that we currently expect from this integration within the anticipated time frame or at all. For example, the combined company may be unable to eliminate duplicative costs. Moreover, the combined company may incur substantial expenses in connection with the integration of Tyco Flow Control's business and Pentair's business. While we anticipate that certain expenses will be incurred, such expenses are difficult to estimate accurately, and may exceed current estimates. Accordingly, the benefits from the Merger may be offset by costs incurred or delays in integrating the businesses.

The number of Tyco Flow Control shares that Tyco shareholders will receive in the Distribution is not subject to adjustment based on the performance of Tyco Flow Control or Pentair. Accordingly, because this performance may fluctuate, the relative market values of the Tyco Flow Control common that Tyco shareholders receive in the Distribution may not reflect the relative performance of the individual companies at the time of the Merger.

In connection with the Distribution and the Merger, Tyco shareholders as of the record date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution or their transferees will own approximately 52.5% of the outstanding shares of the combined Tyco Flow Control/Pentair entity on a fully diluted basis after giving effect to the Merger. Tyco shareholders who receive Tyco Flow Control shares in the Tyco Flow Control Distribution will not receive any new shares in the Merger and will continue to hold their existing shares of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control. If the economic performance of Pentair relative to Tyco Flow Control declines prior to the completion of the Merger, Tyco shareholders will not receive any compensation or adjustment to account for the effective diminishment in the value of their Tyco Flow Control shares received in the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Investors holding Tyco Flow Control common shares immediately prior to the Merger will, in the aggregate, have a significantly reduced ownership and voting interest after the Merger and will exercise less influence over management.

Tyco Flow Control shareholders immediately prior to the Merger will, in the aggregate, own a significantly smaller percentage of the combined company after the Merger's completion. Following completion of the Merger and prior to the elimination of fractional shares, Tyco Flow Control shareholders immediately prior to the Merger collectively will own approximately 52.5% of the outstanding shares of the combined company on a fully-diluted basis (excluding treasury shares). Consequently, Tyco Flow Control shareholders immediately prior to the Merger, collectively, will be able to exercise less influence over the management and policies of the combined company than they could exercise over the management and policies of Tyco Flow Control immediately prior to the Merger. The directors of Pentair prior to the Merger are expected to comprise ten of the eleven members of the Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control following the Merger.

The integration of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair following the Merger may present significant challenges.

There is a significant degree of difficulty and management distraction inherent in the process of integrating the Tyco Flow Control and Pentair businesses. These difficulties include:

- carrying on the ongoing operations of each business during integration;
- the necessity of coordinating geographically separate organizations;
- the challenge of integrating the business cultures of each company, which may prove to be incompatible;
- the challenge and cost of integrating the information technology systems of each company; and
- the potential difficulty in retaining key officers and personnel of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair.

The process of integrating operations could cause an interruption of, or loss of momentum in, the activities of one or more of Tyco Flow Control's or Pentair's businesses. Members of Tyco Flow Control's or Pentair's senior management may be required to devote considerable amounts of time to this integration process, which will decrease the time they will have to manage the combined business, service existing customers, attract new customers and develop new products or strategies. If Tyco Flow Control's and Pentair's senior management are not able to effectively manage the integration process, or if any significant business activities are interrupted as a result of the integration process, our business could suffer.

We cannot assure you that Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will successfully or cost-effectively integrate their businesses. The failure to do so could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations.

Regulatory agencies may delay or impose conditions on approval of the Merger, which may diminish the anticipated benefits of the Merger.

Satisfaction of the conditions to completion of the Merger and therefore the Tyco Flow Control Distribution requires the receipt of government consents, approvals, orders and authorizations, including approvals from foreign regulatory agencies. While we intend to pursue vigorously all required governmental approvals and do not know of any reason why we would not be able to obtain the necessary approvals in a timely manner, the requirement to receive these approvals before the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and Merger could delay the completion of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger, possibly for a significant period of time after Tyco shareholders have approved the Tyco Flow Control Distribution at the Special General Meeting. In addition, these governmental agencies may attempt to condition their approval of the Merger on the imposition of conditions that could have a material adverse effect on Tyco Flow Control's operating results or the value of Tyco Flow Control common shares after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and Merger are completed. Any delay in the completion of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and Merger could diminish anticipated benefits of the spin-off and Merger or result in additional transaction costs, loss of revenue or other effects associated with uncertainty about the transaction. Any uncertainty over the ability of the companies to complete the spin-off and Merger could make it more difficult for Tyco Flow Control and Pentair to retain key employees or to pursue business strategies. In addition, until the spin-off and Merger are completed, the attention of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair management may be diverted from ongoing business concerns and regular business responsibilities to the extent management is focused on matters relating to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and Merger, such as obtaining regulatory approvals.

The pendency of the Merger could potentially adversely affect the business and operations of Tyco Flow Control and the Pentair business.

In connection with the pending Merger, some customers of each of Tyco Flow Control and the Pentair business may delay or defer decisions or may end their relationships with the relevant company, which could negatively affect the revenues, earnings and cash flows of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair, regardless of whether the Merger is completed. Similarly, it is possible that current and prospective employees of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair could experience uncertainty about their future roles with the combined company following the Merger, which could materially adversely affect the ability of each of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair to attract and retain key personnel during the pendency of the Merger.

The registration of the new shares to be issued to the holders of Pentair common shares must be registered in the Commercial Register of the Canton of Schaffhausen, Switzerland. Registration may be blocked, thereby delaying or preventing the issuance of the shares and completion of the Merger.

In order for us to issue the shares to be delivered to the holders of Pentair common shares, we must register the increase in our share capital with the Commercial Register of the Canton of Schaffhausen, Switzerland, prior to the issuance of the shares. Under Swiss law, this registration may be blocked for reasons beyond our control if a request to this effect is filed with the Commercial Register by any third party. If within ten calendar days of receipt of the blockage request by the Commercial Register the petitioner does not submit to the Commercial Register evidence that a request for interim relief was filed with the competent court, the blockage of the Commercial Register will be lifted, and the registration of the capital increase will occur. However, if such evidence is provided, the blockage of the Commercial Register will be lifted, and the registration of the capital increase will occur, only upon the competent court's final rejection of the petitioner's request for interim relief.

THE SPECIAL GENERAL MEETING

Date, Time and Place

A Special General Meeting of shareholders of Tyco will be held on September 14, 2012, at 9:00 a.m. Central European Summer Time, at Tyco's offices at Freier Platz 10, CH-8200, Schaffhausen, Switzerland unless otherwise postponed or adjourned.

Matters to be Considered

The purposes of the Special General Meeting are to consider and vote on the following proposals:

1. To approve, subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the conditions set forth below, the distribution to Tyco shareholders, based on a distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each Tyco common share outstanding, as of the record date for the special dividend, of 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus equity position in its statutory accounts. The reduction to Tyco's contributed surplus in its Swiss statutory accounts resulting from the special dividend shall be the greater of (i) the aggregate book value of ADT as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of Swiss statutory financial statements) and (ii) the aggregate trading value of all distributed ADT shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of ADT shares distributed in the special dividend in kind by the opening trading price of ADT common stock on the first trading day after the distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco's Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. As a result of the Distributions, we expect Tyco to have freely distributable reserves of CHF 2–3 billion immediately following the Distributions.

Payment of the special dividend shall be subject to the satisfaction prior to March 31, 2013 of the following conditions:

- the SEC shall have declared effective the ADT Form 10, including the Preliminary Information Statement contained therein, under the Exchange Act, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 shall be in effect;
- ADT's common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution, to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the ADT Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the ADT Distribution substantially to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution; and

- based on the closing price of the ADT shares trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

In lieu of ADT fractional shares, shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT common stock in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT in the special dividend.

2. To approve, subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the conditions set forth below, the distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus equity position in its statutory accounts, based on a distribution ratio, determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully-diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividend (which record date is expected to be established by Tyco’s Board of Directors for September 17, 2012, subject to shareholders approving the Distributions at the Special General Meeting). The reduction to Tyco’s qualified contributed surplus in its Swiss statutory accounts resulting from the special dividend shall be the greater of (i) the aggregate book value of Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of Swiss statutory financial statements) and (ii) the aggregate trading value of all distributed Tyco Flow Control shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of Tyco Flow Control shares distributed in the special dividend in kind by the opening trading price of Tyco Flow Control common shares on the first trading day after the distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco’s Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. As a result of the Distributions, we expect Tyco to have freely distributable reserves of CHF 2–3 billion immediately following the Distributions.

Declaration and distribution of the special dividend shall be subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the following conditions:

- the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco’s obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution); and
- each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger.

For detailed information regarding the conditions to Tyco’s and Pentair’s obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement, see “The Merger Agreement – Conditions to the Completion of the Merger.”

If the Merger were to be discontinued for any reason and the Merger Agreement terminated, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT intend to modify or otherwise amend and restate the current Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement to remove those provisions applicable to the Merger and/or Pentair and proceed with the Tyco Flow Control Distribution as originally announced on September 19, 2011.

3. Subject to approval of the Distributions set forth in Proposals 1 and 2 above and consummation of the Distributions, to elect as directors effective as of the date of the Distributions the two nominees to the Board of Directors named in this proxy statement, for terms expiring at Tyco's next annual general shareholders meeting.
4. Subject to approval of the Distributions set forth in Proposals 1 and 2 above and the record date for the Distributions set forth in Proposals 1 and 2 above being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividends to approve the payment of ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco's annual general meeting on March 7, 2012.
5. Approval of the Stock and Incentive Plan on the terms described herein. The Stock and Incentive Plan was approved by our Compensation and Human Resources Committee and our Board of Directors on July 12, 2012, subject to the approval of shareholders.

Prior to receipt of shareholder approval at the Special General Meeting, we will have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the proposed distributions of the common stock of ADT, the common stock of Tyco Flow Control and the ordinary cash dividends comply with Swiss law and Tyco's Articles of Association.

If shareholders approve the Distributions at the Special General Meeting, the record date for the Distributions will be September 17, 2012.

The special dividends are not conditioned upon each other, such that if our shareholders approve one special dividend but not the other, we will complete the special dividend that our shareholders have approved (subject to the prior satisfaction of certain conditions described in this proxy statement). Tyco, as the sole shareholder of Tyco Flow Control, has already approved the Merger. Tyco is not required to obtain, and it is not seeking, the approval of Tyco shareholders for the Merger. However, the Merger will not take place unless Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Record Date; Shares Outstanding and Entitled to Vote

The closing of business on July 23, 2012, has been established by Tyco as the record date for the Special General Meeting. On July 23, 2012, there were 459,815,712 common shares outstanding and entitled to vote at the Special General Meeting. Shareholders registered in our share register with voting rights at the close of business on July 23, 2012 are entitled to vote at the Special General Meeting, except as provided below. A shareholder who purchases shares from a registered holder after July 23, 2012, but before August 31, 2012, and who wishes to vote his or her shares at the Special General Meeting must (1) ask to be registered as a shareholder with respect to such shares in our share register prior to August 31, 2012 or (2) obtain written confirmation of such purchase from the registered voting rights record holder of those shares as of the record date. If you are a record holder of our common shares (as opposed to a beneficial shareholder) on the record date but sell your shares prior to the Special General Meeting, you will not be entitled to vote those shares at the Special General Meeting.

In March 2009, Tyco changed its jurisdiction of incorporation from Bermuda to Switzerland. As described in our January 21, 2009 proxy statement/prospectus, you should exchange any certificates representing our common shares you own that were issued while we were a Bermuda company for book-entry shares recorded electronically in our share register, and simultaneously elect to be enrolled as a shareholder with voting rights. While you will continue to be entitled to dividends, preemptive rights and liquidation proceeds even if you do not submit your certificates, you may not be able to exercise any voting rights, prove your ownership interest in Tyco, transfer your shares or exercise other shareholder rights until you submit your certificates and are registered as a shareholder entitled to voting rights. Please contact our transfer agent, Computershare, at 800-685-4509, to obtain the appropriate forms to surrender your old certificates. Beneficial holders of shares held in “street name” are not required to take any action in this regard.

Every holder of a common share on the record date will be entitled to one vote per share on each matter presented at the Special General Meeting. However, if you own “Controlled Shares” representing voting power of 15% or more, your ability to vote shares exceeding 15% of the voting power is limited. Controlled Shares is defined in Article 8 of our Articles of Association and generally refers to shares held directly, indirectly, formally, constructively or beneficially by any individual or entity, or any individuals or entities acting together as a group, subject to certain limitations.

How to Vote Your Shares

Shareholders may vote in the following ways:

- By Mail: If you are a holder of record, you can vote by marking, dating and signing the appropriate proxy card and returning it by mail in the enclosed postage-paid envelope. If you beneficially own your common shares, you can vote by following the instructions on your voting instruction card. If you received more than one proxy card (which means that you have shares in more than one account), you must mark, sign, date and return each proxy card or use an alternative voting method.
- By Internet or Telephone: If you hold your shares beneficially, you can vote over the Internet at www.proxyvote.com by following the instructions on the proxy card or voting instruction card. You can vote using a touchtone telephone by calling 1-800-690-6903.
- At the Special General Meeting: If you are planning to attend the Special General Meeting and wish to vote your shares in person, we will give you a ballot at the meeting. Shareholders who own their shares in street name are not able to vote at the Special General Meeting unless they have a proxy, executed in their favor, from the holder of record of their shares.

Even if you plan to be present at the Special General Meeting, we encourage you to complete and mail the enclosed card to vote your common shares by proxy. Telephone and Internet voting facilities for shareholders will be available 24 hours a day and will close at 11:59 p.m. Eastern Time on September 13, 2012.

Attending the Special General Meeting

All shareholders are invited to attend and vote at the Special General Meeting. For admission to the Special General Meeting, shareholders of record should bring the admission ticket attached to the enclosed proxy card to the registered shareholders check-in area and a form of photo identification, where their ownership will be verified. Those who beneficially own shares should come to the beneficial owners check-in area. To be admitted, beneficial owners must bring account statements or letters from their banks or brokers showing that they own Tyco common shares as of July 23, 2012 along with a form of photo identification. Registration will begin at 8:00 a.m. Central European Summer Time and the Special General Meeting will begin at 9:00 a.m. Central European Summer Time.

Beneficial owners who wish to vote in person at the Special General Meeting are requested to obtain a proxy executed in their favor, from their broker, bank, nominee or other custodian that authorizes you to vote the shares held by them on your behalf. Shareholders of record registered in the share register are entitled to vote and may participate in the Special General Meeting.

Shareholders who purchase our shares and, upon application, become registered as shareholders with respect to such shares after July 23, 2012, but on or before August 31, 2012, and who wish to vote those shares at the Special General Meeting, will need to obtain a proxy, executed in their favor, from the registered holder of those shares as of the record date to vote their shares in person at the Special General Meeting. Shareholders registered in our share register (as opposed to beneficial shareholders) who have sold their shares prior to the Special General Meeting are not entitled to vote those shares.

GRANTING OF PROXY

If you are a shareholder of record and do not wish to attend the Special General Meeting, you have the right to grant your voting proxy directly to the Tyco officers named in the proxy card. Alternatively, you can appoint Dr. Harald Maag, Bratschi Wiederkehr & Buob, Attorneys-at-Law as independent proxy, in accordance with Article 689c of the Swiss Code of Obligations, with full rights of substitution, by checking the appropriate box on the enclosed proxy card, or grant a written proxy to any other person, which person does not need to be a shareholder. The proxies granted to the independent proxy must be received by the independent proxy no later than 11:00 a.m. Central European Summer Time on September 13, 2012.

Registered shareholders who have appointed a Tyco officer or the independent proxy as a proxy may not vote in person at the meeting or send a proxy of their choice to the meeting, unless they revoke or change their proxies. Revocations must be received by the independent proxy no later than 11:00 a.m. Central European Summer Time on September 13, 2012. Registered shareholders who have appointed a Tyco officer as their proxy may revoke their proxy at any time before the vote is taken at the Special General Meeting. However, a written revocation must be received by the Secretary in sufficient time to permit the necessary examination and tabulation of the subsequent revocation. Written revocations should be directed to the Secretary of Tyco at the same addresses listed above used for proxy submissions.

With regard to the items listed on the agenda and without any explicit instructions to the contrary, the Tyco officer acting as proxy and the independent proxy will vote according to the recommendations of the Board of Directors.

Beneficial owners who have not obtained a proxy, executed in their favor, from their broker, custodian or other nominee, are not entitled to vote in person at, or participate in, the Special General Meeting.

How to Change Your Vote

You may change your vote before it is exercised by:

- notifying our Secretary in writing before the Special General Meeting that you are revoking your proxy or, if you beneficially own your common shares, following the instructions on the voting instruction card;
- submitting another proxy card (or another voting instruction card if you beneficially own your common shares) with a later date (so long as we receive such later dated proxy card by September 13, 2012);
- if you are a holder of record or a beneficial owner with a proxy from the holder of record, voting in person at the Special General Meeting, provided that record holders must first revoke any proxy previously given to a Company officer or the independent proxy. See “Attending the Special General Meeting—Granting of Proxy” above; or
- if you hold your shares in “street name” and voted by telephone or the Internet, submitting subsequent voting instructions through the telephone or Internet prior to September 13, 2012.

If you have granted your proxy to the independent proxy and wish to revoke or change the proxy, you should send a revocation letter, and new proxy, if applicable, directly to the independent proxy, .

Counting Your Vote; Broker “Non-Votes”

If you provide specific voting instructions, your shares will be voted as instructed. If you hold shares in your name and sign and return a proxy card without giving specific voting instructions, your shares will be voted “FOR” the (i) approval of the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding shares of ADT common stock, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, (ii) approval of the pro rata distribution to Tyco shareholders of 100% of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control, to be made in the form of a special dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus, (iii) election of each of Frank Drendel and George Oliver to the Board of Directors effective as of and subject to completion of the Distributions, (iv) approval of the payment of ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in its statutory accounts in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013 and (v) approval of the Stock and Incentive Plan.

A broker non-vote occurs when a broker holding shares for a beneficial owner does not vote on a particular agenda item because the broker does not have discretionary voting power for that particular item and has not received instructions from the beneficial owner. Although brokers have discretionary power to vote your shares with respect to “routine” matters, they do not have discretionary power to vote your shares on “non-routine” matters pursuant to NYSE rules. We believe that Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT), Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control), Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) and Proposal 5 (Approval of the 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan) will be considered non-routine under NYSE rules and therefore your broker will not be able to vote your shares with respect to these proposals unless the broker receives appropriate instructions from you. We strongly encourage you to submit your proxy card and exercise your right to vote as a shareholder.

Common shares owned by shareholders electing to abstain from voting with respect to Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT), Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control), Proposal 4 (Approval of Ordinary Cash Dividends) or Proposal 5 (Approval of the 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan) and broker non-votes will be regarded as present at the meeting for purposes of the determination of the presence of a quorum but will not be counted towards the determination of the votes cast with respect to Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT), Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control), Proposal 4 (Approval of Ordinary Cash Dividends) or Proposal 5 (Approval of the 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan) respectively, for the Special General Meeting. Common shares owned by shareholders electing to abstain from voting with respect to Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) and broker non-votes will be regarded as present at the meeting for purposes of the determination of the presence of a quorum and will be counted towards the determination of the votes cast with respect to Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) for the Special General Meeting.

We strongly encourage you to submit your proxy card and exercise your right to vote as a shareholder. The election of the new members to the Tyco Board of Directors described in Proposal 3 (Election of Directors) shall be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving each of Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT) and Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control) and effective upon the completion of the Distributions, and the payment of the ordinary cash dividends described in Proposal 4 (Approval of a Ordinary Cash Dividends) shall be contingent on Tyco shareholders approving each of Proposal 1 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for ADT) and Proposal 2 (Approval of a Special Dividend In Kind for Tyco Flow Control) and the record date for the Distributions being set for a date that precedes the record date for such ordinary cash dividend. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco’s annual general meeting on March 7, 2012. Implementation of the Stock and Incentive Plan, if approved, is not contingent upon the approval of any other proposal.

Your vote is not required, and we are not seeking, your vote, in connection with the Merger. We, as the sole shareholder of Tyco Flow Control, have already approved the Merger. However, the Merger will not take place unless our shareholders approve the distribution of Tyco Flow Control as further described in the accompanying proxy statement.

Quorum and Required Votes

Our Articles of Association provide that all resolutions and elections made at a shareholders' meeting require the presence, in person or by proxy, of a majority of all shares entitled to vote, with abstentions, broker non-votes, blank or invalid ballots regarded as present for purposes of establishing the quorum.

The affirmative vote of a relative majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the Special General Meeting is required to approve proposals 1, 2, 4 and 5. The affirmative vote of an absolute majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the Special General Meeting is required for the election of the nominees pursuant to proposal 3. The directors and executive officers of Tyco and their respective affiliates collectively owned approximately 1.2% of the outstanding Tyco common shares as of December 30, 2011 (inclusive of shares subject to stock options that may be exercised within 60 days following that date). We expect each member of the Tyco Board of Directors and each executive officer of Tyco to vote all of the Tyco common shares beneficially owned by him or her in favor of each of the above proposals. See "Security Ownership of Certain Beneficial Owners and Management."

Solicitation of Proxies

Tyco will pay for all costs incurred by it in connection with the solicitation of proxies from its shareholders on behalf of its Board of Directors. In addition to solicitation by mail, the directors, officers and employees of Tyco and its subsidiaries may solicit proxies from shareholders of Tyco in person or by telephone, telegram, facsimile or other electronic methods without additional compensation other than reimbursement for their actual expenses.

Tyco has retained MacKenzie Partners, Inc., a professional proxy solicitation firm, to assist it in the solicitation of proxies for the Special General Meeting. Tyco will pay MacKenzie Partners, Inc. a fee of approximately $9,500 for its services, plus reimbursement for reasonable out-of-pocket expenses.

Arrangements also will be made with brokerage firms and other custodians, nominees and fiduciaries for the forwarding of solicitation material to the beneficial owners of stock held of record by such persons, and Tyco will reimburse such custodians, nominees and fiduciaries for their reasonable out-of-pocket expenses in connection therewith.

Recommendation of the Board of Directors

Based on Tyco's reasons for the Distributions and the Merger described in this proxy statement, the Tyco Board of Directors believes that the Distributions, the Merger and the related transactions are in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders. The Tyco Board of Directors recommends that you vote "FOR" each of the proposals set forth in this proxy statement.

Tyco Flow Control and Pentair

Tyco Flow Control is a corporation limited by shares (Aktiengesellschaft) organized under the laws of Switzerland and a wholly owned subsidiary of Tyco formed to hold the flow control business currently operated by Tyco. Tyco Flow Control is a global leader in the industrial flow control market, specializing in the design, manufacture and servicing of highly engineered valves, actuation & controls, electric heat management solutions and water transmission and distribution products. Its broad portfolio of products and services, sold under well-known brands such as Keystone, Vanessa, Anderson Greenwood, Crosby, Sempell, Biffi, Raychem, Tracer, and SINTAKOTE, serve flow control needs across the general process, oil & gas, water, power generation, mining and other industries. Tyco Flow Control provides its customers with highly engineered, customized solutions designed to meet their unique specifications and needs. End users of its products generally consist of private industrial enterprises and municipalities and other governmental entities involved in infrastructure projects. Tyco Flow Control's customers' needs center around protecting the safety of their people and assets, increasing the efficiency and productivity of their operations, and reducing their impact on the environment. Tyco Flow Control generated $3.6 billion in revenue and $306 million in operating income in fiscal year 2011.

Pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and certain provisions of the Merger Agreement, prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, we will, among other things, (i) engage in an internal restructuring whereby we will transfer to Tyco Flow Control certain assets related to the flow control business, and Tyco Flow Control will assume from us certain liabilities associated with the flow control business, (ii) increase the share capital of Tyco Flow Control by a conversion of freely available equity into nominal share capital and authorize the issuance of Tyco Flow Control common shares in a number permitting a one-to-one share exchange with the outstanding Pentair common shares and (iii) rename Tyco Flow Control "Pentair Ltd." .

Prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue an intercompany note to a subsidiary of Tyco in an amount not to exceed $500 million, which will be repaid at the closing of the Merger with proceeds to Tyco Flow Control from a third party financing upon terms negotiated by Pentair. In the event that third party financing is not available on acceptable terms, instead of a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control issuing to a subsidiary of Tyco the intercompany note that would be repaid at the closing of the Merger, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue a one year unsecured "bridge" note for up to $500 million to a subsidiary of Tyco that will bear interest at a rate of 14.0% and be prepayable at any time. After accounting for the issuance of either the intercompany note or the bridge note, the payment of transaction expenses and transfer of any excess cash to Tyco, but not taking into account any third party financing, Tyco Flow Control will have a net indebtedness immediately prior to the Tyco Floe Control Distribution of $275 million.

In the Merger, a wholly owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the Merger. The executive officers and directors of Pentair will become the executive officers and directors of Tyco Flow Control, except that Tyco may prior to the mailing of this proxy statement select up to two directors reasonably satisfactory to Pentair to serve on Tyco Flow Control's Board of Directors. Tyco has selected only one designee to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors. We expect that in connection with the Merger Tyco Flow Control will change its corporate name to "Pentair Ltd." Tyco Flow Control's principal executive offices are located at Freier Platz 10, CH-8200, Schaffhausen, Switzerland and its telephone number is +41-52-633-02-44.

Pentair is a focused diversified industrial manufacturing company comprised of two operating segments: Water & Fluid Solutions and Technical Products. Water & Fluid Solutions is a global leader in providing innovative products and systems used worldwide in the movement, storage, treatment and enjoyment of water. Technical Products is a leader in the global enclosures and thermal management markets, designing and manufacturing standard, modified and custom enclosures that house and protect sensitive electronics and electrical components and protect the people that use them. Pentair's net sales and operating income for the year ended December 31, 2011 were $3.5 billion and $168 million, respectively.

For additional information regarding Tyco Flow Control, including the directors and executive officers of Pentair who will become directors and executive officers of Tyco Flow Control following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger and Tyco's proposed appointees to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors, see the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus included as Annex B.

General Summary of the Spin-Offs and the Merger

Manner of Effecting the Distributions

Assuming shareholder approval of the Distributions and satisfaction of the conditions described below in “Conditions to the Distributions,” (i) on the distribution date for the ADT Distribution each Tyco shareholder will receive 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each Tyco common share owned by such holder and outstanding as of the record date for the Distributions and (ii) on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution each Tyco shareholder will receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully-diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution for each Tyco common share owned by such holder and outstanding as of the record date for the Distributions. Specifically, pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, the distribution ratio is equal to the quotient of (i) the product of (x) the number of Pentair common shares outstanding (determined on a fully-diluted basis calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP without taking into account tax consequences to any party or any applicable vesting provisions) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, multiplied by (y) 1.10526316 divided by (ii) the number of Tyco common shares outstanding (determined on a fully-diluted basis calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP without taking into account tax consequences to any party or any applicable vesting provisions) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the special dividend. Although the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding may increase or decrease prior to the distribution date and as a result this distribution ratio may change, it will nonetheless result in Tyco shareholders as of the record date and their transferees owning approximately 52.5% of the outstanding shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully diluted basis immediately following the Merger.

Tyco will not distribute any fractional shares to its shareholders. In lieu of fractional shares Tyco shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT, on the one hand, and Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, in the open market at prevailing market prices net of brokerage fees and other costs, and distribute the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales pro rata, based on the fractional share such holder would otherwise be entitled to receive, to each holder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control, as applicable, in the Distributions. Accordingly, if you hold fewer than two Tyco common shares, you will not be entitled to any shares of ADT common stock and if you hold fewer Tyco common shares than are necessary to receive one Tyco Flow Control common share, you will not be entitled to any Tyco Flow Control common shares and, in each such case, you will only receive cash in lieu of the fractional shares to which you would otherwise be entitled. The distribution agent, in its sole discretion, without any influence by Tyco, ADT or Tyco Flow Control, will determine when, how, through which broker-dealer and at what price to sell the whole shares. Any broker-dealer used by the distribution agent will not be an affiliate of Tyco, ADT or Tyco Flow Control.

The aggregate net cash proceeds of these sales generally will be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes. See “The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences” for an explanation of the tax consequences of the spin-offs. If you physically hold certificates for Tyco common shares and are the registered holder, you will receive a check from the distribution agent in an amount equal to your pro rata share of the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales. We estimate that it will take up to three business days from the distribution date for the distribution agent to complete the distributions of the aggregate net cash proceeds. If you hold your Tyco common shares through a bank or brokerage firm, your bank or brokerage firm will receive, on your behalf, your pro rata share of the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales and will electronically credit your account for your share of such proceeds. Shareholders should consult their bank or broker for further detail.

If you own Tyco common shares as of the close of business on the record date for the Distributions, the ADT shares and/or Tyco Flow Control shares that you are entitled to receive in such special dividend will be issued electronically, as of the distribution date, to you or to your bank or brokerage firm on your behalf by way of direct registration in book-entry form. Registration in book-entry form refers to a method of recording share ownership when no physical share certificates are issued to shareholders, as is the case in this distribution. If you sell common shares of Tyco in the “regular-way” market up to and including the distribution date, however, you will be selling your right to receive shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions.

Commencing on or shortly after the distribution date, if you hold physical share certificates that represent your common shares of Tyco and you are the registered holder of the Tyco shares represented by those certificates, the distribution agent will mail to you an account statement that indicates the respective numbers of shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares that have been registered in book-entry form in your name.

Most Tyco shareholders hold their common shares of Tyco through a bank or brokerage firm. In such cases, the bank or brokerage firm would be said to hold the shares in “street name” and ownership would be recorded on the bank or brokerage firm’s books. If you hold your Tyco common shares through a bank or brokerage firm, your bank or brokerage firm will credit your account for the respective shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares that you are entitled to receive in the Distributions. If you have any questions concerning the mechanics of having shares held in “street name,” we encourage you to contact your bank or brokerage firm at any time following the approval of the Distributions.

The special dividends in the form of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares will be distributed pro-rata to shareholders holding Tyco common shares which are outstanding as of the record date for the special dividends, which will be established by Tyco’s Board of Directors shortly following the Special General Meeting. Tyco is expected to establish a “blackout period” beginning as early as two days prior to the Special General Meeting and continuing through the distribution date for the special dividends, during which time no Tyco equity awards or employee stock options may vest or be exercised and no Tyco shares will be repurchased by Tyco (whether under its common share repurchase program or otherwise).

Manner of Effecting the Merger

Immediately following the Distribution, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will consummate the Merger upon the terms and subject to the conditions of the Merger Agreement. Tyco Flow Control’s wholly owned, indirect subsidiary, Panthro Merger Sub, will merge with and into Pentair. Pentair will survive the Merger as a wholly owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control. As consideration for the Merger, shareholders of Pentair will receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control for every Pentair common share that they hold at the time of the Merger. Immediately after consummation of the Merger, on a fully-diluted basis, 52.5% of the outstanding shares of Tyco Flow Control will be held by Tyco shareholders as of the record date or their transferees and 47.5% will be held by the former shareholders of Pentair (excluding treasury shares). After the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Tyco Flow Control will be an independent, publicly-traded company that operates Tyco’s flow control business and Pentair’s business. Tyco shareholders will continue to hold their shares of Tyco after the Distribution.

Results of the Distributions; Listing of ADT Common Stock and Tyco Flow Control Common Shares and Trading of Tyco Common Shares

We have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and, before the ADT Distribution, we will enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement. We will also enter into other agreements with ADT and Tyco Flow Control to effect the spin-offs and provide a framework for the relationship between Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control upon completion of the Distributions. These agreements will provide for the allocation among Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control of certain assets, liabilities and obligations attributable to periods prior to the Distributions. For a more detailed description of these agreements, see “The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements” in this proxy statement.

We expect that ADT's common stock will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "ADT" following the distribution date. We expect that Tyco Flow Control's common shares will be listed on the NYSE under the symbol "PNR," which is Pentair's current trading symbol. We also expect that a "when-issued" market in ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares may develop as early as two days prior to the record date for the special dividends, and we will announce the when-issued trading symbol of ADT and Tyco Flow Control when and if they become available. When-issued trading refers to a sale or purchase made conditionally because the security has been authorized but not yet issued. The when-issued trading market will be a market for ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares that will be distributed to Tyco shareholders on the distribution date. If you own Tyco common shares at the close of business on the record date for the special dividends, you will be entitled to shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed in the Distributions. You may trade this entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, without the Tyco common shares you own, on the when-issued market. On the first trading day following the distribution date, we expect that when-issued trading with respect to ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares will end and regular-way trading will begin.

It is also anticipated that shortly before the record date for the special dividends and continuing up to and including the distribution date, there will be two markets in Tyco common shares: a "regular-way" market and an "ex-distribution" market. Tyco common shares that trade on the regular-way market will trade with an entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed in the Distributions. Shares that trade on the ex-distribution market will trade without an entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distributions. Therefore, if you sell Tyco common shares in the regular-way market up to and including a distribution date, you will be selling your right to receive shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares in such special dividend. However, if you own Tyco common shares at the close of business on a record date and sell those shares on the ex-distribution market up to and including the distribution date, you will still receive the shares of ADT common stock and/or Tyco Flow Control common shares that you would otherwise be entitled to receive pursuant to such special dividend.

Conditions to the Distributions

Under Swiss law, Tyco is required to obtain the approval of our shareholders of the special dividend of ADT common stock at the Special General Meeting, and the resolution to be proposed at the Special General Meeting will require that the following conditions are met or waived prior to the ADT Distribution:

- the SEC, shall have declared effective the ADT Form 10, including the Preliminary Information Statement contained therein, under the Exchange Act, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 shall be in effect;
- ADT's common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution, to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the ADT Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the ADT Distribution substantially to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;

- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution; and
- based on the closing price of the ADT shares trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the Separation, the aggregate market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

Consummation of the Tyco Flow Control spin-off will be subject to the following conditions being met or waived prior to Tyco Flow Control Distribution:

- the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco’s obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution); and
- each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger.

If the Merger were to be discontinued for any reason and the Merger Agreement terminated, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT intend to modify or otherwise amend and restate the current Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement to remove those provisions applicable to the Merger and/or Pentair and proceed with the Tyco Flow Control Distribution as originally announced on September 19, 2011.

For detailed information regarding the conditions to Tyco’s and Pentair’s obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement, see “The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger.”

We expect that prior to receipt of shareholder approval at the Special General Meeting we will have received:

- the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- the opinion of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the proposed distribution of the common stock of ADT and common shares of Tyco Flow Control and the proposed ordinary dividend comply with Swiss law and Tyco’s Articles of Association.

In the event that shareholder approval of the Distributions is received and the conditions to the Distributions included in the shareholders resolution are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the Distributions. In the event these conditions to the Distributions are not met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, the Distributions will not take place.

In connection with the Distributions the new director nominees set forth for shareholder approval are Frank Drendel and George Oliver. The election of two new members to the Tyco Board of Directors will be effective as of and subject to shareholder approval of the special dividend proposals and completion of the Distributions.

We encourage you to read carefully the section titled “The Merger Agreement” and the Merger Agreement, which is included as Annex F.

Background of the Distributions and the Merger

Tyco regularly reviews and evaluates the various businesses that Tyco conducts and the fit that these businesses have within its overall business and growth strategies to help ensure that Tyco's resources are being put to use in a manner that is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders. In 2007, Tyco completed the separation of its health care and electronics business through the distribution to shareholders of shares in Covidien and TE Connectivity. At and following that time, Tyco management and its Board of Directors have considered the possible separation or divestiture of other businesses in the Tyco portfolio, including its residential and small business security business and flow control business. At those times, however, due to a variety of factors, it was determined that the separation of the residential and small business security business and flow control business would not be in the best interest of Tyco shareholders, in part because Tyco's Board of Directors and senior management believed that those businesses were, among other reasons, not of sufficient scale or sufficiently mature to successfully operate as independent, publicly-traded companies.

In the time period since the 2007 separation, Tyco has continued to refine its portfolio of businesses and has implemented a number of initiatives intended to increase efficiency and productivity. In addition, Tyco has strengthened its businesses, including its residential and small business security business and flow control business, through a number of acquisitions, divestitures and organic growth initiatives, including Tyco's 2010 acquisition of Brink's Home Security Holdings, Inc.

In 2011, in connection with Tyco's continued review of its businesses and strategy, Tyco's board and senior management raised the possibility of separating its residential security business and commercial security business, as well as its flow control business into independent, publicly-traded companies. As part of these discussions, Tyco's Board of Directors and senior management noted that each of its commercial fire and security, residential and small business security business and flow control business, albeit each segments of the larger Tyco, operate with distinct business models, each with different capital investment needs and growth profiles. Additionally, each of the three businesses provides products and services that are generally targeted towards different customers or different end markets, resulting in businesses with distinct operating models and capital requirements. ADT is a subscriber-based business with steady cash flow heavily focused in North America; Tyco Flow Control is largely an industrial manufacturing business tied to longer lead-time infrastructure projects with significant overseas operations, in particular in emerging markets; and the commercial fire and security business is predominantly a product design, installation and services business. Apart from these distinctions, Tyco's Board of Directors and senior management noted that each of the three businesses operated under the management of strong leadership teams, held leading positions within their respective markets and were of sufficient scale to operate successfully and grow as independent companies. Accordingly, following a thorough review of strategic alternatives for each of the businesses by Tyco's Board of Directors held during a number of meetings in mid-2011, with the assistance of Tyco senior management and its external advisors, in September 2011, Tyco's Board of Directors approved, based on certain reasons including those described in "Tyco's Reasons for the Transactions" below, the pursuit of the separation of each of the Tyco residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business by means of a distribution to Tyco shareholders, subject to approval of the separation by Tyco shareholders.

Following the announcement of the separation of the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business, Tyco was approached in November and December 2011 by two companies other than Pentair that expressed interest in a possible transaction involving that company and the flow control business. Following a review of these proposals with its outside advisors, Tyco determined that further pursuit of these proposals would not be in the best interests of Tyco shareholders.

In addition to the aforementioned proposals, on September 21, 2011, Randall J. Hogan, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Pentair, contacted Christopher J. Coughlin, former Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer and an advisor to Tyco, to discuss Pentair's potential interest in a business combination with Tyco's flow control business. Mr. Coughlin informed Mr. Hogan that Tyco's flow control business was not for sale and that Tyco was committed to proceeding with its announced separation of its flow control business. In November 2011, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Coughlin again discussed Pentair's potential interest in a business combination with Tyco's flow control business through the use of a "reverse Morris Trust" structure. Similarly, in December 2011, Mr. Hogan spoke with Timothy M. Donahue, a director of Tyco, regarding Pentair's potential interest in a business combination with Tyco's flow control business through the use of a "reverse Morris Trust" structure. A "reverse Morris Trust" acquisition structure allows a parent company (here, Tyco) to divest a subsidiary (here, Tyco Flow Control) in a tax-efficient manner. The first step of such a transaction is the tax-free distribution (a "spin-off") of the subsidiary stock to the parent company shareholders under Section 355 of the Code. The distributed subsidiary then merges with the acquiring third party (here, Pentair) in a tax-free reorganization under Section 368 of the Code. Such a transaction can qualify as tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes for the parent company, its shareholders and the acquiring third party's shareholders if the transaction structure meets all applicable requirements, including that the parent company shareholders own more than 50% ownership of the stock of the combined entity immediately after the merger. After each of these discussions, Mr. Coughlin or Mr. Donahue informed Mr. Hogan that Tyco's flow control business was not for sale and that Tyco was committed to proceeding with its announced separation of its flow control business. Mr. Edward D. Breen, Tyco's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, was informed of these discussions, who subsequently informed the members of Tyco's Board of Directors.

In mid-December 2011, representatives of Deutsche Bank met with Mark Armstrong, Vice President of Mergers & Acquisitions for Tyco, to discuss Tyco's views regarding options for its flow control business, including a potential "reverse Morris Trust" transaction with certain potential parties in industries similar or complementary to Tyco's flow control business, including Pentair.

On January 9, 2012, Mr. Coughlin called Mr. Hogan to discuss Tyco's potential interest in a combination of its flow control business and Pentair through the use of a "reverse Morris Trust" structure.

On January 12, 2012, Tyco's Board of Directors held a telephonic meeting at which point the Board of Directors authorized Mr. Breen and Tyco senior management and its outside advisors to continue discussions with Pentair regarding a potential "reverse Morris Trust" transaction and to undertake high-level diligence, subject to Pentair's entry into a confidentiality agreement. Following this call, Mr. Hogan and Edward D. Breen, Tyco's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, discussed by telephone pursuing further discussion regarding a potential combination of Tyco's flow control business and Pentair, including a meeting of their respective management teams.

On January 17, 2012, Pentair and Tyco entered into a mutual confidentiality agreement to permit the parties to exchange due diligence information.

On January 23, 2012, members of Pentair senior management met with members of Tyco senior management to review Tyco's flow control business and the Pentair business, including legal due diligence matters.

On February 1, 2012, Mr. Hogan met with Mr. Breen and discussed the industrial logic for a combination of Pentair with Tyco's flow control business, including expected positive impacts to Tyco shareholders, such as increased value to Tyco shareholders relative to the anticipated value of Tyco's flow control business on a standalone basis and Tyco shareholders holding a majority of the shares of Tyco Flow Control, expected positive impacts to Pentair shareholders and the potential for operating synergies at Tyco Flow Control through corporate cost avoidance, corporate expense reductions and lean initiatives and for tax synergies. Mr. Hogan also reviewed and made a valuation proposal that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 49.9% by Pentair shareholders and 50.1% by Tyco shareholders and assumed that the Tyco Flow Control would at the time of the Transaction have $200 million in net indebtedness.

On February 2, 2012, representatives of Goldman Sachs, financial advisor to Tyco, called representatives of Deutsche Bank, financial advisor to Pentair, to discuss that Tyco expected to provide to Pentair a valuation proposal that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 43.0% by Pentair shareholders and 57.0% by Tyco shareholders.

On February 3, 2012, Mr. Hogan called Mr. Coughlin to discuss that a valuation proposal that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 43.0% by Pentair shareholders and 57.0% by Tyco shareholders would not be acceptable to Pentair.

On February 8, 2012, Mr. Breen and Mr. Hogan discussed by telephone a revised valuation proposal from Pentair that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 48.75% by Pentair shareholders and 51.25% by Tyco shareholders and assumed that Tyco's flow control business would at the time of the transaction have $200 million in net indebtedness. On February 8, 2012, Mr. Coughlin and Mr. Hogan also discussed by telephone the revised valuation proposal.

On February 9, 2012, representatives of Goldman Sachs called representatives of Deutsche Bank to discuss a revised valuation proposal from Tyco that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 45.0% by Pentair shareholders and 55.0% by Tyco shareholders, which Mr. Breen then called Mr. Hogan to discuss.

On February 10, 2012, representatives of Deutsche Bank called representatives of Goldman Sachs to discuss a revised valuation proposal from Pentair that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 48.0% by Pentair shareholders and 52.0% by Tyco shareholders and assumed that Tyco's flow control business would at the time of the transaction have $200 million in net indebtedness.

On February 13, 2012, Mr. Hogan called Mr. Breen to further discuss valuation of Tyco's flow control business and the Pentair business and to propose a process for Pentair to verify certain synergy assumptions and to review certain diligence matters related to Tyco's flow control business.

On February 15, 2012, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen discussed by phone a preliminary valuation that would be based on Tyco's flow control business having $200 million in net indebtedness at the time of the transaction and would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 47.5% by Pentair shareholders and 52.5% by Tyco shareholders. Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen discussed that Tyco Flow Control would incur up to $500 million of third party indebtedness to achieve such level of net indebtedness, which would permit a portion of the proceeds of the financing to be transferred to Tyco prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen also discussed the proposed treatment of the former Yarway business of Tyco's flow control business, and Mr. Hogan expressed Pentair's desire to cap the amount of liabilities for which Tyco Flow Control would be responsible with respect to such business. Mr. Breen and Mr. Hogan agreed to discuss these matters with their respective Boards of Directors.

Early February 16, 2012, Tyco's Board of Directors held a telephonic meeting during which Mr. Breen and members of Tyco senior management provided an update on the status of discussions with Pentair, including the preliminary valuation and proposed treatment of liabilities discussed by Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen on February 15, 2012. Following discussion, Tyco's Board of Directors authorized Mr. Breen and senior management to continue exploring the potential transaction with Pentair. Later on February 16, 2012, management of Pentair met with management of Tyco to review potential operating synergies in a combination of Pentair and Tyco's flow control business, the proposed Tyco Flow Control structure and certain diligence matters.

On February 17 and 20, 2012, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen discussed by telephone certain terms of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, including a revised proposal regarding the treatment of the former Yarway business of Tyco's flow control business and that Pentair would agree to increase the net indebtedness for Tyco's flow control business to $275 million. Mr. Breen and Mr. Hogan agreed to discuss these matters with their respective boards of directors.

On February 24, 2012, the Tyco Board of Directors held a telephonic meeting to approve proceeding with discussions with and due diligence regarding Pentair in connection with the potential Merger. Following the meeting, Mr. Breen and Mr. Hogan discussed by telephone the outcome of the meeting of the Tyco Board of Directors.

On February 24, 2012, Tyco and Pentair began to exchange business, accounting, tax and legal due diligence documents and information relating to Tyco's flow control business and Pentair through electronic data rooms, as well as telephone discussions and in-person meetings. Both parties and their advisors conducted due diligence through March 27, 2012.

On February 28, 2012, Mr. Hogan, with the consent of the Tyco board, met with Michael E. Daniels, Brian Duperreault, Bruce S. Gordon and R. David Yost, each a director of Tyco, to discuss the industrial logic for a combination of Pentair with Tyco's flow control business, including expected positive impacts to Tyco shareholders discussed above, the potential for operating and tax synergies at Tyco Flow Control and the valuation proposal that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 47.5% by Pentair shareholders and 52.5% by Tyco shareholders. Mr. Breen participated in this discussion by telephone.

On February 29, 2012, Mr. Hogan, with the consent of the Tyco board, called Mr. Raj Gupta, a Tyco director, to discuss the industrial logic for a combination of Pentair with Tyco's flow control business, including expected positive impacts to Tyco shareholders discussed above, the potential for operating and tax synergies at Tyco Flow Control and the valuation proposal that would result in Tyco Flow Control being owned approximately 47.5% by Pentair shareholders and 52.5% by Tyco shareholders. That same day, Tyco's legal advisors delivered to Pentair's legal advisors an initial draft of the Merger Agreement.

On March 1, 2012, members of Pentair senior management met with senior management of Tyco and management of Tyco's flow control business to review the operations of Tyco's flow control business, operating synergies in a combination of Pentair and Tyco's flow control business and certain diligence matters relating to Tyco's flow control business and Pentair.

On March 2, 2012, Tyco's legal advisors delivered to Pentair's legal advisors an initial draft of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. The draft Separation and Distribution Agreement reflected a post-closing adjustment to the extent that net indebtedness of Tyco Flow Control is less than or greater than $275 million as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, but did not contain a post-closing adjustment based on the working capital of Tyco Flow Control.

During the week of March 5, 2012, the parties exchanged comments on the draft Merger Agreement and Tyco's legal advisors distributed to Pentair's legal advisors an initial draft of the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. The draft of the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement provided that Tyco will be responsible for the first $500 million of Shared Tax Liabilities, Tyco Flow Control and ADT will share 42% and 58%, respectively, of the next $225 million of Shared Tax Liabilities and Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco will share 20%, 27.5% and 52.5%, respectively, of Shared Tax Liabilities above $725 million.

On March 7, 2012, as part of a regularly scheduled meeting, Tyco's Board of Directors met with senior management and its outside legal and financial advisors to review the current status and terms of a potential transaction with Pentair. As part of these discussions, senior management discussed with the Board of Directors the potential synergies arising from the transaction, and the fact that a majority of the value created from the realized synergies would inure to the Tyco shareholders holding shares of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off.

On March 13, 2012, Pentair's legal advisors delivered revised drafts of the Merger Agreement and Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement to Tyco's legal counsel. Pentair proposed in the revised draft of the Separation and Distribution Agreement the concept of a post-closing working capital adjustment based on the amount of Tyco Flow Control working capital as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution with the working capital target to be discussed between the parties.

On March 15, 2012, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen discussed by telephone the status of the negotiations for the proposed Tyco Flow Control Transactions, a timetable for the Tyco Flow Control Transactions and various governance matters for Tyco Flow Control.

During the week of March 19, 2012, the parties exchanged comments on the draft Merger Agreement, the draft Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, the draft 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and the draft Ancillary Agreements. A revised draft Separation and Distribution Agreement from Tyco accepted the concept of a post-closing working capital adjustment, but proposed that the adjustment apply only if the amount of Tyco Flow Control working capital was outside of a specified range with the range to be discussed between the parties. The parties discussed and agreed on a working capital target of $798 million for Tyco Flow Control as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, which was based on the working capital of Tyco's flow control business as of September 30, 2011, with the post-closing adjustment applying only if the working capital of Tyco Flow Control as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution was $125 million more or less than the working capital target. In addition, representatives of Pentair and Tyco engaged in discussions regarding Tyco's rationale for its proposed allocation of Shared Tax Liabilities under the draft 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. At the conclusion of these discussions, representatives of Pentair advised representatives of Tyco that Pentair would accept Tyco's proposed allocation of Shared Tax Liabilities under the draft 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement subject to due diligence of Tyco's tax information. Due diligence of Tyco's tax information occurred at meetings of the Tyco and Pentair tax teams and their respective advisors on March 22 and 23, 2012.

On March 20, 2012, Tyco's Board of Directors held a telephonic meeting at which Mr. Breen and members of senior management provided an update to the board regarding the progress of negotiations with Pentair and certain due diligence matters, including the scope and amount of potential synergies from the transaction.

On March 21, 2012, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Breen discussed by telephone the status of the negotiations on the draft transaction agreements and discussed a possible composition of the Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control that would consist of the current Pentair directors and up to two new directors selected by Tyco and reasonably acceptable to Pentair.

On March 26, 2012, the parties and certain of their advisors met in person and thereafter through the evening of March 27, 2012 by telephone to negotiate remaining open issues in the proposed Merger Agreement, the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements.

In the morning of March 27, 2012, the Tyco Board of Directors held a telephonic meeting to review and discuss various matters in connection with the Merger, including the terms of the Merger Agreement and the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and the results of Tyco and its advisors' due diligence review, based on materials distributed in advance of the meeting. Representatives of Tyco's senior management and legal and financial advisors also participated in the meeting. During the meeting, Tyco's legal advisors reviewed the board's fiduciary duties in connection with its evaluation of the proposed Transactions and the material terms of the transaction agreements. Tyco's financial advisors presented a detailed analysis of the transaction contemplated by the Merger Agreement and the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. At the end of this presentation, Goldman Sachs delivered its oral opinion, which opinion was subsequently confirmed in writing, that, as of March 27, 2012 and based upon and subject to the qualifications, limitations and assumptions stated in its opinion, the Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement was fair from a financial point of view to Tyco Flow Control. Following discussion by the Board of Directors, the Board unanimously approved and authorized the execution, delivery and performance of the Merger Agreement and the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby, including the Merger.

In the afternoon of March 27, 2012, the Pentair Board of Directors met to review and approve the Merger, the Merger Agreement and the related transaction agreements, and in the evening of March 27, 2012, the appropriate parties entered into the Merger Agreement and the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement.

On March 28, 2012, before the opening of trading on the NYSE, Pentair and Tyco issued a joint press release announcing the Transactions and held a joint conference call for investors.

Tyco's Reasons for the ADT Distribution

Tyco's Board of Directors has determined that pursuing a distribution of its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide the following key benefits: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management's efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities, (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency and (v) enhanced management incentive tools.

Greater Strategic Focus of Financial Resources and Management's Efforts. The residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada represents a significant but minority portion of Tyco's overall business. It historically has exhibited different financial and operating characteristics than Tyco's other businesses.

In particular, unlike Tyco's commercial fire and security businesses and flow control business, the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada ("ADT Business") is largely a subscriber-based business tied to the residential construction market, with very different capital requirements and operating characteristics from traditional manufacturing and service businesses. As a result, the ADT Business' financial results tend to be more consistent from period to period than the financial results of Tyco's commercial fire and security business and its flow control businesses. In addition, unlike the flow control and fire and security businesses, the ADT Business generates substantially all of its revenues from the United States and Canada. The flow control business, by contrast, is largely an industrial manufacturing business. A significant portion of the flow control business revenue is derived from longer lead-time infrastructure projects and, as a result, its financial results tend to vary more significantly from period to period than the financial results of Tyco's fire and security businesses and ADT Business. In addition, unlike the ADT Business, the flow control business generates a significant portion of its revenues from operations outside the United States.

Owing to these and other factors, each of the flow control business, ADT Business and Tyco's remaining businesses employ different capital expenditure and acquisition strategies and consequently, Tyco has determined that its current structure may not be optimized to design and implement the distinct strategies necessary to operate its businesses in a manner that maximizes the long-term value of each business. We believe that Tyco's, ADT's and Tyco Flow Control's respective management resources would be more efficiently utilized if Tyco's management concentrated solely on the commercial fire and security business, and ADT's management concentrated solely on the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada.

We expect to more efficiently use management and financial resources as a result of having separate and distinct board and management teams focused on the respective businesses. We believe the spin-off of ADT will allow us to better align Tyco's and ADT's management's attention, compensation and resources to pursue opportunities in the markets that each business serves and to manage cost structures more actively.

Direct and Differentiated Access to Capital Resources. After the spin-offs, ADT and Tyco Flow Control will no longer need to compete with Tyco's other businesses for capital resources. As a subscriber-based business with operations in the U.S. and Canada, ADT's financial and operating characteristics differ from Tyco's other businesses. ADT's consumer-subscriber based business requires a significant amount of capital to grow each year. In order for ADT to fund these capital needs, it requires a higher debt level than the other businesses. We believe that direct and differentiated access to capital resources will allow ADT to better optimize the amounts and terms of the capital needed for its business, aligning financial and operational characteristics with investor and market expectations. Tyco's management also believes that as a stand-alone company, ADT will attract investors who are interested in the characteristics of its businesses.

Enhanced Investor Choices by Offering Investment Opportunities in Separate Entities. We believe that after the ADT Distribution, investors will be better positioned to evaluate ADT's financial performance and strategy within the context of its markets and that this will enhance the likelihood that ADT achieves an appropriate market valuation. Our management and financial advisors believe that ADT's investment characteristics may appeal to types of investors who differ from Tyco's current investors. We expect that, as a result of the spin-off, ADT's management will be better positioned to implement goals and evaluate strategic opportunities in light of investor expectations within the context of the markets it serves. In addition, we expect that ADT will be able to focus its branding and public relations efforts to cultivate its own separate identity.

Improved Ability to Use Stock as an Acquisition Currency. The spin-off will enable ADT to use its stock as currency to pursue certain financial and strategic objectives, including acquisitions. We expect that ADT will be able to more easily facilitate future strategic transactions with similar businesses through the use of its stand-alone stock as consideration.

Improved Management Incentive Tools. We expect ADT to use its equity to compensate current and future employees. It is more difficult for multi-business conglomerates such as Tyco to structure incentives that reward managers in a manner directly related to the performance of their respective business units. By granting stock linked to a specific business, ADT will be able to offer its managers equity compensation that is linked more directly to their work product than Tyco's current equity compensation.

In determining whether to effect the spin-off, the Board of Directors of Tyco also considered the costs and risks associated with the transaction, including:

- Potential costs and disruptions to the businesses as a result of the spin-off: Some of the current and prospective customers and suppliers of ADT may not believe that its financial stability on a stand-alone basis is sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing business with them. If its customers, prospective customers or suppliers are not satisfied with its financial stability it may not be successful in obtaining new business or retaining existing business.
- Risks of being unable to achieve the benefits expected from the spin-off: By separating from Tyco, ADT becomes more susceptible to, among other things, market fluctuations and other adverse events; actual or anticipated fluctuations in its operating results due to factors related to its business; and competitive pressures from new or existing competitors.
- Increased significance of certain costs and contingent liabilities: Certain costs and contingent liabilities that were otherwise less material to Tyco as a whole will be more material to ADT as a stand-alone company.
- The decreased capital available for investment: ADT has historically relied upon Tyco for working capital requirements on a short-term basis and for other financial support functions. After the spin-off, ADT will not be able to rely on Tyco's earnings, assets or cash flows, and it will be responsible for servicing its own debt and maintaining sufficient working capital.
- The potential effect of the spin-off on the anticipated credit ratings of the separated companies and risks associated with refinancing Tyco's debt: Given the smaller size of ADT relative to Tyco currently, after the spin-off ADT may incur higher debt servicing costs on its new indebtedness than it would have incurred as a subsidiary of, or as the current Tyco and it may not have access to less expensive sources of capital from short-term debt markets.

- The reaction of Tyco's shareholders to the spin-off: The market price of ADT's common shares may fluctuate widely, depending on many factors, many of which will be beyond its control, including the sale of shares of ADT by Tyco shareholders after the distribution because its business profiles and market capitalizations may not fit their investment objectives. In particular, Tyco is a member of the S&P 500 Index, while ADT initially will not be, and may not be in the future. Accordingly, certain Tyco shareholders may elect or be required to sell ADT's shares following the spin-off due to investment guidelines or other reasons.
- The potential loss of purchasing power: As a current part of Tyco, ADT takes advantage of Tyco's size and purchasing power in procuring certain goods, services and other resources, such as health care benefits, computing and communications equipment and intellectual property licenses. After the spin-off, as a separate, independent entity, ADT may be unable to obtain these goods, services and technologies at prices or on terms as favorable to it as those it obtained prior to the distribution. ADT's costs for functions previously performed by or paid for by Tyco, such as accounting, tax, legal, human resources and other general and administrative functions, may be higher than the amounts reflected in ADT's financial statements, which could cause ADT's profitability to decrease.
- The risk that the plan of separation might not be completed and the one-time and ongoing costs of the spin-off: There are risks and uncertainties relating to the execution of the ADT Distribution, including the timing and certainty of the completion of the internal reorganization prior to the ADT Distribution. In addition, ADT will incur costs in connection with the transition to being a stand-alone public company that relate primarily to accounting, tax, legal and other professional costs; financing costs in connection with refinancing Tyco's outstanding indebtedness and obtaining ADT's financing as a stand-alone company; compensation, such as modifications to certain bonus awards, upon completion of the ADT Distribution; recruiting and relocation costs associated with hiring ADT's senior management personnel; costs related to establishing a new corporate brand in the marketplace; and costs to separate information systems. These costs may be greater than anticipated and could cause our profitability to decrease.

Tyco's Reasons for the Tyco Flow Control Transactions

In assessing and approving the spin-off on September 19, 2011, Tyco's Board of Directors determined that the spin-off would be in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide a number of key benefits, including primarily: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management's efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities and (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency. In assessing and approving the Merger, Tyco's Board of Directors considered, among others, the fact that it believed both that (1) the Merger would provide many of the same key benefits as those underlying the board's reasons for approval of the spin-off discussed in the prior sentence, while potentially adding additional benefits, including: (i) increased value to Tyco's shareholders relative to Tyco Flow Control's anticipated value on a standalone basis, (ii) Tyco shareholders would hold a majority of the common shares of a company with increased size and market capitalization, which could further improve Tyco Flow Control's ability to use stock as an acquisition currency, to otherwise grow through acquisitions and to access the capital markets, (iii) Tyco shareholders would hold shares in a company with a product and service offering that is broader but complementary to many of the products manufactured and sold by the flow control business and (iv) the combined company would be able to immediately benefit from Pentair's existing public company infrastructure, including a senior management team with significant experience managing a publicly-traded company; and (2) the Transactions are more favorable to Tyco shareholders than the potential value that might result from an alternative business combination transaction involving the flow control business, including a sale of the flow control business by Tyco in a taxable transaction.

Greater Strategic Focus of Financial Resources. The flow control business represents a significant but minority portion of Tyco's overall business. It has historically exhibited different financial and operating characteristics than Tyco's other businesses. In particular, unlike Tyco's commercial fire and security businesses and its residential and small business security business, the flow control business is largely an industrial manufacturing business. A significant portion of the flow control revenue is tied to expenditures tied to the flow control customers' new capital projects and continuing maintenance capital investments, which tend to have longer lead-times compared to Tyco's other businesses. As a result, financial results of the flow control business can vary more significantly from period to period than the financial results of Tyco's commercial fire and security business and its residential security business. In addition, unlike ADT's business, the flow control business generates a significant portion of its revenue from operations outside the United States. Owing to these and other factors, the flow control business and Tyco's other businesses employ different capital expenditure and acquisition strategies. Consequently, Tyco's Board of Directors determined in approving the spin-off that its current structure may not be optimized to design and implement the distinct strategies necessary to operate its businesses in a manner that maximizes the long-term value of each business and that the respective management resources of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control would be more efficiently utilized if Tyco's management concentrated solely on the commercial fire and security business, ADT's management concentrated solely on the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and Tyco Flow Control's management concentrated solely on the flow control business. Pentair's business and operations reflect many of the same characteristics as the flow control business, including significant manufacturing operations and overseas presence.

Direct and Differentiated Access to Capital Resources; Enhanced Investor Choices. After the spin-off, the flow control business will no longer need to compete with Tyco's other businesses for capital resources. As an industrial manufacturing business with strong non-U.S. operations, the flow control business' financial and operating characteristics differ from Tyco's other businesses. Tyco believes that direct and differentiated access to capital resources would allow the flow control business to better optimize the amounts and terms of the capital needed for its business, aligning financial and operational characteristics with investor and market expectations. Tyco also believes that, as the majority of Pentair's product and service offerings are complimentary to those of Tyco Flow Control, the combined business will similarly benefit from direct access to capital resources, but with the added benefit of increased scale, which scale could otherwise improve Tyco Flow Control's ability to access the capital markets.

In addition, in approving the spin-off, Tyco concluded that it believed that the flow control business' investment characteristics as a stand-alone, independent public company could appeal to types of investors who differ from Tyco's current investors. Tyco's Board of Directors continues to believe that to be the case for a combined flow control-Pentair business.

Increased Size and Broader Offering. At the time Tyco's Board of Directors approved the spin-off, it concluded that one of the benefits of the spin-off would be to enable the flow control business to use its stock as currency to pursue certain financial and strategic objectives, including acquisitions, and that it would be able to more easily facilitate potential future transactions with similar businesses through the use of Tyco Flow Control's stand-alone stock as consideration. In assessing the relative benefits of the Merger, Tyco's Board of Directors considered that it believes that Tyco shareholders, as shareholders in the combined entity, would continue to benefit from the use of stock as acquisition currency, but would further benefit from the increased size and scale of the combined entity. Tyco believes that the combined flow control-Pentair business will be one of the larger publicly-traded entities focusing on the flow and thermal products industry, and that this size could help facilitate future acquisitions by Tyco Flow Control.

Complementary Business; Synergy Opportunities. In approving the Merger Agreement and the Merger, the Tyco board considered a number of factors relating to or arising from the complementary nature of the flow control and Pentair businesses, including:

- that the combination of the Pentair and the flow control water businesses, the Thermal Controls business of Tyco Flow Control and the Technical Products segment, and the other operating segments of the two businesses will create an industry leader in the flow, valves and filtration industries;

- the potential cost savings resulting from the Merger, including potential annual pre-tax cost synergies of approximately $200 million that Tyco and Pentair believe could be achieved through the elimination of duplicate public company costs, greater economies of scale and further streamlined operations of the combined businesses, as well as potential tax synergies of approximately $50 million annually resulting from Pentair's redomiciliation in Switzerland and corresponding tax planning measures; and
- the broader product and service offering offered by a combined flow control-Pentair business, and the potential for cross-selling opportunities, in particular in the water, oil and gas, power and food and beverage industries, where each of Tyco and Pentair have existing businesses, and other potential revenue synergies that would be unavailable to Tyco Flow Control on a stand-alone basis.

Existing Public Company Infrastructure. In assessing the relative benefits to pursuing the Merger in addition to the spin-off, Tyco's Board of Directors also considered that Tyco shareholders, as shareholders in a combined flow control-Pentair business, would benefit from Pentair's existing public company infrastructure. As an existing public company, Pentair has in place the systems, controls, procedures and policies that are required to operate as a public-traded company and a senior management team with existing experience managing and operating a public company. Therefore, Tyco Flow Control will not be required to independently incur the same level of costs and expenses or otherwise expend the same level of resources as would otherwise be required to establish these systems, controls, policies and procedures if Tyco Flow Control were a stand-alone public company.

Appropriate Value for the Business. At the time of approval of the spin-off by the Tyco board, Tyco's Board of Directors considered the fact that it believed that after the spin-off, investors would have been better positioned to evaluate the financial performance and strategy of the flow control business within the context of Tyco Flow Control's markets and that this would have enhanced the likelihood that the flow control business achieve an appropriate market valuation. In approving the Merger, Tyco's Board of Directors, acting with the assistance of Tyco management and its outside advisors, further considered that it believes that the Transactions as a whole would be more favorable to Tyco shareholders from a financial point of view than the spin-off without engaging in the Merger due to the anticipated value to be generated through the realization of potential operating, tax and revenue synergies resulting from the Merger (as described under "Complementary Business; Synergy Opportunities" above) and the fact that Tyco shareholders would own approximately 52.5% of the combined business on a fully diluted basis immediately following the Merger. Furthermore, Tyco's Board of Directors considered the fact that the Merger would not foreclose Tyco shareholders from receiving a further premium for their shares of Tyco Flow Control at a later date in a subsequent business combination transaction involving Tyco Flow Control.

Alternatives relative to the Merger. In the course of reaching its determination to approve the Merger Agreement and the Merger, Tyco's Board of Directors, acting with the advice of management and its outside advisors, also considered the fact that it believes that the Transactions would be more favorable to Tyco shareholders than the potential value that might result from an alternative business combination transaction involving the flow control business, including a sale of the flow control business by Tyco in a taxable transaction, given the potential rewards, risks and uncertainties associated with those alternatives and the fact that the Transactions are intended to be tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes to Tyco and its shareholders.

In determining whether to effect the spin-off, the Board of Directors of Tyco also had considered the costs and risks associated with the spin-off, including:

- Some of the flow control business' current and prospective customers and suppliers may not have believed that Tyco Flow Control's financial stability on a stand-alone basis would be sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing business with Tyco Flow Control. If those customers, prospective customers or suppliers were not satisfied with Tyco Flow Control's financial stability, Tyco Flow Control may not have been successful in obtaining new business or retaining existing business.
- The market price of Tyco Flow Control's common stock could have fluctuated widely, depending on many factors, many of which would be beyond Tyco Flow Control's control, including the sale of Tyco Flow Control shares by Tyco shareholders after the Distribution because Tyco Flow Control's business profile and market capitalization may not fit their investment objectives.

- By separating from Tyco, Tyco Flow Control may become more susceptible to, among other things, market fluctuations and other adverse events; actual or anticipated fluctuations in its operating results due to factors related to its business; and competitive pressures from new or existing competitors.
- Certain costs and contingent liabilities that were otherwise less material to Tyco as a whole will be more material for Tyco Flow Control as a stand-alone company.
- Tyco Flow Control has historically relied upon Tyco for working capital requirements on a short-term basis and for other financial support functions. After the spin-off, Tyco Flow Control will not be able to rely on Tyco's earnings, assets or cash flows, and will be responsible for servicing its own debt and maintaining sufficient working capital.
- Given Tyco Flow Control's smaller size relative to Tyco, after the spin-off Tyco Flow Control may incur higher debt servicing costs on its indebtedness than it would have incurred as a subsidiary of Tyco and may not have access to less expensive sources of capital from short-term debt markets.
- There are risks, costs and uncertainties relating to the execution of the spin-off, including the timing and certainty of the completion of the internal reorganization prior to the Distribution and the costs related to the Distribution. In addition, the costs for functions previously performed by or paid for by Tyco, such as accounting, tax, legal, human resources and other general and administrative functions, might be higher than anticipated, which could cause profitability to decrease.

Tyco believes that the Merger will help mitigate, while not eliminating entirely, the risks involved in many of the foregoing factors. However, in assessing its approval of the Merger and the Merger Agreement, Tyco's Board of Directors also considered the added costs, complexities and countervailing factors associated with the Merger, including:

- the risk that the potential benefits of the Merger might not be fully realized or realized within the expected time frame;
- the challenges in combining the flow control business and Pentair's business, including the possible disruption that might result from the transaction and the additional time and resources that would be required from Tyco and Tyco Flow Control management;
- the risk inherent in seeking regulatory approvals from multiple governmental agencies in multiple jurisdictions;
- the possibility that the Merger may not be consummated and the potential adverse consequences if the Merger is not completed, including the adverse consequences on the spin-off of the flow control business and the costs incurred and potential market and shareholder reaction; and
- the fact that certain liabilities will be allocated between Tyco and Tyco Flow Control in a manner different than if Tyco were to pursue the spin-off of the flow control business without the Merger due to the fact that in the course of negotiations between Tyco and Pentair, Tyco and Pentair agreed to certain allocations of liabilities as between Tyco and Tyco Flow Control pursuant to the terms of the Separation and Distribution Agreement that were different than the allocations that Tyco had preliminarily determined to implement during the course of its consideration to pursue the spin-off.

In view of the variety and complexity of factors considered in connection with the evaluation of the spin-off and the Merger, as discussed above, Tyco's Board of Directors did not find it useful to, and did not attempt to, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to such factors. Rather, the Tyco Board of Directors viewed its decisions as being based on the totality of the information presented to it and the factors it considered, and certain directors may have assigned different weights to different factors.

Opinion of Goldman Sachs

Goldman Sachs rendered its opinion to Tyco's Board of Directors that, as of March 27, 2012 and based upon and subject to the factors and assumptions set forth therein, the Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement was fair from a financial point of view to Tyco Flow Control.

The full text of the written opinion of Goldman Sachs, dated March 27, 2012 which sets forth assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken in connection with the opinion, is attached as Annex G. Goldman Sachs also held discussions with members of the senior management of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair regarding their assessment of the past and current business operations, financial condition, and future prospects of Pentair and with members of the senior managements of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control regarding their assessment of the past and current business operations, financial condition and future prospects of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control and the strategic rationale for, and the potential benefits of, the Merger; reviewed the reported price and trading activity for the Tyco common shares and the Pentair common shares; compared certain financial information for Tyco Flow Control and certain financial and stock market information for Pentair with similar financial and stock market information for certain other companies the securities of which are publicly traded; and performed such other studies and analyses, and considered such other factors, as it deemed appropriate.

For purposes of rendering the opinion described above, Goldman Sachs relied upon and assumed, without assuming any responsibility for independent verification, the accuracy and completeness of all of the financial, legal, accounting, tax and other information provided to, discussed with or reviewed by it. In that regard, Goldman Sachs assumed with the consent of the Board of Directors of Tyco that the Forecasts and the Synergies were reasonably prepared on a basis reflecting the best then-currently available estimates and judgments of the management of Tyco. Goldman Sachs did not make an independent evaluation or appraisal of the assets and liabilities (including any contingent, derivative or other off-balance-sheet assets and liabilities) of Tyco or Pentair or any of their respective subsidiaries (including, in the case of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and the other members of the Fountain Group (as defined in the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement), nor was any such evaluation or appraisal furnished to Goldman Sachs. Goldman Sachs assumed that all governmental, regulatory or other consents and approvals necessary for the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions will be obtained without any adverse effect on Tyco Flow Control or Pentair or on the expected benefits of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions in any way meaningful to its analysis. Goldman Sachs also assumed that the Tyco Flow Control Transactions will be consummated on the terms set forth in the Merger Agreement and the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, without the waiver or modification of any term or condition the effect of which would be in any way meaningful to its analysis.

Goldman Sachs' opinion does not address the underlying business decision of Tyco or Tyco Flow Control to engage in the transaction or the relative merits of the transaction as compared to any strategic alternatives that may be available to Tyco or Tyco Flow Control; nor does it address any legal, regulatory, tax or accounting matters. Goldman Sachs' opinion addresses only the fairness from a financial point of view, as of the date of the opinion, to Tyco Flow Control of the Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement. Goldman Sachs' opinion does not express any view on, and does not address, any other term or aspect of the Merger Agreement and Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or the Tyco Flow Control Transactions or any term or aspect of any other agreement or instrument contemplated by the Merger Agreement and Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or entered into or amended in connection with the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, including, without limitation, the reorganization, the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, or any indemnification or working capital or other adjustments contemplated by the Merger Agreement and Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, or the fairness of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions to, or any consideration received in connection therewith by, the holders of any other class of securities, creditors, or other constituencies of Tyco or Tyco Flow Control; nor as to the fairness of the amount or nature of any compensation to be paid or payable to any of the officers, directors or employees of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or Pentair, or any class of such persons in connection with the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, whether relative to the Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement or otherwise. Goldman Sachs' opinion was necessarily based on economic, monetary market and other conditions as in effect on, and the information made available to it as of the date of the opinion, and Goldman Sachs assumed no responsibility for updating, revising or reaffirming its opinion based on circumstances, developments or events occurring after the date of its opinion. In addition, Goldman Sachs does not express any opinion as to the prices at which the Tyco common shares or the Tyco Flow Control common shares will trade at any time or as to the impact of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions on the solvency or viability of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or Pentair or the ability of any of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or Pentair to pay their respective obligations when they come due. Goldman Sachs' opinion was approved by a fairness committee of Goldman Sachs.

The following is a summary of the material financial analyses delivered by Goldman Sachs to the Board of Directors of Tyco in connection with rendering the opinion described above. The following summary, however, does not purport to be a complete description of the financial analyses performed by Goldman Sachs, nor does the order of analyses described represent the relative importance or weight given to those analyses by Goldman Sachs. Some of the summaries of the financial analyses include information presented in tabular format. The tables must be read together with the full text of each summary and are alone not a complete description of Goldman Sachs' financial analyses. Except as otherwise noted, the following quantitative information, to the extent that it is based on market data, is based on market data as it existed on or before March 22, 2012 and is not necessarily indicative of current market conditions.

- Crane Co.
- Flowserve Corp.
- IDEX Corp.
- Mueller Water Products, Inc.
- Northwest Pipe Co.
- Pentair
- SPX Corp.
- Thermon Group Holdings, Inc.

Goldman Sachs also reviewed and compared certain financial information, ratios and public market multiples for Pentair to corresponding financial information, ratios and public market multiples for the following publicly traded corporations (collectively, the “Pentair Selected Companies”):

- Donaldson Company, Inc.
- Flowserve Corp.
- Franklin Electric Co. Inc.
- Gorman Rupp Co.
- IDEX Corp.

Although none of the selected companies is directly comparable to Tyco Flow Control or to Pentair, the companies included were chosen because they are publicly traded companies with operations that for purposes of analysis may be considered similar to certain operations of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair, respectively.

Goldman Sachs derived and compared various financial multiples and ratios based on information it obtained from publicly available historical data, Institutional Brokers’ Estimate System (“IBES”) estimates and Goldman Sachs equity research estimates. The multiples and ratios of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair were based on information provided by their respective managements and on Pentair’s IBES estimates. Multiples for Pentair, the Flow Control Selected Companies and the Pentair Selected Companies were calculated using the applicable closing market prices as of March 22, 2012.

With respect to the Flow Control Selected Companies, Goldman Sachs calculated:

- sales growth from calendar year 2012 to calendar year 2013; and
- estimated earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (“EBITDA”) margin for calendar year 2012 and for calendar year 2013.

Goldman Sachs then compared those calculations to the same ratios for Tyco Flow Control based on the Forecasts for the fiscal years ending in September calendarized to December, or sales of $4,011 million and EBITDA of $515 million for calendar year 2012 and sales of $4,387 million and EBITDA of $615 million for calendar year 2013. The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

	Flow Control Selected Companies*		Tyco Flow Control Forecasts
	Range	Median
CY2012E-CY2013E Sales Growth	(2.8)%-13.3%	6.0%	9.4%
CY2012E EBITDA Margin	8.9%-25.4%	16.4%	12.8%
CY2013E EBITDA Margin	10.6%-25.3%	17.2%	14.0%

* Company estimates adjusted for the following: SPX Corp. pro forma for the divestiture of its Service Solutions business; Crane Co. for asbestos and pension liabilities; Watts Water Technologies, Inc. pro forma for the acquisition of tekmar Control Systems, Inc.; and Weir Group PLC pro forma for the acquisition of NovaTech LLC

With respect to the Flow Control Selected Companies, Goldman Sachs also calculated:

- enterprise value, which is equal to the sum of the company’s diluted equity market capitalization, net debt and non-controlling interest, as a multiple of the estimated EBITDA for calendar year 2012; and
- price / estimated earnings ratio for calendar year 2012.

Using the Forecasts, Goldman Sachs then assumed an enterprise value range for Tyco Flow Control and calculated the implied multiple ranges for Tyco Flow Control (assuming $500 million of debt, $225 million of cash and $94 million of non-controlling interest per information provided by the management of Tyco). The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

	Flow Control Selected Companies		Tyco Flow Control Range
	Range	Median
Enterprise Value / CY2012E EBITDA	5.5x-10.3x	8.4x	7.4x-9.3x
Price / CY2012E Earnings Ratio	11.5x-20.2x	14.4x	10.6x-13.7x

With respect to the Pentair Selected Companies, Goldman Sachs calculated:

- enterprise value as a multiple of estimated EBITDA for calendar year 2012; and
- price / estimated earnings ratio for calendar year 2012.

Goldman Sachs then calculated the same ratios for Pentair based on IBES estimates for Pentair’s EBITDA and earnings, and a five-year average of those ratios for Pentair based on IBES estimates for the rolling next twelve months EBITDA and earnings. The ratios for the Pentair Selected Companies were based on publicly available historical data and IBES estimates. The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

	Pentair Selected Companies*		Pentair
	Range	Median	Current	Five-Year Average
Enterprise Value / CY2012E EBITDA	7.7x-12.1x	9.1x	9.6x	9.1x
Price / CY2012E Earnings Ratio	12.9x-19.7x	16.9x	14.7x	14.9x

* Watts Water Technologies, Inc. estimates and capital structure pro forma for the acquisition of tekmar Control Systems, Inc.

Contribution Analysis. Goldman Sachs first analyzed the proposed Tyco Flow Control Transactions, which implied that Tyco stockholders would own approximately 52.5% of the outstanding fully diluted common equity of the combined company following consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. Using the Forecasts, Goldman Sachs then analyzed the relative implied equity contribution of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair to the combined company, before taking into account any Synergies. To calculate the implied value of the equity contribution of Tyco Flow Control, Goldman Sachs applied an assumed range of forward multiples to each of the estimated EBITDA for calendar year 2012 and the estimated net income for calendar year 2012. To calculate the implied value of the equity contribution of Pentair, Goldman Sachs used the diluted equity value of Pentair based on market data as of the close of March 22, 2012. Goldman Sachs assumed $500 million of debt, $225 million of cash and $94 million of non-controlling interest for Tyco Flow Control per information provided by the management of Tyco.

Goldman Sachs also analyzed the relative implied equity contribution of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair to the combined company based on an illustrative discounted cash flow analysis of each company, before taking into account the Synergies. To calculate the net present value of free cash flows for Tyco Flow Control and Pentair, Goldman Sachs used the Forecasts for each company's fiscal years 2012 to 2015; a range of discount rates reflecting estimates of the applicable company's weighted average cost of capital; and illustrative terminal values in the year 2015 based on a range of perpetuity growth rates. Goldman Sachs performed the illustrative discounted cash flow analysis for three scenarios using the following discount rates and perpetuity growth rates: (a) an 11.0% discount rate and 3.5% perpetuity growth for Tyco Flow Control and a 10.5% discount rate and 3.5% perpetuity growth for Pentair; (b) a 10.5% discount rate and 4.0% perpetuity growth for Tyco Flow Control and a 10.0% discount rate and 4.0% perpetuity growth for Pentair; and (c) a 10.0% discount rate and 4.5% perpetuity growth rate for Tyco Flow Control and a 9.5% discount rate and 4.5% perpetuity growth rate for Pentair. In each case, Goldman Sachs then calculated the implied value of the equity contributions for each of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair by adjusting their gross contributions for differences in their respective net debt and non-controlling interest positions. Goldman Sachs assumed $500 million of debt, $225 million of cash and $94 million of non-controlling interest for Tyco Flow Control per information provided by the management of Tyco and $1,309 million of debt, $50 million of cash and $114 million of non-controlling interest for Pentair per publicly available data. The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

Assumed Tyco Flow Control Multiples	Implied Ownership
	Tyco Flow Control	Pentair
CY2012E EBITDA
8.0x	48.6%	51.4%
8.5x	50.3%	49.7%
9.0x	51.8%	48.2%
CY2012E Net Income
12.0x	49.4%	50.6%
12.5x	50.4%	49.6%
13.0x	51.4%	48.6%
Discounted Cash Flow
Scenario (a)	53.4%	46.6%
Scenario (b)	52.3%	47.7%
Scenario (c)	51.2%	48.8%

Combination Analysis. Goldman Sachs performed illustrative pro forma analyses using the Forecasts for Tyco Flow Control and Pentair.

Using the Forecasts, Goldman Sachs calculated the pro forma combined company's estimated sales growth from calendar year 2012 to calendar year 2013, the estimated EBITDA margin for calendar year 2013 and the estimated earnings before interest and taxes ("EBIT") margin for calendar year 2013, the latter two assuming $90 million in Synergies and incremental deal amortization of $89 million that may be realized following the Merger per information provided by the management of Pentair. Goldman Sachs then calculated the same ratios for the Flow Control Selected Companies, the Pentair Selected Companies and Colfax Corp. (collectively, the “Combined Selected Companies”). The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

	Combined Selected Companies		Combined Company
	Range	Median	Forecasts
CY2012E-CY2013E Sales Growth	4.8%-13.3%	6.6%	8.3%
CY2013E EBITDA Margin	10.8%-25.3%	17.5%	16.1%
CY2013E EBIT Margin	8.2%-22.7%	14.7%	12.8%

* Company estimates adjusted for the following: SPX Corp. pro forma for the divestiture of its Service Solutions business; Crane Co. for asbestos and pension liabilities; Watts Water Technologies, Inc. pro forma for the acquisition of tekmar Control Systems, Inc.; and Weir Group PLC pro forma for the acquisition of NovaTech LLC

Goldman Sachs then compared Pentair’s enterprise value as a multiple of estimated EBITDA and price / estimated earnings ratio for calendar year 2012 to the same ratios for the Combined Selected Companies. The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

	Combined Selected Companies*		Pentair
	Range	Median	Current Estimates	Five-Year Average
Enterprise Value / CY2012E EBITDA	7.5x-12.1x	8.6x	9.6x	9.1x
Price / CY2012E Earnings Ratio	11.5x-21.5x	15.4x	14.7x	14.9x

Based on these calculations, Goldman Sachs applied forward year multiples of 8.5x, 9.0x and 9.5x to the combined company’s estimated 2013 EBITDA (including $200 million in Synergies), resulting in an implied total equity value for the pro forma combined company of $10,752 million, $11,483 million and $12,214 million, respectively. Assuming Tyco stockholders would own approximately 52.5% of the outstanding fully diluted common equity of the combined company following consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, the implied equity value to Tyco stockholders of Tyco Flow Control in the pro forma combined company, including Tyco stockholders’ portion of an assumed tax benefit of $50 million capitalized at 13.0x, is $5,986 million, $6,370 million and $6,754 million, respectively. Per the Forecasts, Goldman Sachs assumed $1,463 million of net debt and $211 million of non-controlling interest for the combined company and a combined calendar year 2013 EBITDA of $1,462 million.

Utilizing an enterprise value as a multiple of EBITDA for Tyco Flow Control on an assumed standalone basis of 8.0x, Goldman Sachs then calculated the illustrative increased value to Tyco stockholders of Tyco Flow Control in the pro forma combined company based on (a) a range of enterprise value to EBITDA multiples for the pro forma company, (b) Tyco stockholders’ portion of the Synergies and (c) Tyco stockholders’ portion of an assumed tax benefit of $50 million capitalized at 13.0x, but exclusive of transaction expenses ((a), (b) and (c), collectively, the “Value Uplift”). Goldman Sachs performed the above analysis assuming enterprise value to EBITDA multiples for the pro forma combined company of 8.5x and 9.0x and Synergies of $90 million and $200 million. Per the Forecasts, Goldman Sachs assumed $1,463 million of net debt and $211 million of non-controlling interest for the combined company and a combined calendar year 2013 EBITDA of $1,352 million (for the calculation assuming Synergies of $90 million) and $1,462 million (for the calculation assuming Synergies of $200 million). The results of these analyses are summarized as follows:

Assuming Synergies of $90 million
($ in millions)

Assumed EBITDA Multiple for the Combined Company	Tyco Flow Control Standalone Equity Value (at 8.0x EBITDA)	Value Uplift	Tyco Flow Control Stockholders’ Equity in the Combined Company
	8.5x		$4,546
9.0x	$4,546	$1,304	$5,850

Assuming Synergies of $200 million
($ in millions)

	Tyco Flow Control Standalone Equity Value (at 8.0x EBITDA)	Value Uplift	Tyco Flow Control Stockholders' Equity in the Combined Company
Assumed EBITDA Multiple for the Combined Company
8.5x	$4,546	$1,440	$5,986
9.0x	$4,546	$1,824	$6,370

Goldman Sachs then performed a sensitivity analysis of the Value Uplift at a range of Synergies of $90 million to $200 million and an enterprise value to calendar year 2013 EBITDA multiple range of 8.5x to 9.5x, both with and without the assumed tax benefit. The results of this analysis are summarized as follows:

Without the Assumed Tax Benefit ($ in millions)		Including the Assumed Tax Benefit ($ in millions)
Value Uplift		Value Uplift
Low	High	Low	High
$608	$1,866	$949	$2,207

General. The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex process and is not necessary susceptible to partial analysis or summary description. Selecting portions of the analyses or of the summary set forth above, without considering the analyses as a whole, could create an incomplete view of the processes underlying Goldman Sachs' opinion. In arriving at its fairness determination, Goldman Sachs considered the results of all of its analyses and did not attribute any particular weight to any factor or analysis considered by it. Rather, Goldman Sachs made its determination as to fairness on the basis of its experience and professional judgment after considering the results of its analyses. No company or transaction used in the above analyses as a comparison is directly comparable to Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or Pentair or the contemplated transaction.

Goldman Sachs prepared these analyses for purposes of Goldman Sachs' providing its opinion to Tyco board of directors as to the fairness from a financial point of view to Tyco Flow Control of the Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement. These analyses do not purport to be appraisals nor do they necessarily reflect the prices at which businesses or securities actually may be sold. Analyses based upon forecasts of future results are not necessarily indicative of actual future results, which may be significantly more or less favorable than suggested by these analyses. Because these analyses are inherently subject to uncertainty, being based upon numerous factors or events beyond the control of the parties or their respective advisors, none of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control, Pentair, Goldman Sachs or any other person assumes responsibility if future results are materially different from those forecast.

The Aggregate Merger Consideration (as defined in the Merger Agreement) to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement was determined through arm's-length negotiations between Tyco and Pentair and was approved by Tyco's board of directors. Goldman Sachs provided advice to Tyco during these negotiations. Goldman Sachs did not recommend any specific amount of consideration to Tyco or Tyco Flow Control or either of their respective boards of directors or that any specific amount of consideration constituted the only appropriate consideration to be paid pursuant to the Merger Agreement.

As described above, Goldman Sachs' opinion to the Tyco board of directors was one of many factors taken into consideration by Tyco's board of directors in making its determination to approve the Transactions. The foregoing summary does not purport to be a complete description of the analyses performed by Goldman Sachs in connection with the fairness opinion and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the written opinion of Goldman Sachs attached as Annex G.

Goldman Sachs and its affiliates are engaged in investment banking and financial advisory services, commercial banking, securities trading, investment management, principal investment, financial planning, benefits counseling, risk management, hedging, financing, brokerage activities and other financial and non-financial activities and services for various persons and entities. In the ordinary course of these activities and services, Goldman Sachs and its affiliates may at any time make or hold long or short positions and investments, as well as actively trade or effect transactions, in the equity, debt and other securities (or related derivative securities) and financial instruments (including bank loans and other obligations) of third parties, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control, Pentair and any of their respective affiliates or any currency or commodity that may be involved in the Tyco Flow Control Transactions for their own account and for the accounts of their customers. Goldman Sachs acted as financial advisor to Tyco in connection with, and participated in certain of the negotiations leading to, the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, including the Merger. Goldman Sachs has provided certain investment banking services to Tyco and its affiliates from time to time for which the Investment Banking Division of Goldman Sachs has received, and may receive, compensation, including currently acting as Tyco's financial advisor in connection with its proposed separation into three publicly traded companies, announced in September 2011, and having acted as a joint book-running manager with respect to a public offering by Tyco International Finance S.A., a subsidiary of Tyco, which we refer to as "TIFSA", of its 3.375% notes due 2015 (aggregate principal amount of $500,000,000) in April 2010; and as a co-manager with respect to TIFSA's public offering of its 3.75% notes due 2018 (aggregate principal amount of $250,000,000) and 4.625% notes due 2023 (aggregate principal amount of $250,000,000) in January 2011. Goldman Sachs may also in the future provide investment banking services to Tyco, Tyco Flow Control, Pentair and their respective affiliates for which the Investment Banking Division of Goldman Sachs may receive compensation.

The board of directors of Tyco selected Goldman Sachs as its financial advisor on December 20, 2011 because it is an internationally recognized investment banking firm that has substantial experience in transactions similar to the Transactions. Pursuant to a letter agreement dated March 23, 2012, Tyco International Management Company, LLC, an affiliate of Tyco, engaged Goldman Sachs to act as its financial advisor in connection with the Transactions. Pursuant to the terms of this engagement letter, Tyco International Management Company, LLC has agreed to pay Goldman Sachs a transaction fee of $18 million, all of which is payable upon consummation of the Merger. In addition, Tyco International Management Company, LLC has agreed to reimburse Goldman Sachs for its expenses, including attorneys' fees and disbursements, and Tyco International Management Company, LLC and Tyco have agreed to indemnify Goldman Sachs and related persons against various liabilities, including certain liabilities under the federal securities laws.

Opinion of Duff & Phelps

The Board of Directors will receive an opinion from Duff & Phelps to the effect that each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control will be solvent and adequately capitalized immediately after the Distributions. The form of opinion of Duff & Phelps will be included as Annex C in an amended filing of this proxy statement. The opinion will set forth, among other things, the assumptions made, procedures followed, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken by Duff & Phelps in connection with the opinion.

Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences

The following is a summary of the material U.S. federal income tax consequences to Tyco and to the holders of Tyco common shares in connection with the Distributions and the Merger. This summary is based on the Code, the Treasury Regulations promulgated thereunder and judicial and administrative interpretations thereof, in each case as in effect and available as of the date of this proxy statement and all of which are subject to change at any time, possibly with retroactive effect. Any such change could affect the tax consequences described below.

This summary is limited to holders of Tyco common shares that are "U.S. Holders," as defined immediately below. A "U.S. Holder" is a beneficial owner of Tyco common shares that is, for U.S. federal income tax purposes:

- an individual who is a citizen or a resident of the United States;
- a corporation, or other entity taxable as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes, created or organized under the laws of the United States or any state thereof or the District of Columbia;

- an estate, the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income taxation regardless of its source; or
- a trust, if (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary jurisdiction over its administration and one or more United States persons have the authority to control all of its substantial decisions or (ii) in the case of a trust that was treated as a United States trust under the law in effect before 1997, a valid election is in place under applicable Treasury Regulations.

This summary also does not discuss all tax considerations that may be relevant to shareholders in light of their particular circumstances, nor does it address the consequences to shareholders subject to special treatment under the U.S. federal income tax laws, such as:

- dealers or traders in securities or currencies;
- tax-exempt entities;
- banks, financial institutions or insurance companies;
- persons who acquired Tyco common shares pursuant to the exercise of employee stock options or otherwise as compensation;
- shareholders who own, or are deemed to own, at least 10% or more, by voting power or value, of Tyco equity;
- holders owning Tyco common shares as part of a position in a straddle or as part of a hedging, conversion or other risk reduction transaction for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- certain former citizens or long-term residents of the United States;
- holders who are subject to the alternative minimum tax; or
- persons that own Tyco common shares through partnerships or other passthrough entities.

This summary does not address the U.S. federal income tax consequences to Tyco shareholders who do not hold Tyco common shares as a capital asset. Moreover, this summary does not address any state, local or non-U.S. tax consequences or any estate, gift or other non-income tax consequences.

If a partnership (or any other entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes) holds Tyco common shares, the tax treatment of a partner in that partnership generally will depend on the status of the partner and the activities of the partnership. Such a partner or partnership should consult its own tax advisor as to the tax consequences of the Distributions.

YOU SHOULD CONSULT YOUR OWN TAX ADVISOR WITH RESPECT TO THE U.S. FEDERAL, STATE AND LOCAL AND NON-U.S. TAX CONSEQUENCES OF THE TRANSACTIONS.

The Distributions

Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distributions, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code.

In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The receipt by Tyco of the private letter ruling from the IRS (including that such ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distributions and, in the case of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, the Merger) and the opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP are conditions to effecting the Distributions and the Merger.

Assuming the Distributions qualify under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code, for U.S. federal income tax purposes:

- no gain or loss will be recognized by Tyco as a result of the Distributions;
- no gain or loss will be recognized by, or be includible in the income of, a holder of Tyco common shares, solely as a result of the receipt of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions;
- the aggregate tax basis of the Tyco common shares, shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the hands of Tyco's shareholders immediately after the Distributions will be the same as the aggregate tax basis of the Tyco common shares held by the holder immediately before the Distributions, allocated among the common shares of Tyco, shares of ADT common stock and common shares of Tyco Flow Control, including any fractional share interest for which cash is received, in proportion to their relative fair market values on the date of the Distributions;
- the holding period of shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares received by Tyco shareholders, including any fractional share interest for which cash is received, will include the holding period of their Tyco common shares, provided that such Tyco common shares are held as a capital asset on the date of the Distributions; and
- a Tyco shareholder who receives cash in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock or fractional Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions will be treated as having sold such fractional shares for cash and generally will recognize capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount of cash received and such shareholder's adjusted tax basis in the fractional shares. That gain or loss will be long-term capital gain or loss if the shareholder's holding period for its Tyco common shares exceeds one year.

Although the private letter ruling generally will be binding on the IRS, it is based on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco that certain conditions that are necessary to obtain tax-free treatment under the Code have been satisfied. Furthermore, the IRS will not rule on whether a distribution satisfies certain requirements necessary to obtain tax-free treatment under the Code. Rather, the private letter ruling is based on representations by us, ADT and Tyco Flow Control that these conditions have been or will be satisfied, and any inaccuracy in such representations could invalidate the ruling. The opinion that we expect to receive from McDermott Will & Emery LLP will address all of the requirements necessary for the Distributions to qualify under Sections 355 and 361 of the Code, including those on which the IRS will not rule, and will be based on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, provided by us, ADT and Tyco Flow Control. If any of these facts, representations, assumptions or undertakings is not correct or has been violated, the private letter ruling could be revoked retroactively or modified by the IRS, and our ability to rely on the opinion of counsel could be jeopardized. We are not aware of any facts or circumstances, however, that would cause these facts, representations or assumptions to be untrue or incomplete, or that would cause any of these undertakings to fail to be complied with, in any material respect.

If, notwithstanding the conclusions included in the private letter ruling and the opinion, it is ultimately determined that the Distributions do not qualify as tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes, then we would recognize gain in an amount equal to the sum of (i) the excess of the fair market value of ADT common stock distributed to our shareholders on the distribution date over our tax basis in such shares, and (ii) the excess of the fair market value of Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed to our shareholders on the date of the Distributions over our tax basis in such shares, but such gain, if recognized, generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax.

In addition, if the Distributions were not to qualify as tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes, each Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax and who receives shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions could be treated as receiving a taxable distribution in an amount equal to the fair market value of such shares. You could be taxed on the full value of the shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares that you receive, which generally would be treated first as a taxable dividend to the extent of Tyco's earnings and profits, then as a non-taxable return of capital to the extent of each shareholder's tax basis in his, her or its Tyco common shares, and thereafter as capital gain with respect to any remaining value.

Even if the Distributions otherwise qualify for tax-free treatment under Section 355 of the Code, it may result in corporate-level gain to us and certain of our affiliates under Section 355(e) of the Code if 50% or more, by vote or value, of ADT common stock, Tyco Flow Control common shares or Tyco's common shares are acquired or issued as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distributions. For this purpose, any acquisitions or issuances of Tyco's common shares within two years before the Distributions, and any acquisitions or issuances of ADT's common stock or Tyco Flow Control's common shares or Tyco's common shares within two years after the Distributions, generally are presumed to be part of such a plan, although we or Tyco may be able to rebut that presumption. We are not aware of any acquisitions or issuances of our common shares within the two years before the date of the Distributions (up through the date of this proxy statement) that would be considered to occur as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distributions. The Merger might be treated as part of such a plan or series of related transactions but if so would not by itself cause the Tyco Flow Control Distribution to be taxable to Tyco since Pentair shareholders will acquire less than 50% of Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Merger. The change in ownership resulting from the Merger, if treated as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, would be aggregated with other acquisitions or issuances of Tyco Flow Control's common shares that occur as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Tyco Flow Control Distribution in determining whether a 50% change in ownership has occurred. If an acquisition or issuance of ADT shares or Tyco Flow Control shares or Tyco common shares triggers the application of Section 355(e) of the Code, we would recognize taxable gain as described above, but such gain generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. However, certain of our subsidiaries or affiliates or subsidiaries or affiliates of ADT or Tyco Flow Control could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities as a result of the application of Section 355(e) of the Code.

If, notwithstanding the conclusions included in the private letter ruling, it is ultimately determined that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions do not qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, we, ADT or Tyco Flow Control could incur significant tax liabilities.

Our shareholders that have acquired different blocks of Tyco common shares at different times or at different prices should consult their tax advisors regarding the allocation of their aggregate adjusted basis among, and their holding period of, shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed with respect to such blocks of Tyco common shares.

We do not believe that our shares will constitute "United States real property interests" for purposes of the Foreign Investment in Real Property Tax Act ("FIRPTA") provisions of the Code as of the date of the Distributions. Because we are a "foreign person" for purposes of FIRPTA, however, we must provide certain certifications to our shareholders who receive ADT common stock in the Distributions to avoid the imposition of a withholding obligation on such shareholders. We will provide such certifications in the form and manner prescribed by the IRS.

The Merger

Tyco, Tyco Flow Control, and Pentair have requested one or more rulings from the IRS to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, (i) the Merger will qualify as a reorganization pursuant to Section 368(a) of the Code; (ii) Section 367(a)(1) of the Code will not cause the Merger to be taxable to Pentair shareholders (except for a U.S. shareholder who is or will be a "five-percent transferee shareholder" within the meaning of applicable Treasury Regulations but who does not enter into a "gain recognition agreement" with the IRS); and (iii) certain anticipated post-closing transactions will not prevent the tax-free treatment of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution or the Merger. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive a tax opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP, and Pentair expects to receive a tax opinion from Cravath, Swaine & Moore LLP, in each case, to the effect that (i) the Merger will qualify as a reorganization pursuant to Section 368(a) of the Code and (ii) Section 367(a)(1) of the Code will not cause the Merger to be taxable to Pentair shareholders (except for a U.S. shareholder who is or will be a “five-percent transferee shareholder” within the meaning of applicable Treasury Regulations but who does not enter into a “gain recognition agreement” with the IRS). The receipt of such rulings from the IRS (including that they shall be in full force and effect on the closing date of the Merger), the receipt by Tyco of the opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP, and the receipt by Pentair of the opinion from Cravath, Swaine & Moore LLP, are conditions to effecting the Merger.

Assuming that the conclusions in the private letter ruling and the tax opinions are sustained, for U.S. federal income tax purposes neither Panthro Acquisition nor Tyco Flow Control will recognize any gain or loss upon the receipt by Panthro Acquisition of Pentair common shares in exchange solely for Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Merger.

Although rulings from the IRS, if received, generally will be binding on the IRS, such rulings will be based on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from us, Tyco, and Pentair that certain conditions that are necessary to obtain tax-free treatment under the Code have been satisfied. If any of these facts, representations, assumptions or undertakings is not correct or has been violated, the private letter ruling could be revoked retroactively or modified by the IRS, and our ability to rely on the opinion of counsel could be jeopardized. We are not aware of any facts or circumstances, however, that would cause these facts, representations or assumptions to be untrue or incomplete, or that would cause any of these undertakings to fail to be complied with, in any material respect.

Material Swiss Tax Consequences

This discussion does not generally address any aspects of Swiss taxation other than federal, cantonal and communal income taxation, federal withholding taxation, and federal stamp tax. This discussion is not a complete analysis or listing of all of the possible tax consequences of the Distributions and the Merger and does not address all tax considerations that may be relevant to you. Special rules that are not discussed in the general descriptions below may also apply to you.

This discussion is based on the laws of the Confederation of Switzerland, including the Federal Income Tax Act of 1990, the Federal Harmonization of Cantonal and Communal Income Tax Act of 1990, the Federal Withholding Tax Act of 1965 and the Federal Stamp Duty Act of 1973, as amended, (the “Swiss tax law”), existing and proposed regulations promulgated thereunder, published judicial decisions and administrative pronouncements, each as in effect on the date of this proxy statement or with a known future effective date. These laws may change, possibly with retroactive effect.

For purposes of this discussion, a “Swiss Holder” is any beneficial owner of shares that for Swiss federal income tax purposes is:

- an individual resident of Switzerland or otherwise subject to Swiss taxation under article 3, 4 or 5 of the Federal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended, or article 3 or 4 of the Federal Harmonization of Cantonal and Communal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended;
- a corporation or other entity taxable as a corporation organized under the laws of Switzerland under article 50 or 51 of the Federal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended, or article 20 or 21 of the Federal Harmonization of Cantonal and Communal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended; or
- an estate or trust, the income of which is subject to Swiss income taxation regardless of its source.

A “Non-Swiss Holder” of shares is a holder that is not a Swiss Holder. For purposes of this summary, “Holder” or “Shareholder” means either a Swiss Holder or a Non-Swiss Holder or both, as the context may require.

You are advised to consult your own tax advisers in light of your particular circumstances as to the Swiss tax laws, regulations and regulatory practices that could be relevant for you in connection with the Distributions and the Merger and with the ongoing ownership of the Tyco shares.

The Distribution

Swiss Withholding Tax—Distribution to Shareholders. Generally, Swiss withholding tax (Verrechnungssteuer) of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to Tyco’s shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlagereserven) accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax under the capital contribution principle (Kapitaleinlageprinzip), if certain conditions are met. Tyco has obtained a ruling from the Federal Tax Administration confirming that Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus in the amount of CHF 38,380,489,155 as of September 24, 2010 (reduced to CHF 37,037,568,207 as of February 23, 2012) represents such qualifying contributed surplus accumulated after January 1, 1997. Tyco has obtained a second ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that the Distributions qualify as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distributions up to the amount of such qualifying contributed surplus.

Swiss Federal, Cantonal and Communal Individual Income Tax and Corporate Income Tax. Non-Swiss Holders will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the special dividends paid to them by Tyco. Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the special dividends, as private assets (the shareholders referred to in this paragraph, hereinafter for purposes of this section, “Swiss Private Holders”) are not required to include the special dividends in their personal income tax return. Based on Swiss tax law, the Distributions correspond to the repayment of the share premium and should not be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal individual income tax. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of ADT shares or Tyco Flow Control shares are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax and, conversely, capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss Private Holders. Special rules may apply to Swiss resident individuals who hold Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as private assets and who transfer, individually or together with other shareholders, five percent or more of the shares into a corporation in which the shareholder or shareholders personally own fifty percent or more of the capital. Special rules may also apply if a shareholder sells, individually or together with other shareholders, more than twenty percent of the shares out of his private assets to a buyer who owns the shares as business assets.

Corporate and individual shareholders who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the special dividends, as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland (or, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes)(the shareholders referred to in this paragraph, hereinafter for purposes of this section, “Swiss Commercial Holders”), will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the special dividends, including any cash received in lieu of a fractional share of ADT common stock and a fractional Tyco Flow Control common share, to the extent that the participation income cannot be reduced by a respective depreciation on the investment in Tyco and/or where the participation relief (Beteiligungsabzug) is not applicable. In addition, a gain or loss realized on the sale or other disposition of rights must be recognized in such shareholders’ income statement for the respective taxation period and such shareholders will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal individual or corporate income tax, as the case may be, on any net taxable earnings for such taxation period, unless a participation exemption is applicable. The same taxation treatment also applies to Swiss-resident private individuals who, for income tax purposes, are classified as “professional securities dealers” for reasons of, inter alia, frequent dealing, or leveraged investments, in shares and other securities. Only Swiss Commercial Shareholders who are corporate taxpayers may be eligible for a participation relief (Beteiligungsabzug) in respect of the special dividends if the Tyco shares held by them as part of a Swiss business have an aggregate market value of at least CHF 1 million. In addition, Swiss Commercial Holders who are corporate taxpayers may be eligible for a participation relief (Beteiligungsabzug) in respect of a potential gain realized on the sale or other disposition of ADT shares or Tyco Flow Control shares if the selling price of the ADT shares or Tyco Flow Control shares, held by them as part of a Swiss business exceeds their investment cost, the shares were held for at least one year and account for at least 10% of the total shares in Tyco Flow Control or ADT, as the case may be.

Swiss Cantonal and Communal Private Wealth Tax and Capital Tax. Non-Swiss Holders are not subject to Swiss cantonal and communal private wealth tax or capital tax. Swiss Private Holders and Swiss Commercial Holders who are individuals are required to report their Tyco shares, ADT shares and Tyco Flow Control shares as part of private wealth or their Swiss business assets, as the case may be, and will be subject to Swiss cantonal and communal private wealth tax on any net taxable wealth (including Tyco shares, ADT shares and Tyco Flow Control shares). Swiss Commercial Holders are subject to Swiss cantonal and communal capital tax on taxable capital to the extent the aggregate taxable capital is allocable to Switzerland.

The Merger

Swiss Withholding Tax. The Merger is not subject to Swiss withholding tax.

Swiss Federal, Cantonal and Communal Individual and Corporate Income Taxes. It is a condition to closing that, at the Effective Time, Tyco will have received the Swiss Tax Ruling substantially to the effect that the Merger qualifies for Swiss tax purposes as a tax neutral quasi-merger within the meaning of Section 4.1.7 of the Swiss Federal Circular No. 5 of 1 June 2004 (Kreisschreiben Nr. 5 "Umstrukturierungen") issued by the Swiss Federal Tax Administration. The Swiss Tax Rulings do not address the Swiss income tax consequences of the Merger to Pentair shareholders. However, it is expected that for Swiss resident individual Pentair shareholders holding their Pentair shares as private assets (Privatvermögen) the Merger should be tax free for federal, cantonal and communal income tax purposes. For Swiss resident individual Pentair shareholders holding their shares as business assets (Geschäftsvermögen) and for Swiss resident corporate Pentair shareholders the Merger may not be recognized as tax neutral by the Swiss tax authorities. In such case, the difference between the fair market value of the shares and the relevant tax basis may be treated as taxable income even if no income has been booked in the Swiss statutory profit and loss statement.

Swiss Stamp Taxes. It is a condition to closing that, at the Effective Time, Tyco will have received the Swiss Tax Ruling substantially to the effect that the issue of the new Tyco Flow Control shares in connection with the Merger is not subject to Swiss one-time capital issuance tax (Emissionsabgabe) and that the Merger is not subject to Swiss securities transfer tax (Umsatzabgabe).

Holding Stock of Tyco Flow Control

Swiss Withholding Tax. Dividends that Tyco Flow Control pays on its shares, which are not a repayment of nominal value of shares or qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlagereserven), are, in their gross amount, subject to Swiss withholding tax (Verrechnungssteuer) at a rate of 35%. The Company is required to withhold the Swiss withholding tax from the dividend and remit it to the Swiss Federal Tax Administration.

The Swiss withholding tax on a dividend will be refundable in full to a Swiss Private Holder and to a Swiss Commercial Holder, who, in each case, as a condition to a refund, inter alia, duly reports the dividend on his or her individual income tax return as income or recognizes the dividend on his or her income statement as earnings, as applicable.

A Non-Swiss Holder may be entitled to a partial refund of the Swiss withholding tax on a dividend if the country of residence for tax purposes has entered into a bilateral treaty for the avoidance of double taxation with Switzerland and the conditions of such treaty are met. Such shareholders should be aware that the procedures for claiming treaty benefits (and the time required for obtaining a refund) might differ from country to country. A U.S. Holder that qualifies for benefits under the U.S.-Swiss Treaty may apply for a refund of the tax withheld in excess of the 15% treaty rate (or in excess of the 5% reduced treaty rate for qualifying corporate shareholders with at least 10% participation in Tyco Flow Control's voting shares, or for a full refund in the case of qualified pension funds).

Swiss Federal, Cantonal and Communal Individual and Corporate Income Taxes. Shareholders who are not resident in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who, during the respective taxation year, have not engaged in a trade or business carried on through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who are not subject to corporate or individual income taxation in Switzerland for any other reason (all such shareholders for purposes of this section, "Non-Swiss Holders"), will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on dividends (or repayments of nominal value) paid to them on shares.

Individual shareholders, who are resident in Switzerland for tax purposes, holding their shares as private assets (the shareholders referred to in this paragraph, hereinafter for purposes of this section, "Swiss Private Holders"), are required to include dividends (but not repayments of nominal value of shares or qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlagereserven)) in their personal income tax return and are subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on any net taxable income for the relevant taxation period. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of shares are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income taxes, and conversely, capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss Private Holders.

Corporate and individual shareholders who hold their shares as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland (or, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes) and therefore are resident in Switzerland for tax purposes (the shareholders referred to in this paragraph, hereinafter for purposes of this section, "Swiss Commercial Holders") are required to recognize dividends (and repayments of nominal value of shares or qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlagereserven)) received on shares and capital gains or losses realised on the sale or other disposition of shares in their income statement for the respective taxation period and are subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal individual or corporate income tax, as the case may be, on any net taxable earnings for such taxation period.

The same taxation treatment also applies to Swiss-resident private individuals who, for income tax purposes, are classified as "professional securities dealers" for reasons of, inter alia, frequent dealing, or leveraged investments, in shares and other securities.

Swiss Commercial Holders who are corporate taxpayers may be eligible for dividend relief (Beteiligungsabzug) in respect of dividends (and repayments of nominal value of shares or qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlagereserven)) if the shares held by them as part of a Swiss business have an aggregate market value of at least CHF 1 million.

Swiss Cantonal and Communal Private Wealth Tax and Capital Tax. Non-Swiss Holders are not subject to Swiss cantonal and communal private wealth tax or capital tax.

Swiss Private Holders and Swiss Commercial Holders, who are individuals are required to report their shares as part of private wealth or their Swiss business assets, as the case may be, and will be subject to Swiss cantonal and communal private wealth tax on any net taxable wealth (including shares), in the case of Swiss Commercial Holders to the extent the aggregate taxable wealth is allocable to Switzerland.

Swiss Commercial Holders who are corporate taxpayers are subject to Swiss cantonal and communal capital tax on taxable capital to the extent the aggregate taxable capital is allocable to Switzerland.

Swiss Stamp Taxes. A transfer of shares where a bank or another securities dealer in Switzerland (as defined in the Swiss Federal Stamp Tax Act) acts as an intermediary, or is a party, to the transaction, may be subject to the Swiss securities transfer tax at an aggregate rate of up to 0.15% of the consideration paid for such shares.

Anticipated Accounting Treatment of the Distributions and the Merger

The Distributions

Upon completion of the Distributions, Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business are expected to be treated as discontinued operations for Tyco's financial reporting purposes. In addition, the Distributions will lead to reductions to Tyco's freely distributable reserves and qualifying contributed surplus, as described under above under "—Impact of the proposals on Tyco's ability to make dividends or other distributions in the future."

The Merger

ASC Topic 805, Business Combinations, requires the use of the purchase method of accounting for business combinations. In applying the purchase method, it is necessary to identify both the accounting acquiree and the accounting acquiror. In a business combination effected through an exchange of equity interests, such as the Merger, the entity that issues the interests (Tyco Flow Control in this case) is generally the acquiring entity. In identifying the acquiring entity in a combination effected through an exchange of equity interests, however, all pertinent facts and circumstances must be considered, including the following:

- The relative voting interests in Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. In this case, Tyco shareholders are expected to receive approximately 52.5% of the equity ownership and associated voting rights in Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions.
- The composition of the governing body of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. In this case, the composition of the Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions will be comprised of the ten current members of the Board of Directors of Pentair plus up to two members designated by Tyco prior to the mailing of this proxy statement and reasonably acceptable to Pentair. Tyco has selected only one designee to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors. As more fully described in "—Comparison of Rights of Current Tyco Shareholders, ADT Shareholders and Tyco Flow Control Shareholders following the Distributions and the Merger," Tyco Flow Control's board of directors will be divided into three classes substantially equivalent in size, with each class serving a three-year term. One class will be elected at each annual general meeting of shareholders. As a result, any significant shift in the composition of the board of directors proposed by Tyco Flow Control would take at least two years.
- The composition of senior management of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. In this case, Tyco Flow Control's executive officers following the Merger will be the executive officers of Pentair.

Pentair and Tyco Flow Control have determined that Pentair will be the accounting acquiror in this combination based on the pertinent facts and circumstances, including those outlined above. Tyco Flow Control will apply purchase accounting to the assets and liabilities of Tyco's flow control business upon consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. Upon completion of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, the historical financial statements of Tyco Flow Control will be those of Pentair.

Impact of the Proposals on Tyco's Ability to make Dividends or Other Distributions in the Future

Under Swiss law, a Swiss corporation may pay dividends only if the corporation has sufficient distributable profits from previous fiscal years, or if the corporation has distributable reserves, each as evidenced by its audited statutory balance sheet. Distributable reserves are generally booked either as "free reserves" or as “contributed surplus” (contributions received from shareholders) in the “reserve from capital contributions.” Payments may be made out of registered share capital—the aggregate par value of a company’s registered shares—only by way of a capital reduction. See “—Description of ADT Capital Stock—Common Stock—Dividends” and “—Description of Tyco Flow Control Registered Shares—Dividends.”

Tyco’s freely distributable reserves based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 are CHF 7.94 billion, representing CHF 8.17 billion of freely distributable reserves as of September 30, 2011 reduced by approximately CHF 0.23 billion of dividends declared by our shareholders’ annual meeting on March 7, 2012. That amount—the amount available for future distributions—will be reduced by any additional distributions approved by our shareholders, including, (i) the ordinary cash dividends out of qualifying contributed surplus in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share proposed in this proxy statement and (ii) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements). As a result of these distributions, we expect Tyco to have freely distributable reserves of CHF 2–3 billion immediately following the distributions.

Tyco’s qualifying contributed surplus based on its Swiss statutory account for fiscal year 2011 is CHF 35 billion. That amount will be reduced by (i) the ordinary cash dividends and (ii) the greater of (x) the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of our Swiss statutory financial statements) and (y) the aggregate trading value of all distributed ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares, respectively, distributed in the special dividends in kind by the opening trading price of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, respectively, on the first trading day after distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco’s statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. As a result, Tyco’s total shareholders’ equity in its Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the aggregate book value of ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

Regulatory Matters Related to the Distributions and the Merger

The Distributions

Apart from the filing of this proxy statement with the SEC and distribution of the proxy statement to Tyco shareholders in connection with the Special General Meeting, ADT is required to file with the SEC the ADT Form 10 together with certain exhibits thereto, including the final version of the Information Statement for ADT, in order to register its common shares under the Exchange Act. Tyco Flow Control is required to file with the SEC a Registration Statement on Form S-1 under the Securities Act, together with certain exhibits thereto and the final version of the Prospectus for Tyco Flow Control, in order to register the Tyco Flow Control Distribution under the Securities Act. Tyco Flow Control is not required to file with the SEC a Registration Statement on Form 10 in order to register its common shares under the Exchange Act because Tyco Flow Control will become the successor registrant to Pentair upon consummation of the Merger. Tyco Flow Control is also required to file the Form S-4, which will include a prospectus with respect to the offering of Tyco Flow Control common shares to Pentair shareholders as consideration for the Merger as well as a proxy statement with respect to the vote of Pentair shareholders with respect to the Merger. The final version of the ADT Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus will be delivered to Tyco shareholders holding Tyco common shares on the record date for the special dividends. Copies of the ADT Preliminary Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus are included in this proxy statement as Annex A and Annex B, respectively.

In addition, in connection with the ADT Distribution, ADT will apply to have its shares listed on the NYSE under the trading symbol “ADT,” and in connection with the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Tyco Flow Control will apply to have its shares listed on the NYSE under the trading symbol “PNR,” which is Pentair’s current trading symbol. The declaration by the SEC of the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 (and the absence of a stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10) and acceptance of ADT shares for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance, are each conditions to the completion of the ADT Distribution. The declaration by the SEC of the effectiveness of each of the Form S-1 and the Form S-4 (and the absence of a stop order suspending their effectiveness) and the acceptance of Tyco Flow Control shares for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance, are each a condition to completion of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

You are urged to read carefully and in their entirety the ADT Preliminary Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus as they contain additional important information relating to the spin-offs, ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair. We expect that one or more amendments to those documents may be filed with the SEC between the date of this proxy statement and the date of the Special General Meeting, and we expect that each of those documents will be amended between the date of this proxy statement and the date that it is mailed to Tyco holders as of the record date for the special dividends. Tyco shareholders holding Tyco common shares as of the record date for the special dividends (assuming shareholder approval is received at the Special General Meeting) are encouraged to read the final ADT Information Statement and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus to be mailed to Tyco shareholders as of such date.

In addition to the foregoing U.S. federal securities law requirements, each of ADT and Tyco Flow Control may be required to undertake certain registrations required under U.S. state securities or blue sky laws in connection with the Distributions.

The Merger

U.S. Antitrust. Under the HSR Act and related rules, the Merger may not be completed until notifications have been given and information furnished to the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division and all statutory waiting period requirements have been satisfied. The HSR Act provides for an initial 30-calendar-day statutory waiting period following the necessary filings by the parties to the merger, unless the Federal Trade Commission and Antitrust Division terminates the waiting period early. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control filed Notification and Report Forms with the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division on April 17, 2012 and early termination of the HSR Act waiting period was granted on April 25, 2012.

At any time before or after completion of the Merger, the Federal Trade Commission or the Antitrust Division could take any action under the antitrust laws that it deems necessary or desirable in the public interest, including seeking to enjoin completion of the spin-off and the Merger or seeking divestiture of substantial assets of Pentair or Tyco Flow Control or the imposition of other remedies. In addition, the U.S. state attorneys general could take action under the antitrust laws as they deem necessary or desirable in the public interest, including without limitation seeking to enjoin the completion of the Merger or permitting completion subject to regulatory concessions or conditions. The spin-off and the Merger could also be the subject of challenges by private parties under the antitrust laws.

Tyco and Pentair have agreed to use their reasonable best efforts, subject to specified limitations, to obtain as promptly as practicable various consents, registrations, approvals, waivers, permits, authorizations, clearances and other actions of or by any governmental authority that are necessary or advisable under or in respect of any other antitrust law in order to consummate the Merger and the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. Under the Merger Agreement, the use of such reasonable best efforts does not require Tyco or Pentair to agree to or accept any term or condition to any regulatory approval if the terms and conditions of or to the regulatory approvals would reasonably be expected to have a material and adverse impact on the value, financial condition or credit quality of Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole and including for such purposes Pentair and its subsidiaries.

Other Regulatory Approvals. In addition, Pentair and Tyco Flow Control are required to provide notifications to the European Union, Chinese and Turkish competition authorities. Subsequent to a notification filed on June 15, 2012, Pentair and Tyco Flow Control received on July 11, 2012 a decision from the European Commission under Council Regulation (EC) No. 139/2004 of January 20, 2004 on the control of concentrations between undertakings declaring that the Merger is compatible with the internal market and with the Agreement of the European Economic Area. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control are also seeking clearance under the Chinese Anti-Monopoly Law with a notification submitted to the Anti-Monopoly Bureau of China's Ministry of Commerce on May 4, 2012. The Anti-Monopoly Bureau of China's Ministry of Commerce initiated the formal review period for the notification on July 3, 2012. Further, subsequent to a notification submitted to the Competition Board of the Turkish Competition Authority on June 27, 2012, Pentair and Tyco Flow Control received on July 19, 2012 a decision granting clearance under the Turkish Law on Protection of Competition No. 4054 and the Turkish Competition Authority Communiqué No. 2010/4 on Mergers and Acquisitions Requiring the Approval of the Competition Board. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control, as appropriate, also may provide notice and seek regulatory clearance in other jurisdictions to be determined.

There can be no assurance that a challenge to the Merger on antitrust grounds will not be made or, if such a challenge is made, that it would not be successful.

Apart from the matters described above, Tyco is not aware of any other material regulatory requirements or approvals that must be complied with or obtained in connection with the spin-offs or the Merger.

No Appraisal Rights

Holders of Tyco common shares are not entitled to appraisal rights in connection with the spin-offs or the Merger.

Adjustment to Tyco Equity Awards as a Result of the Distributions

Under the terms of the stock and incentive plans under which Tyco's outstanding Equity Awards were issued, the Tyco Compensation Committee has the authority to make equitable adjustments to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards in the event of certain transactions, including the distribution of ADT's common stock and Tyco Flow Control's common shares. Accordingly, the Tyco Compensation Committee has made various adjustments to outstanding Equity Awards to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Equity Awards. The Tyco Compensation Committee has also modified the terms of outstanding Equity Awards to make certain provisions for employees who are terminated in connection with the spin-offs. The following is a summary of these adjustments and modifications.

The Equity Award adjustments are generally designed to cause the intrinsic value of each converted Equity Award immediately after the Distributions to be the same as the intrinsic value of such Equity Award immediately prior to the Distributions, such that the financial position of the holder with respect to the Equity Award remains the same immediately prior to and immediately after the Distribution and all other terms and conditions of the Equity Awards will remain the same. We refer to this conversion methodology as the "intrinsic value methodology."

Treatment of Outstanding Equity Awards Upon the Completion of the Distributions

Upon the completion of the Distributions:

- for each employee who was an employee of Tyco's corporate segment on the date the spin-offs were announced, all outstanding Equity Awards following the distribution date (1) that were granted prior to October 12, 2011 will, as of the distribution date, convert into like-kind Equity Awards of the three separately traded companies resulting from the spin-offs (except that performance share units will convert into restricted stock units based on performance achieved as of June 29, 2012 (the last day of Tyco's fiscal third quarter)) at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value methodology and

(2) that were granted on or after October 12, 2011 will, as of the distribution date, convert into like-kind Equity Awards of the separately traded company that is the employer of such employee immediately following the distribution date (except that performance share units will convert into restricted stock units based on performance achieved as of a date prior to the distribution date) at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value methodology; and

- for each employee that was not an employee in Tyco's corporate segment on the date the spin-offs were announced, all Equity Awards (other than restricted stock units granted prior to October 12, 2011) held by such employee will, as of the distribution date, convert into like-kind Equity Awards of the separately traded company that is the employer of such employee immediately following the distribution date (except that performance share units will convert into restricted stock units based on performance achieved as of June 29, 2012) at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value methodology, and, with respect to restricted stock units granted prior to October 12, 2011, such awards will, as of the distribution date, convert into like-kind Equity Awards of the three separately traded companies resulting from the spin-offs at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value methodology; and
- for all persons who are former employees of Tyco as of the distribution date, all Equity Awards held by such former employees will, as of the distribution date, convert into like-kind Equity Awards of the three separately traded companies resulting from the spin-offs at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value methodology; and
- for each member of our Board of Directors of the Company (including Mr. Breen, whose performance share units will convert into restricted stock units based on performance achieved as of June 29, 2012), all Equity Awards held by such director will, as of the distribution date, convert into like-kind Equity Awards of the three separately traded companies resulting from the spin-offs at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value methodology.

For further information regarding adjustments to Tyco equity awards held by employees of Tyco who will become employees of ADT or Tyco Flow Control following the spin-offs, see the ADT Preliminary Information Statements and the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus.

Adjustments for Employees Whose Employment is Terminated

Equity Awards granted prior to October 12, 2011 (other than to Mr. Breen, our Chairman and Chief Executive Officer) have been modified to provide that, for each employee whose employment is terminated by us in connection with the spin-offs prior to the one-year anniversary of the spin-offs, (1) any unvested stock option, restricted share unit or performance share unit will fully vest upon termination of employment (subject, in the case of performance share units, to the completion of the applicable performance period) and (2) the exercise period for any stock option that was granted in the period from January 1, 2008 to October 11, 2011 will be extended to comprise the one-year period following the date of such termination for such employee. In addition, any such terminated employee will be entitled to full vesting of any unvested company match under the Tyco International Supplemental Savings and Retirement Plan and will be eligible to receive a pro-rated bonus under our annual incentive plan for the fiscal year in which the termination of employment occurs based on the number of full months of service completed through the date of termination. The terms of the employment agreement between Mr. Breen and us will govern the benefits applicable to Mr. Breen with respect to these awards. See "Executive Officer Compensation Report—Potential Payments Upon Termination and Change in Control" for details regarding the amounts that would be payable to Mr. Breen under his employment agreement if, as expected, he terminates his employment in connection with the spin-offs.

Awards granted on October 12, 2011 in connection with the annual grant provide that, for each employee whose employment is terminated by us in connection with the spin-offs in the period from the grant date through the date that is one year following the completion of the Distributions, any unvested Equity Awards will accelerate and vest pro rata based on the number of full months of service completed from the grant date through the employment termination date. Certain officers, including our named executive officers, will continue to be eligible for one additional year's worth of stock option vesting if they are terminated by us other than for "cause" after the one-year anniversary of the grant date or, in the case of any such officer who is terminated in connection with the spin-offs whether they were terminated before or after such one-year anniversary. Any stock options subject to such accelerated vesting provisions will have a one-year exercise period following the date of such termination for such employee. With respect to the fiscal year 2012 equity award, Mr. Breen has agreed to waive the provisions of his employment agreement providing for full acceleration of his awards.

Interests of Tyco's Directors and Executive Officers in the Distributions

In considering the recommendation of the Tyco Board of Directors with respect to the spin-offs, Tyco shareholders should be aware that Tyco's directors and executive officers have interests in the spin-offs that may be different from, or in addition to, Tyco's shareholders generally. The Tyco Board of Directors was aware of these interests, and considered these interests, among other matters, in recommending to the shareholders that the spin-offs be approved.

Appointment of Directors and Executive Officers

One of Tyco's objectives in connection with the spin-offs is to ensure continuity of leadership by retaining talented directors and executive officers of Tyco in positions of leadership at Tyco and ADT following the spin-offs. (The directors and executive officers of Pentair will be the directors and executive officers of Tyco Flow Control following the Merger, except that Tyco may prior to the mailing of this proxy statement appoint up to two directors reasonably acceptable to Pentair to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors. Tyco has selected only one designee to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors, Carol Anthony Davidson.) Accordingly, on or prior to the distribution date, Tyco expects to appoint certain of its current directors and executive officers to the boards of directors of, or executive officer positions with, Tyco and ADT as reflected in the table below:

Tyco Executive	Current Tyco Position(s)	Position(s) following the Distributions
Edward D. Breen . . . . .	Chairman of the Board of Directors; Chief Executive Officer	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Chairman of the Board of Directors, Tyco</li> <li>• Consultant, ADT</li> </ul>
Larry Costello . . . . .	Senior Vice President of Human Resources for Tyco Fire Protection	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Executive Vice President, Human Resources, Tyco</li> </ul>
Carol Anthony Davidson . . .	Senior Vice President, Controller and Chief Accounting Officer	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Director, Tyco Flow Control</li> </ul>
Timothy M. Donahue . . . . .	Director	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Director, ADT</li> </ul>
Bruce S. Gordon . . . . .	Lead Director	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Chairman of the Board of Directors, ADT</li> </ul>
Naren K. Gursahaney . . . . .	President, North America Residential Security	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Chief Executive Officer and Director, ADT</li> </ul>
George R. Oliver . . . . .	President, Commercial Fire & Security	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Chief Executive Officer and Director, Tyco</li> </ul>
Brian McDonald . . . . .	Chief Operating Officer of Tyco Fire Protection Services	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Chief Operating Officer, Tyco</li> </ul>
Arun Nayar . . . . .	Senior Vice President, Financial Planning & Analysis, Investor Relations and Treasurer	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Chief Financial Officer, Tyco</li> </ul>
Dinesh Paliwal . . . . .	Director	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Director, ADT</li> </ul>

Each of Tyco's remaining Directors are expected to continue in their roles as Directors with Tyco, although the constitution and chairs of the three independent committees of the Board will change due to the resignations of certain of the Directors and the proposed election of a new independent Director.

Mr. Costello's, Mr. Gursahaney's, Mr. Oliver's, Mr. McDonald's and Mr. Nayar's new employment arrangement with Tyco and ADT, respectively, will be contingent upon completion of the spin-offs and such new employment arrangement will supersede any employment arrangement he currently has with Tyco.

Effect of the Spin-Offs on Outstanding Equity Awards

Each of our directors holds restricted stock units and/or deferred stock units and/or stock options with respect to our common shares, and each of our executive officers holds stock options, performance share units, restricted stock units, and/or deferred stock units with respect to our common shares.

Restricted stock units and stock options held by our directors will be treated like common stock and will be converted as of the distribution date into like-kind equity awards of each of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT using the intrinsic value methodology. Vesting of these awards will remain unchanged. For Directors that are resigning from the Tyco board, shares underlying deferred stock units will be split and delivered upon their termination of service from Tyco. Equity awards held by our executive officers (including Mr. Breen) will be treated the same as equity awards held by our other employees, as described under "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Adjustment to Tyco Equity Awards as a Result of the Distributions." Deferred stock units held by Mr. Breen, which are fully vested, will be split and delivered to him in accordance with the their terms following his expected resignation as CEO.

Severance Arrangements

Following the Distributions, we expect that each of Mr. Breen, Frank S. Sklarsky, our current Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, Carol A. Davidson, our current Senior Vice President, Controller and Chief Accounting Officer, Laurie A. Siegel, our current Senior Vice President, Human Resources and Internal Communications, Shelley Stewart, Jr., our current Senior Vice President of Operational Excellence and Chief Procurement Officer, and Patrick Decker, currently the President of Tyco Flow Control, will cease to serve in their respective executive officer positions with us.

Under the terms of Mr. Breen's employment agreement with us he is entitled to specified severance benefits if he terminates his employment for "Good Reason." The definition of a "Good Reason" termination under Mr. Breen's employment agreement includes his resignation due to a change in duties that results in a significant diminution in his position, authority, duties or responsibilities. We believe that these provisions would apply if Mr. Breen were to resign following completion of the spin-offs and we therefore expect Mr. Breen to receive severance benefits consistent with a Good Reason termination (except to the extent waived, as described below). Mr. Breen would be entitled to: (i) a pro rata portion of his bonus for the performance year in which his termination occurs, (ii) a lump-sum cash payment equal to two times the sum of his base salary plus the higher of his target annual bonus or his fiscal year 2012 bonus, and (iii) continued participation in all health and welfare programs over the same period for which severance is payable, subject to an 18-month limit on medical benefits. Mr. Breen is also entitled to acceleration of his outstanding equity, except to the extent he has waived such acceleration of a portion of his fiscal year 2012 annual grant, and these awards will be forfeited.

We expect that each of Mr. Sklarsky, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Decker, Ms. Siegel and Mr. Stewart will be eligible to receive severance benefits in connection with his or her termination, and that their equity awards will be treated in the same manner as any other employee who is terminated in connection with the spin-offs. Specifically:

- they will be eligible for severance benefits under the Tyco International Severance Plan for U.S. Officers and Executives which, for executive officers, are generally equal to: (i) two times the executive's base salary plus two times the executive's target annual bonus and (2) 12 months of continued medical and dental benefits;
- their outstanding equity awards will be subject to acceleration and exercise period extensions as described under "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Adjustment to Tyco Equity Awards as a Result of the Distributions."

Description of Tyco Flow Control Registered Shares

The following is a summary of information concerning Tyco Flow Control's registered shares following consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger. The summary below does not purport to be a complete statement of the relevant provisions of Tyco Flow Control's proposed articles of association. The summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to these documents, which you must read for complete information on Tyco Flow Control's registered shares. Tyco Flow Control's articles of association and organizational regulations have been prepared to provide, to the extent permitted by Swiss law and consistent with customary Swiss practice, an allocation of rights and powers between the shareholders and the board of directors of Tyco Flow Control that is comparable to that currently existing under Pentair's organizational documents and Minnesota law. Copies of Tyco Flow Control's proposed articles of association and organizational regulations will be included as exhibits to Tyco Flow Control's Registration Statement on Form S-1 filed with the SEC. You can also find further information regarding Tyco Flow Control's registered shares, certain provisions of Swiss law, and Tyco Flow Control's proposed capitalization in the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus included as Annex B.

Issued Share Capital

Tyco Flow Control will have one class of share capital consisting of registered shares and will have issued approximately 214 million fully paid and non-assessable registered shares with a nominal value per share of CHF 0.50, of which approximately 4 million will be treasury shares. Excluding treasury shares, holders of Tyco common shares as of the record date and their transferees will hold 52.5% of Tyco Flow Control common shares and former shareholders of Pentair will hold 47.5% of Tyco Flow Control common shares, in each case on a fully diluted basis.

Authorized and Conditional Share Capital

Tyco Flow Control's Board of Directors will be authorized, without additional shareholder approval, to increase Tyco Flow Control's share capital at any time on or before the second anniversary of the Effective Time, through issuance of new shares in one or several steps, by a maximum amount of 50% of the share capital registered in the commercial register. During each two-year period subsequent to such second anniversary, authorized share capital will be available to Tyco Flow Control's Board of Directors for issuance of additional registered shares only to the extent that shareholders have reauthorized such share capital at a general meeting of shareholders.

The Board of Directors from time to time may authorize Tyco Flow Control to issue bonds (including convertible bonds and bonds with options), notes, options, warrants or other securities in each case that represent a right to exchange, convert or exercise the security for Tyco Flow Control shares ("Rights"). Tyco Flow Control's articles of association permit the issuance of shares in connection with the exercise of such Rights without obtaining additional shareholders approval, up to a maximum aggregate amount of 50% of the share capital registered in the commercial register. A specific number of shares, which are collectively referred to as "Conditional Share Capital," will be allotted in the articles of association to two categories: (a) shares issued through the exercise of Rights granted to third parties or shareholders in connection with convertible instruments issued by Tyco Flow Control or its subsidiaries, and (b) shares issued through the exercise of options and other similar Rights granted to members of the Board of Directors, members of the executive management, employees, contractors consultants or other persons providing services to Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries.

Dividends

Holders of Tyco Flow Control shares are entitled to receive dividends if and when approved by the general meeting of shareholders. Dividends may be paid out only if the company has sufficient distributable profits from previous fiscal years, or the corporation has distributable reserves (including "reserve from contributed surplus"), each as evidenced by the audited annual parent company statutory balance sheet. If the distribution of a dividend is made out of qualifying "contributed surplus," or if the par value of the Tyco Flow Control shares is reduced, no Swiss withholding tax will apply.

Voting Rights

The holders of Tyco Flow Control common stock will be entitled to one vote for each share held of record on all matters submitted to a vote of the shareholders. Subject to exceptions granted by the Board of Directors, no person or group of persons may directly, indirectly or constructively register shares with voting rights or vote more than 20% of the issued shares less one share. To be able to exercise voting rights, holders of shares must generally apply for registration in the share register as shareholders with voting rights and the Board of Directors must approve the entry. Failing registration as shareholders with voting rights or grant of a proxy of a registered holder (including a nominee), (beneficial) shareholders may not participate in or vote at shareholders' meetings, but will be entitled to dividends, preemptive rights and liquidation proceeds.

Preemptive Rights and Advance Subscription Rights

The holders of Tyco Flow Control common shares will have preemptive rights to subscribe for new Tyco Flow Control common shares. However, the general meeting of shareholders or, in an authorized or conditional share capital increase, the Board of Directors may for valid reasons withdraw preemptive rights and advance subscription rights.

Comparison of Rights of Current Tyco Shareholders, ADT Shareholders and Tyco Flow Control Shareholders following the Distributions and the Merger

The rights of Tyco shareholders are currently governed by the Swiss Code and the articles of association of Tyco. The rights of ADT shareholders following the ADT Distribution will be governed by the General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware, or the "DGCL," and its certificate of incorporation and bylaws, certain provisions of which (in their current proposed form) are summarized elsewhere in this proxy statement. Copies of ADT's proposed certificate of incorporation and bylaws will be included as exhibits to ADT's Registration Statement on Form 10. The rights of Tyco Flow Control shareholders following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger will be governed by Swiss law and its articles of association, certain provisions of which (in their current proposed form) are summarized elsewhere in this proxy statement. Copies of Tyco Flow Control's proposed articles of association will be included as exhibits to Tyco Flow Control's Registration Statement on Form S-1. If you are a holder of Tyco common shares on the record date for the special dividends, unless you sell your shares under certain circumstances described under "The Spin-Offs and the Merger—Results of the Distribution; Listing of ADT Common Stock and Tyco Flow Control Common Shares and Trading of Tyco Common Shares and Trading of Tyco Common Shares," you will receive shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares pursuant to the special dividends. As a result, you will have different rights with respect to your ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares due to the differences in the governing documents and laws of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT.

This section of the proxy statement describes the material differences between the rights of Tyco shareholders, the rights of ADT shareholders and the rights of Tyco Flow Control shareholders following the Distributions and the Merger.

This section does not include a complete description of all differences among the rights of Tyco shareholders, the rights of ADT shareholders and the rights of Tyco Flow Control shareholders, nor does it include a complete description of the specific rights of these shareholders. Furthermore, the identification of some of the differences in the rights of these shareholders as material is not intended to indicate that other differences do not, or may not, exist.

You are urged to read carefully the relevant provisions of the Swiss Code and the DGCL, as well as the Articles of Association of each of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control and the proposed certificate of incorporation and bylaws of ADT. Tyco Flow Control's articles of association and organizational regulations have been prepared to provide, to the extent permitted by Swiss law and consistent with customary Swiss practice, an allocation of rights and powers between the shareholders and the board of directors of Tyco Flow Control that is comparable to that currently existing under Pentair’s organizational documents and Minnesota law. Copies of the Articles of Association of Tyco are filed as exhibits to the reports of Tyco incorporated by reference in this proxy statement. See “Where You Can Find More Information.” As noted above, copies of the proposed certificate of incorporation and bylaws of ADT and copies of proposed Articles of Association of Tyco Flow Control will be included as exhibits to their respective SEC filings.

Currently, there are no classes of shares outstanding other than the common shares.

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of association, the general meeting of shareholders takes resolutions and conducts elections upon a relative majority of the votes cast at the general meeting of shareholders (abstentions, broker non-votes and blank and invalid votes are not counted for purposes of establishing the number of votes cast).

The Swiss Code and the Tyco articles of association require the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of the votes and an absolute majority of the par value of Tyco common shares, each as represented at a general meeting, to approve the following matters:

- the amendment to or modification of Tyco's corporate purpose;
- the creation of shares with privileged voting rights;
- the limitation on transferability of shares;

Tyco Flow Control

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of association, generally, the affirmative vote of holders of an absolute majority of shares represented and entitled to vote at a general meeting of shareholders will be required to approve a resolution. Abstentions will be included in the calculation of the number of votes represented at the meeting for purposes of determining whether a quorum has been achieved and in the number of votes entitled to vote on a matter. Broker non-votes will also be included in the calculation of the number of votes represented at the meeting for purposes of determining whether a quorum has been achieved but will not be included in determining the number of votes entitled to vote on matters with respect to which such shares may not be voted. A broker non-vote occurs when shares held by a broker, bank or other nominee are represented at the meeting, but the nominee has not received voting instructions from the beneficial owner and does not have the discretion to

The same supermajority voting requirements apply to resolutions in relation to transactions among corporations based on the Swiss Merger Act, including a merger, demerger or conversion of a corporation, other than a cash-out or certain squeeze-out mergers, in which minority shareholders of the company being acquired may be compensated in a form other than through shares of the acquiring company, where an affirmative vote of 90% of the outstanding common shares is required. The Swiss Code also may impose this supermajority voting requirement in connection with the sale of “all or substantially all of its assets.”

Tyco Flow Control

As regards a change to the number of directors, see “Number of Directors.”

ADT

Number of Directors

The Tyco articles of association provide that the Tyco Board of Directors shall consist of no less than two and no more than thirteen members. The shareholders have an exclusive right to change the size of the Board of Directors by amending the articles of association. Tyco currently has twelve directors. A change to the provision in the articles of association regarding the number of directors is subject to the supermajority described above.

Tyco Flow Control’s articles of association will set the initial number of directors at 11. A change in the number of directors will require the approval of at least two-thirds of the shares represented at the general meeting of shareholders, unless the reduction is recommended by the Board of Directors, in which case such change will require the affirmative vote of holders of an absolute majority of shares represented at a general meeting of shareholders.

The DGCL provides that the board of directors of a Delaware corporation must consist of one or more directors as fixed by the corporation’s certificate of incorporation or bylaws. Upon completion of the ADT Distribution, ADT’s Board of Directors is expected to initially consist of 8 members. ADT’s certificate of incorporation and bylaws will allow its Board of Directors to fix the number of directors but there shall not, subject to the rights of holders of preferred stock that may be outstanding, be fewer than 2 or more than 12 directors.

	Tyco	Tyco Flow Control	ADT
Classification of Directors	Under the Tyco articles of association, the Board of Directors is not classified. Each director serves a one-year term.	The Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control will be classified and divided into three classes. Directors of each class serve for a three-year term. The classes must be substantially equivalent in size.	Under ADT's bylaws, the Board of Directors is not classified. Each director serves a one-year term.
Election of Directors	Under the Tyco articles of association, shareholders elect the directors to succeed those whose terms expire by absolute majority of the votes cast at the general meeting of shareholders. However, in any election for the Board of Directors in which the number of candidates exceeds the number of board positions available at the time of such election (the number of available positions to be determined by the general meeting of shareholders within the framework of Article 19 of Tyco's articles of association regarding the size of the board), the members of the Board of Directors shall be elected by a plurality of votes cast (meaning the candidate with the most votes is elected).	Tyco Flow Control's articles of association will provide for members of the board of directors to be elected by an absolute majority of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the general meeting of shareholders. At any election in which the number of persons properly nominated to serve as directors exceeds the number of directors to be elected, directors are elected by the affirmative vote of a plurality of the votes cast (in person or by proxy) at the general meeting of shareholders. A "plurality" means that the individual who receives the largest number of votes cast at a general meeting of shareholders for a board seat is elected to that board seat such that abstentions and broker non-votes shall not be included in the calculation of the number of votes cast with respect to such election.	The DGCL provides that, unless the certificate of incorporation or bylaws provide otherwise, directors will be elected by a plurality of the votes of the shares present in person or represented by proxy at the meeting and entitled to vote. ADT's certificate of incorporation and bylaws will not provide otherwise.

Vacancies on the Board of Directors

Tyco

Under Swiss law, a shareholder vote is required to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors.

Tyco Flow Control

Same as Tyco.

ADT

Under the DGCL, a majority of the directors in office can fill any vacancy or newly created directorship. ADT's bylaws will provide that newly created directorships resulting from any increase in the authorized number of directors or any vacancies occurring on the ADT Board of Directors, however caused, may be filled by the affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining directors even though less than a quorum, or by a sole remaining director. Each director so chosen will hold office for a term expiring at the annual meeting of stockholders and until his or her successor shall be elected and qualified.

In addition, under the DGCL, if, at the time of the filling of any vacancy or newly created directorship, the directors in office constitute less than a majority of the whole board of directors (as constituted immediately before any such increase), the Delaware Court of Chancery may, upon application of any stockholder or stockholders holding at least ten percent of the total number of outstanding shares entitled to vote for such directors, summarily order an election

Removal of Directors	Under the Swiss Code, only the shareholders may remove a director, and they may do so with or without cause by resolution of a relative majority at a shareholders' meeting where such removal was properly set on the agenda.	Directors may be removed with or without cause. Such removal will require the approval of at least two-thirds of the votes represented at the general meeting of shareholders.	to fill any such vacancy or newly created directorship, or replace the directors chosen by the directors then in office.  Under ADT's certificate of incorporation, any or all of the directors (other than directors elected by the holders of any series of preferred stock) may be removed at any time with or without cause by the affirmative vote of a majority in voting power of all outstanding shares of stock entitled to vote in election of directors.
Amendment of Charter Documents	Under the Swiss Code and Tyco's articles of association, only the shareholders, acting at the general shareholders' meeting, have the power to amend the articles of association. A resolution of the general shareholders' meeting passed by at least two-thirds of the votes and the absolute majority of the par value, each as represented at the general meeting of shareholders, is required to amend certain sections of the articles of association, see "Voting / Supermajority Voting." topics listed under "Supermajority Voting." To amend other sections requires passage of a shareholder resolution upon a relative majority of the votes cast.	Subject to certain exceptions (see "Voting / Supermajority Voting"), the shareholders generally pass resolutions by the affirmative vote of holders of an absolute majority of shares represented and entitled to vote at the general meeting of shareholders.	The DGCL generally provides that amendments to the certificate of incorporation must be approved by the Board of Directors and then adopted by the vote of a majority of the outstanding voting power entitled to vote thereon, unless the certificate of incorporation requires a greater vote. ADT's certificate of incorporation will include no such requirement.

Amendment to

Section 109 of the DGCL provides that the power to adopt, amend or repeal bylaws will be held by the stockholders entitled to vote, subject to the right, if so conferred in the certificate of incorporation, of the directors to adopt, amend or repeal bylaws. Any right of the directors to adopt, amend or repeal the bylaws will not divest the stockholders of their power to adopt, amend or repeal the bylaws. ADT's certificate of incorporation and bylaws will provide that special meetings of the stockholders may be called at any time by, or at the direction of, the Chairman of the Board of Directors, the Board of Directors or a committee of the Board of Directors whose powers include the power to call such meetings.  Our certificate of incorporation will provide that stockholders may not act by written consent without a meeting.
Nomination of Directors and Shareholder Proposals	Under the articles of association of Tyco, any shareholder may request that an item be included on the agenda for the general meeting, provided that such request is received by Tyco at least 120 calendar days before the first anniversary of the date on which Tyco's proxy statement was released to shareholders in connection with the previous year's annual general shareholders' meeting. Indemnification of Directors and Officers

The Tyco articles of association provide that Tyco shall indemnify any current or former director or officer or person serving as a director or officer at the request of Tyco to the fullest extent of the law against any expenses, including attorneys' fees, judgments, fines, and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by him or her in connection with any threatened, pending, or completed action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative or investigative, including proceedings by or in the right of Tyco, to which he or she was, is, or is threatened to be made a party, or is otherwise involved, by reason of the fact that he or she is or was a director or officer; provided, however, that Tyco shall not indemnify any such person against any liability arising out of (a) any fraud or dishonesty in the performance of their duty to Tyco, or (b) such person's conscious, intentional or willful or grossly negligent breach of the obligation to act honestly and in good faith with a view to the best interests of Tyco. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, Tyco shall not indemnify any person holding the office of auditor or special auditor in relation to Tyco.

ADT

The DGCL also permits a corporation to indemnify any person who is made a party to any third-party action, suit or proceeding on account of being a current or former director, officer, employee or agent of the corporation (or serving or having served at the request of the corporation in such capacity for another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise) against expenses (including attorneys' fees) actually and reasonably incurred by such person in connection with the defense or settlement of a derivative action or suit, except that no indemnification may be made in respect of any claim, issue or matter as to which the person is adjudged to be liable to the corporation unless the Delaware Court of Chancery or the court in which the action or suit was brought determines upon application that the person is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for the expenses which the court deems to be proper.

To the extent that a current or former director or officer is successful on the merits or otherwise in the defense of such an action, suit or proceeding, the corporation is required by Delaware law to indemnify such person for expenses actually and reasonably incurred thereby.

Preemptive Rights and Advance Subscription Rights	Under the Swiss Code, Tyco shareholders have preemptive rights to obtain newly issued registered shares in an amount proportional to the par value of the registered shares they already hold. In addition, shareholders generally have advance subscription rights in relation to conversion, option, exchange, warrant or similar rights for the subscription of shares in connection with bonds (including convertible bonds and bonds with options), notes, options, warrants or other securities in proportion to the respective par values of their holdings. Preemptive rights and advance subscription rights may, however, be limited pursuant to the Swiss Code and Tyco's articles of association. Under the DGCL, stockholders of a corporation do not have preemptive rights to subscribe to an additional issue of stock or to any security convertible into such stock, unless such right is expressly included in the certificate of incorporation. In addition, under Tyco's articles of association, a general shareholders' meeting has authorized the Board of Directors to withdraw, for certain valid reasons, preemptive rights in an authorized capital increase and advance subscription rights in a conditional capital increase.

Dividends

Under the Swiss Code and the Tyco articles of association, Tyco shareholders are entitled to receive, from funds legally available for the payment thereof, pro rata dividends as and when declared and approved by the general meeting of shareholders. Under Swiss law, dividends may be paid out only if a corporation has sufficient distributable profits from previous fiscal years or if a corporation has distributable reserves, which may include contributed surplus.

Under Swiss tax law, dividend payments out of earnings are subject to Swiss withholding tax.

Same as Tyco

The DGCL generally provides that, subject to certain restrictions, the directors of every corporation may declare and pay dividends upon the shares of its capital stock either out of its surplus or, in case there is no such surplus, out of its net profits for the fiscal year in which the dividend is declared and the preceding fiscal year.

Mergers and Consolidations, Generally

Dividend payments in the form of a return of capital by reducing the par value of registered shares and in the form of a distribution out of qualifying contributed surplus are not subject to Swiss withholding tax.

Business combinations and other such transactions that are binding on all shareholders of Tyco are governed by Switzerland's Merger Act. As described above under "Supermajority Voting," a statutory merger or demerger requires that at least two-thirds of the shares and a majority of the par value of the shares, each as represented at the general shareholders' meeting, vote in favor of the transaction.

ADT

Under the DGCL, the Board of Directors and the holders of a majority of the shares entitled to vote must approve a merger, consolidation or sale of all or substantially all of a corporation's assets. However, unless the corporation provides otherwise in its certificate of incorporation, no stockholder vote of a constituent corporation surviving a merger is required if:

- the merger agreement does not amend the constituent corporation's articles or certificate of incorporation;
- each share of stock of the constituent corporation outstanding before the merger is an identical outstanding or treasury share of the surviving corporation after the merger; and

THE MERGER AGREEMENT

The following is a summary of the material terms and provisions of the Merger Agreement. This summary does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the terms and provisions of the Merger Agreement, which is included as Annex F. We encourage you to read the entire Merger Agreement. The Merger Agreement has been included to provide information regarding its terms. The Merger Agreement is not intended to provide any other factual information about Pentair, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and their affiliates following completion of the Merger. Information about Pentair, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and their affiliates can be found elsewhere in this proxy statement.

The Merger Agreement contains representations and warranties of Tyco solely for the benefit of Pentair and representations and warranties of Pentair solely for the benefit of Tyco. These representations and warranties have been made solely for the benefit of the other parties to the Merger Agreement and have been qualified by certain information that has been disclosed to the other parties to the Merger Agreement and that is not reflected in the Merger Agreement. In addition, these representations and warranties may be intended as a way of allocating risks among parties if the statements contained therein prove to be incorrect, rather than as actual statements of fact. Accordingly, you should not rely on the representations and warranties as characterizations of the actual state of facts. Moreover, information concerning the subject matter of the representations and warranties may have changed since the date of the Merger Agreement, which subsequent information may or may not be fully reflected in the companies' public disclosures. Pentair and Tyco Flow Control do not believe that securities laws require disclosure of any information related to the Merger Agreement other than information that has already been so disclosed.

Note that while the Merger Agreement refers to fractional shares when discussing the merger consideration, no fractional shares will result from the Merger given that each Pentair common share outstanding at the time of the Merger will be exchanged for one newly issued Tyco Flow Control common share in connection with the Merger.

The Merger

Under the Merger Agreement and in accordance with Minnesota law, at the Effective Time, Panthro Merger Sub will merge with and into Pentair. As a result of the Merger, the separate corporate existence of Panthro Merger Sub will terminate and Pentair will continue as the surviving corporation and a wholly owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control. Additionally, at the Effective Time, the Articles of Association of Tyco Flow Control will be amended and restated substantially in the form of Annex E. Accordingly, Tyco Flow Control will be an independent, publicly-traded company organized under the laws of Switzerland and will operate the businesses of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair. We expect the Merger to be consummated immediately following the Distribution.

Closing; Effective Time

Under the terms of the Merger Agreement, the closing of the Merger will take place on the later of September 28, 2012 and the fifth business day following satisfaction or waiver (to the extent permitted by law) of the conditions precedent to the Merger (other than those to be satisfied at, or immediately prior to, closing), unless otherwise agreed upon by Pentair and Tyco. The "Effective Time" will be the date and time when the Articles of Merger are duly filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Minnesota or such later date or time as is agreed among the parties in writing and specified in the Articles of Merger in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Minnesota Business Corporation Act.

Merger Consideration

Tyco Flow Control shareholders will not receive any consideration in the Merger and Tyco Flow Control will remain the parent company for the combined business. Each Pentair common share outstanding as of the Effective

Time will be converted into the right to receive one newly issued share of Tyco Flow Control (provided, however, that Pentair common shares owned by any subsidiary of Pentair or Tyco Flow Control will not be entitled to receive the merger consideration), with the result that Tyco's shareholders as of the record date of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and their transferees will hold approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control and former Pentair shareholders will hold approximately 47.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control, each on a fully-diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares). Tyco shareholders will not receive any new shares of Tyco Flow Control in the Merger and will continue to hold Tyco Flow Control shares they receive in the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. Upon the conversion, all converted Pentair common shares will automatically be cancelled and cease to exist. Neither Tyco Flow Control nor Pentair shareholders are entitled to any appraisal rights in connection with the Merger.

Treatment of Pentair Equity Awards

In addition to the equity awards held by Pentair directors and employees, certain equity awards held by Tyco directors and employees will convert to equity awards of Tyco Flow Control. See "The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements—Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement—Conversion of Equity Awards."

Treatment of Stock Options

At the Effective Time, each outstanding option to purchase Pentair common shares, whether vested or unvested, will be converted, on the same terms and conditions as were applicable under such Pentair stock option immediately before the Effective Time, into an option to acquire a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares equal to the number of Pentair common shares subject to such option immediately before the Effective Time at the same exercise price per share.

Treatment of Restricted Stock Units

At the Effective Time, each outstanding Pentair restricted stock unit, whether vested or unvested, will be converted into a Tyco Flow Control restricted stock unit, on the same terms and conditions as were applicable under such Pentair restricted stock unit immediately before the Effective Time.

Treatment of Restricted Shares

At the Effective Time, each outstanding Pentair restricted share will be converted into a Tyco Flow Control restricted share, subject to the same terms and conditions as were applicable under such Pentair restricted share immediately before the Effective Time.

Treatment of Other Share-Based Awards

At the Effective Time, each other outstanding Pentair share-based award, whether vested or unvested, will be converted into an award with respect to Tyco Flow Control common shares, subject to the same terms and conditions as were applicable under such other share-based award immediately before the Effective Time, with respect to a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares equal to the number of Pentair common shares subject to such other share-based award immediately before the Effective Time.

Treatment of Employee Stock Purchase Plan

At and following the Effective Time, Pentair's employee stock purchase plan will remain in effect and any then-current purchase period under such plan will continue in effect in accordance with its terms, except that, following the Effective Time, all rights to purchase Pentair common shares under Pentair's employee stock purchase plan will entitle the holder thereof to instead purchase Tyco Flow Control common shares.

Exchange of Shares in the Merger

Prior to or at the Effective Time, Tyco Flow Control will deposit with an exchange agent selected by Pentair and reasonably acceptable to Tyco (the "Exchange Agent"), for the benefit of the holders of Pentair common shares, evidence in book-entry form representing Tyco Flow Control common shares issuable pursuant to the provisions of the Merger Agreement in exchange for Pentair common shares outstanding.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Time, and to the extent not previously distributed in connection with the Distribution, Tyco Flow Control will cause the Exchange Agent to mail to any holder of record of outstanding Pentair common shares whose Pentair shares were converted into the right to receive a portion of the merger consideration pursuant to terms of the Merger Agreement: (i) a letter of transmittal and (ii) instructions for effecting the exchange of any Pentair common shares for the merger consideration.

Upon delivery to the Exchange Agent of the letter of transmittal, duly executed and with such other documents as may reasonably be required by the Exchange Agent, the holder of such Pentair common shares will be entitled to receive in exchange therefor:

- (i) Tyco Flow Control common shares, which shall be in uncertificated book-entry form, and
- (ii) any dividends or other distributions payable, all in accordance with the provisions of the Merger Agreement.

As of the Effective Time, the stock transfer books of Pentair will be closed and there will be no further transfers on the Pentair stock transfer books of Pentair common shares.

No dividend or other distributions with respect to Tyco Flow Control common shares with a record date after the Effective Time will be paid to any holder of any unexchanged Pentair common shares until the exchange of such shares in accordance with the Merger Agreement. Following the exchange of such shares, the record holder will be paid at the appropriate payment date, the amount of dividends or other distributions with a record date after the Effective Time but prior to exchange of such shares and a payment date subsequent to the exchange of such shares payable with respect to such Tyco Flow Control common shares.

Termination of the Exchange Fund

Any portion of the amounts deposited with the Exchange Agent under the Merger Agreement, referred to herein as the "Exchange Fund," that remains undistributed to the former Pentair shareholders for 180 days after the Effective Time will be delivered to Tyco Flow Control upon demand, and any holders of Pentair common shares that have not exchanged their shares pursuant to the Merger Agreement may look only to Tyco Flow Control for payment of their claim for Tyco Flow Control common shares and any dividends with respect to Tyco Flow Control common shares (subject to any applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar law).

Officers and Directors of Tyco Flow Control

The parties to the Merger have agreed that, as of the Effective Time, the executive officers of Tyco Flow Control will consist of the following Pentair executives:

Name	Position with Tyco Flow Control
Randall J. Hogan	Chief Executive Officer
Michael V. Schrock	President and Chief Operating Officer

The parties have also agreed that, as of the Effective Time, the Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control will consist of up to two persons to be selected by Tyco prior to the mailing of this proxy statement and reasonably acceptable to Pentair and the persons serving on the Board of Directors of Pentair as of the mailing of this proxy statement. Tyco has selected only one designee to the Tyco Flow Control Board of Directors. Tyco will take such actions, as sole shareholder of Tyco Flow Control and otherwise, as required under the Tyco Flow Control organizational documents and applicable law to cause the Board of Directors of Tyco Flow Control to be so constituted, subject to and conditional upon the closing of the Merger.

Pre-Merger Transactions

Prior to the Merger, Tyco's flow control business will be separated from Tyco and transferred to Tyco Flow Control in the spin-off pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will also execute a series of agreements, including the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, the Transition Services Agreement, the Licensing Agreements and certain other conveyancing and assumption instruments.

Shareholder Meetings

Pentair has set a record date of July 27, 2012 for a meeting of its shareholders on September 14, 2012 for purposes which include approval of the Merger and has delivered a proxy statement/prospectus to its shareholders for such meeting in accordance with applicable law and its organizational documents. Subject to certain exceptions as described in this proxy statement, the Pentair board is obligated to recommend that Pentair shareholders vote for the Merger and has included such recommendation in its proxy statement/prospectus. See "–Board Recommendations."

Subject to certain exceptions as described in this proxy statement, the Board of Directors is obligated to recommend that Tyco shareholders vote for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and has included such recommendation herein.

Tyco has also agreed that it will not, and will not permit any of its subsidiaries that are engaged in Tyco's flow control business to, transfer the employment of any individual to or from Tyco Flow Control or its subsidiaries or otherwise materially change the job functions of any individual employed by Tyco and its subsidiaries or Tyco's flow control business so as to either (A) cause any such individual to cease to be considered an employee of Tyco's flow control business or (B) cause any individual who would not otherwise be considered an employee of Tyco's flow control business to be considered an employee of Tyco's flow control business, except, in each case, as otherwise approved in writing by Pentair's Vice President of Human Resources.

Reasonable Best Efforts

The Merger Agreement provides that each party to the Merger Agreement will generally use its reasonable best efforts to take, or cause to be taken, all actions necessary under the Merger Agreement and applicable laws to consummate the Merger and the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement as promptly as practicable, including using reasonable best efforts to complete the spin-off and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution on the terms and conditions set forth in the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. Reasonable best efforts do not require Tyco or Pentair to agree to or accept any term or condition to any regulatory approval if the terms and conditions of or to the regulatory approvals would reasonably be expected to have a material and adverse impact on the value, financial condition or credit quality of Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries, taken as a whole and including for such purposes Pentair and its subsidiaries.

Regulatory Matters

Tyco and Pentair agreed to file any notifications required to be filed pursuant to and in compliance with the HSR Act and appropriate filings with foreign regulatory authorities, in accordance with applicable antitrust laws, as promptly as practicable. Additionally, Tyco and Pentair agreed to use reasonable best efforts to obtain early termination of any waiting period under the HSR Act and obtain all consents, registrations, approvals, waivers, permits, authorizations, clearances and other actions of or by any governmental authority that are necessary or advisable in order to consummate the Merger and the Tyco Flow Control Transactions.

In connection with any filing or submission required, action to be taken or commitment to be made by Pentair or Tyco or their respective affiliates to consummate the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control (1) will not, without Pentair's prior written consent, (w) sell, divest or dispose of any assets of Tyco Flow Control, (x) license any of Tyco's flow control business' intellectual property, (y) commit to any sale, divestiture or disposal of businesses, product lines or assets of Tyco's flow control business, or any license of Tyco's flow control business' intellectual property, or (z) take any other action or commit to take any action that would limit Pentair's, Tyco Flow Control's or their respective subsidiaries' freedom of action with respect to, or their ability to retain any of, their businesses, product lines or assets or intellectual property rights and (2) agreed to use reasonable best efforts to take any action contemplated by clause (1) above if requested in writing by Pentair; provided, that Tyco Flow Control will not be obligated to take any action the effectiveness of which is not conditioned on the Merger occurring.

In connection with any filing or submission required, action to be taken or commitment to be made by Pentair or its affiliates to consummate the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Pentair will not, without Tyco's prior written consent, (w) sell, divest or dispose of any assets of Pentair, (x) license any of Pentair's intellectual property, (y) commit to any sale, divestiture or disposal of businesses, product lines or assets of Pentair, or any license of Pentair's intellectual property, or (z) take any other action or commit to take any action that would limit Tyco's, Pentair's, Tyco Flow Control's or their respective subsidiaries' freedom of action with respect to, or their ability to retain any of, their businesses, product lines or assets or intellectual property rights, in each case, if such action would reasonably be expected to have a material and adverse impact on the value, financial condition or credit quality of Tyco Flow Control and the Tyco Flow Control subsidiaries, taken as a whole and including for such purposes Pentair and its subsidiaries.

Interim Financial Information

Tyco has agreed that prior to the Effective Time, Tyco will deliver to Pentair, within a reasonable period and no later than 45 calendar days after each quarterly accounting period for Tyco's flow control business, a balance sheet as of the end of such period and combined statements of income, cash flows and equity for such period for Tyco's flow control business. Tyco has also agreed to prepare and deliver to Pentair an unaudited combined balance sheet as of September 30, 2011 of Tyco and its subsidiaries, prepared to give pro forma effect to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (but not the ADT Distribution).

Defense of Litigation

Each of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair has agreed to use all reasonable best efforts to defend against all actions in which such party is named as a defendant that challenge or otherwise seek to enjoin, restrain or prohibit, or seek damages with respect to, the Tyco Flow Control Transactions. Each of the parties agreed that they would not settle any action related to the Tyco Flow Control Transactions that would enjoin, restrain, prohibit or impose damages on Tyco Flow Control or its subsidiaries (other than Pentair and its subsidiaries) without the prior written consent of Pentair and Tyco, in each case not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed. Additionally, Tyco and its subsidiaries on the one hand, and Pentair and its subsidiaries on the other hand, will not settle any such action with respect to the Tyco Flow Control Transactions (i) that would impose any liability or conditions on the other party or (ii) that contains any factual admissions with respect to the other party.

The Separation

Under the Merger Agreement, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control agreed not to terminate or assign the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, amend any of its provisions or waive compliance with it or any of the agreements or conditions contained in it without the prior consent of Pentair. Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are also required to obtain the prior written consent of Pentair (not to be unreasonably withheld, conditioned or delayed) to enter into any conveyancing or assumption instrument in connection with the assignment, transfer and conveyance of the assets and liabilities of Tyco's flow control business.

No Solicitation

The Merger Agreement contains detailed provisions restricting Pentair's and Tyco's ability to seek an alternate transaction. Under these provisions, each of Pentair and Tyco agrees that it, its subsidiaries and their respective officers, directors or employees will not, and will use reasonable best efforts to ensure that its and its subsidiaries, representatives do not, directly or indirectly:

- solicit, initiate, seek or knowingly encourage (including by way of furnishing information) or knowingly take any other action designed to facilitate any inquiries or the making, submission, announcement or consummation of an acquisition proposal;
- furnish any non-public information to any person in connection with or in response to an acquisition proposal;

- engage or participate in any discussions or negotiations with any person with respect to an acquisition proposal;
- approve, endorse or recommend an acquisition proposal or propose publicly to approve, endorse or recommend an acquisition proposal;
- enter into any letter of intent, agreement in principle or other agreement providing for an acquisition proposal; or
- resolve, propose to resolve or agree to do any of the foregoing.

In addition, Pentair agrees that it and its subsidiaries and their respective officers, directors or employees will not, and will use reasonable best efforts to ensure that its and its subsidiaries' representatives do not, directly or indirectly, take any action to make (i) the provisions of any "fair price," "moratorium," "control share acquisition," "business combination" or other similar anti-takeover statute or regulation inapplicable to any transactions contemplated by an acquisition proposal, (ii) the consummation of an acquisition proposal exempt under the terms of Pentair's Rights Agreement (as defined in the Merger Agreement) or (iii) resolve, propose to resolve or agree to do any of the foregoing.

With respect to Pentair's no solicitation obligation under the Merger Agreement, the term "acquisition proposal" refers to a Pentair Takeover Proposal, while with respect to Tyco's and Tyco Flow Control's no solicitation obligations under the Merger Agreement, the term "acquisition proposal" refers to a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or a Tyco Takeover Proposal, as the case may be.

The Merger Agreement does not prevent Pentair from furnishing information (including non-public information) with respect to Pentair and its subsidiaries to a person making a Pentair Takeover Proposal and engaging in discussions and negotiations with such person if:

- Pentair shareholders have not yet adopted the Merger and approved the Merger Agreement and related transactions;
- Pentair has received an unsolicited, bona fide, written Pentair Takeover Proposal that did not result from a breach of its and its subsidiaries' obligations under the non-solicit provisions of the Merger Agreement;
- Pentair's Board of Directors determines, in good faith, after consulting with its independent financial advisor, that such Pentair Takeover Proposal constitutes or would reasonably be likely to lead to a Pentair Superior Proposal (as defined below);
- Pentair's Board of Directors concludes in good faith, after consultation with its outside legal counsel, that the failure to take such action with respect to such Pentair Takeover Proposal would be inconsistent with Pentair's Board of Directors' duties under applicable law;
- Pentair promptly, and in no event later than 48 hours after its receipt of any Pentair Takeover Proposal, advises Tyco orally and in writing of any Pentair Takeover Proposal and the identity of the person making the proposal and (w) if it is in writing, delivers a copy to Tyco of the proposal and any related draft agreements (subject to customary redactions in the case of any financing commitments), (x) if oral, delivers to Tyco a reasonably detailed summary of the proposal, (y) keeps Tyco reasonably informed in all material respects on a prompt basis of the status, including any change to the status or material terms of the proposal (and in no event later than 48 hours following any such change) and (z) promptly notifies Tyco of any determination by Pentair's Board of Directors that the proposal constitutes a Pentair Superior Proposal; and
- Pentair furnishes any non-public information provided to the maker of a Pentair Takeover Proposal only pursuant to a confidentiality agreement between Pentair and such person on terms no less favorable to Pentair than the confidentiality agreement executed with Tyco.

The Merger Agreement provides that the term “Pentair Superior Proposal” means any bona fide proposal made by a third party to acquire at least a majority of the equity securities or all or substantially all of the assets of Pentair, pursuant to a tender or exchange offer, a merger, a consolidation, a liquidation or dissolution, a recapitalization, a sale of assets or otherwise, on terms which the Pentair Board of Directors determines in its good faith judgment (A) after consulting with its independent financial advisor to be superior from a financial point of view to the holders of Pentair common shares than the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (including any proposed modifications to the transactions which are proposed in writing by Tyco in response to such proposal or otherwise) and (B) is reasonably capable of being completed on its terms, taking into account all legal, regulatory and financial aspects (including certainty of closing) of such Pentair Takeover Proposal and the third party making such proposal.

In addition, the Merger Agreement does not prevent Tyco from furnishing information (including non-public information) with respect to Tyco and its subsidiaries to a person making a Tyco Takeover Proposal or a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal and engaging in discussions and negotiations with such person if:

- Tyco shareholders have not yet approved the Distribution;
- Tyco has received an unsolicited, bona fide, written Tyco Takeover Proposal or Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal that did not result from a breach of its and its subsidiaries’ obligations under the Merger Agreement;
- Tyco’s Board of Directors determines, in good faith, after consultation with its independent financial advisor, that such Tyco Takeover Proposal or Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal constitutes or would reasonably be likely to lead to a Tyco Superior Proposal (as defined below) or a Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal (as defined below);
- Tyco’s Board of Directors concludes in good faith, after consultation with its outside legal counsel, that the failure to take such action with respect to such Tyco Takeover Proposal or Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal would be inconsistent with Tyco’s Board of Directors’ duties under applicable law;
- Tyco promptly, and in no event later than 48 hours after its receipt of any Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or Tyco Takeover Proposal, advises Pentair orally and in writing of any such proposal and the identity of the person making such proposal and (w) if it is in writing, delivers a copy to Pentair such proposal and any related draft agreements (subject to customary redactions in the case of any financing commitments) and (x) if oral, delivers to Pentair a reasonably detailed summary of any such proposal, (y) keeps Pentair reasonably informed in all material respects on a prompt basis of the status, including any change to the status or material terms, of any such proposal (and in no event later than 48 hours following any such change) and (z) promptly notifies Pentair of any determination of Tyco’s Board of Directors that such Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or Tyco Takeover Proposal constitutes a Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal or Tyco Superior Proposal, as applicable; and
- Tyco furnishes any non-public information provided to the maker of a Tyco Takeover Proposal or Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal only pursuant to a confidentiality agreement between Tyco and such person on terms no less favorable to Tyco than the confidentiality agreement executed with Pentair.

The Merger Agreement provides that the term “Tyco Superior Proposal” means any bona fide proposal made by a third party to acquire at least a majority of the equity securities or all or substantially all of the assets of Tyco pursuant to a tender or exchange offer, a merger, a consolidation, a liquidation or dissolution, a recapitalization, a sale of assets or otherwise, which proposal is (x) on terms which the Tyco Board of Directors determines in its good faith judgment (A) after consulting with its independent financial advisor to be superior from a financial point of view to the holders of Tyco common shares than the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement and the ADT Distribution, collectively, and (B) is reasonably capable of being completed on its terms, taking into account all legal, regulatory and financial aspects (including certainty of closing) of such Tyco Takeover Proposal and the third party making such proposal and (y) expressly conditioned on the Merger and the related transactions not being consummated; provided that such transaction or series of transactions will not be a Tyco Superior Proposal if related primarily to the flow control business of Tyco, in which case it is a Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal.

The Merger Agreement provides further that the term “Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal” means any bona fide proposal made by a third party (x) to acquire at least a majority of the equity securities or all or substantially all of the assets of Tyco Flow Control pursuant to a tender or exchange offer, a merger, a consolidation, a liquidation or dissolution, a recapitalization, a sale of assets or otherwise or (y) in which Tyco’s flow control business would be separated from Tyco in a spin-off transaction immediately followed by a merger in a transaction resulting in the Tyco Flow Control shareholders owning a majority of the shares of the surviving entity, in each case on terms which the Tyco Board of Directors determines in its good faith judgment (A) after consulting with its independent financial advisor to be superior from a financial point of view to the holders of Tyco common shares than the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement and (B) is reasonably capable of being completed on its terms, taking into account all legal, regulatory and financial aspects (including certainty of closing) of such Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal and the third party making such proposal; provided such proposal is not a Tyco Takeover Proposal.

Board Recommendations

The Pentair Board of Directors has agreed in the Merger Agreement that it will not:

- fail to include a recommendation that the Pentair shareholders approve the Merger Agreement, the Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement;
- withhold, withdraw, qualify or modify, or publicly propose to withhold, withdraw, qualify or modify in a manner adverse to Tyco, its recommendation that the Pentair shareholders approve the Merger Agreement, the Merger and the other transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement; or
- approve, adopt or recommend to Pentair’s shareholders any Pentair Takeover Proposal (all of the foregoing collectively, a “Pentair Change of Recommendation”).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Pentair Board of Directors may make a Pentair Change of Recommendation at any time prior to obtaining approval from Pentair’s shareholders of the Merger if the following conditions are satisfied:

- Pentair’s Board of Directors has received a Pentair Superior Proposal and Pentair has not violated the provisions described in “—No Solicitation” in any material respect; or
- in response to any material event, development, circumstance, occurrence or change in circumstances or facts (including any change in probability or magnitude of consequences) not related to a Pentair Takeover Proposal that was not known to Pentair’s Board of Directors on the date of the Merger Agreement (or if known, the probability or magnitude of consequences of which were not known to, or reasonably foreseeable by, Pentair’s Board of Directors as of the date of the Merger Agreement) (a “Pentair Intervening Event”), the Pentair Board of Directors determines in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel, that the failure to make a Pentair Change of Recommendation would constitute a breach of the board’s duties under applicable law.

Pentair may not make a Pentair Change of Recommendation unless:

- Pentair has notified Tyco in writing of its intention to take such action at least three business days prior to taking such action, which notice must include certain information required by the Merger Agreement;

- if requested by Tyco, Pentair must have negotiated in good faith with Tyco during the notice period to enable Tyco to propose changes to the terms of the Merger Agreement intended to cause the Pentair Superior Proposal to no longer constitute a Pentair Superior Proposal, or, in the case of a proposed change in recommendation as a result of an Pentair Intervening Event, that obviates the need for such a change in recommendation; and
- following any such good faith negotiation, such Pentair Takeover Proposal continues to constitute a Pentair Superior Proposal or such Pentair Intervening Event continues to require the Pentair Change of Recommendation.

If any Pentair Superior Proposal is received less than three business days prior to Pentair’s shareholder meeting, the notice period will be shortened to expire as of the close of business on the day preceding the shareholder meeting.

The Tyco Board of Directors has agreed in the Merger Agreement that it will not:

- fail to include the recommendation that the Tyco shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution in the proxy statement;
- withhold, withdraw, qualify or modify, or publicly propose to withhold, withdraw, qualify or modify in a manner adverse to Pentair, its recommendation that Tyco’s shareholders approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution; or
- approve, adopt or recommend to Tyco’s shareholders any Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or Tyco Takeover Proposal (all of the foregoing collectively, a “Tyco Change of Recommendation”).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Tyco Board of Directors may, at any time prior to obtaining approval from Tyco’s shareholders of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, make a Tyco Change of Recommendation if the following conditions are satisfied:

- Tyco’s Board of Directors has received a Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal or a Tyco Superior Proposal and Tyco has not violated the provisions described in “—No Solicitation” in any material respect; or
- in response to any material event, development, circumstance, occurrence or change in circumstances or facts (including any change in probability or magnitude of consequences) not related to a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or a Tyco Takeover Proposal that was not known to Tyco’s Board of Directors on the date of the Merger Agreement (or if known, the probability or magnitude of consequences of which were not known to or reasonably foreseeable by Tyco’s Board of Directors as of the date of the Merger Agreement) (a “Tyco Intervening Event”), the Tyco Board of Directors determines in good faith after consultation with outside legal counsel, that the failure to make a Tyco Change of Recommendation would constitute a breach of the board’s duties under applicable law.

Tyco may not make a Tyco Change of Recommendation unless:

- Tyco has notified Pentair in writing of its intention to take such action at least three business days prior to taking such action, which notice must include certain information required by the Merger Agreement;
- if requested by Pentair, Tyco must have negotiated in good faith with Pentair during the notice period to enable Pentair to propose changes to the terms of the Merger Agreement, intended to cause the Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal or the Tyco Superior Proposal to no longer constitute a Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal or a Tyco Superior Proposal, or, in the case of a proposed change in recommendation as a result of an Tyco Intervening Event, that obviate the need for such a change in recommendation; and

- following any such good faith negotiation, such Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or Tyco Takeover Proposal continues to constitute a Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal or Tyco Superior Proposal or such Tyco Intervening Event continues to require the Tyco Change of Recommendation.

If any Tyco Flow Control Superior Proposal or Tyco Superior Proposal is received less than three business days prior to Tyco's shareholder meeting, the notice period will be shortened to expire as of the close of business on the day preceding the shareholder meeting.

Financing

The Merger Agreement provides that Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will cooperate in good faith for (i) a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control to issue up to $900 million of unsecured senior notes that will be guaranteed by Tyco Flow Control prior to the Distribution and (ii) Pentair and Tyco Flow Control to establish an unsecured senior credit facility of up to $1.2 billion (with an option to increase by $500 million) that will become effective upon the closing of the Merger. Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will use their reasonable best efforts to arrange such financing as mutually agreed and otherwise consistent with the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. Each of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will (i) provide to the other parties copies of all documents relating to the financing and (ii) keep the other parties reasonably informed of all material developments relating to the consummation of the financing. The Merger Agreement provides that the issuance of senior notes by a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control is subject to (a) Tyco at its option receiving either (x) the required consent of a majority of the lenders under each of certain of its outstanding credit facilities or (y) Tyco causing its subsidiary, Tyco International Finance S.A., to become a subsidiary guarantor under each of such outstanding credit facilities, which designation shall be removed upon the occurrence of the closing of the Merger, (b) Tyco obtaining approval of the Tyco Board of Directors for such issuance of senior notes, (c) Tyco's right to determine in its sole discretion that such senior notes issuance should not occur and (d) Pentair's right to determine in its sole discretion that such issuance of senior notes should not occur. If a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control issues senior notes pursuant to which an escrow is established in which the proceeds from such issuance (net of initial purchaser fees) will be held prior to the closing of the Merger, then Pentair will contribute cash to such escrow in an amount equal to the difference between such proceeds (net of initial purchaser fees) and the amount necessary to redeem such senior notes if the Merger does not occur. Upon the closing of the Merger, the proceeds from the senior notes issuance (net of initial purchaser fees) will be released to the subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control that issued the senior notes and the cash that Pentair contributed to such escrow will be released to Pentair. Under the Merger Agreement, Pentair agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Tyco and its subsidiaries from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with the issuance by a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control of the senior notes or the entering into by Tyco Flow Control of the senior credit facility. In addition, Pentair has agreed to reimburse Tyco for all third party costs and expenses incurred in connection with the issuance of senior notes by a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control and the entering into by Tyco Flow Control of the senior credit facility.

Listing

Tyco Flow Control has agreed to use its reasonable best efforts to cause the Tyco Flow Control common shares to be issued in connection with the Merger to be listed on the NYSE as of the Effective Time, subject to official notice of issuance.

Tax Matters

The Merger Agreement provides that the parties will use reasonable best efforts to cause the Merger to qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code and to obtain the tax rulings and tax opinions. The parties also agree to refrain from actions or omissions that would prevent or impede the Merger from obtaining the desired tax treatment. Additional representations, warranties and covenants relating to the tax-free status of the transactions are contained in the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. See "The Separation and Distribution Agreements and the Ancillary Agreements—2012 Tax Sharing Agreement."

Employee Benefit Matters

The Merger Agreement provides that for a period of 12 months following the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries will maintain salary or hourly wage rate and cash and long-term equity incentive target opportunities that are substantially comparable in the aggregate to those in effect immediately prior to the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions for each employee of Tyco and its subsidiaries that remains employed with Tyco Flow Control, except that the terms and conditions of employment of any employee covered by a collective bargaining agreement will be governed by such agreement in accordance with its terms. The Merger Agreement also provides that Tyco Flow Control will honor and maintain the Tyco Flow Control benefit plans for the period of 12 months following the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions for the benefit of such employees. Additionally, the Merger Agreement provides that Tyco Flow Control will give service credit to Tyco Flow Control employees for service to Tyco prior to the Tyco Flow Control Transactions for purposes of determining eligibility to participate, vesting, entitlement to benefits and vacation entitlement with respect to each compensation or benefit plan sponsored or otherwise maintained by Tyco Flow Control, except as would result in any duplication of benefits.

Conditions to the Completion of the Merger

The obligations of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair under the Merger Agreement are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions:

- no temporary restraining order or preliminary or permanent injunction or other order by any governmental authority preventing consummation of the Merger or the related transactions shall have been issued and remain in effect;

- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date, to the effect that (i) the Tyco Flow Control Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and 361 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional common shares and (ii) certain internal transactions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;

- Tyco shall have received one or more rulings from the Swiss Tax Administrations, which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date, confirming: (i) that the Merger will be a transaction that is generally tax-free for Swiss federal, cantonal, and communal tax purposes (including with respect to Swiss stamp tax and Swiss withholding tax); (ii) the relevant Swiss tax base of Panthro Acquisition for Swiss tax (including federal, cantonal and communal) purposes; (iii) the relevant amount of capital contribution reserves which will be exempt from Swiss withholding tax in the event of a distribution to the Tyco Flow Control shareholders after the Merger; and (iv) that no Swiss stamp tax will be levied on certain post-Merger restructuring transactions.

In addition, the obligation of Pentair to effect the Merger is subject to the following additional conditions, among others:

- all other representations and warranties of Tyco in the Merger Agreement shall be true and correct both as of the date of the Merger Agreement and as of the Closing Date, as if made at and as of such time (except to the extent expressly made as of an earlier date, in which case of such date), except where their failure to be true and correct would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a material adverse effect on the business, financial condition or results of operations of Tyco’s flow control business or on the ability of Tyco or Tyco Flow Control to consummate the Tyco Flow Control Transactions (a “Tyco Flow Control MAE”);

- no Tyco Flow Control MAE shall have occurred from the date of the Merger Agreement through the Closing Date;

- Tyco shall have executed and delivered to Pentair, and caused each of its subsidiaries that is a party to an Ancillary Agreement to execute and deliver to Pentair, each of the Ancillary Agreements.

- the representations and warranties of Pentair in the Merger Agreement relating to corporate authority to enter into, and perform the obligations under, the Merger Agreement and the other related agreements and enforceability of such agreements, and the capitalization of Pentair, must be true and correct in all material respects as of the date of the Merger Agreement and at and as of the Closing Date, as if made as of such time (except to the extent expressly made as of an earlier date, in which case as of such date);
- the representations and warranties of Pentair in the Merger Agreement relating to the absence of a Pentair MAE (as defined below) since December 31, 2011 and the payment of fees to brokers or finders in connection with the Tyco Flow Control transactions shall be true and correct in all respects as of the date of the Merger Agreement and as of the Closing Date, as if made as of such time (except to the extent expressly made as of an earlier date, in which case as of such date);
- all other representations and warranties of Pentair in the Merger Agreement shall be true and correct as of the date of the Merger Agreement and as of the Closing Date, as if made as of such time (except to the extent expressly made as of an earlier date, in which case as of such date), except where their failure to be true and correct would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a material adverse effect on the business, financial condition or results of operations of Pentair and its subsidiaries as a whole or on the ability of Pentair to consummate the Merger (a "Pentair MAE");
- no Pentair MAE shall have occurred from the date of the Merger Agreement through the Closing Date;
- Tyco shall have received a certificate of Pentair addressed to Tyco and dated the Closing Date, signed on behalf of Pentair by a senior officer of Pentair, certifying as to (i) the performance by Pentair of its obligations and compliance with all applicable covenants required by the Merger Agreement and the related agreements and (ii) the truth and correctness of Pentair's representations and warranties;

- Tyco shall have received the opinions of McDermott Will & Emery LLP (i) to the effect that (x) the Merger will qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code and (y) Section 367(a)(1) of the Code will not cause the Merger to be taxable to Pentair shareholders (except for a U.S. shareholder who is or will be a "five-percent transferee shareholder" within the meaning of applicable Treasury Regulations but who does not enter into a "gain recognition agreement" with the IRS) and (ii) confirming that the Distributions will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares; and
- Pentair shall have executed and delivered to Tyco each Ancillary Agreement to which it is a party.

Termination of the Merger Agreement

Tyco and Pentair may agree to terminate the Merger Agreement by mutual written consent. Additionally, either Tyco or Pentair may terminate the Merger Agreement for the following reasons, among others:

- the Merger has not been consummated by February 1, 2013, provided that the terminating party's failure to perform or comply in all material respects with such party's covenants and agreements set forth in the Merger Agreement and the Separation and Distribution Agreement is not the cause of the Merger not being consummated by February 1, 2013;
- the existence of any law that makes consummation of the transactions under the Merger Agreement illegal or otherwise prohibited;
- any governmental authority having competent jurisdiction has issued an order, decree or ruling or taken any other action permanently restraining, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting any material component of the transactions under the Merger Agreement, and such order, decree, ruling or other action becomes final and non-appealable, provided, however, that such right to terminate will not be available to any party whose failure to perform any of its obligations described above under "—Reasonable Best Efforts" or "—Regulatory Matters" resulted in such order, decree or ruling;
- Pentair shareholders fail to adopt the Merger and approve the Merger Agreement at the Pentair special shareholders' meeting; or
- Tyco shareholders fail to approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution at the Tyco special shareholders' meeting.

In addition, Tyco may terminate the Merger Agreement for the following reasons, among others:

- there is a Pentair Change of Recommendation;
- if Pentair breaches or fails to perform in any material respect any of its representations, warranties, covenants or other agreements contained in the Merger Agreement or the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement such that any of the conditions described in the Merger Agreement or the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement cannot be satisfied and such failure has not been cured within 60 calendar days after Tyco provides written notice thereof to Pentair or where any such condition is incapable of being satisfied and has not been waived by Tyco.

Pentair may also terminate the Merger Agreement for the following reasons, among others:

- prior to the receipt of the Pentair shareholder approval, in order to enter into a written definitive agreement for a Pentair Superior Proposal (as defined under "The Merger Agreement—No Solicitation"), provided it has complied with certain conditions related to a Pentair Change of Recommendation;
- there is a Tyco Change of Recommendation;

- if Tyco breaches or fails to perform in any material respect any of its representations, warranties, covenants or other agreements contained in the Merger Agreement or the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement such that any of the conditions described in the Merger Agreement or the Separation and Tyco Flow Control Distribution Agreement cannot be satisfied and such failure has not been cured within 60 calendar days after Pentair provides written notice thereof to Tyco or where any such condition is incapable of being satisfied and has not been waived by Pentair.

Fees and Expenses

General. The Merger Agreement provides that each party will pay its own fees and expenses in connection with the Merger, except that Tyco and Pentair will share equally any filing fees in respect of any notice submitted pursuant to antitrust laws and any fees and expenses of printers utilized by the parties in connection with the preparation of the filings with the SEC required under the Merger Agreement.

Termination Fee. Pentair has agreed to pay to Tyco a termination fee of $145 million as liquidated damages in the following circumstances:

- Tyco terminates the Merger Agreement due to a Pentair Change of Recommendation; or
- prior to receipt of Pentair shareholders' approval of the Merger Agreement and the Merger, Pentair terminates the Merger Agreement to enter into a written definitive agreement for a Pentair Superior Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Pentair shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Pentair Takeover Proposal or publicly announces an intention to make a Pentair Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Pentair enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Pentair Takeover Proposal.

In addition, Tyco has agreed to pay Pentair a termination fee of $145 million as liquidated damages in the following circumstances:

- Pentair terminates the Merger Agreement due to a Tyco Change of Recommendation other than in connection with a Tyco Takeover Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Tyco shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or publicly announces an intention to make a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Tyco enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or a Tyco Takeover Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Tyco shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Tyco Takeover Proposal or publicly announces an intention to make a Tyco Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Tyco enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal.

Tyco has further agreed to pay Pentair a termination fee of $370 million as liquidated damages in the event that:

- Pentair terminates the Merger Agreement due to a Tyco Change of Recommendation in connection with a Tyco Takeover Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Tyco shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Tyco Takeover Proposal or publicly announces an intention to make a Tyco Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Tyco enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Tyco Takeover Proposal.

Pentair is not, in any event, to receive both the $145 million termination fee and the $370 million termination fee.

For purposes of determining the termination fees as described above, a Pentair Takeover Proposal, Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal and Tyco Takeover Proposal apply to a transaction relating to 50% of any class of equity securities, consolidated net revenues, net income or assets of Pentair, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, as applicable, rather than 10%.

Amendments

All amendments to the Merger Agreement must be in writing and signed by each party.

THE SEPARATION AND DISTRIBUTION AGREEMENTS AND THE ANCILLARY AGREEMENTS

Following the Distributions, Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control will operate independently, and none will have any ownership interest in any other. In order to govern certain ongoing relationships between Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control after the Distributions and to provide mechanisms for an orderly transition, Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco and ADT will enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and Tyco, ADT and/or Tyco Flow Control, as applicable, intend to enter into other agreements pursuant to which certain services and rights will be provided for following the Distributions, and Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control will indemnify each other against certain liabilities arising from their respective businesses. The following is a summary of the terms of the material agreements we have entered into or expect to enter into with ADT and Tyco Flow Control.

Neither this summary nor the summaries set forth in the ADT Preliminary Information Statement or the Tyco Flow Control Prospectus purport to be complete and they may not contain all of the information about these agreements that is important to you. These summaries are subject to, and qualified in their entirety by reference to, the agreements described below, the form of each of which will be included as an exhibit to ADT's Registration Statement on Form 10 and Tyco Flow Control's Registration Statement on Form S-1 filed with the SEC in connection with the Distributions and the Merger. You are encouraged to read each of these agreements carefully and in their entirety, as they are the primary legal documents governing the relationship between Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following the Distributions.

Descriptions regarding the assets and liabilities conveyed to Tyco Flow Control and ADT and retained by Tyco contained in the Separation and Distribution Agreements are qualified by certain information that has been exchanged between Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control and that is not reflected in the Separation and Distribution Agreements. Accordingly, shareholders should not rely on the general descriptions of assets and liabilities in the Separation and Distribution Agreements, as they have been modified in important ways by the information exchanged between Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control. Tyco does not believe that securities laws requires it to disclose publicly any information related to the Separation and Distribution Agreements other than information that has already been so disclosed or will be so disclosed in an amendment to this proxy statement.

Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement

Concurrently with the Merger Agreement, Tyco Flow Control entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement with Tyco and ADT. The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement sets forth Tyco Flow Control's agreement with Tyco and ADT regarding the principal transactions necessary to separate Tyco's flow control business from Tyco. It also sets forth other agreements that govern certain aspects of Tyco Flow Control's relationship with Tyco and its subsidiaries, including ADT, after the completion of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Tyco Flow Control Distribution Overview

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides for the spin-off of Tyco's flow control business from Tyco. Among other things, the agreement sets forth the process by and conditions under which Tyco will spin off its flow control business to the holders of Tyco common shares; specifies the relevant assets of Tyco and certain of its subsidiaries, including ADT and its subsidiaries, related to Tyco's flow control business to be transferred to Tyco Flow Control; and sets forth certain liabilities and covenants to be assumed by Tyco and Tyco Flow Control. As consideration for the spin-off, the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that, on the distribution date, each holder of Tyco common shares will be entitled to a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Post Closing Working Capital and Net Indebtedness Adjustments

Pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco Flow Control is required to have working capital, defined, subject to certain exceptions, as current assets minus current liabilities, in the amount of $798 million, as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. If the actual amount of the working capital exceeds $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco Flow Control will pay to Tyco the full amount of the excess. If the actual amount of the working capital is less than $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco will pay to Tyco Flow Control the full amount of the deficit.

Also, pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, before the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue an intercompany note to a subsidiary of Tyco in an amount not to exceed $500 million, which will be repaid at the closing of the Merger with proceeds to Tyco Flow Control from a third party financing upon terms negotiated by Pentair. If such third party financing is not available on terms acceptable to the parties, instead of a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control issuing to a subsidiary of Tyco the intercompany note that would be repaid at the closing of the Merger, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue a one year unsecured “bridge” note for up to $500 million to a subsidiary of Tyco in accordance with the Merger Agreement that will bear interest at a rate of 14.0% and be prepayable at any time. Tyco Flow Control is then to transfer cash and cash equivalents to Tyco such that the net indebtedness of Tyco Flow Control will be $275 million as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and as of 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, on the day of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. If the actual amount of net indebtedness as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution exceeds $275 million, Tyco will pay to Tyco Flow Control the full amount of the excess. If the actual amount of net indebtedness as of the close of business on the day prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution is less than $275 million, Tyco Flow Control will pay to Tyco the full amount of the deficit.

Transfer of Assets

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement identifies certain transfers of assets that are necessary in advance of separation of Tyco’s flow control business from Tyco so that each of Tyco Flow Control and Tyco retains the assets of, and the liabilities associated with, their respective businesses.

The assets to be assigned to, or retained, by Tyco Flow Control or its subsidiaries include the following:

- the ownership interests of Tyco Flow Control’s subsidiaries;
- all Tyco Flow Control contracts, any rights or claims arising thereunder, and any other rights or claims or contingent rights or claims primarily relating to, or arising from, any Tyco Flow Control asset or Tyco’s flow control business;
- any and all assets reflected on Tyco Flow Control’s audited balance sheet as of September 30, 2011 and any assets acquired by or for Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries subsequent to the date of such balance sheet which, had they been so acquired on or before such date and owned as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any dispositions of any of such assets subsequent to the date of such balance sheet not made in violation of the Merger Agreement;
- rights of Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries under any insurance policies and contracts, including any rights thereunder arising after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution in respect of any occurrence-based policies;
- any and all assets owned or held immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries that primarily relate to or are primarily used in Tyco’s flow control business;
- certain scheduled assets and any and all assets that are expressly contemplated as assets that have been or that are to be transferred to Tyco Flow Control or any its subsidiaries; and
- subject to certain exceptions, any and all furnishings and office equipment located at a physical site to the extent the ownership or leasehold interest with respect to such physical site is being transferred to, or retained by, Tyco Flow Control.

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that the assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco Flow Control or one of its subsidiaries will not in any event include any assets to the extent they are expressly contemplated to be retained by or transferred to Tyco or its subsidiaries under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or cash or cash equivalents of Tyco Flow Control held before the Tyco Flow Control Distribution except to the extent taken into account to determine the amount of Tyco Flow Control's required net indebtedness.

The assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco or its subsidiaries include the following:

- the ownership interests of Tyco's subsidiaries;
- all Tyco contracts, any rights or claims arising thereunder, and any other rights or claims or contingent rights or claims primarily relating to, or arising from, any asset owned by Tyco or Tyco's business other than those primarily relating to, or arising from, Tyco's flow control business;
- any and all assets reflected on Tyco's unaudited combined balance sheet as of September 30, 2011 prepared to give pro forma effect to the spin-off and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (but not the spin-off of ADT from Tyco and the ADT Distribution) and any assets acquired by or for Tyco or any subsidiary of Tyco subsequent to the date of such balance sheet which, had they been so acquired on or before such date and owned as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any dispositions of any of such assets subsequent to the date of such balance sheet not made in violation of the Merger Agreement;
- any and all rights of Tyco and its subsidiaries under any insurance policies and contracts;
- any and all assets owned or held immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries that primarily relate to or are primarily used in Tyco's business;
- certain scheduled assets and any and all assets that are expressly contemplated as assets that have been or that are to be transferred to Tyco or any of its subsidiaries; and
- subject to certain exceptions, any and all furnishings and office equipment located at a physical site to the extent the ownership or leasehold interest with respect to such physical site is being transferred to or retained by Tyco.

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that the assets transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco or its subsidiaries will not include any assets to the extent they are expressly contemplated as assets to be retained by or transferred to Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries.

Assumptions of Liabilities

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement also provides for the settlement or extinguishment of certain liabilities and other obligations between Tyco Flow Control and Tyco and identifies the liabilities and other obligations which each of Tyco Flow Control and Tyco and their respective subsidiaries will assume or retain.

The liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco Flow Control or one of its subsidiaries include the following:

- certain scheduled liabilities and any and all liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities that have been or that are to be assumed by Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries;
- any and all liabilities primarily relating to, arising out of or resulting from the operation or conduct of Tyco's flow control business whether arising before, on or after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, the operation or conduct of any business conducted by any subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, or any Tyco Flow Control assets, whether arising before, on or after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution;

- any liabilities to the extent relating to, arising out of or resulting from any terminated or divested business entity, business or operation formerly and primarily owned or managed by or primarily associated with Tyco's flow control business or any Tyco Flow Control subsidiary;
- 40% of certain contingent liabilities of Tyco;
- any liabilities relating to any Tyco Flow Control employee or former Tyco Flow Control employee before, on or after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution;
- any liabilities relating to, arising out of, or resulting from, (x) any indebtedness (including debt securities and asset-backed debt) of Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries or indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) incurred after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, and exclusively relating to Tyco's flow control business, (y) any indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) incurred after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and secured exclusively by any of Tyco Flow Control's assets (including any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from a claim by a holder of any such indebtedness, in its capacity as such) or (z) any indebtedness arising from the intercompany note, the "bridge" note or the issuance by a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control of up to $900 million of senior notes or certain scheduled guarantees; and
- all liabilities reflected as liabilities or obligations on Tyco Flow Control's balance sheet as of September 30, 2011, and all liabilities arising or assumed after the date of such balance sheet which, had they arisen or been assumed on or before such date and been retained as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any discharge of such liabilities subsequent to the date of the balance sheet.

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that the liabilities that are to be assumed or retained by Tyco Flow Control or one of its subsidiaries will not in any event include any of the following: (v) any liabilities of Yarway Corporation and Gimpel Corporation; (w) any liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities to be retained or assumed by Tyco or any of its other subsidiaries; (x) any contracts expressly assumed or expressly contemplated as liabilities to be assumed by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries; (y) any intercompany payables expressly discharged pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement and (z) any indebtedness for borrowed money or other intercompany payables and loans (other than obligations under capital leases) outstanding as of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution except to the extent taken into account in determining the amount of required net indebtedness.

The liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco or one of its subsidiaries include the following:

- certain scheduled liabilities and any and all liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities that have been or that are to be assumed by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries);
- any and all liabilities primarily relating to, arising out of or resulting from: (A) the operation or conduct of Tyco's business other than Tyco's flow control business as conducted at any time prior to, on or after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution; (B) the operation or conduct of any business conducted by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries other than the flow control business at any time after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution; or (C) any assets owned by Tyco, whether arising before, on or after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution;
- any liabilities to the extent relating to, arising out of or resulting from any terminated or divested business entity, business or operation formerly and primarily owned or managed by or primarily associated with Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries) or Tyco's business (other than Tyco's flow control business);
- any liabilities relating to any Tyco employee or former Tyco employee that does not become a Tyco Flow Control employee or former Tyco Flow Control employee immediately following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution;

- any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from (x) any indebtedness (including debt securities and asset-backed debt) of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries or indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) exclusively relating to the Tyco business (other than Tyco's flow control business) or (y) any indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) secured exclusively by any of Tyco's assets (including any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from a claim by a holder of any such indebtedness, in its capacity as such);
- all liabilities reflected as liabilities or obligations on Tyco's unaudited combined balance sheet as of September 30, 2011 prepared to give pro forma effect to the Separation and the Distribution (but not the separation of ADT from Tyco and the ADT Distribution) and all liabilities arising or assumed after the date of such balance sheet which, had they arisen or been assumed on or before such date and been retained as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any discharge of such liabilities subsequent to the date of Tyco's balance sheet; and
- any liabilities of Yarway Corporation and Gimpel Corporation.

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that the liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco or one of its subsidiaries shall not include: (x) any liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities to be retained or assumed by Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries; (y) any contracts expressly assumed by Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries; and (z) any intercompany payables expressly discharged pursuant to the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. For purposes of determining which liabilities should be assumed or retained by Tyco, any other liabilities that are not Tyco Flow Control liabilities shall be Tyco liabilities.

Consents and Delayed Transfers

If any transfers or assumptions are not consummated by the closing of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are to use reasonable best efforts to effect such transfers and assumptions while holding such assets or liabilities for the benefit of the appropriate party so that all the benefits and burdens relating to such asset or liability inure to the party entitled to receive or assume such asset or liability. Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are to use reasonable best efforts to obtain consents required to transfer assets and contracts and to novate obligations under contracts and liabilities as necessary to effectuate the spin-off. Additionally, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will use reasonable best efforts to remove Tyco Flow Control as a guarantor of liabilities retained by Tyco and its subsidiaries and to remove Tyco and its subsidiaries as a guarantor of liabilities to be assumed by Tyco Flow Control.

Shared Contracts

Certain shared contracts are to be assigned or amended to facilitate the separation of Tyco's flow control business from Tyco. If such contracts may not be assigned or amended, the parties are required to take reasonable actions to cause the appropriate party to receive the benefit of the contract after the spin-off is complete.

Intercompany Arrangements and Guarantees

A series of intercompany transactions will be undertaken in order to transfer the equity interests in certain subsidiaries of Tyco which hold assets and liabilities associated with Tyco's flow control business to Tyco Flow Control. These will include the settlement and forgiveness of intercompany payables and receivables among Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries and Tyco and its subsidiaries, respectively. Except for matters covered by the Ancillary Agreements or other arm's-length transactions entered into in the ordinary course of business, any and all agreements, arrangements, commitments and understandings, including all intercompany accounts payable or accounts receivable, between Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries and other affiliates, and Tyco and its subsidiaries and other affiliates, respectively, will terminate as of the distribution date.

Mutual Releases and Indemnification

Except as otherwise provided in the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, each of Tyco Flow Control and Tyco has agreed to release the other and its affiliates, successors and assigns, directors, officers, agents and employees from any claims against any of them that arise out of or relate to events, circumstances or actions occurring or failing to occur or any conditions existing at or prior to the time of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, however, provides that neither party will be released from the following liabilities:

- with respect to Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries), any liability assumed or retained by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries) and, with respect to Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries, any liability of Tyco Flow Control assumed or retained by Tyco Flow Control or its subsidiaries;

- any liability for unpaid amounts for products or services or refunds owing on products or services due on a value-received basis for work done by a party at the request or on behalf of another party;
- any liability provided in, or resulting from, any other contract or understanding that is entered into after the effective time of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution between any party or any of its subsidiaries, on the one hand, and the other party or any of its subsidiaries, on the other hand;
- any liability with respect to certain contingent liabilities of Tyco;
- any liability with respect to certain continuing arrangements;
- any liability with respect to the insurance policies written by White Mountain Insurance Company;
- any liability that the parties may have with respect to indemnification or contribution pursuant to the Merger Agreement, the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or otherwise for claims brought against the parties by third persons; and
- any liability for fraud or willful misconduct.

In addition, nothing will release Tyco from (i) indemnifying any director, officer or employee of Tyco Flow Control who was a director, officer or employee of Tyco or any of its affiliates on or prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, to the extent such director, officer or employee is or becomes a named defendant in any action with respect to which he or she was entitled to such indemnification pursuant to then existing obligations or (ii) any liability owed to Pentair pursuant to the Merger Agreement.

Under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Tyco Flow Control from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with (a) the liabilities retained or allegedly retained by Tyco, including, after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, the failure of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries) to pay, perform, fulfill, discharge and, to the extent applicable, comply with, in due course and in full, any such liabilities, (b) any breach by Tyco of any provision of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement unless such Ancillary Agreement expressly provides for separate indemnification therein, in which case any such indemnification claims shall be made thereunder and (c) any breach by Tyco or any of its affiliates (including Tyco Flow Control other than with respect to any post-closing obligation of Tyco Flow Control) of any covenant, or inaccuracy of any representation and warranty made by Tyco, in the Merger Agreement that survives the closing of the Merger.

Under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco Flow Control agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Tyco and its subsidiaries (including ADT) from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with (a) the liabilities of Tyco's flow control business or alleged liabilities, including, after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, the failure of Tyco Flow Control or any of its subsidiaries to pay, perform, fulfill, discharge and, to the extent applicable, comply with, in due course and in full, any such liabilities, (b) any breach by Tyco Flow Control of any provision of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or any Ancillary Agreement unless such Ancillary Agreement expressly provides for separate indemnification therein, in which case any such indemnification claims shall be made thereunder and (c) any breach by Tyco Flow Control or any of its affiliates of any covenant, or inaccuracy of any representation and warranty made by Tyco, in the Merger Agreement that survives the closing of the Merger.

Under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Tyco and its subsidiaries (other than Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries) and Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with certain specified sections of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement to which it is a party. Each of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control agreed to indemnify, defend and hold harmless ADT and its subsidiaries from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with such specified sections of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Tyco Flow Control Stock and Incentive Plan

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that, prior to the spin-off, Tyco will cause Tyco Flow Control to adopt an equity compensation plan for the benefit of the employees of Tyco Flow Control, which will be in a form agreed to by the parties within 90 days following the date of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. In the event that, after reasonable consultation between the parties, the parties are unable to agree on the form of the equity compensation plan, the form of such plan will be based on Pentair's 2008 Omnibus Stock Incentive Plan.

Non-Solicitation and Non-Competition

For two years after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, Tyco, ADT, Tyco Flow Control, Pentair and their subsidiaries must refrain from, either directly or indirectly, hiring employees or independent contractors of another party at or above a specified management level (a "Restricted Person") without the prior written consent of the Senior Vice President for Human Resources of such party. In addition, for two years after the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, Tyco, ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair must refrain from, either directly or indirectly, soliciting, aiding or inducing any Restricted Person to leave his employment, provided that any general solicitation through advertisements and search firms not specifically directed at employees of the party are permitted, so long as the soliciting party has not encouraged or advised such employment firm to approach any such employee.

For three years following the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Transactions, neither Tyco, ADT and their subsidiaries, on one hand, nor Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, may establish or acquire any new businesses that involve the sale of products or the provision of services that compete with the business of Tyco and ADT, on one hand, or the business of Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, subject to certain exceptions, including for ownership of securities in entities at various specified thresholds.

Employee Matters

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement sets forth the agreements between Tyco and Tyco Flow Control as to certain employee compensation and benefit matters. In general, employees of Tyco Flow Control participate in various Tyco retirement, health and welfare and other employee benefit plans. After the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, it is anticipated that employees of Tyco Flow Control will generally participate in similar plans and arrangements established and maintained by Tyco Flow Control. Except as expressly provided in the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco Flow Control employees will immediately cease active participation in Tyco benefit plans.

Conversion of Equity Awards

Options to purchase Tyco common shares (“Tyco Options”), restricted stock units with respect to Tyco common shares (“Tyco RSUs”) and performance share units with respect to Tyco common shares (“Tyco PSUs” and, together with Tyco Options and Tyco RSUs, “Tyco Equity Awards”) have been granted to various Tyco employees, including employees in Tyco’s flow control business who will become officers and employees of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off.

Under the terms of the stock and incentive plans under which the outstanding Tyco Equity Awards were issued, the Tyco Compensation Committee has the authority to make equitable adjustments to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards in the event of certain transactions, including the distribution of Tyco Flow Control common shares in connection with the spin-off. Accordingly, the Tyco Compensation Committee has authorized that various adjustments be made to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Tyco Equity Awards following the spin-off, as discussed below. These adjustments will be made in the same manner for all employees of Tyco who will become employees of Tyco Flow Control who hold Tyco Equity Awards. Any options to purchase, or awards relating to, our common stock issued in connection with such adjustments will be our obligations.

Tyco Flow Control intends to file a registration statement with respect to shares of our common stock issuable upon exercise, or vesting, of the equity awards that we issue, as soon as practicable following the effective date of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

Treatment of Tyco Options

Each Tyco Option that is held, as of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, by a Tyco employee who will become an employee of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off, (other than a Tyco Option held by a Tyco corporate-level employee that was granted prior to October 12, 2011), will be converted into an option to acquire Tyco Flow Control shares of common stock, in the following manner:

- each converted option will be exercisable for a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by multiplying the number of Tyco common shares for which the option is exercisable by a fraction, the numerator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, and the denominator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) rounded down to the nearest whole share; and
- each converted option will have an exercise price equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent.

Each Tyco Option that was granted prior to October 12, 2011, and that is held, as of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, by a Tyco director or by certain specified corporate-level employees of Tyco who will not become employees of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off, will be converted into an option to separately acquire an equal number of Tyco Flow Control common shares and Tyco common shares and shares of ADT common stock in the following manner:

- the adjusted number of shares subject to each option to acquire:
  - Tyco shares will be determined by multiplying the number of Tyco shares for which the Tyco Option is exercisable by a fraction, the numerator of which is the aggregate spread of the original Tyco Option, calculated by reference to the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, and the denominator of which is the sum of (a) the ex-distribution closing trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions minus the adjusted exercise price for Tyco options described below, (b) the product of (1) the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions) minus the adjusted exercise price for Tyco Flow Control options described below and (2) the distribution ratio for shares of Tyco Flow Control (which shall be determined on the distribution date), and (c) the product of (1) the when-issued closing trading price of ADT shares of common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions minus the adjusted exercise price for ADT options described below and (2) the distribution ratio for shares of ADT of 0.5 (based on one share of ADT common stock for every two shares of Tyco common stock outstanding as of the record date), rounded down to the nearest whole share;
  - Tyco Flow Control shares will be determined by multiplying the number of Tyco shares subject to the converted option by the distribution ratio for shares of Tyco Flow Control (which shall be determined on the distribution date); and
  - ADT shares will be determined by multiplying the number of Tyco shares subject to the converted option by the distribution ratio for shares of ADT of 0.5 (based on one share of ADT common stock for every two shares of Tyco common stock outstanding as of the record date).
- each converted option will have an exercise price as follows: the exercise price of each Tyco Flow Control option will be equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (or in the absence of a when-issued trading market, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent; the exercise price of each ADT option will be equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the ADT Distribution multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of ADT common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the ADT Distribution and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the ADT Distribution, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent; and the exercise price of each Tyco option will be equal to the exercise price of the Tyco option prior to the Distributions multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the ex-distribution closing trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent.

Each converted option will take into account all employment with both Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for purposes of determining when the option vests and terminates.

Treatment of Tyco RSUs

Except as provided below, each Tyco RSU that was granted on or after October 12, 2011, and that is held, as of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, by a Tyco employee who will become an employee of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off, will be converted into a number of Tyco Flow Control restricted stock units determined by multiplying the number of Tyco RSUs by a fraction, the numerator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the denominator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution).

Each Tyco RSU that (i) was granted prior to October 12, 2011 and that is outstanding as of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution or (ii) is held by former Tyco employees or former members of the Tyco board of directors who no longer serve on Tyco's board of directors as of the spin-off will be converted into the right to receive, in addition to the Tyco RSUs, an additional award of ADT restricted stock units and Tyco Flow Control restricted stock units. The number of additional restricted stock units of ADT and Tyco Flow Control will equal the number of common shares that the holder thereof would be entitled to if such restricted stock units were with respect to Tyco common shares.

The Tyco Flow Control Distribution will not have any other effect on the Tyco RSUs being converted to ADT, Tyco Flow Control or new Tyco restricted stock units, as applicable, and such converted restricted stock units will be subject to the same terms and conditions as apply to Tyco RSUs. Each converted restricted stock unit will take into account all employment with both Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for purposes of determining when the award vests. Fractional restricted stock units will be adjusted or compensated by the Tyco Compensation Committee as appropriate in the sole discretion of the Tyco Compensation Committee.

Treatment of Tyco PSUs

Each Tyco PSU outstanding as of June 29, 2012 that is held by a Tyco employee who will become an employee of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off, will be converted into Tyco restricted stock units based on performance results through June 29, 2012. The resulting Tyco RSUs held as of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution will then be converted into the right to receive a number of Tyco Flow Control RSUs determined by multiplying the number of such Tyco RSUs by a fraction, the numerator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the denominator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) rounded down to the nearest whole share. The Tyco Compensation Committee will determine the level of performance attained with respect to the Tyco PSUs that convert into Tyco RSUs as of June 29, 2012.

Each Tyco PSU (i) that was granted prior to October 12, 2011, and that is held, as of June 29, 2012, by certain specified corporate-level employees of Tyco who will not become employees of Tyco Flow Control following the spin-off or (ii) that is held by former Tyco employees, will be converted into Tyco RSUs based on performance results through June 29, 2012. As of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution Date, such Tyco RSUs will then be converted into the right to receive the same number of Tyco RSUs and an additional award of ADT restricted stock units and Tyco Flow Control restricted stock units. The number of additional restricted stock units of ADT and Tyco Flow Control will equal the number of common shares that the holder thereof would be entitled to if such restricted stock units were with respect to Tyco common shares.

The Tyco PSUs that are ultimately converted into Tyco Flow Control restricted stock units will have a vesting period that is identical to the vesting period for the Tyco PSUs (generally, three years from grant date), and will take into account all employment with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for these purposes. All other terms and conditions of the converted awards will be equivalent to those that apply to Tyco PSUs. Fractional shares will be adjusted or compensated by the Tyco Compensation Committee as appropriate in the sole discretion of the Tyco Compensation Committee.

Exchange of Information

Tyco Flow Control and Tyco have agreed to provide each other with information reasonably necessary to comply with reporting, disclosure, filing or other requirements of any national securities exchange or governmental authority, for use in judicial, regulatory, administrative and other proceedings and to satisfy audit, accounting, litigation and other similar requests. Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco have also agreed to retain such information until the latest of (i) seven years following the distribution date or (ii) the date on which such records are no longer required to be retained pursuant to each party's applicable record retention policy and schedules as in effect immediately prior to the distribution date.

Conditions and Termination

Under the terms of the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution is conditioned upon (i) the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco's obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and (ii) each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger. For a more detailed description of the Merger conditions see "The Merger Agreement Conditions to the Completion of the Merger."

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that prior to the distribution date it may be terminated by the mutual consent of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT, but only in the event that the Merger Agreement has been terminated pursuant to its terms.

Parties in Interest

The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement provides that Pentair is a third party beneficiary and that the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement may not be amended, and the rights under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement may not be waived, without the prior written consent of Pentair. In addition, under the Merger Agreement, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are obligated to keep Pentair reasonably informed of its progress in obtaining any necessary or advisable consents or governmental approvals, and other aspects of the spin-off and Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement

We intend to enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement with ADT before the ADT Distribution. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will set forth our agreement with ADT regarding the principal transactions necessary to separate ADT from us. It will set forth other agreements that govern certain aspects of our relationship with ADT after the completion of the ADT spin-off.

ADT Distribution Overview

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide for the spin-off of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada. Among other things, the agreement will: set forth the process by and conditions under which Tyco will spin off its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada to the holders of its common shares; specify the relevant assets of Tyco and certain of its subsidiaries related to ADT's business to be transferred to ADT; and set forth certain liabilities and covenants to be assumed by Tyco and ADT. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that, on the distribution date, each holder of Tyco common shares will be entitled to one share of ADT common stock for every two Tyco common shares held on the record date for the ADT Distribution.

Cash Adjustment

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will include a provision for a cash adjustment immediately prior to the closing of the ADT Distribution. Pursuant to this provision, the target amount of cash at ADT immediately following the ADT Distribution is $300 million. However, the actual amount that will be available will depend on the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries at the time of the ADT Distribution (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries). If immediately prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), after (1) subtracting certain unpaid transaction expenses arising in connection with the ADT spin-off and certain other unpaid liabilities, if any, and (2) giving credit for $200 million of cash to be paid by Tyco Flow Control (or Pentair) to Tyco immediately prior to the ADT Distribution, in each case, as set forth in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, would be less than $700 million, then ADT's cash balance shall be reduced by an amount equal to (i) the amount by which the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), after giving effect to the adjustments described above, is below $700 million (ii) multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters by ADT and its subsidiaries and the denominator of which is the free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters by ADT, Tyco and their respective subsidiaries (excluding Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), collectively. In the event that the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), after giving effect to the adjustments described above, is greater than $700 million, such excess cash will be allocated to each of ADT and Tyco on the basis of each party's respective contribution to free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters.

Transfer of Assets

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will identify certain transfers of assets that are necessary in advance of ADT's separation from Tyco so that each of ADT and Tyco retains the assets of, and the liabilities associated with, their respective businesses.

The assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by ADT or its subsidiaries will include the following:

- the ownership interests of ADT's subsidiaries;
- all ADT contracts, any rights or claims arising thereunder, and any other rights or claims or contingent rights or claims primarily relating to, or arising from, any ADT asset or Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- any and all assets (other than cash subject to the cash adjustment described above) reflected on ADT's balance sheet as of August 31, 2012 and any assets acquired by or for ADT or any of its subsidiaries subsequent to the date of such balance sheet which, had they been so acquired on or before such date and owned as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any dispositions of any of such assets subsequent to the date of such balance sheet;
- rights of ADT and its subsidiaries under any insurance policies and contracts, including any rights thereunder arising after the ADT Distribution in respect of any occurrence-based policies;
- any and all assets owned or held immediately prior to the ADT Distribution by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries that primarily relate to or are primarily used in Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;

- certain scheduled assets and any and all assets that are expressly contemplated as assets that have been or that are to be transferred to ADT or any of its subsidiaries;
- subject to certain exceptions, any and all furnishings and office equipment located at a physical site to the extent the ownership or leasehold interest with respect to such physical site is being transferred to, or retained by, ADT; and
- 34.375% of certain Tyco contingent assets arising under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by ADT or one of its subsidiaries will not in any event include any assets to the extent they are expressly contemplated to be retained by or transferred to Tyco or its subsidiaries under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

The assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco or its subsidiaries will include the following:

- the ownership interests in Tyco's subsidiaries;
- all Tyco contracts, any rights or claims arising thereunder, and any other rights or claims or contingent rights or claims primarily relating to, or arising from, any asset owned by Tyco or Tyco's business other than those primarily relating to, or arising from, Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- any and all assets (except that cash shall be subject to the cash adjustment described above) reflected on Tyco's unaudited combined balance sheet as of August 31, 2012 prepared to give pro forma effect to the ADT spin-off and the ADT Distribution (but not the separation of Tyco Flow Control from Tyco and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and any assets acquired by or for Tyco or any subsidiary of Tyco subsequent to the date of such balance sheet which, had they been so acquired on or before such date and owned as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any dispositions of any of such assets subsequent to the date of such balance sheet;
- any and all rights of Tyco and its subsidiaries under any insurance policies and contracts;
- any and all assets owned or held immediately prior to the ADT Distribution by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries that primarily relate to or are primarily used in Tyco's business;
- certain scheduled assets and any and all assets that are expressly contemplated as assets that have been or that are to be transferred to Tyco or any of its subsidiaries; and
- subject to certain exceptions, any and all furnishings and office equipment located at a physical site to the extent the ownership or leasehold interest with respect to such physical site is being transferred to or retained by Tyco.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the assets transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco or its subsidiaries will not include any assets to the extent they are expressly contemplated as assets to be retained by or transferred to ADT or any of its subsidiaries.

Assumptions of Liabilities

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will also provide for the settlement or extinguishment of certain liabilities and other obligations between ADT and Tyco and identify the liabilities and other obligations which each of ADT and Tyco and their respective subsidiaries will assume or retain.

The liabilities to be assumed or retained by ADT or one of its subsidiaries will include the following:

- certain scheduled liabilities and any and all liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities that have been or that are to be assumed by ADT or any of its subsidiaries;

- any and all liabilities primarily relating to, arising out of or resulting from the operation or conduct of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada whether arising before, on or after the ADT Distribution, the operation or conduct of any business conducted by any subsidiary of ADT after the ADT Distribution, or any ADT assets, whether arising before, on or after the ADT Distribution;
- any liabilities to the extent relating to, arising out of or resulting from any terminated or divested business entity, business or operation formerly and primarily owned or managed by or primarily associated with Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada or any ADT subsidiary;
- subject to limited exceptions, 34.375% of certain contingent liabilities of Tyco relating to obligations under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or arising from certain outstanding litigation;
- any liabilities relating to any ADT employee or former ADT employee before, on or after the ADT Distribution;
- any liabilities relating to, arising out of, or resulting from, (x) any indebtedness (including debt securities and asset-backed debt) of ADT or any of its subsidiaries or indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) incurred after the ADT Distribution, and exclusively relating to Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and (y) any indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) incurred after the ADT Distribution and secured exclusively by any of ADT's assets (including any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from a claim by a holder of any such indebtedness, in its capacity as such);
- certain specified shared expenses; and
- all liabilities reflected as liabilities or obligations on ADT's balance sheet as of August 31, 2012, and all liabilities arising or assumed after the date of such balance sheet which, had they arisen or been assumed on or before such date and been retained as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any discharge of such liabilities subsequent to the date of the balance sheet.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the liabilities that are to be assumed or retained by ADT or one of its subsidiaries will not in any event include any of the following: (x) any liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities to be retained or assumed by Tyco or any of its other subsidiaries; (y) any contracts expressly assumed or expressly contemplated as liabilities to be assumed by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries; and (z) any intercompany payables expressly discharged pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

The liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco or one of its subsidiaries will include the following:

- certain scheduled liabilities and any and all liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities that have been or that are to be assumed by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries);
- any and all liabilities primarily relating to, arising out of or resulting from: (A) the operation or conduct of Tyco's business other than Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada as conducted at any time prior to, on or after the ADT Distribution; (B) the operation or conduct of any business conducted by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries other than the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada at any time after the ADT Distribution; or (C) any assets owned by Tyco, whether arising before, on or after the ADT Distribution;
- any liabilities to the extent relating to, arising out of or resulting from any terminated or divested business entity, business or operation formerly and primarily owned or managed by or primarily associated with Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries) or Tyco's business (other than Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada);

- any liabilities relating to any Tyco employee or former Tyco employee that is not an ADT employee or former ADT employee immediately following the ADT Distribution;
- any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from (x) any indebtedness (including debt securities and asset-backed debt) of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries or indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) exclusively relating to the Tyco business (other than Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada) or (y) any indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) secured exclusively by any of Tyco's assets (including any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from a claim by a holder of any such indebtedness, in its capacity as such);
- certain specified shared expenses; and
- all liabilities reflected as liabilities or obligations on Tyco's unaudited combined balance sheet as of August 31, 2012 prepared to give pro forma effect to the ADT spin-off and the ADT Distribution (but not the separation of Tyco Flow Control from Tyco and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and all liabilities arising or assumed after the date of such balance sheet which, had they arisen or been assumed on or before such date and been retained as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any discharge of such liabilities subsequent to the date of Tyco's balance sheet.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco or one of its subsidiaries shall not include: (w) any liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities to be retained or assumed by ADT or any of its subsidiaries; (x) any contracts expressly assumed by ADT or any of its subsidiaries; and (y) any intercompany payables expressly discharged pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Consents and Delayed Transfers

If any transfers or assumptions are not consummated by the closing of the ADT Distribution, Tyco and ADT are to use reasonable best efforts to effect such transfers and assumptions while holding such assets or liabilities for the benefit of the appropriate party so that all the benefits and burdens relating to such asset or liability inure to the party entitled to receive or assume such asset or liability. Tyco and ADT are to use reasonable best efforts to obtain consents required to transfer assets and contracts and to novate obligations under contracts and liabilities as necessary to effectuate the ADT spin-off. Additionally, Tyco and ADT will use reasonable best efforts to remove ADT as a guarantor of liabilities retained by Tyco and its subsidiaries and to remove Tyco and its subsidiaries as a guarantor of liabilities to be assumed by ADT.

Shared Contracts

Certain shared contracts are to be assigned or amended to facilitate the separation of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada from Tyco. If such contracts may not be assigned or amended, the parties are required to take reasonable actions to cause the appropriate party to receive the benefit of the contract after the ADT spin-off is complete.

Intercompany Arrangements and Guarantees

A series of intercompany transactions will be undertaken in order to transfer the equity interests in certain subsidiaries of Tyco which hold assets and liabilities associated with Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada to ADT. These will include the settlement and forgiveness of intercompany payables and receivables among ADT and its subsidiaries and Tyco and its subsidiaries, respectively. Except for matters covered by the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or in any ancillary agreement or other arm's-length transactions entered into in the ordinary course of business, any and all agreements, arrangements, commitments and understandings, including all intercompany accounts payable or accounts receivable, between ADT and its subsidiaries and other affiliates and Tyco and its subsidiaries and other affiliates, respectively, will terminate as of the distribution date.

Mutual Releases and Indemnification

Except as otherwise provided in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco and ADT have agreed to release the other and its affiliates, successors and assigns, directors, officers, agents and employees from any claims against any of them that arise out of or relate to events, circumstances or actions occurring or failing to occur or any conditions existing at or prior to the time of the ADT Distribution. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, however, will provide that neither party will be released from the following liabilities:

- with respect to Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries), any liability assumed or retained by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries) and, with respect to ADT or any of its subsidiaries, any liability of ADT assumed or retained by ADT or its subsidiaries;
- any liability for the sale, lease, construction or receipt of goods, property or services purchased, obtained or used in the ordinary course of business by a party from, or on behalf of, another party prior to the effective time of the ADT Distribution;
- any liability for unpaid amounts for products or services or refunds owing on products or services due on a value-received basis for work done by a party at the request or on behalf of another party;
- any liability provided in, or resulting from, any other contract or understanding that is entered into after the effective time of the ADT Distribution between any party or any of its subsidiaries, on the one hand, and the other party or any of its subsidiaries, on the other hand;
- any liability with respect to certain contingent liabilities of Tyco;
- any liability with respect to certain continuing arrangements;
- any liability with respect to insurance policies written by Tyco's captive insurance subsidiary; and
- any liability that the parties may have with respect to indemnification or contribution pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement or otherwise for claims brought against the parties by third persons.

Under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco will agree to indemnify, defend and hold harmless ADT from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with (a) the liabilities retained or allegedly retained by Tyco, including, after the ADT Distribution, the failure of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries) to pay, perform, fulfill, discharge and, to the extent applicable, comply with, in due course and in full, any such liabilities and (b) any breach by Tyco of any provision of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement or any ancillary agreement unless such ancillary agreement expressly provides for separate indemnification therein, in which case any such indemnification claims shall be made thereunder.

Under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT will agree to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Tyco and its subsidiaries (including Tyco Flow Control) from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with (a) the liabilities of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada or alleged liabilities, including, after the ADT Distribution, the failure of ADT or any of its subsidiaries to pay, perform, fulfill, discharge and, to the extent applicable, comply with, in due course and in full, any such liabilities and (b) any breach by ADT of any provision of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement or any ancillary agreement unless such ancillary agreement expressly provides for separate indemnification therein, in which case any such indemnification claims shall be made thereunder.

ADT Stock and Incentive Plan

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that, prior to the ADT spin-off, Tyco will cause ADT to adopt an equity compensation plan for the benefit of the employees of ADT, which will be in a form agreed to by the parties within 90 days following the date of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Non-Solicitation and Non-Competition

Each of ADT and Tyco has agreed that for a period of two years from the ADT Distribution (other than for locations in which sales personnel of members of each of ADT's and Tyco's respective groups are collocated for which the non-compete period shall be extended until such collocation terminates), none of ADT, Tyco or members of their respective groups shall engage in certain competitive activities with respect to the other party's respective businesses in the United States and Canada, subject to (i) certain customary exceptions and (ii) exceptions for certain activities currently being conducted by each of the ADT or Tyco businesses, as applicable. Generally, for the non-compete period (i) ADT is prohibited from manufacturing or selling products and providing installation, monitoring and maintenance services related to security, fire detection, fire suppression and life safety for commercial, industrial, retail, institutional and governmental customers (other than to residential or small business customers ("Small Business Customers") owning or operating an enterprise where the secured space is 7,500 square feet or less) and (ii) Tyco is prohibited from providing monitoring and certain on-premise installation and maintenance security services to residential and Small Business Customers. Additionally, each of Tyco and ADT has agreed for a period of two years from the ADT Distribution not to solicit customers of the other party.

Employee Matters

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will set forth the agreements between us and ADT as to certain employee compensation and benefit matters. In general, employees of ADT participate in various Tyco retirement, health and welfare and other employee benefit plans. After the ADT Distribution, it is anticipated that ADT's employees will generally participate in similar plans and arrangements established and maintained by ADT. Except as to be expressly provided in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT employees will immediately cease active participation in Tyco benefit plans. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will also specify that, for a period of two years after the ADT Distribution, ADT and Tyco will refrain from, either directly or indirectly, hiring employees or independent contractors of the other party without first obtaining the prior written consent of the senior human resources officer of the other party.

Conversion of Equity Awards

Options to purchase Tyco Options, restricted stock units with respect to Tyco RSUs and performance share units with respect to Tyco PSUs have been granted to various Tyco employees, including employees in Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada who will become officers and employees of ADT following the spin-off.

Under the terms of the stock and incentive plans under which the outstanding Tyco Equity Awards were issued, the Tyco Compensation Committee has the authority to make equitable adjustments to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards in the event of certain transactions, including the distribution of shares of ADT common stock in connection with the ADT spin-off. Accordingly, the Tyco Compensation Committee has authorized that various adjustments be made to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Tyco Equity Awards following the ADT spin-off. These adjustments will be made in the same manner for all employees of Tyco who will become employees of ADT who hold Tyco Equity Awards, including ADT's executive officers. Any options to purchase, or awards relating to, our common stock issued in connection with such adjustments will be our obligations.

ADT intends to file a registration statement with respect to shares of its common stock issuable upon exercise, or vesting, of the equity awards that it issues, prior to the ADT Distribution.

Exchange of Information

Tyco and ADT will agree to provide each other with information reasonably necessary to comply with reporting, disclosure, filing or other requirements of any national securities exchange or governmental authority, for use in judicial, regulatory, administrative and other proceedings and to satisfy audit, accounting, litigation and other similar requests. Tyco and ADT will also agree to retain such information until the latest of (i) seven years following the distribution date or (ii) the date on which such records are no longer required to be retained pursuant to each party's applicable records retention policy.

Conditions and Termination

Under the terms of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, the consummation of the ADT Distribution is subject to the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of the following conditions:

- Tyco shall have obtained the approval of the ADT Distribution from its stockholders;
- the SEC shall have declared effective ADT's registration statement on Form 10, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the registration statement shall be in effect;
- ADT's common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code; and such letter ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the distribution of ADT's common stock to Tyco shareholders to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of ADT's common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax, shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution;
- based on the closing price of the shares of ADT common stock trading on the last "when-issued" trading day prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate implied market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion; and
- the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and each of the ancillary agreements contemplated by the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement shall have been executed by each party thereto, and each of the internal transactions contemplated by such agreements to have been completed prior to the ADT Distribution shall have been completed.

In addition, we expect that prior to the ADT Distribution the following conditions will be either met or waived:

- Tyco shall have received the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the ADT Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- Tyco shall have received the opinions of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- Tyco shall have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the Distributions and the ordinary cash dividend to Tyco shareholders proposed in Tyco's proxy statement comply with Swiss law.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that prior to the distribution date it may be terminated by the mutual consent of ADT and Tyco.

ADT Transition Services Agreements

We intend to enter into transition services agreements with ADT in connection with the transactions, including a master transition services agreement and an agreement governing the provision of services in Canada (collectively, the "ADT Transition Services Agreements"). Pursuant to these agreements, ADT and Tyco will provide to each other certain transition services from the period beginning on or prior to the distribution date and generally ending within two years after the commencement of such services, subject in certain cases to the right of the service recipient to extend the initial term or to terminate services early. The transition services to be provided under each of the agreements are intended to facilitate an orderly and efficient separation of the residential and small business security business of ADT from Tyco's commercial security segment. The fees payable by a service recipient under the agreements are on an arm's length basis and generally based on the cost of the service provided plus associated taxes, costs and expenses during the initial term, and a markup of 125% or 150% of cost for periods following the initial term (depending on the length of the time period beyond the initial term).

In addition, under the master transition services agreement, Tyco will acquire certain third-party products and supply them to ADT for installation at ADT customer sites. Tyco will also provide end to end supply chain management for ADT under the agreement, including warehouse and logistics services, for certain third party and Tyco products used by ADT in its operations. The logistics and supply services will be provided by Tyco under the agreement beginning on or prior to the ADT Distribution and ending within two years after the commencement of such services, subject in certain cases to extension of the initial term or early termination. The fees payable by ADT to Tyco for products supplied under this arrangement will be based on (i) the arm's length purchase price of the products paid to the product manufacturer plus (ii) a mark-up approximately equal to Tyco's cost of providing warehouse and logistics services for the products supplied to ADT. At the end of the agreement, ADT may be required to purchase from Tyco a portion of the remaining inventory of Tyco and third party product held by Tyco for supply to ADT.

Tyco Flow Control Transition Services Agreement

We intend to enter into a transition services agreement with Tyco Flow Control in connection with the Transactions (the "Tyco Flow Control Transition Services Agreement"). Pursuant to this agreement, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco will provide to each other certain transition services from the period beginning on or prior to the distribution date and generally ending within two years after the commencement of such services, subject in certain cases to the right of the service recipient to terminate services early. The transition services to be provided under the agreement are intended to facilitate an orderly and efficient separation of Tyco's flow control business from Tyco's remaining businesses. The fees payable by a service recipient under the agreement are on an arm's length basis and generally based on the cost of the service provided plus associated taxes, costs and expenses.

2012 Tax Sharing Agreement

Prior to the Distribution, Tyco intends to enter into the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement with Tyco Flow Control and ADT that will govern the respective rights, responsibilities and obligations of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control after the spin-offs with respect to tax liabilities and benefits, tax attributes, tax contests and other tax matters regarding income taxes, other taxes and related tax returns. Because certain of Tyco Flow Control's and ADT's subsidiaries are members of one of Tyco's U.S. consolidated groups, they have (and will continue to have following the spin-off) several liability with Tyco to the IRS for the consolidated U.S. federal income taxes of such consolidated group relating to the taxable periods in which its subsidiaries were part of such consolidated group. We expect that the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will provide that Tyco Flow Control, Tyco and ADT will share (i) certain pre-Distribution income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to Tyco Flow Control's, Tyco's and ADT's U.S. income tax returns, and (ii) payments required to be made by Tyco with respect to the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement (collectively, "Shared Tax Liabilities"). Tyco will be responsible for the first $500 million of Shared Tax Liabilities. Tyco Flow Control and ADT will share 42% and 58%, respectively, of the next $225 million of Shared Tax Liabilities. Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco will share 20%, 27.5% and 52.5%, respectively, of Shared Tax Liabilities above $725 million.

In the event the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in connection therewith were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distributions by us, ADT or Tyco Flow Control, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on us, ADT or Tyco Flow Control as a result thereof. Taxes resulting from the determination that the Distributions or any internal transactions that were intended to be tax-free, are taxable are referred to herein as "Distribution Taxes." If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distributions by us, ADT or Tyco Flow Control, then we, ADT and Tyco Flow Control would be responsible for any Distribution Taxes imposed on us, ADT or Tyco Flow Control as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as we share Shared Tax Liabilities. ADT will have sole responsibility for any income tax liability arising as a result of Tyco's acquisition of Brink's Home Security Holdings, Inc. ("BHS") in May 2010, including any liability of BHS under the tax sharing agreement between BHS and The Brink's Company dated October 31, 2008 (collectively, the "Broadview Tax Liabilities"). Costs and expenses associated with the management of Shared Tax Liabilities, Distribution Taxes and Broadview Tax Liabilities will generally be shared 20% by Tyco Flow Control, 27.5% by ADT and 52.5% by Tyco. We, ADT and Tyco Flow Control are responsible for all of our own taxes that are not shared pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae.

The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement is also expected to provide that, if any party were to default in its obligation to another party to pay its share of the Distribution Taxes that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be required to pay, equally with any other non-defaulting party, the amounts in default. In addition, if another party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that is responsible for all or a portion of an income tax liability were to default in its payment of such liability to a taxing authority, we could be legally liable under applicable tax law for such liabilities and required to make additional tax payments. Accordingly, under certain circumstances, we may be obligated to pay amounts in excess of our agreed-upon share of our, Tyco Flow Control's and ADT's tax liabilities.

Each of Tyco Flow Control, Tyco and ADT will agree to indemnify the other two parties against any amounts paid by such other parties pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and with respect to which such paying parties are not responsible pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. Though valid as between the parties, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will not be binding on the IRS.

Under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there will be restrictions on our ability to take actions that could cause the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions to fail to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, including entering into, approving or allowing any transaction that results in a change in ownership of more than 35% of our common shares (when combined with any other changes in ownership of our shares), a redemption of equity securities, a sale or other disposition of more than 35% of our assets or engaging in certain internal transactions. These restrictions will apply for the two-year period after the Distributions, unless, for certain transactions, we obtain the consent of Tyco Flow Control and ADT or we obtain a private letter ruling from the IRS or an unqualified opinion of a nationally recognized law firm that such action will not cause the Distributions or the internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions to fail to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, and such letter ruling or opinion, as the case may be, is acceptable to Tyco Flow Control and ADT. Moreover, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will also provide that we are responsible for any taxes imposed on Tyco Flow Control, ADT or any of their affiliates as a result of the failure of the Distributions or the internal transactions to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code if such failure is attributable to certain post-Distributions actions taken by or in respect of us, any of our affiliates or our shareholders, regardless of whether the actions occur more than two years after the Distribution, Tyco Flow Control and ADT consent to such actions or we obtain a favorable letter ruling or opinion of tax counsel as described above. For example, we would be responsible for a third party's acquisition of us at a time and in a manner that would cause such failure. These restrictions may prevent us from entering into transactions which might be advantageous to us or our shareholders.

Tyco Flow Control Transitional Trademark License Agreements

GRINNELL Trademarks

Prior to the spin-off, Tyco Flow Control will enter into a Transitional Trademark License Agreement (“Grinnell TTLA”) with Grinnell, LLC, an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco (“Grinnell”). The license will allow Tyco Flow Control to use certain trademarks, including GRINNELL FLOW CONTROL, GRINNELLONLINE.COM and a stylized version of the Grinnell mark (the “Grinnell TTLA Licensed Marks”) effective at the time of the Distribution and for a period of 5 years thereafter, subject to certain termination provisions. Grinnell will grant to Tyco Flow Control a fully paid-up, worldwide license to use the Grinnell TTLA Licensed Marks for specified activities related to the existing operations of Tyco's flow control business.

Tyco Flow Control may not assign the Grinnell TTLA without the prior written consent of Grinnell in its sole discretion, and such consent shall be required in connection with a merger, change of control, reorganization, assumption in bankruptcy or equity or asset sale.

TYCO Trademarks

Prior to the spin-off, Tyco Flow Control will enter into a Transitional Trademark License Agreement (“Tyco TTLA”) with Tyco International Services Holding GmbH, an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco (“Tyco Services”). The license will allow Tyco Flow Control to use certain trademarks that contain the Tyco name and were used in Tyco's flow control business on or prior to the Distribution, including TYCO THERMAL CONTROLS and TYCO FLOW CONTROL (the “Tyco TTLA Licensed Marks”) effective at the time of the Distribution and for a period of 2 years, thereafter, subject to certain termination provisions. Tyco Services will grant to Tyco Flow Control a fully paid-up, worldwide license to use the Tyco TTLA Licensed Marks for specified industrial flow control products and services, including the design, manufacture and servicing of engineered valves, actuation and controls, electric heat management solutions and water transmission and distribution products and services sold or provided by Tyco's flow control business' existing operations.

Tyco Flow Control may not assign the Tyco TTLA without the prior written consent of Tyco Services in its sole discretion, and such consent shall be required in connection with a merger, change of control, reorganization, assumption in bankruptcy or equity or asset sale.

Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement

We intend to enter into a tax sharing agreement with ADT that will govern the respective rights, responsibilities and obligations of ADT and us after the Distributions with respect to tax returns, tax liabilities, tax attributes, tax contests and other tax matters regarding non-income taxes related to specified legal entities (the “Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement”). We expect that the Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement will provide that ADT and Tyco will share certain non-income tax liabilities that arise for the period prior to the ADT Distribution from adjustments made by tax authorities to the non-income tax returns of the specified legal entities. Tyco will be responsible for amounts equal to accrued liabilities for non-income tax contingencies with respect to the specified entities that will be members of the Tyco group after the ADT Distribution, and ADT will be responsible for amounts equal to accrued liabilities for non-income tax contingencies with respect to the specified entities that will be members of the ADT group after the ADT Distribution. In each case, payments required to be made in excess of such accrued liabilities will be shared by Tyco (40%) and ADT (60%). ADT will have sole responsibility of any non-income tax liability assessed against the entities acquired in the acquisition of BHS.

ADT and Tyco will agree to indemnify each other against any amounts paid by the other party for which such paying party is not responsible pursuant to the Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement. Although valid as between the parties, the Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement will not be binding on any taxing authority.

Patent Agreement

We intend to enter into a Patent Agreement with ADT in connection with the ADT spin-off under which Tyco will provide ADT with a covenant not to sue under Tyco’s pre-spin-off patent portfolio (excluding patents from Tyco’s Visonic and Proximex businesses) for ADT’s continued use of pre-spin-off products (and certain modifications thereof) from the same pre-spin-off suppliers. There is no covenant for any pre-spin-off product if ADT changes the supplier of that product, no covenant for any new products, and no covenant for any product that may be covered by a Visonic or Proximex patent. The covenant extends to ADT’s affiliates, dealers, partners, vendors, customers and others in the supply chain to the extent their activities relate to the operation of ADT’s businesses.

This covenant is not intended to modify the parties’ obligations under the non-competition agreement described above under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Neither ADT nor Tyco may assign the Patent Agreement without the prior written consent of the other party in its sole discretion, except that either party shall assign the Patent Agreement to any acquirer of the patents governed by the Patent Agreement, such that the Patent Agreement cannot be separated from the patents covered thereby.

The Patent Agreement is expected to take effect on the date of the ADT Distribution, and remain in effect until the last patent covered thereby falls into the public domain.

Trademark Ownership Agreement

Prior to the ADT Distribution, we intend to enter into a Trademark Ownership Agreement with ADT that will govern each party’s use of certain trademarks, including the ADT trademark and logo (the “ADT Brand”). In addition, we will transfer to ADT all of our rights in the ADT Brand in North America (specifically, Canada, Puerto Rico and the United States) and we will retain rights to the ADT Brand elsewhere in the world. Each of ADT and Tyco will agree that they and their affiliates will not register or use (subject to a “phase out” transitional license to Tyco in North America) the ADT Brand for any goods or services in the other party’s territory. The parties are not restricted from competing with each other under other brands. Under the Trademark Ownership Agreement, we will exclusively own the PULSE trademark.

The Trademark Ownership Agreement will allocate the ownership of, and the parties’ rights and obligations with respect to, the ADT Brand online. In general, each party will have the right to register domain names containing the ADT Brand in domain names ending in country codes in its respective territory. The Trademark Ownership Agreement will contain provisions for allocating ownership, rights and obligations in other domains. The agreement will also contain provisions regarding the redirection of Internet traffic to the appropriate website of each party.

The Trademark Ownership Agreement will contain other provisions, including quality control provisions, compliance with applicable laws, and security, system and data protection measures. The Trademark Ownership Agreement is expected to take effect on the date of the ADT Distribution, and remain in effect in perpetuity.

Neither ADT nor Tyco may assign the Trademark Ownership Agreement without the consent of the other party, except under certain circumstances to an affiliate, or in connection with a merger, change of control, reorganization or equity or asset sale relating to the business to which the agreement relates, and in each case the assignee must assume in writing all of the assigning party's obligations under the agreement.

Monitoring Agreements

We intend to enter into monitoring services agreements in the United States and Canada (collectively, the "Monitoring Agreements"), pursuant to which we and ADT will each provide alarm receiving and notification and associated services for certain of each other's customers in the United States and Canada. The Monitoring Agreements will begin on or prior to the distribution date and generally end by September 30, 2014, subject in certain cases to the right of the service recipient to extend the initial term or to terminate services early. The provision of monitoring services for each other's customers is intended to facilitate an orderly and efficient separation of alarm monitoring activity between ADT's alarm receiving centers and Tyco's alarm receiving centers. The fees payable by a service recipient under the Monitoring Agreements are generally based on the cost of providing the service plus associated taxes, costs and expenses during the initial term, and a markup of 25% or 50% of cost for periods following the initial term (depending on the length of the time period beyond the initial term).

Guard Service Agreements

We expect to enter into guard services agreements in the United States and Canada (collectively, the "Guard Services Agreements"), pursuant to which ADT will provide alarm response and patrol services for Tyco's customers in certain parts of the United States and Tyco will provide such services for ADT's customers in certain parts of Canada. All terms and conditions under the Guard Services Agreements, including fees, are expected to be arms' length.

The initial term of each Guard Services Agreement is expected to be for one year following the ADT Distribution, subject to renewal at the option of both parties.

Master Supply Agreement

We intend to enter into a Master Supply Agreement with ADT that will provide for the supply of Tyco products to ADT for installation at ADT customer sites. The initial term of the agreement will be for one year following the ADT Distribution. All terms and conditions under the agreement, including product pricing, are expected to be arms' length.

Sublease Agreements

At the locations where ADT and Tyco are physically co-located the parties will enter into subleases (or at owned sites, leases) to end the sooner of the expiration of the master lease, mutual agreement, or September 30, 2014. Rent (including pass through of operating expenses and asset depreciation) is allocated based on the percentage of the premises the subtenant occupies. The sublandlord will own all furniture, fixtures and equipment as well as any asset retirement obligation. Master lease terms, where applicable, are incorporated. The parties agree to indemnify the other for their own negligence. The sublandlords, where feasible and permitted under the master lease, may physically demise the sublease premises, but otherwise where not physically separated the parties agree to cooperate and abide by security protocols as may be established.

Consulting Agreement

Upon separation, ADT expects to enter into an agreement with Mr. Edward Breen, Tyco's current chairman and chief executive, pursuant to which Mr. Breen will agree to provide consulting and advisory services to ADT on strategic and general corporate matters within Mr. Breen's areas of expertise and prior experience, including but not limited to:

- Reviewing and providing constructive feedback on ADT's strategic plans;
- Advising on business development, marketing and sales channels alternatives and other matters to enhance the growth of ADT;
- Advising on strategic partnerships and alliances;
- Consulting on service and brand extension concepts under consideration by ADT;
- Providing advice and guidance to the CEO; and
- Providing advice on such other strategic matters regarding ADT's current or prospective business as mutually agreed between Mr. Breen and the CEO.

The initial term of the agreement is one year, which the parties can extend for an additional one year period upon mutual consent. During the term of the agreement, Mr. Breen will be paid $80,000 per year, plus reimbursement for all reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in providing his services under the agreement, and will agree to certain confidentiality and non-competition provisions.

Board of Directors

Mission of the Board of Directors: What the Board Intends to Accomplish

The mission of Tyco's Board is to promote the long-term value and health of Tyco in the interests of the shareholders and set an ethical "tone at the top." To this end, the Board provides management with strategic guidance, and also ensures that management adopts and implements procedures designed to promote both legal compliance and the highest standards of honesty, integrity and ethics throughout the organization.

Governance Principles: How the Board Oversees Tyco

Active Board: The Directors are well informed about Tyco and vigorous in their oversight of management.

Company Leadership: The Directors, together with senior management, set Tyco's strategic direction, review financial objectives, and establish the ethical tone for the management and leadership of Tyco.

Compliance with Laws and Ethics: The Directors ensure that procedures and practices are in place designed to prevent and identify illegal or unethical conduct and to permit appropriate and timely redress should such conduct occur.

Inform and Listen to Investors and Regulators: The Directors take steps to see that management discloses appropriate information fairly, fully, timely and accurately to investors and regulators, and that Tyco maintains a two-way communication channel with its investors and regulators.

Continuous Improvement: The Directors remain abreast of new developments in corporate governance and they implement new procedures and practices as they deem appropriate.

Mission of the Board of Directors: What the Board Intends to Accomplish

The Board is responsible for:

- reviewing and approving management's strategic and business plans;
- reviewing and approving financial plans, objectives and actions, including significant capital allocations and expenditures;

- monitoring management’s execution of corporate plans and objectives;
- advising management on significant decisions and reviewing and approving major transactions;
- identifying and recommending Director candidates for election by shareholders;
- appraising Tyco’s major risks and overseeing that appropriate risk management and control procedures are in place;
- selecting, monitoring, evaluating, compensating and, if necessary, replacing the Chief Executive Officer and other senior executives, and seeing that organizational development and succession plans are maintained for these executive positions;
- determining the Chief Executive Officer’s compensation, and approving the compensation of senior officers;
- overseeing that procedures are in place designed to promote compliance with laws and regulations;
- overseeing that procedures are in place designed to promote integrity and candor in the audit of Tyco’s financial statements and operations, and in all financial reporting and disclosure;
- designing and assessing the effectiveness of its own governance practices and procedures as well as Board and committee performance; and
- periodically monitoring and reviewing shareholder communication.

Board Leadership

The business of Tyco is managed under the direction of Tyco’s Board, in the interest of the shareholders. The Board delegates its authority to senior management for managing the everyday affairs of Tyco. The Board requires that senior management review major actions and initiatives with the Board prior to implementation.

The Board believes that it has historically been in the best interest of Tyco for the positions of Chairman and Chief Executive Officer to be combined and held by the same person, Mr. Breen. Having Mr. Breen act as both Chairman and Chief Executive Officer has benefitted Tyco in significant ways, in particular by facilitating efficient and effective board deliberations. Mr. Breen has been in a unique position to blend the perspective of both the Board and management and ensure that the appropriate matters are presented to the Board. Mr. Breen’s long tenure with Tyco and his deep knowledge of Tyco’s day-to-day operations and the principal issues and risks facing Tyco have enabled him to focus the Board’s deliberations on those matters that are most critical to Tyco.

Under Mr. Breen’s leadership, the Board approved the spin-offs on September 19, 2011. In carefully evaluating the opportunities for these businesses and for Tyco as a whole, the Board concluded that creating three independent, public companies is the next logical step for Tyco and is in the best interest of shareholders. All three companies are expected to have industry-leading positions in large and fragmented industries and enhanced capabilities to serve their distinct customers. They are also expected to have greater flexibility to pursue their own focused strategies for growth—both organic and through acquisitions—than they would under the current corporate structure. The spin-offs are subject to a number of conditions, including the approval of shareholders as described elsewhere in this proxy statement.

Upon completion of the spin-offs, Mr. Breen is expected to remain as non-executive chairman of the Board, George Oliver is expected to serve as Chief Executive Officer and Mr. Brian Duperreault is expected to serve as lead Director. The Board believes that separating the positions of Chairman and Chief Executive Officer upon completion of the spin-offs is most appropriate for Tyco going forward. To meet their responsibilities of overseeing management and setting strategic direction, as well as fostering the long-term value of the Company, among other responsibilities, directors are required to spend time and energy in successfully navigating a wide variety of issues and guiding the policies and practices of the companies they oversee. To that end, the Board believes that having a separate non-executive Chairman who is responsible, along with the lead Director, for leading the Board will allow Mr. Oliver, as Chief Executive Officer, to focus his time and energy on running the day-to-day operations of the Company following completion of the spin-offs, while providing the Board with a degree of continuity of leadership. Further, Mr. Breen and Mr. Oliver have an open and constructive working relationship that the Board believes will allow Mr. Breen to continue to provide wise counsel and ask the tough questions capable of ensuring that the interests of shareholders are being properly served.

In connection with the spin-offs, Tyco will continue to have a strong governance structure, with certain modifications as follows:

- Tyco will continue to have a designated lead independent Director with a well-defined role (Mr. Brian Duperreault, who has been a member of Tyco's Nominating and Governance Committee for the past five years);
- the Board will continue to be entirely composed of independent members, with the exception of Mr. Breen and Mr. Oliver;
- Directors will continue to be elected annually by a majority of votes represented at the annual general meeting of shareholders;
- committees will continue to be entirely composed of independent Directors; and
- Tyco's established governance and ethics guidelines will continue unchanged.

The lead Director acts as an intermediary between the Board and senior management. Among other things, the lead director is responsible, along with the Chairman, for setting the agenda for Board meetings with Board and management input, facilitating communication among Directors and between the Board and the Chief Executive Officer, and working with the Chief Executive Officer to provide an appropriate information flow to the Board. The lead Director is responsible for calling and chairing executive sessions of the independent Directors. The lead director and the Chairman are expected to foster a cohesive board that cooperates with the Chief Executive Officer towards the ultimate goal of creating shareholder value.

Board Oversight of Risk

The Board's role in risk oversight at Tyco is consistent with Tyco's leadership structure, with management having day-to-day responsibility for assessing and managing Tyco's risk exposure and the Board and its committees providing oversight in connection with those efforts, with particular focus on the most significant risks facing Tyco. The Board performs its risk oversight role in several ways. Board meetings regularly include strategic overviews by the Chief Executive Officer of Tyco that describe the most significant issues, including risks, affecting Tyco. In addition, the Board is regularly provided with business updates from the President of each of Tyco's reporting segments, and updates from the General Counsel. The Board reviews the risks associated with Tyco's financial forecasts, business plan and operations. These risks are identified and managed in connection with Tyco's robust enterprise risk management ("ERM") process. The Company's ERM process provides the enterprise with a common framework and terminology to ensure consistency in identification, reporting and management of key risks. The Company's ERM includes a formal process to identify and document the key risks to Tyco perceived by a variety of stakeholders in the enterprise, and is presented to the Board at least annually. In addition, as part of the ERM process, members of the Board perform site visits to Company operational sites. The lead Director and management determine the appropriate operational site and the timing of the enterprise risk assessment meeting.

The Board has delegated to each of its committees responsibility for the oversight of specific risks that fall within the committee's areas of responsibility. For example:

- the Audit Committee reviews and discusses with management Tyco's major financial risk exposures and the steps management has taken to monitor and control such exposures;

- the Compensation and Human Resources Committee reviews and discusses with management the extent to which Tyco’s compensation policies and practices create or decrease risks for Tyco; and
- the Nominating & Governance Committee reviews and discusses with management the implementation and effectiveness of Tyco’s corporate governance policies, oversees the ERM process and is deeply involved in key management succession planning.

Board Capabilities

The Tyco Board as a whole is strong in its diversity, vision, strategy and business judgment. It possesses a robust collective knowledge of management and leadership, business operations, crisis management, risk assessment, industry knowledge, accounting and finance, corporate governance and global markets.

The culture of the Board is such that it can operate swiftly and effectively in making key decisions and facing major challenges. Board meetings are conducted in an environment of trust, open dialogue and mutual respect that encourages constructive commentary. The Board strives to be informed, proactive and vigilant in its oversight of Tyco and protection of shareholder assets.

Board Committees

To conduct its business the Board maintains three standing committees: Audit, Compensation and Human Resources (the “Compensation Committee”), and Nominating and Governance, and they are each entirely composed of independent Directors. Assignments to, and chairs of, the Audit and Compensation Committees are recommended by the Nominating and Governance Committee and selected by the Board. The independent Directors as a group elect the members and the chair of the Nominating and Governance committee. All committees report on their activities to the Board.

The lead Director may convene “special committees” to review material matters being considered by the Board. Special committees report their activities to the Board.

To ensure effective discussion and decision making while at the same time having a sufficient number of independent Directors for its three committees, the Board is normally constituted of between ten and thirteen Directors. The number of Directors is set forth in Tyco’s Articles of Association.

The Nominating and Governance Committee reviews the Board’s governance guidelines annually and recommends appropriate changes to the Board.

Board Meetings

The Board meets at least five times annually, and additional meetings may be called in accordance with Tyco’s articles of association and organizational regulations. Frequent board meetings are critical not only for timely decisions but also for Directors to be well informed about Tyco’s operations and issues. One of these meetings will be scheduled in conjunction with Tyco’s annual general meeting of shareholders and Board members are required to be in attendance at the annual general meeting of shareholders either in person or by telephone. The lead Director and the Chairman of the Board, in consultation with the Chief Executive Officer, are responsible for setting meeting agendas with input from the other Directors.

Committee meetings are normally held in conjunction with Board meetings. Major committee decisions are reviewed and approved by the Board. The Board chair and committee chairs are responsible for conducting meetings and informal consultations in a fashion that encourages informed, meaningful and probing deliberations. Presentations at Board meetings are concise and focused, and they include adequate time for discussion and decision-making. An executive session of independent Directors, chaired by the lead Director, is held at each formal meeting of the Board.

Directors receive the agenda and materials for regularly scheduled meetings in advance. Best efforts are made to make materials available as soon as one week in advance, but no later than three days in advance. When practical, the same applies to special meetings of the Board. Directors may ask for additional information from, or meetings with, senior managers at any time.

Strategic planning and succession planning sessions are held annually at a regular Board meeting. The succession planning meeting focuses on the development and succession of not only the chief executive but also the other senior executives.

The Board's intent is for Directors to attend all regularly scheduled Board and committee meetings. Directors are expected to use their best efforts to attend regularly scheduled Board and committee meetings in person. All independent Board members are welcome to attend any committee meeting.

Board and Committee Calendars

A calendar of regular agenda items for the regularly scheduled Board meetings and all regularly scheduled committee meetings is prepared annually by the Chairman of the Board in consultation with the lead Director, committee chairs, and all interested Directors.

Board Communication

Management speaks on behalf of Tyco, and the Board normally communicates through management with outside parties, including Tyco shareholders, business journalists, analysts, rating agencies and government regulators. The Board has established a process for interested parties to communicate with members of the Board, including the lead Director. If you have any concern, question or complaint regarding our compliance with any policy or law, or would otherwise like to contact the Board, you can reach the Tyco Board of Directors via email at directors@tyco.com. Shareholders, customers, vendors, suppliers and employees can also raise concerns at <https://www.vitaltycoconcerns.com>. Inquiries can be submitted anonymously and confidentially.

All inquiries are received and reviewed by the Corporate Ombudsman, who has a direct reporting relationship to the Audit Committee chair. A report summarizing all items received resulting in cases is prepared for the Board. The Corporate Ombudsman directs cases to the applicable department (such as customer service, human resources or in the case of accounting or control issues, forensic audit) and follows up with the assigned case owner to ensure that the cases are responded to in a timely manner. The Board also reviews non-trivial shareholder communications received by management through the Corporate Secretary's Office or Investor Relations.

Board Advisors

The Board and its committees (consistent with the provisions of their respective charters) may retain their own advisors, at the expense of Tyco, as they deem necessary in order to carry out their responsibilities.

Board Evaluation

The Nominating and Governance Committee coordinates an annual evaluation process by the Directors of the Board's performance and procedures, as well as that of each committee. This evaluation leads to a full Board discussion of the results. In connection with the evaluation process:

- the lead Director informally consults with each of the Directors;
- the qualifications and performance of all Board members are reviewed in connection with their re-nomination to the Board; and
- the Nominating and Governance Committee, the Audit Committee and the Compensation Committee each conduct an annual self-evaluation of their performance and procedures, including the adequacy of their charters, and report those results to the Board.

Board Compensation and Stock Ownership

The Compensation Committee, in collaboration with the Nominating and Governance Committee, periodically reviews the Directors' compensation and recommends changes in the level and mix of compensation to the full Board. See the Compensation Discussion and Analysis for a detailed discussion of the Compensation Committee's role in determining executive compensation.

To help align Board and shareholder interests, Directors are encouraged to own Tyco common stock or its equivalent. During fiscal year 2011, the Board approved an increase in the ownership multiple from three times their annual cash retainer to five times the retainer. Directors are expected to attain these minimum stock ownership guideline within five years of joining the Board. Once a Director satisfies the minimum stock ownership recommendation, the Director will remain qualified, regardless of market fluctuations, under the guidelines as long as the Director does not sell any stock. A majority of the Directors' annual compensation is provided as equity, and all but two of our current Directors hold the minimum amount of five times the annual retainer. Both Mr. Daniels and Mr. Paliwal recently joined the Board and each of them is expected to reach the minimum stock ownership level within the recommended time period. Mr. Breen receives no additional compensation for service as a Director.

Director Independence

To maintain its objective oversight of management, the Board consists of a substantial majority of independent Directors. Directors meet stringent definitions of independence and for those Directors that meet this definition, the Board will make an affirmative determination that a Director is independent. Independent Directors:

- are not former officers or employees of Tyco or its subsidiaries or affiliates, nor have they served in that capacity within the last five years;
- have no current or prior material relationships with Tyco aside from their Directorship that could affect their judgment;
- have not worked for, nor have any immediate family members that have worked for, been retained by, or received anything of substantial value from Tyco aside from his or her compensation as a Director;
- have no immediate family member who is an officer of Tyco or its subsidiaries or who has any current or past material relationship with Tyco;
- do not work for, nor does any immediate family member work for, consult with, or otherwise provide services to, another publicly traded company on whose Board of Directors the Tyco Chief Executive Officer or other member of senior management serves;
- do not serve as, nor does any immediate family member serve as, an executive officer of any entity with respect to which Tyco's annual sales to, or purchases from, exceed 1% of either entity's annual revenues for the prior fiscal year;
- do not serve, nor does any immediate family member serve, on either the Board of Directors or the compensation committee of any corporation that employs either a nominee for Director or a member of the immediate family of any nominee for Director; and
- do not serve, nor does any immediate family member serve, as a director, trustee, executive officer or similar position of a charitable or non-profit organization with respect to which Tyco or its subsidiaries made charitable contributions or payments in excess of 1% of such organization's charitable receipts in the last fiscal year. In addition, a Director is not independent if he or she serves as a director, trustee, executive officer or similar position of a charitable organization if Tyco made payments to such charitable organization in an amount that exceeds 1% of Tyco's total annual charitable contributions made during the last fiscal year.

Director Service

Directors are elected by an affirmative vote of an absolute majority of the votes represented (in person or by proxy) by shareholders at the annual general meeting of shareholders. They serve for one-year terms (except in instances where a director is elected during a special meeting, such as with respect to the director nominees in this proxy statement), ending on the next succeeding annual general meeting. Each Director must tender his or her resignation from the Board at the annual general meeting of shareholders following his or her 72nd birthday. The Board may, in its discretion, waive this limit in special circumstances, as it has done for Mr. Krol and Dr. Stavropoulos, whom the Nominating and Governance Committee has nominated to serve additional terms in light of their extensive business experience and knowledge. Any nominee for Director who does not receive a majority of votes represented from the shareholders is not elected to the Board.

The Nominating and Governance Committee is responsible for the review of all Directors, and where necessary will take action to recommend to shareholders the removal of a Director for performance, which requires the affirmative vote of a majority of the votes present (in person or by proxy) at a duly called shareholder meeting.

Directors are expected to inform the Nominating and Governance Committee of any significant change in their employment or professional responsibilities and are required to offer their resignation to the Board in the event of such a change. This allows for discussion with the Nominating and Governance Committee to determine if it is in the mutual interest of both parties for the Director to continue on the Board.

The guideline is for committee chairs and the lead Director to:

- serve in their respective roles five years, and
- to rotate at the time of the annual general meeting of shareholders following the completion of their fifth year of service.

The Board may choose to override these guiding principles in special circumstances or if it otherwise believes it is appropriate to do so.

Director Orientation and Education

A formal orientation program is provided to new Directors by the Corporate Secretary on Tyco's mission, values, governance, compliance and business operations. In addition, a program of continuing education is annually provided to incumbent Directors, and it includes review of Tyco's Guide to Ethical Conduct. Directors are also encouraged to take advantage of outside continuing education relating to their duties as a Director and to subscribe to appropriate publications at Tyco's expense.

Other Directorships, Conflicts and Related Party Transactions

In order to provide sufficient time for informed participation in their board responsibilities:

- non-executive Directors who are employed as chief executive officer of a publicly traded company are required to limit their external directorships of other public companies to two;
- non-executive Directors who are otherwise fully employed are required to limit their external directorships of other public companies to three; and
- non-executive Directors who are not fully employed are required to limit their external directorships of other public companies to five.

The Board may, in its discretion, waive these limits in special circumstances. When a Director, the Chief Executive Officer or other senior managers intend to serve on another board, the Nominating and Governance Committee is required to be notified. The Committee reviews the possibility of conflicts of interest or time constraints and must approve the officer's or Director's appointment to the outside board. Each Director is required to notify the chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee of any conflicts. The Chief Executive Officer may serve on no more than two other public company boards.

The company has a formal, written procedure intended to ensure compliance with the related party provisions in our Guide to Ethical Conduct and with our corporate governance principles. For the purpose of the policy, a "related party transaction" is a transaction in which we participate and in which any related party has a direct or indirect material interest, other than ordinary course, arms-length transactions of less than 1% of the revenue of the counterparty. Transactions exceeding the 1% threshold, and any transaction involving consulting, financial advisory, legal or accounting services that could impair a Director's independence, must be approved by our Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. Any related party transaction in which an executive officer or a Director has a personal interest, or which could present a possible conflict under the Guide to Ethical Conduct, must be approved by a majority of disinterested directors, following appropriate disclosure of all material aspects of the transaction.

Under the rules of the Securities and Exchange Commission, public issuers such as Tyco must disclose certain "related person transactions." These are transactions in which Tyco is a participant where the amount involved exceeds $120,000, and a Director, executive officer or holder of more than 5% of our common shares has a direct or indirect material interest. Although Tyco engaged in commercial transactions in the normal course of business with companies where Tyco's Directors were employed and served as officers, none of these transaction exceeded 1% of Tyco's gross revenues and these transactions are not considered to be related party transactions.

Guide to Ethical Conduct

We have adopted the Tyco Guide to Ethical Conduct, which applies to all employees, officers, and Directors of Tyco. The Guide to Ethical Conduct meets the requirements of a "code of ethics" as defined by Item 406 of Regulation S-K and applies to our Chief Executive Officer, Chief Financial Officer and Chief Accounting Officer, as well as all other employees. The Guide to Ethical Conduct also meets the requirements of a code of business, conduct and ethics under the listing standards of the NYSE. The Guide to Ethical Conduct is posted on our website at www.tyco.com under the heading "Corporate Citizenship—Governance." We will also provide a copy of the Guide to Ethical Conduct to shareholders upon request. We disclose any amendments to the Guide to Ethical Conduct, as well as any waivers for executive officers or Directors on our website at www.tyco.com under the heading "Corporate Citizenship—Governance."

Charitable Contributions

The Board understands that its members, or their immediate family members, serve as directors, trustees, executives, advisors and in other capacities with a host of other organizations. If Tyco directs a charitable donation to an organization in which a Tyco Director, or their immediate family member, serves as a director, trustee, executive, advisor, or in other capacities with the organization, the Board must approve the donation. Any such donation approved by the Board will be limited to an amount that is less than 1% of that organization's annual charitable receipts, and less than 1% of Tyco's total annual charitable contributions.

COMPENSATION OF NON-EMPLOYEE DIRECTORS

Fiscal year 2011 for non-employee directors consisted of an annual cash retainer and restricted stock units (“RSUs”) with one year vesting terms and a value at grant of approximately $120,000. In fiscal year 2011 the cash retainer for non-employee Directors was increased to $100,000. The lead Director’s fee was increased to $30,000 in fiscal year 2011 and the fee paid to the Chair of the Compensation Committee increased to $20,000. The Chairs of the Nominating and Governance Committee and Audit Committee received an additional fee of $15,000 and $20,000, respectively, in fiscal year 2011. In addition, any member of a special committee of the Board receives meeting fees in an amount of $1,500 per day for each special committee meeting that he or she attends. No such fees were paid in fiscal year 2011. A Director who is also an employee receives no additional remuneration for services as a Director.

- (1) During fiscal year 2011, directors received a pro-rated portion of the cash fees described above.
- (2) This column reflects the fair value of the entire amount of awards granted to Directors calculated in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board Accounting Standards Codification (ASC) Topic 718, excluding estimated forfeitures. The fair value of RSUs is computed by multiplying the total number of shares subject to the award by the closing market price of Tyco common shares on the date of grant. RSUs granted to Board members generally vest and the underlying units are converted to shares and delivered to Board members on the anniversary of the grant date.
- (3) All other compensation includes the aggregate value of all matching charitable contributions made by Tyco on behalf of the Directors during the fiscal year. The Company matches the contributions of Directors made to qualifying charities up to a maximum of $10,000 per calendar year. For Mr. Yost, the matching charitable contributions were made in the same fiscal year, but different calendar years. In addition, all other compensation includes the value of the discount on home security systems installed by Tyco in Directors’ homes and discounts on security monitoring services. These discounts did not exceed $1,950 for any Director in fiscal year 2011. For Mr. Paliwal, all other compensation includes $20,000 of fees paid to him in fiscal year 2011 prior to his election at the Annual General Meeting in March 2011. Mr. Paliwal also received $20,000 in such fees in fiscal year 2010. The Company invited Mr. Paliwal to observe certain Board meetings prior to his election in March 2011 and agreed to pay fees in connection therewith.

During fiscal year 2011, the full Board met 15 times. All of our Directors attended over 75% of the meetings of the Board and the committees on which they served in fiscal year 2011. The Board's governance principles provide that Board members are expected to attend each annual general meeting. At the 2011 annual general meeting of shareholders, all of the current Board members were in attendance except Mr. Daniels, who attended by phone.

Audit Committee. The Audit Committee monitors the integrity of Tyco's financial statements, the independence and qualifications of the independent auditors, the performance of Tyco's internal auditors and independent auditors, Tyco's compliance with legal and regulatory requirements and the effectiveness of Tyco's internal controls. The Audit Committee is also responsible for retaining, subject to shareholder approval, evaluating, setting the remuneration of, and, if appropriate, recommending the termination of Tyco's auditors. The Audit Committee has been established in accordance with Section 3(a)(58)(A) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. The Audit Committee operates under a charter approved by the Board. The charter is posted on Tyco's website at www.tyco.com and we will provide a copy of the charter to shareholders upon request. The Audit Committee held nine meetings during fiscal year 2011. During 2011, the members of the Audit Committee were Messrs. Daniels and Paliwal and Drs. O'Neill and Stavropoulos, each of whom is independent under NYSE listing standards and SEC rules for audit committee members. Dr. O'Neill is the chair of the Audit Committee. The Board has determined that each of Drs. Stavropoulos and O'Neill are audit committee financial experts.

Nominating and Governance Committee. The Nominating and Governance Committee is responsible for identifying individuals qualified to become Board members, recommending to the Board the Director nominees for the annual general meeting of shareholders, developing and recommending to the Board a set of corporate governance principles, and playing a general leadership role in Tyco's corporate governance. In addition, the Nominating and Governance Committee oversees our environmental, health and safety management system and enterprise risk assessment activities. The Nominating and Governance Committee operates under a charter approved by the Board. The charter is posted on Tyco's website at www.tyco.com and we will provide a copy of the charter to shareholders upon request. The Nominating and Governance Committee held 6 meetings during fiscal year 2011, including one joint meeting with the Compensation and Human Resources committee. The members of the Nominating and Governance Committee in fiscal year 2011 were Messrs. Krol, Gordon and Duperreault, each of whom is independent under NYSE listing standards. In addition to being lead Director, Mr. Gordon also chairs this committee.

Compensation and Human Resources Committee. The Compensation Committee reviews and approves compensation and benefits policies and objectives, determines whether Tyco's officers, Directors and employees are compensated according to these objectives, and carries out certain of the Board's responsibilities relating to the compensation of Tyco's executives. The Compensation Committee operates under a charter approved by the Board. The charter is posted on Tyco's website at www.tyco.com and we will provide a copy of the charter to shareholders upon request. The Compensation Committee held 11 meetings during fiscal year 2011, including one joint meeting with the Nominating and Governance Committee. During 2011, the members of the Compensation Committee were Ms. Wijnberg and Messrs. Donahue, Gupta and Yost. Mr. Gupta is the chair of the Compensation Committee. The Board of Directors has determined that each of the members of the Compensation Committee is independent under NYSE listing standards. In addition, each member is a "Non-Employee" Director as defined in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and is an "outside director" as defined in section 162(m) of the Code. For more information regarding the Compensation Committee's roles and responsibilities, see the Compensation Discussion and Analysis.

Compensation Committee Interlocks and Insider Participation

None of the members of the Compensation Committee during fiscal year 2011 or as of the date of this proxy statement is or has been an officer or employee of Tyco and no executive officer of Tyco served on the compensation committee or board of any company that employed any member of Tyco's Compensation Committee or Board of Directors.

Nomination of Directors and Board Diversity

The Nominating and Governance Committee, in accordance with the Board's governance principles, seeks to create a Board that as a whole is strong in its collective knowledge and has a diversity of skills and experience with respect to vision and strategy, management and leadership, business operations, business judgment, crisis management, risk assessment, industry knowledge, accounting and finance, corporate governance and global markets. The Tyco Board does not have a specific policy regarding diversity. Instead, the Nominating and Governance Committee considers the Board's overall composition when considering a potential new candidate, including whether the Board has an appropriate combination of professional experience, skills, knowledge and variety of viewpoints and backgrounds in light of Tyco's current and expected future needs. In addition, the Nominating and Governance Committee believes that it is desirable for new candidates to contribute to a variety of viewpoints on the Board, which may be enhanced by a mix of different professional and personal backgrounds and experiences.

General criteria for the nomination of Director candidates include:

- the highest ethical standards and integrity;
- a willingness to act on and be accountable for Board decisions;
- an ability to provide wise, informed and thoughtful counsel to top management on a range of issues;
- a history of achievement that reflects superior standards for themselves and others;
- loyalty and commitment to driving the success of Tyco;
- an ability to take tough positions while at the same time working as a team player; and
- individual backgrounds that provide a portfolio of experience and knowledge commensurate with Tyco's needs.

The Company also strives to have all non- employee Directors be independent. In addition to having such Directors meet the NYSE definition of independence, the Board has set its own more rigorous standard of independence. The Committee must also ensure that the members of the Board as a group maintain the requisite qualifications under NYSE listing standards for populating the Audit, Compensation and Nominating and Governance Committees. In addition, the Committee ensures that each member of the Compensation and Human Resources Committee is a “Non-Employee” Director as defined in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and is an “outside director” as defined in section 162(m) of the Code.

As provided in its charter, the Nominating and Governance committee will consider Director candidates recommended by shareholders. To recommend a Director candidate, a shareholder should write to Tyco’s Secretary at Tyco’s current registered address: Freier Platz 10, CH-8200 Schaffhausen, Switzerland. In any event, any such recommendation must include:

- the name and address of the candidate;
- a brief biographical description, including his or her occupation for at least the last five years, and a statement of the qualifications of the candidate, taking into account the qualification requirements set forth above;
- the candidate’s signed consent to serve as a Director if elected and to be named in the proxy statement; and
- evidence of share ownership.

The recommendation must also include documentary evidence of ownership of Tyco common shares if the shareholder is a beneficial owner, as well as the date the shares were acquired, as required by Tyco’s Articles of Association.

To be considered by the Nominating and Governance Committee for nomination and inclusion in Tyco’s proxy statement for the 2013 annual general meeting of shareholders, shareholder recommendations for Director must be received by Tyco’s Corporate Secretary no later than September 21, 2012. Once Tyco receives the recommendation, Tyco may deliver a questionnaire to the candidate that requests additional information about the candidate’s independence, qualifications and other information that would assist the Nominating and Governance Committee in evaluating the candidate, as well as certain information that must be disclosed about the candidate in Tyco’s proxy statement, if nominated. Candidates must complete and return the questionnaire within the time frame provided to be considered for nomination by the Nominating and Governance Committee. No candidates were recommended by shareholders in connection with the 2012 annual general meeting.

The Nominating and Governance Committee currently employs an unrelated search firm to assist the Committee in identifying candidates for Director. The Committee also receives suggestions for Director candidates from Board members. In evaluating candidates for Director, the Committee uses the qualifications described above, and evaluates shareholder candidates in the same manner as candidates from all other sources. Based on the Nominating and Governance Committee’s evaluation of the current Directors, each nominee was recommended for election.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER COMPENSATION REPORT

Compensation Discussion and Analysis

The Compensation Discussion and Analysis section of this proxy statement discusses and analyzes the executive compensation program for the named executive officers of Tyco in fiscal year 2011: Edward D. Breen, the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer; Frank S. Sklarsky, the Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer; George R. Oliver, President, Tyco Fire Protection; Naren K. Gursahaney, President, Tyco Security Solutions; and Judith A. Reinsdorf, Executive Vice President and General Counsel. In addition, information regarding Mr. Christopher J. Coughlin, Tyco’s Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer through December 1, 2010, is provided. Unless otherwise specified, the references to the “named executive officers” in this Compensation Discussion and Analysis are to our current officers. Many of the metrics used to judge performance under our executive compensation programs are non-GAAP financial measures and the discussion below includes references to such measures, which should not be considered as replacements for GAAP measures. Please see the tables included as Annex A for a reconciliation of these measures to the most comparable GAAP measures.

Pay for Performance

The Company’s compensation programs are designed to reward executives for achieving strong operational performance and delivering on Tyco’s strategic initiatives, each of which are important to the long-term success of Tyco. For our CEO, well over 85% of targeted direct pay continues to be in the form of at-risk performance-based compensation—consisting of long-term equity awards and the annual performance bonus. At the March 2011 annual meeting, shareholders were asked to approve Tyco’s fiscal year 2010 executive compensation programs. Of those who voted, over 72% voted to approve the proposal. In light of these results, and in consideration of shareholder input obtained from outreach efforts taken in connection with the 2011 meeting, the Compensation Committee carefully reviewed Tyco’s executive compensation practices. The Committee concluded that Tyco’s existing executive compensation programs continue to be the most appropriate for Tyco and effective in rewarding executives commensurate with business results. The Committee believes that the best way to align the CEO’s compensation with shareholder interests is to place the majority of his compensation at-risk—in the form of long-term performance based equity awards and annual incentive opportunity. The following table demonstrates the link between Company performance and CEO pay. It shows the CEO’s at-risk compensation for the one and three year periods that ended on September 30, 2011. The one-year period is represented by the fiscal year 2011 annual performance bonus and the three-year period is represented by long term equity awards granted to the CEO for fiscal year 2009:

CEO Pay vs. Company Performance

Annual Incentive Compensation

At the beginning of fiscal year 2011, the Compensation Committee and the Board of Directors approved the performance metrics for the annual performance bonus. These goals were based on the expectation that the global economy would modestly grow over the course of fiscal year 2011, and envisaged a return to organic revenue growth across all of our businesses and operating margin improvements predicated on volume growth and aggressive cost management. For our CEO, the target performance goals were (i) growth in earnings per share before special items (“EPS”) of over 10% compared to fiscal year 2010, (ii) revenue growth of over 3% on an organic basis and (iii) an aggressive cash conversion plan. Despite the muted pace of the economic recovery, Tyco met or exceeded these goals with strong financial results in fiscal year 2011, and our CEO received a performance bonus of 144% of target based on these results:

- Net revenue for fiscal year 2011 increased by 2.0% to $17.4 billion compared to fiscal year 2010 revenue of $17.0 billion. Excluding the Electrical and Metal Products business (“EMP”), revenue increased by 9% over 2010, with 4% organic revenue growth. As part of our portfolio refinement efforts, we sold a majority interest in the Electrical and Metal Products business in the first fiscal quarter of 2011.
- Income from continuing operations for fiscal year 2011 was $1.6 billion, or $3.27 per share on a diluted basis, compared to $1.1 billion and $2.31 per share for fiscal year 2010. Before special items, income from continuing operations attributable to Tyco shareholders was $3.24 per share, an increase of over 20% from the $2.68 achieved in fiscal year 2010. Due in part to productivity initiatives taken by Tyco in past years, the operating margin before special items improved 160 basis points year-over-year, excluding the benefit from the contribution of the EMP business in the first quarter.
- The Company continued to generate solid free cash flow. Free cash flow was $1.1 billion in fiscal year 2011, compared to $1.4 billion in 2010, and included $252 million of cash payments related to special items. Free cash flow was reduced in 2011 due in part to an increased use of cash to fund working capital resulting from increased business activity, although working capital days were in line with fiscal year 2010. The Company used its excess cash to make growth oriented investments and acquisitions. The Company also returned approximately $1.8 billion to shareholders through share repurchases and dividends, and completed the year with $1.4 billion in cash and cash equivalents.
- In September 2011, we announced our intention to separate into three independent publicly-traded companies. Over the last four years, we have worked to strengthen Tyco’s competitive position in its core security, fire protection and flow control businesses by driving organic growth, investing in research and development and technology, increasing efficiency and productivity and making strategic acquisitions. As a result, each business is now in a position to operate independently with a strong financial position, exceptional brands, highly skilled employees and talented, experienced leadership.

Long Term Equity Compensation

The Compensation Committee believes that the best way to align the chief executive officer's compensation with shareholder interests is to place a substantial portion of his compensation at-risk in the form of long-term performance based equity awards. Since the 2007 Separation, at least 70% of his targeted direct pay each year has been in the form of long-term equity awards. The value of these awards is directly linked to sustained shareholder returns, and over the past one, three and five year periods ending September 30, 2011, Tyco's total shareholder return has outperformed the S&P 500 Industrials Index:

The Compensation Committee has designed the CEO's long-term equity awards to align with shareholder returns. The Committee believes that a three-year period is an appropriate time frame to effectively measure sustained performance, and has used this time-frame in performance share units granted to the CEO since the 2007 Separation. Each year, performance share units constitute 50% of the CEO's long-term equity award. The remaining 50% of the long-term equity award is in the form of stock options. The table below demonstrates the link between Company performance and the realizable value of the CEO's long-term equity for post-2007 Separation performance periods:

Target vs. Realizable LTI over Completed Performance Periods

- (1) Three year total shareholder return (TSR) is calculated for the periods beginning as of the first day of fiscal years 2008 and 2009 and ending on the last day of the fiscal years 2010 and 2011.
- (2) Target amounts represent the grant-date fair value of the stock options, PSUs and RSUs granted for fiscal year 2008 and stock options and PSUs granted for fiscal year 2009.
- (3) Realized amounts represent the realizable value of equity awards granted in respect of fiscal years 2008 and 2009 as of the end of the applicable three-year period. For stock options, these values are the in-the-money value as of the last day of fiscal years 2010 and 2011, as applicable. For PSUs, these values are the market value, as of the last day of the fiscal year, of shares delivered based on actual performance results in respect of the applicable three-year plan. For RSUs, these values represent the value of vested and unvested awards granted in 2008 as of the end of fiscal year 2010.

In fiscal year 2011, the performance period for PSUs granted at the beginning of fiscal year 2009 expired. Over this period, Tyco's total shareholder return, as calculated under the performance share plan, was 13.16%*, which was better than 60% of the companies in the S&P 500 Industrials Index and resulted in a pay-out at the end of fiscal year 2011 of 144% of the target shares granted to Mr. Breen in fiscal year 2009. The in-the-money value of stock options granted to Mr. Breen at the beginning of fiscal year 2009 has grown in-line with the appreciation in share price. One-half of this option grant remained unvested as of September 30, 2011.

The results under the performance share plan at the end of fiscal year 2011 contrast sharply with those for fiscal year 2010. In fiscal year 2010, the first performance period for PSUs granted immediately after the 2007 Separation expired. These PSUs were granted in July 2007 and represented the annual equity award for fiscal year 2008. Last year, Tyco's relative TSR for the three-year period ending in June 2010 was below the minimum performance threshold under the plan. As a result, performance share units granted in July 2007 expired with no realized value. Additionally, stock options granted to Mr. Breen in July 2007 were out of the money. Only restricted stock units that were granted in July 2007 have provided value to this point in time.

Compensation Governance

The Company's executive compensation programs are based on the philosophy that they must: (i) reinforce Tyco's business objectives and the creation of long-term shareholder value; (ii) provide for performance-based reward opportunities that support growth and innovation without encouraging or rewarding excessive risk; (iii) align the interests of executives and shareholders by weighting a significant portion of compensation on sustained shareholder returns through long-term performance programs; (iv) attract, retain and motivate key executives by providing competitive compensation with an appropriate mix of fixed and variable compensation, short-term and long-term incentives, and cash and equity-based pay; and (v) recognize and support outstanding individual performance and behaviors that demonstrate our core values—Integrity, Excellence, Teamwork and Accountability. The Company recognizes that in order to execute on this philosophy, a strong governance framework is required. Accordingly, Tyco's compensation programs are characterized by the following compensation governance features:

- Variable compensation is heavily weighted on long-term incentives to align compensation with sustained shareholder returns. In fiscal year 2011, one hundred percent of long-term incentive awards for our CEO were performance-based—consisting of stock options and performance share units.
- Incentive awards are contingent on achieving targets that are established and approved by the Compensation Committee at the beginning of the applicable performance period. All awards are assigned thresholds that define a minimum level of achievement before they pay out, and all award payments are capped at 200% of target.
- The Compensation Committee is comprised solely of independent directors. The Committee's independent consultant, Exequity, provides no other services to Tyco and has no prior relationship with any of the named executive officers.
- The peer group of companies used to benchmark executive compensation levels is carefully reviewed at least annually by the Compensation Committee with input from its independent consultant. Changes to the peer group require Compensation Committee approval.
- The Compensation Committee annually completes a risk assessment of Tyco's executive and broad-based compensation programs to evaluate whether they drive behaviors that are within the risk management parameters it deems prudent.
- A "double-trigger" is required before severance benefits are paid or equity acceleration occurs in connection with a change in control event (other than for the Chief Executive Officer). Named executive officers are not entitled to excise tax gross-ups (other than the Chief Executive Officer). For our Chief Executive Officer, the terms of the employment agreement that he entered in 2002 govern in these scenarios.

- The Company eliminated tax gross-ups on supplemental benefits for all named executive officers effective January 1, 2010. Effective December 2010, supplemental life, disability and long-term care benefits have been discontinued for new executives. Effective January 2012, Tyco's cash-allowance perquisite has been discontinued. In December 2011, executives formerly eligible for this program received a one-time grant of restricted stock units in connection with the discontinuance.
- Other than the Chief Executive Officer, Tyco does not provide any pension plans for its named executive officers.
- The Company maintains a robust share ownership and retention policy for both directors and officers. Named executive officers are required to achieve and maintain minimum stock ownership levels (two to ten times base salary). Directors are required to achieve and maintain minimum stock ownership levels of five times the annual cash retainer.
- The Company maintains an expansive pay recoupment policy to claw back compensation earned as a result of fraudulent or illegal conduct. We expect to modify the policy upon implementation of the Dodd-Frank Act to comply with applicable regulations.
- Under Tyco's insider trading policy, employees, including named executive officers, are prohibited from speculating in Company securities or engaging in transactions designed to hedge their ownership interests.

The features described above are important components of Tyco's executive compensation governance framework. The sections that follow provide more detailed information regarding the governance framework, as well as more information regarding the pay elements used in the compensation of our named executive officers.

Process Overview: How the Compensation Committee Designs and Establishes Executive Compensation

The Compensation Committee evaluates many factors when designing and establishing executive compensation plans and targets. In determining the appropriate compensation of individual named executive officers, the Compensation Committee considers critical data including the relative complexity and importance of the executive's role within the organization, the executive's experience, record of performance and potential, the compensation levels paid to similarly positioned executives at our peer group companies, and internal pay equity considerations.

Each year, the Compensation Committee reviews the composition of Tyco's peer group with the assistance of its independent compensation consultant to ensure that it aligns with Tyco's size and lines of businesses. Any change to the peer group is subject to the Compensation Committee's approval. The peer group is drawn from companies in the S&P 500 Index, and the Compensation Committee analyzes up to 17 factors in determining inclusion, including rank within the S&P 500 Index, overlapping business lines, number of employees, and various performance and financial measures. The Compensation Committee did not make any changes to the peer group in fiscal year 2011 after updating the peer group in fiscal year 2010. The peer group consists of 17 industrial and service companies that reflect the competitive landscape in which Tyco operates. It also takes into account the diverse nature of Tyco's operations, which are a blend of world-class manufacturing capabilities and premier service delivery.

|------------------------|---------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| • 3M Co.               | • General Dynamics Corp.        | • Raytheon Co.              |
| • Danaher Corp.        | • Honeywell International, Inc. | • Sprint Nextel Corp.       |
| • Deere & Co.          | • Illinois Tool Works, Inc.     | • Time Warner Cable Inc.    |
| • DirecTV Group, Inc.  | • Ingersoll-Rand PLC            | • United Technologies Corp. |
| • Eaton Corp.          | • ITT Corp.                     | • Waste Management, Inc.    |
| • Emerson Electric Co. | • Johnson Controls Inc.         |                             |

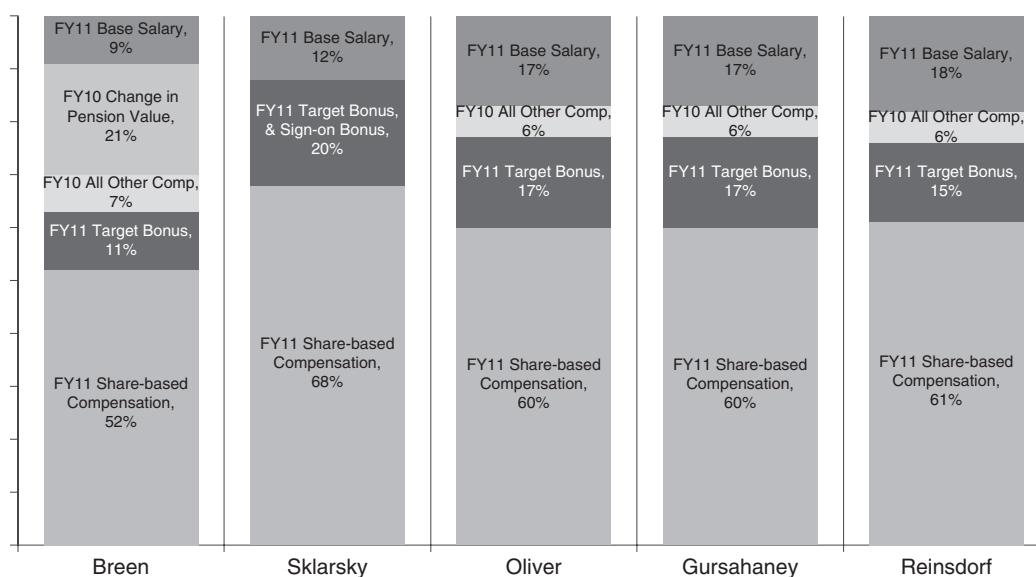

In addition to the peer group, summary statistical information about general industry practices (excepting those of financial service companies) is another source of executive compensation market data for the Committee. The Company's talent strategy calls for both the development of internal leadership and the recruitment of highly experienced leaders from outside Tyco. Tyco does not position executive pay to reflect a single percentile within the peer group, but broadly targets the 50th percentile for base salaries and performance-based pay at or slightly above the 50th percentile. Although these benchmarks represent useful guidelines, the Compensation Committee exercises discretion in setting individual executive compensation packages so that they appropriately reflect the value and expected contributions of each executive to Tyco, as well as the executive's leadership, commitment to our values, and potential for advancement.

The Company believes that one of the most important features of a compensation program that pays for performance is an appropriate weighting of pay elements that align management's interest with those of shareholders. As a result, the Compensation Committee places the greatest proportion of executive pay in long-term equity compensation for named executive officers, with the aim of tying the executive's realized pay to sustained shareholder returns. It also places a significant portion of cash compensation in the form of performance bonuses. In fiscal year 2011, approximately 72% of targeted direct pay for our Chief Executive Officer, and approximately 65% for the rest of our named executive officers, was in the form of long term equity awards. Additionally, over 48% of targeted cash compensation for our Chief Executive Officer and the rest of our named executive officers was in the form of an annual performance bonus.

The chart below summarizes with respect to our named executive officers the distribution of total compensation by pay element for fiscal year 2011. The information summarized shows all elements of compensation, including elements that do not comprise targeted direct pay, and consists of each named executive officer's base salary and target bonus opportunity during the fiscal year; the grant date fair value of stock options and performance share units; the value of Mr. Breen's change in pension benefits from September 2009 to September 2010, the value of Mr. Sklarsky's sign-on bonus and equity grant, and the value of all other compensation provided to the executive at the end of the preceding fiscal year. The value of the change in Mr. Breen's pension benefit is included for completeness. It does not represent a targeted element of direct pay because the actuarial value of the benefit is based on market factors beyond the control of Mr. Breen or the Compensation Committee. In the case of all other compensation and pension benefit changes, the previous year's value is used because the final value is not determined until after the end of the fiscal year during which the compensation is paid.

Pay Mix for Named Executive Officers

Elements of Compensation

When determining executive compensation, the Compensation Committee focuses on four primary categories of compensation, which are described in more detail below. Each year, the Compensation Committee completes a comprehensive review of these elements utilizing tally sheets prepared by company management for each named executive officer. Tally sheets identify the value of each pay element, including base salary, annual bonus, sign-on or other cash payments, long-term incentives, and benefit and perquisite payments, and help the Compensation Committee to better understand the effect that changing any discrete pay element will have on the total compensation provided to each executive. This data also clearly illustrates the effect that changing the core compensation elements will have on our competitive positioning. Tally sheets also reveal how well each pay element is aligned with our compensation philosophy and objectives, and show the value of all compensation elements under multiple termination scenarios.

Base Salary

Base salary recognizes the value of an individual to Tyco based on his/her role, skill, performance, contribution, leadership and potential. It is critical in attracting and retaining executive talent in the markets in which we compete for talent. Base salaries are reviewed annually by both the Compensation Committee and the Board. During fiscal year 2011, the Committee approved 2% salary increases for Ms. Reinsdorf and Mr. Oliver and a 9% increase for Mr. Gursahaney. These were the first salary increases for the named executive officers since January 2008. Mr. Breen's salary has remained unchanged since 2006.

Annual Incentive Compensation

Annual incentive compensation for our named executive officers is paid in the form of an annual performance bonus under Tyco's 2004 Stock and Incentive Plan (the "2004 SIP"). Annual incentive compensation rewards the named executive officers for their execution of the operating plan and other strategic initiatives, as well as for financial performance that benefits Tyco's business and drives long-term shareholder value creation. It places a meaningful proportion of total cash compensation at risk, thereby aligning executive rewards with Tyco's financial results. It also offers an opportunity for meaningful pay differentiation tied to the performance of individuals and groups.

In the first quarter of fiscal year 2011, the Compensation Committee established performance measures and targets for Tyco (and for each group, division and business segment), and they set a minimum performance threshold of $450 million in adjusted net income (adjusted for (i) business acquisitions and disposals, (ii) debt refinancing, (iii) legacy legal and tax matters, (iv) goodwill and intangible asset impairments, (v) tax law changes, (vi) discontinued operations and (vii) changes in accounting) that had to be met for named executive officers to receive any bonuses for the year. The impact of these adjustments was not significant to the determination of whether the minimum threshold was met. These metrics were also approved by the independent members of the Board. The Compensation Committee also approved individual maximum bonus amounts for each Senior Officer of 0.5% of adjusted net income for Mr. Breen, subject to a cap of $5.0 million and 0.25% of adjusted net income for Messrs. Sklarsky, Gursahaney and Oliver, and Ms. Reinsdorf, subject to a cap of $2.5 million. After setting these minimum performance thresholds and maximum payouts, the Compensation Committee further refined target and maximum payout values as a percentage of base salary. Target incentive opportunities ranged from 80% to 125% of base salary for fiscal year 2011 for the named executive officers. Potential payouts ranged from 0% to 200% of the target incentive opportunity.

The performance measures approved for the corporate and group levels of the organization were also established in the first quarter of fiscal year 2011 and were used by the Compensation Committee and the Board to determine final bonuses for named executive officers. As noted above, these performance measures were based on the expectation that the global economy would modestly grow over the course of fiscal year 2011, with all of our businesses returning to organic revenue growth and operating margins improving based on volume growth and aggressive cost management. For fiscal year 2011, the Compensation Committee increased the weighting of the revenue component for each executive in order to emphasize the importance of organic growth at each unit. These performance measures and related results are described in the table below.

Description of Performance Measures: For compensation purposes, EPS from continuing operations, Adjusted FCF, and operating income are adjusted to exclude the effects of events that the Compensation Committee deems do not reflect the performance of the named executive officers. The categories of special items are identified at the time the performance measure is approved at the beginning of the fiscal year, although the Compensation Committee may at its discretion make adjustments during the fiscal year. Special items include gains, losses or cash outlays that may mask the underlying operating results and/or business trends of Tyco or business segment, as applicable. For fiscal year 2011, the approved categories of adjustments included adjustments related to (i) business acquisitions and divestitures; (ii) debt refinancing; (iii) legacy legal and tax matters; (iv) goodwill and intangible asset impairments; (v) tax law changes; (vi) certain unbudgeted capital expenditures; (vii) unbudgeted restructuring charges; and (viii) realignments of segment and corporate costs. At the beginning of the fiscal year, the Compensation Committee also decided that it would be appropriate to continue to limit the effects of the volatility inherent in the EMP business segment (a majority of which was sold in the first fiscal quarter) on the performance measures applicable to the corporate level. Adjusted FCF is calculated by first adjusting cash flow from operations by removing the effects of the sale of accounts receivable programs, cash paid for purchase accounting and holdback liabilities, and voluntary pension contributions and then deducting net capital expenditures (including accounts purchased from the ADT dealer network), and then adding back the special items that increased or decreased cash flows. Working capital days are generally calculated by dividing annualized average working capital by revenue of the applicable unit. Revenue is calculated in constant currency, which negates the impact of fluctuations in foreign currency over the course of the year, with adjustments made to targets to reflect the acquisition or divestitures of businesses over the course of the fiscal year.

The table below shows the maximum and target annual incentive compensation opportunities for fiscal year 2011, and the actual payments earned by each of our named executive officers. These amounts are reported in the “Non-Equity Incentive Plan Compensation” column of the “Summary Compensation” table.

Fiscal Year 2011 Performance Bonus Summary

(1) In December 2010, the Compensation Committee established and the Board approved potential maximum annual incentive compensation payouts of 0.50% of adjusted net income for Mr. Breen, subject to a cap of $5.0 million imposed by the 2004 SIP, and 0.25% for the other named executive officers, subject to a cap of $2.5 million. The Compensation Committee further established a maximum payout of 200% of target incentive opportunity.

The Compensation Committee and the Independent members of the Board approved award payouts for each of our named executive officers in November 2011 based on the achievement of the minimum adjusted net income performance threshold of $450 million, and the achievement of the quantitative performance measures shown in the “Fiscal year 2011 Annual Incentive Compensation Design Summary” table above.

Long-Term Incentive Awards

As discussed above, a key element in the compensation of our named executive officers is long-term equity incentive awards (“LTI compensation”), which tie a significant portion of compensation to Company performance. The Compensation Committee believes that LTI compensation serves Tyco’s executive compensation philosophy in several ways. It helps attract, retain and motivate talent. It aligns the interests of the named executive officers with the interests of shareholders by linking a significant portion of the officer’s total pay opportunity to share price. It provides long-term accountability for named executive officers, and it offers the incentive of performance-based opportunities for capital accumulation in lieu of a pension plan for most of Tyco’s executive management. For a description of the material terms of stock options and performance share units granted for fiscal year 2011 under the 2004 SIP, see the narrative following the “Grants of Plan-Based Awards” table.

Fiscal Year 2011 Annual Equity Award

In fiscal year 2011, our CEO received the same 50-50 mix of performance share units and stock options that he has received since fiscal year 2009. For our other named executive officers, the annual grant consisted of a mix of stock options (40%), performance share units (40%) and restricted stock units (20%). After careful consideration of industry trends and the performance of previously granted awards, the Compensation Committee added restricted stock units to help balance the volatility inherent in stock options and performance share units with the retentive value of restricted stock units for key executives. With respect to the 2011 performance share units, the Compensation Committee introduced an additional performance measure to the program design. In addition to the existing total shareholder return component, the 2011 plan includes a cumulative earnings per share measure. The total shareholder return (“TSR”) metric is a relative measure that rewards the executive only if Tyco’s TSR is within the top 65% of the companies that comprise the S&P 500 Industrials Index, with the target value being based on a TSR equal to at least the top 50% and a payout of two times target if the TSR is better than the top 75%. The cumulative earnings per share metric is measured over the same three-year period to which the total shareholder return measure applies. The Compensation Committee believes that this combination of relative and absolute measures best focuses management on the measures that drive shareholder value.

Fiscal Year 2012 Annual Equity Award

For fiscal year 2012, the Compensation Committee retained the same mix of performance share units and stock options for the Chief Executive Officer, and performance share units, stock options and restricted stock units for our other named executive officers. With respect to the 2012 performance share units, the Compensation Committee replaced the cumulative earnings per share metric with a return on invested capital (“ROIC”) measure, so that the performance shares units are 50% weighted on TSR and 50% weighted on ROIC. The ROIC metric is designed to reward executives for efficiently allocating capital and generating profitable growth. The TSR measure for the fiscal year 2012 award is consistent with the TSR measure for the fiscal year 2011 award. Additionally, due to the pending Distributions, the performance period for the fiscal year 2012 award has been shortened to one year to coincide with the expected closing date of the Distributions. We anticipate that the performance period for the fiscal year 2011 awards will also be shortened (to two years) to coincide with the expected closing date. The vesting period for these awards will remain three years.

In addition, in fiscal year 2012, the Compensation Committee decided to end the cash perquisite allowance program for all officers of Tyco that received the benefit, including the named executive officers. This program, which was instituted in 2003 to eliminate costly and administratively burdensome perquisites such as company cars, club dues, and tax preparation services, provided for a cash payment equal to 10% of the officers base salary (up to a maximum of $70,000) that the officer could use without limitation. The Compensation Committee determined that, in light of current market practices at Tyco’s peers and in the broader market, the program’s benefits—in attracting and retaining talented executives—were outweighed by its costs. In connection with the discontinuance of this plan, existing officers who were receiving the benefit at the time of termination received a one-time grant of restricted stock units. The fair value of the grant was equal to two times the annual value of the cash allowance for such officer, and the restricted stock units have a pro rata vesting schedule of two years.

Executive Benefit Plans and Other Elements of Compensation

All of our named executive officers are eligible to participate in the benefit plans that are available to substantially all of our other U.S. employees. These benefit programs include Tyco’s tax-qualified 401(k) Retirement Savings and Investment Plans (“RSIPs”) and its medical insurance, dental insurance, life insurance, long-term disability and long-term care plans. The retirement programs at Tyco do not include active defined benefit plans for our named executive officers or for other U.S. executives, except that Mr. Breen is entitled to pension benefits under his employment agreement.

Our named executive officers are eligible to participate in the Tyco Supplemental Savings and Retirement Plan, which is a deferred compensation plan that permits the elective deferral of base salary and performance-based bonus for executives earning more than $110,000 per year. The SSRP provides our executives with the opportunity to:

- contribute retirement savings in addition to amounts permitted under the RSIPs;
- defer compensation on a tax-deferred basis and receive tax-deferred market-based growth; and
- receive any Company contributions that were reduced under the RSIPs due to IRS compensation limits.

Supplemental insurance benefits (executive life, disability and long-term care)

These programs provide life insurance, long-term disability insurance and long-term care insurance to certain executives. Our executive life insurance program typically provides a death benefit equal to approximately two times base salary, and allows the named executive officer to elect to pay additional premiums into the plan. Our executive disability insurance program ensures salary continuation above the $15,000 monthly benefit limit provided by our broad based disability plan. The executive long-term care insurance program covers certain executives and their spouses in the event of chronic illness or disability. Under the program, Tyco pays the long-term care premium for 10 years, after which the insurance is fully paid. If the executive leaves prior to the end of the 10-year payment period, he or she has the option to continue making the premium payments to maintain the coverage.

On January 1, 2010, Tyco ceased the practice of paying tax gross-ups for its senior executives on life insurance and long-term disability insurance programs, as the Compensation Committee determined that this benefit was not in line with best practices. Senior executives can elect to continue to receive supplemental insurance benefits at their expense when they leave Tyco. In limited instances, Tyco is responsible for paying Tyco's cost of the supplemental insurances for Mr. Breen if he is terminated, as set forth in his employment agreement. In December 2010, Tyco ceased making premium payments for the supplemental life, disability and long-term care benefits described above for newly hired or promoted executives.

Cash Perquisite Allowance Plan

The cash requisite plan provided named executive officers with a cash payment equal to 10% of their annual base salary, up to a maximum annual benefit of $70,000, in lieu of more traditional requisite benefits. As noted above, the Committee discontinued this plan as of January 2012. In connection with the discontinuance of this plan, existing officers who were receiving the benefit at the time of termination, Tyco made a one-time grant of restricted stock units with a fair value equal to two times the annual value of the cash allowance.

Executive Physicals

During fiscal year 2011, the Compensation Committee instituted coverage for an annual executive physical. Tyco strongly believes in investing in the health and well being of our executives as an important component in providing continued effective leadership for Tyco.

Use of Corporate Aircraft

Mr. Breen and the other senior executives may use corporate aircraft or chartered aircraft for business travel. Mr. Breen is the only executive pre-approved to use Company aircraft for non-business purposes, although other named executive officers may do so, by exception, if expressly approved by Mr. Breen. There are no gross-ups paid with respect to Mr. Breen's personal use of aircraft.

Change in Control and Severance Benefits

We believe that our employment and severance arrangements are essential in attracting and retaining the executive talent necessary to manage our diverse businesses, and are competitive with those provided to executive officers at other large companies publicly traded in the U.S. Mr. Breen's employment agreement provides for benefits if he is terminated in connection with a change in control or under other specified circumstances, and the information in the tables below reflects the terms of the agreement. As discussed below, the definition of a "Good Reason" termination under Mr. Breen's employment agreement includes a change in duties that results in a significant diminution in his position, authority, duties or responsibilities. Upon completion of the Distributions, if Mr. Breen were to continue as Tyco's chief executive officer, we believe that these provisions would apply. As a result, upon his resignation in connection with the Distributions, Mr. Breen is expected to receive severance benefits consistent with a Good Reason termination, except that Mr. Breen has waived the acceleration of a portion of his fiscal year 2012 annual equity grant, and these awards are expected to be forfeited.

For our other named executive officers, who do not have employment agreements, the Tyco International Severance Plan for U.S. Officers and Executives (the "Severance Plan") and the Tyco International Change in Control Severance Plan for Certain U.S. Officers and Executives (the "CIC Severance Plan") generally govern the benefits that accrue upon termination. As described below, a "double trigger" is required under the CIC Severance Plan before most benefits become available to the executives covered by that plan.

The table below summarizes the key terms and provisions of the severance plans that are currently in effect. Refer to the “Potential Payments Upon Termination and Change in Control” table for the estimated dollar value of the benefits available under the severance plans in effect as of our fiscal year-end.

(1) In connection with the proposed Distributions, the Compensation Committee approved certain changes to equity awards for employees (other than the CEO) who are terminated in connection therewith. Unvested equity awards granted prior to October 12, 2011 (the date of the annual grant for fiscal year 2012), including awards held by the named executive officers, have been modified to provide that, for each employee whose employment is terminated by Tyco in connection with the Distributions prior to its one year anniversary, (1) any unvested stock option, restricted share unit or performance share unit will fully vest upon termination of employment (subject, in the case of performance share units, to the completion of the applicable performance period) and (2) the exercise period for any stock option that was granted in the period from January 1, 2008 to October 11, 2011 will be extended to comprise the one-year period following the date of such termination for such employee.

Awards granted on October 12, 2011 in connection with the annual grant, including awards granted to Tyco's named executive officers (including the CEO), provide that, for each employee whose employment is terminated by Tyco in connection with the Distributions in the period from the grant date through the date that is one year following the completion of the Distributions, any unvested stock options, restricted stock units and performance share units will accelerate and vest pro rata based on the number of full months of service completed from the grant date through the employment termination date. Certain officers, including Tyco's named executive officers, will continue to be eligible for one additional year's worth of stock option vesting if they are terminated by Tyco not for "cause" after the one-year anniversary of the grant date. The one-year holding requirement will not apply to any such officer that is terminated in connection with the Distributions. Any stock options subject to such accelerated vesting provisions will have a one-year exercise period following the date of such termination for such employee.

Mr. Breen's employment agreement generally defines "Cause" as:

- Indictment for a felony other than one stemming from liability that is based on acts of Tyco for which Mr. Breen is responsible solely as a result of his office(s) with Tyco. This exception applies provided that (i) he was not directly involved in such acts and either had no prior knowledge of such intended actions or, upon obtaining such knowledge, promptly acted reasonably and in good faith to attempt to prevent the acts causing such liability; or (ii) after consulting with Tyco's counsel, he reasonably believed that no law was being violated by such acts; or
- Termination evidenced by a resolution adopted in good faith by at least two-thirds of the members of the Board. Such resolution must conclude that Mr. Breen intentionally and continually failed substantially to perform his reasonably assigned duties with Tyco (other than a failure resulting from his incapacity due to physical or mental illness or from the assignment to Mr. Breen of duties that would constitute "Good Reason"), which failure has continued for a period of at least 30 days after a written notice of demand for substantial performance, signed by a duly authorized member of the Board, has been delivered to Mr. Breen specifying the manner in which Mr. Breen has failed substantially to perform; or intentionally engaged in conduct which is demonstrably and materially injurious to Tyco; provided, however, Mr. Breen has been given a detailed notice of the termination under this paragraph and he has been given the opportunity to be heard in person by the Board.

Mr. Breen’s employment agreement generally defines “Good Reason” as any of the following events:

- Assignment to Mr. Breen of any duties inconsistent in any material respect with his position (including titles and reporting relationships), authority, duties or responsibilities as contemplated by the employment agreement, or any other action by Tyco, which results in a significant diminution in such position, authority, duties or responsibilities;
- Any failure by Tyco to comply with any of the material provisions regarding Mr. Breen’s base salary, bonus, annual equity incentive, benefits and perquisites, retirement benefit, relocation, and other benefits and amounts payable to Mr. Breen under the agreement;
- Mr. Breen being required to relocate to a new principal place of employment more than 60 miles from his established principal place of employment with Tyco;
- The delivery by Tyco of a notice of non-renewal of his employment at the end of his current employment period;
- The failure by Tyco to elect or to re-elect Mr. Breen as a Director and as Chairman of the Board, or the removal of Mr. Breen from either such position; or
- Any termination by Mr. Breen during the 30-day period immediately following the first anniversary of the date of any change in control.

For the other named executive officers, the Severance Plan generally defines “Cause” as an executive’s (i) substantial failure or refusal to perform duties and responsibilities of his or her job as required by Tyco; (ii) violation of any fiduciary duty owed to Tyco; (iii) conviction of a felony or misdemeanor; (iv) dishonesty; (v) theft; (vi) violation of Company rules or policy; or (vii) other egregious conduct, that has or could have a serious and detrimental impact on Tyco and its employees. The administrator of the Severance Plan, in its sole and absolute discretion, determines whether Cause exists.

Under Mr. Breen’s employment agreement, Mr. Breen’s resignation for any reason is treated as a termination for “Good Reason” if such resignation occurs within the 30-day period commencing on the first anniversary of the change in control.

For the other named executive officers, the CIC Severance Plan provides these benefits only during the 60-day period prior to and the two-year period following a Change in Control. The CIC Severance Plan generally defines “Cause” as (i) a material violation of any fiduciary duty owed to Tyco; (ii) conviction of, or entry of a plea of nolo contendere with respect to, a felony or misdemeanor; (iii) dishonesty; (iv) theft; or (v) other egregious conduct, that is likely to have a materially detrimental impact on Tyco and its employees. Whether an executive’s termination is due to “Cause” under the CIC Severance Plan is determined by the administrator of the CIC Severance Plan.

The CIC Severance Plan generally defines “Good Reason Resignation” as any retirement or termination of employment by an executive that is not initiated by Tyco and that is caused by any one or more of the following events, provided the event occurs in the period beginning 60 days before the change in control date and ending two years after that date:

- Without the executive’s written consent, Tyco assigns the executive any duties inconsistent in any material respect with his or her authority, duties or responsibilities, or any other action by Tyco which results in a significant diminution in such authority, duties or responsibilities;
- Without the executive’s written consent, Tyco makes a material change in the geographic location at which the executive performs services to a location that is more than 60 miles from his or her existing principal place of employment;
- Without the executive’s written consent, Tyco materially reduces the executive’s base compensation and benefits, taken as a whole; or
- The Company fails to obtain a satisfactory agreement from any successor to assume and agree to perform Tyco’s obligations to the executive under the CIC Severance Plan.

If an executive remains employed for more than 150 days following the occurrence of any event set forth above, any subsequent retirement or termination of employment by the executive that is not initiated by Tyco will not constitute a “Good Reason Resignation.” Whether an executive’s termination is as a result of a “Good Reason Resignation” is determined by the administrator of the CIC Severance Plan.

Role of Independent Compensation Consultant and Company Management

In carrying out its role in establishing executive compensation plans, the Compensation Committee receives advice from an independent compensation consultant, and considers pay strategies and recommendations prepared by Tyco’s management. Under its charter, the Compensation Committee has the sole authority to retain, compensate and terminate the independent compensation consultants and any other advisors necessary to assist it in its evaluation of director, Chief Executive Officer or other senior executive compensation. Since fiscal year 2007, the Committee has retained Exequity LLP (“Exequity”) as its independent compensation consultant to provide services exclusively to the Compensation Committee. Among the responsibilities of Exequity are the following:

- conducting an ongoing review and critique of Tyco’s director compensation programs;
- providing an ongoing review and critique of Tyco’s executive compensation philosophy, the strategies associated with it, and the composition of the peer group of companies;
- preparing periodic analyses of data, including data on competitive executive compensation;
- presenting updates on market trends;
- attending regular and special meetings of the Compensation Committee; and
- regularly conducting private meetings with the Compensation Committee and/or Board without management representatives.

In general, the independent compensation consultant develops pay strategies and recommendations relating to the Chief Executive Officer, which the consultant provides to the Compensation Committee. The Compensation Committee and the consultant then review and discuss all matters involving the Chief Executive Officer’s compensation. After this review, the Compensation Committee prepares its own recommendation for the Board to review and discuss. The independent members of our Board have the sole authority to approve compensation decisions made with respect to the Chief Executive Officer, and the Board has established the scorecard against which the performance of the Chief Executive Officer is measured. The basis of the scorecard is the financial plan, as approved by the Board. However, the Compensation Committee reviews and approves the performance goals and objectives relevant to the Chief Executive Officer’s compensation, evaluates his performance in light of those goals and objectives, and, based upon this evaluation, recommends his compensation for approval by the independent members of the Board.

With respect to Tyco’s other Senior Officers (“Senior Officers” are defined as Tyco’s “Section 16” officers who are required to report trading in Tyco securities under the Securities and Exchange Act) and employees, it is the Chief Executive Officer and the Senior Vice President, Human Resources and Internal Communications, who develop the pay strategies and recommendations, which the Compensation Committee then reviews. However, the authority to approve those strategies and recommendations resides with different parties according to the employee’s level. For Senior Officers, decisions must be approved by the independent members of the Board, subject to the Compensation Committee’s authority regarding performance measures. For employees below the level of Senior Officer, the Board has granted the Chief Executive Officer and his designees the authority to approve pay actions. However, the Compensation Committee is responsible for approving actions related to other aspects of the compensation of these employees, such as the size of bonus pools, annual incentive plan performance goals, equity award design, equity value ranges and share pools, and compensation packages for highly compensated employees who are not Senior Officers.

Risk Assessment of Compensation Programs

The Compensation Committee has assessed the company’s executive and broad-based compensation programs to evaluate whether they drive behaviors that are demonstrably within the risk management parameters it deems prudent. It has concluded that our compensation policies and practices do not create risks that are reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on the company. Tyco’s management assessed the company’s executive and broad-based compensation and benefits programs on a global basis to determine if the programs’ provisions and operations create undesired or unintentional risk of a material nature. This risk assessment process included a review of overall program policies and practices; design of long-term incentive compensation plans; design of incentive compensation programs, including local bonus plans and sales incentive plans; and sufficiency of control features. The review focused on plans that had the potential to provide material payouts. In most cases, the significant incentive compensation policies and practices are centrally designed and administered, and are substantially similar to those overseen by the Compensation Committee. Field sales personnel are paid primarily on a sales commission basis, but all of our senior executives are paid under the programs and plans for non-sales employees. Certain internal groups have different or supplemental compensation programs tailored to their specific operations and goals, and programs may differ by country due to variations in local laws and customs. In addition, Tyco's compensation structure has embedded risk mitigation features. For example, the emphasis on long-term equity awards as a significant component of compensation mitigates the risk that managers may unduly focus on short-term results. In addition, policies such as stock ownership, share retention and pay recoupment serve as significant risk mitigators. Finally, the Compensation Committee's authority to approve performance metrics, targets, minimum thresholds and maximum award caps provide discipline and help eliminate the incentive for excessive risk-taking behavior.

Based on the foregoing, we believe that our compensation policies and practices do not create inappropriate or unintended material risk to the company as a whole. We also believe that our incentive compensation arrangements provide incentives that do not encourage inappropriate risk-taking; are compatible with effective internal controls and the risk management policies; and are supported by the oversight and administration of the Compensation Committee with regard to executive compensation programs.

Stock Ownership Guidelines

In 2003, the Board established stock ownership and share retention guidelines for all Senior Officers. The Board believes that executives who own and hold a significant amount of Company stock are aligned with long-term shareholder interests. The guidelines apply to all of our named executive officers and certain additional senior executives. The Compensation Committee reviews compliance with our stock ownership guidelines annually.

The current stock ownership requirement for our named executive officers is five times for Messrs. Gursahaney and Oliver, six times for Mr. Coughlin and Ms. Reinsdorf and ten times for Mr. Breen. Tyco shares that count towards meeting the stock ownership requirement include restricted stock, RSUs, DSUs, performance share units, shares acquired through our 401(k) plan or the Employee Stock Purchase Program, and shares otherwise owned by the executive. We do not require that the stock ownership guidelines be attained within a certain period of time. Instead, the Compensation Committee reviews executive stock ownership regularly to ensure that our senior executives are making progress towards meeting their goals or maintaining their requisite ownership.

Tyco's stock retention guidelines require that our named executive officers and other senior executives retain 75% of net (after-tax) shares acquired from the exercise of stock options or the vesting of restricted shares until they attain their target stock ownership goal. Once that goal is attained, they cannot sell shares if it would result in the executive owning fewer shares than the target multiple applicable to him or her. When a named executive officer reaches the age of 62, the target multiple is reduced by 50%. Except for Mr. Sklarsky, who was hired in December 2010, all of the named executive officers met or exceeded the applicable stock ownership multiple guideline in fiscal year 2011.

Pay Recoupment Policy

Tyco's pay recoupment policy currently provides that, in addition to any other remedies available to it and subject to applicable law, if the Board or any Compensation Committee of the Board determines that any annual or other incentive payment, equity award or other compensation received by a Senior Officer resulted from any financial result or operating metric that was impacted by the Senior Officer's fraudulent or illegal conduct, the Board or a Board Committee may recover from the Senior Officer that compensation it considers appropriate under the circumstances. The Board has the sole discretion to make any and all determinations under this policy.

The Board expects to update the pay recoupment policy when the regulations mandated by the Dodd-Frank Act are implemented by the Securities and Exchange Commission in the next year. At a minimum, the policy will comply with the Dodd-Frank Act and related regulations, but will likely retain features of the existing policy that are more expansive than the requirements of the Act.

Insider Trading Policy

The Company maintains an insider trading policy, applicable to all employees and directors. The policy provides that Tyco's personnel may not buy, sell or engage in other transactions in Tyco's stock while aware of material non-public information; buy or sell securities of other companies while aware of material non-public information about those companies that they become aware of as a result of business dealings between Tyco and those companies; disclose material non-public information to any unauthorized persons outside of Tyco; or engage in transactions in puts, calls, cashless collars, options or similar rights and obligations involving Tyco's securities, other than the exercise of any Company-issued stock option. The policy also restricts trading for a limited group of Company employees (including named executive officers and directors) to defined window periods that follow our quarterly earnings releases.

Tax Deductibility of Executive Compensation

Section 162(m) of the Code imposes a limit of $1.0 million on the amount of compensation that can be deducted by Tyco with respect to each named executive officer (other than Mr. Sklarsky, our Chief Financial Officer), unless the compensation over $1.0 million qualifies as "performance-based" under federal tax law. It is our policy to structure compensation arrangements with our named executive officers to qualify as performance-based so that compensation payments are deductible under U.S. federal tax law, unless the benefit of such deductibility is outweighed by the need for flexibility or the attainment of other corporate objectives. Potentially non-deductible forms of compensation include payments in connection with the recruitment and retention of key employees, base salary over $1.0 million, discretionary bonus payments and grants of time-based RSUs. In addition, stock options granted to Mr. Breen when he was hired in July 2002 may not qualify as performance-based compensation under Section 162(m).

Compensation and Human Resources Committee Report on Executive Compensation

The Compensation Committee has reviewed and discussed with management this Compensation Discussion and Analysis and, based on such review and discussions, has recommended to the Board of Directors that the Compensation Discussion and Analysis be included in this proxy statement.

- (1) Bonus: Amounts shown in column (d) reflect a sign-on bonus paid to Mr. Sklarsky when he joined Tyco in December 2010. In addition, special awards were paid to Messrs. Oliver and Gursahaney in fiscal year 2009 in recognition of their contributions toward achievement of cash conversion and free cash flow generation goals in fiscal year 2009.
- (2) Stock/Unit Awards and Option Awards: The amounts in columns (e) and (f) reflect the fair value of equity awards granted in fiscal years 2011, 2010 and 2009, which consisted of stock options, restricted stock units (RSUs) and performance share units. These amounts represent the fair value of the entire amount of the award calculated in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board ASC Topic 718, excluding the effect of estimated forfeitures. For stock options, amounts are computed by multiplying the fair value of the award (as determined under the Black-Scholes option pricing model) by the total number of options granted. For RSUs, fair value is computed by multiplying the total number of shares subject to the award by the closing market price of Tyco common shares on the date of grant. For performance share units, fair value is based on a model that considers the closing market price of Tyco common shares on the date of grant, the range of shares subject to such stock award, and the estimated probabilities of vesting outcomes. The value of performance share units included in the table assumes target performance. The following amounts represent the maximum potential performance share value by individual for fiscal year 2010: Mr. Breen—$9,826,325; Mr. Sklarsky—$1,792,294; Mr. Coughlin—$0; Mr. Oliver—$1,795,514; Mr. Gursahaney—$1,795,514; Ms. Reinsdorf—$1,527,026.

Amounts in column (f) for Mr. Coughlin include the incremental fair value of certain modifications made to outstanding options in connection with the fiscal year 2010 equity grant. These prior grants, which total 435,728 stock options, were made as part of the fiscal years 2006, 2007 and 2009 annual equity incentive program. The awards were modified to provide that if Mr. Coughlin remains employed by Tyco on October 8, 2011, then the options will remain exercisable throughout the entire ten-year period commencing on their grant dates, rather than the three-year window that normally follows retirement, and that any unvested options outstanding on such date (which would consist of 1/4 of the stock options granted in connection with the fiscal year 2009 incentive program) would immediately vest.

- (3) Non-Equity Incentive Plan Compensation: The amounts reported in column (g) for each named executive officer reflect annual cash incentive compensation for the applicable fiscal year. Annual incentive compensation is discussed in further detail above under the heading “Elements of Compensation—Annual Incentive Compensation.”
- (4) Change in Pension Value and Non-Qualified Deferred Compensation Earnings: The amounts reported in column (h) for Mr. Breen reflect the aggregate increase in the actuarial present value of his accumulated benefits under all pension plans during fiscal years 2011, 2010 and 2009, determined using interest rate and mortality rate assumptions consistent with those used in Tyco’s financial statements. Information regarding the pension plans is set forth in further detail below following the “Pension Benefits” table.
- (5) All Other Compensation: The amounts reported in column (i) for each named executive officer represent cash perquisites, insurance premiums paid by Tyco for the benefit of the officer (and, in some cases, the officer’s spouse), costs related to personal use of Company aircraft, tax gross-up payments, Company contributions to 401(k) plans and non-qualified plans of Tyco and its subsidiaries providing similar benefits, and other miscellaneous benefits. The components of All Other Compensation for each named executive officer are shown in the following table.

- (a) Cash Perquisites reflect an annual cash perquisite payment equal to the lesser of 10% of the executive’s base salary and $70,000. Payments are made quarterly and are adjusted to reflect changes in salary. This benefit has been discontinued as of January 1, 2012.
- (b) Supplemental Executive Insurance Benefits reflect premiums paid by Tyco for insurance benefits for the executive and, in the case of long-term care, for the executive’s spouse as well. These benefits are provided to certain Senior Officers of Tyco upon the approval of the Compensation Committee.
- (c) For security purposes, the Chief Executive Officer is authorized to use Company-owned or -leased aircraft for personal travel. Other named executive officers are permitted to use Company-owned or -leased aircraft if expressly approved by the Board or Mr. Breen. For purposes of the Summary Compensation Table, the aggregate incremental pre-tax cost to Tyco for personal use of Company aircraft is calculated using a method that takes into account the incremental cost of fuel, trip-related maintenance, crew travel expenses, on-board catering, landing fees, trip-related hangar/parking costs and other variable costs, including incremental costs associated with executives that are not in control of the aircraft. Because our aircraft are used primarily for business travel, the calculation does not include the fixed costs that do not change based on usage, such as pilots’ salaries, the acquisition costs of Tyco-owned or -leased aircraft, and the cost of maintenance not related to trips.
- (d) The amounts shown in this column as tax gross-up payments for Messrs. Coughlin, Oliver, and Gursahaney, and Ms. Reinsdorf, represent tax gross-up payments made with respect to taxable insurance benefits in fiscal years 2009 and 2010. Amounts for Mr. Breen include tax gross-up payments made with respect to taxable insurance benefits and the reimbursement of state taxes owed by him to New York for Tyco work performed in that State. Generally, with respect to compensation awarded to Mr. Breen prior to 2009, Tyco pays the additional taxes (including a gross-up) that Mr. Breen owes as a result of working in New York rather than in his principal work location. The amount related to state taxes for Mr. Breen for fiscal year 2011 is an estimate, pending receipt of the relevant personal state tax return information for calendar year 2011. This estimate is based primarily on compensation deemed by New York State to be earned by Mr. Breen in fiscal year 2011 in respect of equity granted prior to 2009. Mr. Breen has waived the New York tax gross-up with respect to compensation awarded after January 1, 2009.
- (e) Retirement plan contributions include matching contributions made by Tyco on behalf of each executive to its tax-qualified 401(k) Retirement, Savings and Investment Plan and to its non-qualified Supplemental Savings and Retirement Plan.
- (f) Miscellaneous compensation in fiscal year 2011 includes matching charitable contributions made by Tyco on behalf of Messrs. Breen, Oliver, Gursahaney and Ms. Reinsdorf and, for Mr. Sklarsky, the value of relocation benefits. Miscellaneous compensation also includes de minimis payments made for fractional shares. Miscellaneous compensation in fiscal year 2010 includes matching charitable contributions made by Tyco on behalf of each of Messrs. Coughlin, Gursahaney and Oliver, and Ms. Reinsdorf and car service for Mr. Coughlin. Miscellaneous compensation in fiscal year 2009 includes matching charitable contributions made by Tyco on behalf of each of Messrs. Coughlin, Gursahaney and Oliver and de minimis payments for fractional shares made to Mr. Gursahaney.

- (1) Amounts reported in columns (d) through (f) represent potential annual performance bonuses that the named executive officers could have earned under Tyco's annual incentive plan for fiscal year 2011. The Board approved a maximum bonus payout of 0.50% of net income before special items for Mr. Breen, subject to a cap of $5.0 million imposed by the 2004 SIP, and 0.25% for the other Senior Officers, subject to a cap of $2.5 million. The Compensation Committee further established a maximum payout of 200% of target. Threshold amounts assume minimum performance levels are achieved with respect to each performance measure.
- (2) Amounts in (g) through (i) represent potential share payouts with respect to performance share awards that were made in connection with the fiscal year 2011 long-term compensation grant. Performance share units were granted to certain executive officers in October 2010 (December 2010 in the case of Mr. Sklarsky) and vest at the end of the three-year performance period on September 27, 2013. The number of shares that will be paid out will depend on Tyco's (i) three-year annualized total shareholder return over the performance period, as compared to the return for the S&P 500 Industrials Index and (ii) achievement of cumulative earnings per share before special items over the performance period. Equity was granted to Mr. Sklarsky when he joined Tyco in December 2010. A portion of the award granted on December 8, 2010, consisting of (i) restricted stock units with a grant date fair value of $1.5 million that vest in equal annual installments over a three year period and (ii) restricted stock units with a grant date fair value of $371,735 that vest on the third anniversary of the grant date, were intended to compensate Mr. Sklarsky for equity and other benefits forfeited with his previous employer.
- (3) Amounts in column (m) show the grant date fair value of the option awards and performance share awards granted to named executive officers. Amounts for performance share awards represent the estimate of the aggregate compensation cost to be recognized over the three year performance period determined as of the grant date under FASB ASC Topic 718, excluding the effect of estimated forfeitures. The actual number of shares that are paid out will depend on Tyco's achievement of the performance metrics at the end of the performance period.

The Company made its annual grant of equity for fiscal year 2011 in October 2010. The award for the Chief Executive Officer consisted of stock options and performance share units. Other named executive officers also received a mix of stock options, performance share units and restricted stock units.

When Tyco grants stock options, the exercise price equals the fair market value of our common shares on the date of grant. Stock options generally vest in equal installments over a period of four years, beginning on the first anniversary of the grant date. Each option holder has 10 years to exercise his or her stock option from the date of grant, unless forfeited earlier.

Performance share units generally vest at the end of the performance period. The number of shares that are actually earned depends on whether, and at what level, the performance criteria have been met. Performance share units granted in fiscal year 2011 accrue dividends prior to vesting, which are earned and paid out only to the extent that performance targets are achieved. Performance share units do not have any voting rights. For performance share units granted in connection with the fiscal year 2011 equity award, the relevant metrics are (i) Tyco's three-year total shareholder return ("TSR") between September 25, 2010 and September 27, 2013 (50% weighting) and (ii) Tyco's cumulative earnings per share before special items ("cumulative EPS") over the same period (50% weighting). Tyco' TSR is to be compared with the total shareholder return of all the companies in the S&P 500 Industrials Index for the same period. The TSR return measure is based on the average of the closing stock price for the 60 trading days preceding, and the last 60 trading days of, the performance period, plus a total return factor to reflect the reinvestment of dividends during the three-year period. If Tyco's total shareholder return is not equal to or better than the total shareholder return for 35% of the companies constituting the S&P 500 Industrials Index, no shares will be delivered with respect to the TSR performance metric. The cumulative EPS metric also contains a minimum performance threshold. The maximum number of shares each named executive officer can receive with respect to the fiscal year 2011 performance share plan is two times the target number of shares granted. In addition, if Tyco's TSR is negative at the end of the performance period, the maximum payout for the TSR metric is capped at 125% of the target number of shares, with a similar cap for the cumulative EPS performance threshold.

Forfeiture provisions related to involuntary terminations are described above under the heading "Change in Control and Severance Benefits." Special termination provisions apply for employees who are terminated in connection with the Distributions. For a description of these provisions, please refer to Tyco's Current Report on Form 8-K filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on October 14, 2011.

Outstanding Equity Awards at Fiscal Year-End Table

The following table shows, for each of the named executive officers, all equity awards that were outstanding as of September 30, 2011. Dollar amounts are based on the NYSE closing price of $40.75 for Tyco's common shares on September 30, 2011.

(2) The amounts in columns (f) and (g) reflect, for each named executive officer, the number and market value of RSUs which had been granted as of September 30, 2011, but which remained subject to additional vesting requirements (the officer's continued employment with Tyco). Scheduled vesting of all RSUs for each of the named executive officer is as follows:

(3) Amounts in columns (h) and (i) reflect the number and market value, as of September 30, 2011, of performance share units that would be earned if the performance goals related to these awards were met at the target level at the end of the performance period. If the minimum performance threshold is not met, there will be no payout. The number of shares that will actually be earned will depend on Tyco's three-year shareholder return as compared to the total shareholder return of the S & P 500 Industrials Index and its cumulative EPS over the performance period.

Scheduled vesting of all performance share units (based on achievement of target values) for each of the named executive officers is as follows:

- (1) Mr. Breen exercised stock options scheduled to expire in 2012 from September 2010 through August 2011 pursuant to a Rule 10b5-1 stock trading plan. Mr. Breen entered into the plan as part of his personal long-term financial, estate and tax planning strategy, and to provide for the orderly liquidation of his stock options prior to their expiration.
- (2) For Mr. Breen, amount in column (d) does not reflect 21,966 fully vested dividend equivalents accrued during fiscal 2011 on Deferred Stock Units (“DSUs”) originally granted to Mr. Breen in July 2002. The value of these dividend equivalents, and earnings thereon, is reported in the Non-Qualified Deferred Compensation Table of Fiscal Year-End 2011 under the column heading “Aggregate Earnings in Last Fiscal Year.”

Pension Benefits Table

The following table presents, for each named executive officer, the present value of the benefit he or she would receive at retirement under the specified pension plan, based on credited years of service and covered compensation as of September 30, 2011. Mr. Breen is the only named executive officer of Tyco with a pension benefit.

Name (a)	Plan Name (b)	Number of Years Credited Service (#) (c)	Present Value of Accumulated Benefit ($) (d)	Payments During Last Fiscal Year ($) (e)
Edward D. Breen . . . . .	Employment Agreement	9.17	$23,660,000	$—

- (1) The terms of Mr. Breen’s employment agreement provide that he is entitled to receive an annual supplemental retirement benefit payable at the later of age 60 and termination of employment. The supplemental benefit is in the form of a joint 50% spousal survivor’s annuity equal to 50% of Mr. Breen’s final average earnings. This average is calculated as the highest average of the sum of his monthly base salary and actual bonus (the bonus being spread equally over the bonus period for which it is paid) during any consecutive 36 month period within the 60-month period prior to his termination of employment. Final average earnings are reduced by benefits from any defined benefit pension plans maintained by Tyco or its affiliates, by benefits from any other defined benefit pension plans maintained by any previous employers, and by benefits attributable to employer contributions, including matching contributions to any defined contribution plans maintained by Tyco or its affiliates. Mr. Breen is vested in the benefit described above. Mr. Breen’s benefit is payable as an actuarially equivalent lump sum at the later of (i) age 60 and (ii) the actual date of his termination of employment other than as a result of death or upon a change in control (subject to any applicable 6-month delay pursuant to Code Section 409A).
- (2) The amount in column (d) is calculated as the discounted present value of normal retirement benefits earned as of September 30, 2011, payable as a lump sum at “Normal Retirement Date” (without regard to projected service, projected salary increases, pre-retirement mortality or other decrements). The assumptions used in determining the discounted present value are consistent with those used to calculate Tyco’s retirement plan liabilities as described in Note 16 to Tyco’s audited consolidated financial statements for fiscal year 2011, and include:
- A discount rate of 4.45%;
  - Payment as a lump sum;
  - A prime rate of 3.25% (used to accumulate Tyco’s defined contribution match balance);
  - An assumed retirement age of 60.

- (1) Amounts in columns (b) and (c) include employee and Company contributions, respectively, under Tyco's Supplemental Savings and Retirement Plan (the "SSRP"), a non-qualified retirement savings plan. All of the amounts shown in column (c) are included in the Summary Compensation Table under the column heading "All Other Compensation." Under the terms of the SSRP, an eligible executive may choose to defer up to 50% of his or her base salary and up to 100% of his or her performance bonus.
- (2) Amounts in column (d) include earnings or (losses) on the named executive officer's notional account in the SSRP and in Tyco's Supplemental Executive Retirement Plan (the "SERP"). The SERP was frozen with respect to additional contributions on December 31, 2004. Investment options under the SSRP include only funds that are available under Tyco's tax-qualified 401(k) retirement plans. Investment options under the SERP are the same as those available under the SSRP.
- (3) Under both the SSRP and the SERP, participants may elect to receive distributions in a single lump sum payment or in up to 15 annual installments. A participant who is still employed by Tyco may begin receiving distributions under each plan after a minimum of five years have elapsed from the plan year for which contributions have been made. A participant who has left Tyco may begin receiving distributions upon his or her termination of employment or retirement.
- (4) Reflects DSUs originally granted to Mr. Breen in July 2002. Distribution of the DSUs will occur on the first to occur of (1) 30 days following the termination of the individual from the Company (except for cause), (2) a change in control of the Company and (3) December 31, 2017. DSUs accrue fully vested dividend equivalent units, which are distributed at the same time as the distribution of the underlying DSUs. Amounts in column (d) represent the earnings during fiscal 2011 on 950,972 vested DSUs that have not yet been delivered. Column (d) also includes the value of, and earnings on, 21,966 fully vested dividend equivalents accrued during fiscal 2011. The value set forth in Column (f) is based on Tyco's closing NYSE price of $40.75 on September 30, 2011.

Potential Payments Upon Termination and Change in Control

The following table summarizes the severance benefits that would have been payable to each of the named executive officers upon his or her termination of employment or upon the occurrence of a change in control, assuming that the triggering event or events occurred on September 30, 2011 and thus are estimates of the amounts that would be paid to the executives upon a change in control or their termination following a change in control. The amounts shown are based on Tyco's closing NYSE share price of $40.75 on such date. In addition to the amounts set forth below, each of the named executive officers would be entitled to the amounts set forth under "Pension Benefits Table" and "Non-Qualified Deferred Compensation Table at Fiscal Year-End 2011." The actual amounts to be paid can only be determined at the time of such change in control or executive's separation. See "Interests of Tyco's Directors and Executive Officers in the Distribution" for a description of the payments and benefits that each named executive officer would receive in connection with the Distributions and related transactions.

For Mr. Breen, termination benefits are governed by his employment agreement. For each of the other named executive officers, the CIC Severance Plan governs termination benefits for change in control triggering events, and the Severance Plan governs termination benefits for all other triggering events. In all cases, a "Qualified Termination" means a termination following a change in control that would provide the executive with a "Good Reason" to terminate his employment, as defined under the CIC Severance Plan or under Mr. Breen's employment agreement. For the definition of "Good Reason" and "Cause" under the relevant documents, see the discussion under the heading "Change in Control and Severance Benefits." Under his employment agreement, Mr. Breen could terminate his employment for "Good Reason" by voluntarily resigning within the 30-day period following the first anniversary of a change in control, in which case he would be entitled to severance and the benefit and perquisite continuation described in column (c). The definition of a "Good Reason" termination under Mr. Breen's employment agreement includes a change in duties that results in a significant diminution in his position, authority, duties or responsibilities. Upon completion of the Distributions, if Mr. Breen were to continue as Tyco's chief executive officer, we believe that these provisions would apply. As a result, upon his resignation in connection with the Distributions, Mr. Breen is expected to receive severance benefits consistent with a Good Reason termination, except that Mr. Breen has waived the acceleration of a portion of his fiscal year 2012 annual equity grant, and these awards are expected to be forfeited.

Mr. Breen's employment agreement with Tyco was amended on December 19, 2008. Among other changes, the amended agreement reduced certain of the benefits, including cash payments, that he is entitled to upon a termination or change in control, as described above under the heading "Change in Control and Severance Benefits."

(1) For Mr. Breen, severance benefits are also paid upon termination for Good Reason. As discussed above, the definition of a "Good Reason" termination under Mr. Breen's employment agreement includes a change in duties that results in a significant diminution in his position, authority, duties or responsibilities. Upon completion of the Distributions, if Mr. Breen were to continue as Tyco's chief executive officer, we believe that these provisions would apply. As a result, upon his resignation in connection with the Distributions, Mr. Breen is expected to receive severance benefits consistent with a Good Reason termination, except that Mr. Breen has waived the acceleration of a portion of his fiscal year 2012 annual equity grant, and these awards are expected to be forfeited.

- (2) For Mr. Breen, who is retirement eligible based upon age and service, the value of certain equity awards that would immediately become deliverable upon retirement are not included because these awards are no longer subject to a significant vesting requirement.
- (3) For Mr. Breen, severance paid for a qualified termination under a Change in Control was based on three times his base salary and three times his actual bonus for fiscal year 2010. For termination due to other triggering events, severance was based on two times his base salary and two times his actual bonus for fiscal year 2010. Under his employment agreement, the multiple will reduce when Mr. Breen reaches specified ages. In addition, in the event of a change in control, Mr. Breen's employment agreement provides for a full gross-up of any federal excise tax that might be due under Section 4999 of the Code (although no gross-up would have been payable as of September 30, 2011). No other named executive is eligible for this benefit. For each of the other named executive officers, severance would be paid under either the CIC Severance Plan (if the triggering event were a change in control) or the Severance Plan (for other triggering events). Under the CIC Severance Plan, each of Mr. Sklarsky and Ms. Reinsdorf would be entitled to a severance payment of 2.99 times base salary and 2.99 times target bonus for the fiscal year in which termination occurs, and Messrs. Gursahaney and Oliver would be entitled to 2 times his base salary and target bonus, subject to possible reduction if the excise tax under Section 4999 would apply. Under the Severance Plan, each named executive officer (except Mr. Breen) would have been entitled to salary continuation and bonus payments for the 24 months following termination of employment. In addition to the amounts included in this table, each named executive officer (including Mr. Breen) would be entitled to the Annual Performance Bonus for the year in which his or her employment was terminated. The bonus payments are included in the Summary Compensation table under the column heading "Non-Equity Incentive Compensation," and are discussed above under the heading "Elements of Compensation—Annual Incentive Compensation."
- (4) Upon a triggering event, Mr. Breen's employment agreement provides for continued participation in health and welfare plans over the same time period for which severance is payable, subject to an 18-month limit on medical benefits. If continued participation is not practicable, and/or if Mr. Breen's severance period is greater than 18 months, an equivalent cash payment is made, with a tax gross-up on such amounts. For each of the other named executive officers, medical and dental benefits are provided under the CIC Severance Plan or the Severance Plan, which both provide for 12 months of continuing coverage, and if the executive's severance period is greater than 12 months, the executive will be entitled to a cash payment equal to the projected value of the employer portion of premiums during the severance period in excess of 12 months. Not included is the value of the executive disability insurance program that provides salary continuation of an additional $25,000 ($75,000 for Mr. Breen) above the $15,000 monthly benefit provided by our broad based disability plan.
- (5) Amounts represent the intrinsic value of unvested Tyco equity awards and stock options that would vest upon a triggering event. Performance share units are assumed to vest at target for purposes of these calculations. For Mr. Breen, the amounts in columns (b), (c), (e) and (g) include a tax gross-up payment to the State of New York of $10,172. Mr. Breen agreed to waive the New York State tax gross-up payments for compensation that is awarded to him after January 1, 2009.
- (6) Amounts in columns (b), (c) and (e) represent accelerated payment of a portion of the amount disclosed in the Pension Benefits Table that would be due upon a change in control or termination without cause triggering event. No accelerated payment would accrue under the circumstances described under columns (d), (f) or (g). Under Mr. Breen's employment agreement, if Mr. Breen voluntarily terminates employment without Good Reason, or his employment is terminated for Cause prior to age 60, benefits deemed earned under the Supplemental Executive Retirement Plan will be subject to a reduction of 0.25% for each month or partial month the termination date is prior to age 60. The amount shown in column (b) does not reflect any reduction in benefits related to an election to receive payments earlier than age 60.
- (7) Amounts represent Tyco-provided supplemental life insurance benefit for each of the named executive officers (other than Mr. Sklarsky) upon the death of the executive.

SECTION 16(a) BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP REPORTING COMPLIANCE

Section 16(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 requires Tyco's officers and Directors and persons who beneficially own more than 10% of Tyco's common shares to file reports of ownership and changes in ownership of such common shares with the SEC and NYSE. These persons are required by SEC regulations to furnish Tyco with copies of all Section 16(a) forms they file. As a matter of practice, Tyco's administrative staff assists Tyco's officers and Directors in preparing initial reports of ownership and reports of changes in ownership and files those reports on their behalf. Based on Tyco's review of the copies of such forms it has received, as well as information provided and representations made by the reporting persons, Tyco believes that all of its officers, Directors and beneficial owners of more than 10% of its common shares complied with Section 16(a) during fiscal year 2011.

AUDIT COMMITTEE REPORT

The Audit Committee of the Board is composed of three Directors, each of whom the Board has determined meets the independence and experience requirements of the NYSE and the SEC. The Audit Committee operates under a charter approved by the Board, which is posted on our website. As more fully described in its charter, the Audit Committee oversees Tyco's financial reporting process on behalf of the Board. Management has the primary responsibility for the financial statements and the reporting process. Management assures that Tyco develops and maintains adequate financial controls and procedures, and monitors compliance with these processes. Tyco's independent auditors are responsible for performing an audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States to obtain reasonable assurance that Tyco's consolidated financial statements are free from material misstatement and expressing an opinion on the conformity of the financial statements with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States. The internal auditors are responsible to the Audit Committee and the Board for testing the integrity of the financial accounting and reporting control systems and such other matters as the Audit Committee and Board determine.

In this context, the Audit Committee has reviewed the GAAP consolidated financial statements and Swiss statutory financial statements for the fiscal year ended September 24, 2010, and has met and held discussions with management, the internal auditors and the independent auditors concerning these financial statements, as well as the report of management and the report of the independent registered public accounting firm regarding Tyco's internal control over financial reporting required by Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. Management represented to the Committee that Tyco's GAAP consolidated financial statements were prepared in accordance with GAAP and the Swiss statutory financial statements comply with Swiss law and Tyco's Articles of Association. In addition, the Committee has discussed with the independent auditors the auditors' independence from Tyco and its management as required under Public Company Accounting Oversight Board Rule 3526, Communication with Audit Committees Concerning Independence, and the matters required to be discussed by Public Company Accounting Oversight Board Auditing Standard AU Section 380 (Communication with Audit Committees) and Rule 2-07 of SEC Regulation S-X.

In addition, the Audit Committee has received the written disclosures and the letter from the independent auditor required by applicable requirements of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board regarding the independent auditor's communications with the Audit Committee concerning independence. The Audit Committee has also received an unqualified opinion from Deloitte AG that the Swiss statutory financial statements for the period ended September 30, 2011 comply with Swiss law and Tyco's Articles of Association. Based upon the Committee's review and discussions referred to above, the Committee recommended that the Board include Tyco's audited consolidated financial statements in Tyco's Annual Report on Form 10-K for fiscal year 2011 filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission and that such report, together with the audited statutory financial statements of Tyco International Ltd. be included in Tyco's annual report to shareholders for fiscal year 2011.

PROPOSAL 1—APPROVAL OF A SPECIAL DIVIDEND IN KIND FOR ADT

The Board of Directors proposes a special dividend in kind to each Tyco shareholder of one share of common stock of ADT, par value $0.01 per share, for every two Tyco common shares held as of the record date for the special dividend subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the conditions set forth below. The special dividend shall be made out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus equity position in its Swiss statutory accounts. The reduction to Tyco's contributed surplus in its statutory accounts resulting from the special dividend shall be the greater of (i) the aggregate book value of ADT as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of Swiss statutory accounting) and (ii) the aggregate trading value of all ADT shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of ADT shares distributed in the special dividend in kind by the opening trading price of ADT common stock on the first trading day after the distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco's Swiss statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. The aggregate book value of all outstanding shares of ADT common stock on the distribution date plus the aggregate book value of all other distributions proposed to be made (including the distribution of Tyco Flow Control common shares), may not exceed the amount legally distributable to Tyco shareholders.

In lieu of ADT fractional shares, shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of ADT common stock in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of ADT common stock in the special dividend.

Declaration and distribution of the special dividend shall be subject to the satisfaction (in the sole determination of the Board of Directors) or waiver (at the sole discretion of the Board of Directors) prior to March 31, 2013 of the following conditions:

- the SEC, shall have declared effective the ADT Form 10, including the Preliminary Information Statement contained therein, under the Exchange Act, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the ADT Form 10 shall be in effect;
- ADT's common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution, to the effect that (i) the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the ADT Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the ADT Distribution to Tyco shareholders substantially to the effect that the ADT Distribution, including cash received in lieu of fractional shares of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the ADT Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the ADT Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the ADT Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the ADT Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the ADT Distribution; and

- based on the closing price of the ADT shares trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the ADT Distribution, the aggregate market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

The Board’s proposal is accompanied by a report by the auditor, Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, who will be present at the meeting. The auditor’s report states that the proposed special dividend in kind complies with Swiss law and Tyco’s Articles of Association.

The approval of the distribution of the special dividend in kind requires the affirmative vote of a relative majority of the votes cast by the holders of common shares represented at the Special General Meeting in person or by proxy (whereby abstentions, broker non-votes, blank or invalid ballots shall be disregarded for purposes of establishing the number of votes cast).

The Board recommends that the shareholders vote FOR the approval of the distribution of shares of ADT common stock to be made in the form of a special dividend in kind out of qualifying contributed surplus.

PROPOSAL 2—APPROVAL OF A SPECIAL DIVIDEND IN KIND FOR TYCO FLOW CONTROL

The Board of Directors proposes a special dividend in kind to each Tyco shareholder, for every Tyco common share held as of the record date for the special dividend, subject to the satisfaction or waiver prior to March 31, 2013 of the conditions set forth below, a number of shares of Tyco Flow Control, par value CHF 0.50 per share, equal to the quotient of (i) the product of (x) the number of Pentair common shares outstanding (determined on a fully-diluted basis calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP without taking into account tax consequences to any party or any applicable vesting provisions) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, multiplied by (y) 1.10526316 divided by (ii) the number of shares of Tyco common stock outstanding (determined on a fully-diluted basis calculated in accordance with the treasury method under GAAP without taking into account tax consequences to any party or any applicable vesting provisions) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution.

In lieu of Tyco Flow Control fractional shares, shareholders will receive a cash payment. The distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of Tyco Flow Control in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of Tyco Flow Control in the special dividend.

The special dividend shall be made out of Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus equity position in its Swiss statutory accounts. The reduction to Tyco's contributed surplus in its Swiss statutory accounts resulting from the special dividend shall be the greater of (i) the aggregate book value of Tyco Flow Control as of March 30, 2012 (as calculated under Swiss GAAP for purposes of Swiss statutory financial statements) and (ii) the aggregate trading value of all distributed Tyco Flow Control shares (calculated as the product of multiplying the number of Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed in the special dividend in kind by the opening trading price of Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed on the first trading day after the distribution of the special dividend). The accumulated deficit in Tyco's statutory accounts will be reduced by the excess, if any, of the aggregate trading value over the aggregate book value due to the income recognition attributable to such excess. The aggregate book value of all outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control on the distribution date plus the aggregate book value of all other distributions proposed to be made (including the distribution of ADT common stock), may not exceed the amount legally distributable to Tyco shareholders.

Declaration and distribution of the special dividend shall be subject to the satisfaction (in the sole determination of the Board of Directors) or waiver (at the sole discretion of the Board of Directors) prior to March 31, 2013 of the following conditions:

- the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco's obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution); and
- each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger.

For detailed information regarding the conditions to Tyco's and Pentair's obligations to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement see "The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger."

The Board's proposal is accompanied by a report by the auditor, Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, who will be present at the meeting. The auditor's report states that the proposed special dividend in kind complies with Swiss law and Tyco's Articles of Association.

The approval of the distribution of the special dividend in kind requires the affirmative vote of a relative majority of the votes cast by the holders of common shares represented at the Special General Meeting in person or by proxy (whereby abstentions, broker non-votes, blank or invalid ballots shall be disregarded for purposes of establishing the number of votes cast).

The Board recommends that the shareholders vote FOR the approval of the distribution of Tyco Flow Control common shares to be made in the form of a special dividend in kind out of qualifying contributed surplus.

PROPOSAL 3—ELECTION OF DIRECTORS

Upon the recommendation of the Nominating and Governance Committee, the Board has nominated for election at this Special General Meeting a slate of two new nominees which election would be effective as of and subject to completion of the Distributions. The new nominees are Frank Drendel and George Oliver. The election of Directors will take place at the Special General Meeting. Election of the new Directors requires the affirmative vote of an absolute majority of the votes cast by the holders of common shares represented at the Special General Meeting in person or by proxy (whereby abstentions, broker non-votes, blank or invalid ballots shall be included for purposes of establishing the number of votes cast). Shareholders are entitled to one vote per share for each of the Directors to be elected. Tyco is not aware of any reason why any of the nominees will not be able to serve if elected. The new Directors elected will serve until Tyco's next annual general meeting and until their successors, if any, are elected and qualified.

The Board recommends that the shareholders vote FOR the election of the two nominees for Director to serve until the next annual general meeting.

PROPOSAL 4—APPROVAL OF ORDINARY CASH DIVIDENDS

As a result of the proposed Distributions, the Board of Directors is proposing that shareholders conditionally approve ordinary cash dividends in the aggregate amount of $0.30 per share out of Tyco's qualifying capital contribution reserve on Tyco's statutory balance sheet in two equal quarterly installments of $0.15 on November 15, 2012 and February 20, 2013. The conditional dividends will only be paid if the record date for the Distributions precedes the record date for such cash dividends. These ordinary cash dividends would replace the conditional ordinary cash dividends previously approved by Tyco shareholders for the same dates at Tyco's annual general meeting on March 7, 2012. The ordinary cash dividends will be distributed on the basis of the annual parent company financial statements of Tyco for fiscal year 2011, as approved at the annual shareholder's meeting held on March 7, 2012.

Dividend payments shall be made with respect to the outstanding share capital of Tyco on the record date for the applicable dividend payment, which amount excludes any shares held by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries. The deduction to Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus, which is required to be made in Swiss francs, shall be determined based on the aggregate amount of the dividend and shall be calculated based on the USD / CHF exchange rate in effect on the date of the Special General Meeting. The U.S. dollar amount of the dividend shall be capped at an amount such that the aggregate reduction to Tyco's qualifying contributed surplus shall not exceed CHF 270 million (or approximately $0.59 per share based on the USD / CHF exchange rate of CHF 0.95 per $1.00 in effect on June 29, 2012). To the extent that a dividend payment would exceed the cap, the U.S. dollar per share amount of the current or future dividends shall be reduced on a pro rata basis so that the aggregate amount of all dividends paid does not exceed the cap. In addition, the aggregate reduction to the contributed surplus shall be increased for any shares issued, and decreased for any shares acquired, after the Special General Meeting and before the record date for the applicable dividend installment payment. The Board's proposal is accompanied by a report by the auditor, Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, who will be present at the Special General Meeting. The auditor's report states that the proposed dividend complies with Swiss law and Tyco's Articles of Association.

The approval of the payments of ordinary cash dividends require the affirmative vote of a relative majority of the votes cast by the holders of common shares represented at the Special General Meeting in person or by proxy (whereby abstentions, broker non-votes, blank or invalid ballots shall be disregarded for purposes of establishing the number of votes cast).

The Board unanimously recommends that shareholders vote FOR the approval of the payment of an ordinary cash dividend out of qualifying contributed surplus in the aggregate amount of up to $0.50 per share.

PROPOSAL 5—APPROVAL OF THE TYCO INTERNATIONAL LTD. 2012 STOCK AND INCENTIVE PLAN

Our Board has proposed approval of the Tyco International Ltd. 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan (the “2012 Plan”) by stockholders to replace Tyco’s current Amended and Restated 2004 Stock and Incentive Plan (the “Current Plan”), which is scheduled to expire in March 2014. When the 2012 Plan becomes effective, no additional awards will be made under the Current Plan. The 2012 Plan was approved by our Compensation and Human Resources Committee and our Board of Directors on July 12, 2012, subject to the approval of shareholders. Approval of the 2012 Plan requires the affirmative vote of a relative majority of the common shares represented in person or by proxy at the Special General Meeting of Shareholders.

Our Compensation and Human Resources Committee and Board believe in providing total compensation opportunities that are competitive with similar other large global general industry companies with which we compete for talent. One key component of our compensation philosophy is weighting total compensation towards long-term, performance-based incentives to better align the interests of Tyco’s employees with stockholders. Long-term equity-based incentives are the most significant component of Tyco’s compensation programs and pay-for-performance philosophy. Equity incentives motivate employees to make decisions in support of Tyco’s long-term financial interests while also serving as the primary tool for attracting and retaining high-caliber employees. If stockholders do not approve the 2012 Plan, Tyco will cease granting equity awards under the Current Plan when the maximum number of shares authorized for issuance under the Current Plan has been reached. We anticipate that this will happen shortly after the completion of the Distributions due to the significant impact that the Distributions are expected to have on Tyco’s share price. Tyco’s inability to grant equity awards once the maximum share authorization has been reached under the Current Plan would result in significant gaps in Tyco’s total compensation program that could impair its goals of attracting, motivating and retaining key employees and aligning their interests with the interests of stockholders.

Key Features of 2012 Plan

As described below, the 2012 Plan generally provides for:

- Granting of stock options or stock appreciation rights at an exercise price at least equal to fair market value on the grant date;
- A ten-year maximum term for stock options and stock appreciation rights;
- No dividend equivalents with respect to stock options and stock appreciation rights, and no vesting of dividend equivalents with respect to performance-based awards unless the underlying awards vest;
- No repricing of stock options or stock appreciation rights without prior stockholder approval; and
- No reload or “evergreen” share replenishment features.

Summary of Material Provisions

The following is a summary of the material terms and provisions of the 2012 Plan. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the complete text of the 2012 Plan, which is attached hereto as Annex H. To the extent that there is a conflict between this summary and the 2012 Plan, the terms of the 2012 Plan will govern. Any capitalized terms that are used but not defined in this summary have the meaning given to them in the 2012 Plan.

Plan Administration.

The 2012 Plan is administered by the Compensation and Human Resources Committee of the Board of Directors (the “Committee”), which has broad discretion and authority under the 2012 Plan to (1) interpret and administer the 2012 Plan; (2) prescribe, amend and rescind rules and regulations relating to the 2012 Plan; (3) select participants to receive Awards; (4) determine the form of an Award, the number of common shares subject to an Award, and the terms and conditions of each Award; (5) determine whether Awards will be granted singly, in combination or in tandem; (6) establish and interpret performance criteria in connection with performance-based awards and evaluate and certify the level of performance attained; (7) waive, correct or amend any terms, conditions, restrictions or limitations on an Award (except that (a) the 2012 Plan's prohibition on the repricing of Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights cannot be waived and (b) any waiver or amendment must comply with, or be subject to an exemption from, Section 409A of the Code); (8) make any adjustments to the 2012 Plan (including but not limited to adjustment of the number of common shares available under the 2012 Plan, as described below, or any Award) and any Award granted under the 2012 Plan that may be appropriate, in accordance with the 2012 Plan's adjustment provisions (see "Adjustments" below); (9) determine under which circumstances Awards may be deferred; (10) determine whether any Awards may be transferable; (11) establish subplans and make any modifications to the 2012 Plan to implement and administer the 2012 Plan in foreign countries; (12) appoint agents to help administer the 2012 Plan; and (13) take any and all other actions it deems necessary or advisable for the proper operation or administration of the 2012 Plan.

The Committee may delegate any of its duties and authority under the 2012 Plan, except for the authority to grant and administer Awards to Directors, Key Employees and other Reporting Persons, or to employees to whom the Committee has delegated authority under the 2012 Plan. The Committee may not delegate its duty to establish and certify Performance Measures.

Eligibility.

In general, participants eligible to receive Awards under the plan include employees and directors of the Company and its subsidiaries (including prospective employees and directors), and consultants who provide bona fide services to the Company or any of its subsidiaries.

Shares Available for Issuance.

The total number of shares reserved for Awards under the 2012 Plan is 50,000,000, as may be adjusted upon the occurrence of certain events (see "Adjustments" below), including with respect to certain forfeitures and cancellations of Awards granted under the Current Plan. Awards that are granted as Stock Options or Stock Appreciation Rights reduce, on a 1-for-1 basis, the number of shares available under the 2012 Plan. Awards denominated in shares that are granted as Restricted Stock, Restricted Units, Performance Units, Other Stock-Based Awards, or in respect of Short-Term Performance Awards or Long-Term Performance Awards (other than performance based Stock Options) reduce, on a 1-for-3.32 basis, the number of Shares available under the 2012 Plan.

Shares related to the following events restore the shares available in the same amount in which the Award reduced the shares available set forth above:

- Shares related to Awards paid in cash;
- Shares related to Awards that expire, are forfeited or cancelled, or terminate for any other reason without issuance of shares;
- Shares issuable in connection with Awards that are assumed, converted or substituted as a result of the acquisition of an acquired company by the Company or a combination of the Company with another company; and
- Any shares of Restricted Stock that are returned to the Company as Restricted Stock.

In addition, any shares that become issuable under the 2012 Plan as a result of an adjustment to an outstanding Award in connection with the Company's spin-offs of The ADT Corporation and Tyco Flow Control International Ltd. and related transactions shall not be counted against the share authorization.

Adjustments

In the event of a change in the outstanding shares of the Company by reason of a stock split, reverse stock split, dividend or other distribution (whether in the form of cash, shares, other securities or other property), extraordinary cash dividend, recapitalization, merger, consolidation, split-up, spin-off, reorganization, combination, repurchase or exchange of shares or other securities or similar corporate transaction or event, the Committee shall make appropriate adjustments to prevent dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the 2012 Plan (including adjustments to shares available).

Limits on Individual Grants

No participant may be granted an Award with respect to more than 6 million shares in any calendar year, provided, that additional Awards in excess of such limitation and up to 10 million shares may be granted to a Reporting Person who has been hired within the calendar year so long as such additional Awards are made in the form of Stock Options, Stock Appreciation Rights or Long-Term Performance Based Awards. The maximum amount that may be paid in cash or shares in any calendar year pursuant to a Short-Term Performance Award is $5 million. The maximum amount that may be paid in cash to any participant pursuant to Long-Term Performance Awards is $5 million per year (pro rated as appropriate over the applicable performance period). The maximum amount that may be paid in shares to any participant pursuant to a Long-Term Performance Award is 6 million (or 10 million for new hires) per calendar year (less the amount of shares related to any other awards granted to such participant in the applicable year).

The limits described above are not intended to indicate that all of these Awards will be made, or that Awards will be made up to these limits.

Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights.

Stock Options awarded under the 2012 Plan may be in the form of Nonqualified Stock Options or Incentive Stock Options or a combination of the two, at the discretion of the Committee and as set forth in the award certificate. Stock Appreciation Rights may be awarded either alone or in tandem with Stock Options. Unless determined otherwise by the Committee and set forth in the award certificate or as required by law, Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights granted under the 2012 Plan are subject to the following terms and conditions:

- Exercise Price—The exercise price for each common share subject to a Stock Option or for a Stock Appreciation Right will be set by the Committee at the time of grant, and will typically be equal to the fair market value of a common share as of the date of grant (with fair market value being set by reference to the closing price on the NYSE). The Committee also has the discretion to grant premium-priced stock options. The exercise price of a Stock Appreciation Right granted in tandem with a Stock Option will be equal to the exercise price of the Stock Option.
- No Repricing—The exercise price of a Stock Option or Stock Appreciation Right may not be decreased after the date of grant, unless approval of the repricing is obtained from the Company's shareholders.
- Vesting—The Committee will set the vesting schedule of Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights awarded under the 2012 Plan in the award certificate. If no vesting schedule is set forth in the award certificate, Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights will vest in equal annual installments over a four year period after the date of grant. Unless otherwise provided in an award certificate, Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights will immediately vest upon the death or disability of a participant and all restrictions will lapse at that time.
- Term—Unless the Committee otherwise sets forth in an award certificate, Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights will automatically lapse ten years after the date of grant.
- Post-Termination Exercise—Except in connection with a participant's termination of employment resulting from death, disability, retirement or a change in control, all Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights that have not vested as of the date of a termination of employment will be forfeited as of the date of termination.

- Payment of Exercise Price—Unless the Award Certificate provides otherwise, payment of the exercise price may be made in cash, check, wire transfer or money order or, if permitted by the Committee, (i) by delivering irrevocable instructions to a broker to deliver to the Company the amount of sale proceeds with respect to common shares having a fair market value equal to the exercise price, (ii) by tendering to the Company common shares owned by the participant for at least six months having an aggregate fair market value equal to the exercise price, or (iii) by instructing the Company to withhold common shares that would otherwise be issued having an aggregate fair market value equal to the exercise price.
- Incentive Stock Options—Incentive Stock Options may be granted only to employees of the Company or a subsidiary, and may not be transferred by an employee other than by will or the laws of descent and distribution and may be exercised only by an employee during the employee’s lifetime. A maximum of 10 million shares may be available for grant in the form of Incentive Stock Options.
- Stock Appreciation Rights—Stock Appreciation Rights will be paid in cash or common shares or a combination of cash and common shares, as determined by the Committee at the time of grant. Cash payments will be equal to the excess of the fair market value of a common share on the date of exercise over the exercise price of the Stock Appreciation Right. If common shares are paid for the Stock Appreciation Right, the number of common shares that will be paid is determined by dividing the cash payment amount by the fair market value of a common share on the date of exercise.

Short-Term and Long-Term Performance Awards.

The 2012 Plan provides for Short-Term and Long-Term Performance Awards that may be granted in the form of cash or common shares (including stock options). The Committee, in its discretion and as set forth in the Award Certificate, will fix the amount, terms and conditions of Short-Term and Long-Term Performance Awards, subject to the following restrictions if such Awards are granted to Reporting Persons:

- Performance Cycles—Short-Term Performance Awards will be granted in connection with performance periods of between 6 and 12 months. Long-Term Performance Awards will be granted in connection with performance periods that may not be shorter than 12 months or longer than five years.
- Performance Measures— The target amounts and/or vesting percentages for any Short-Term or Long-Term Performance Award must be determined by reference to the level of performance attained in relation to one or more performance measures selected by the Committee. The performance measures that the Committee may select include any one or combination of the following:
  - Earnings (including earnings before or after interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization);
  - Net income;
  - Operating income;
  - Return on shareowners’ equity;
  - Return on assets
  - Return on investment before or after the cost of capital;
  - Changes in net assets (whether or not multiplied by a constant percentage intended to represent the cost of capital);
  - Expense management;
  - Improvements in capital structure;
  - Profitability of an identifiable business unit or product;
  - Maintenance or improvement of profit margins;

- Stock price;
- Market share;
- Revenues or sales;
- Costs;
- Cash flow (including free cash flow);
- Working capital;
- Credit rating;
- Improvement in workforce diversity;
- Employee retention;
- Closing of corporate transactions;
- Strategic plan development and implementation;
- Independent industry ratings or assessments; and
- Total shareowners' return.

Any performance measure used may be measured, as applicable, (i) in absolute terms, (ii) in relative terms (including the passage of time and/or against other companies or financial metrics), (iii) on a per share basis, (iv) against the performance of the Company as a whole or against particular entities, segments, operating units or products of the Company, (v) on a pre-tax or after-tax basis, and (vi) in tandem with any other Performance Measure. Awards issued to persons who are not Key Employees may take into account any other factors deemed appropriate by the Committee. No Short-Term or Long-Term Performance Award will be delivered until the Committee certifies in writing the level of performance attained for the performance period in relation to the applicable Performance Measures. In determining performance, the Committee may, in its discretion, exclude unusual, infrequently occurring or other items that it deems appropriate in compliance with the applicable requirements of Code Section 162(m).

Other Stock-Based Awards.

Awards other than Stock Options, Stock Appreciation Rights and Short-Term and Long-Term Performance Awards may be granted under the 2012 Plan. The Committee has the discretion to fix the amount, terms and conditions applicable to Awards of Restricted Stock, Restricted Units and Deferred Stock Units, and other equity-based Awards. Unless otherwise set forth in the award certificate, the terms and conditions will be as follows:

- Vesting—Restrictions on Restricted Stock, Restricted Units or Deferred Stock Units will lapse in equal annual installments over a four year period after the date of grant. Except in connection with a termination of employment resulting from death, disability, retirement or a change in control, upon a termination of employment, any unvested Restricted Units, Deferred Stock Units or shares of Restricted Stock will be forfeited. disability, or due to a change in control, will be forfeited as of the date of termination.

Director Awards.

Annually, the Committee will grant an Award to each nonemployee director in such an amount as the Board, in its discretion, may approve in advance; provided that the fair market value on the grant date of such Award does not exceed $200,000. Unless the Committee determines otherwise, the form of such Awards shall be Restricted Units with a one year vesting period, and shall be granted on the business day following the annual general meeting of shareholders.

In addition to the annual Awards provided for above, the Committee may, in its discretion, grant additional Awards to nonemployee directors or prospective nonemployee directors, provided that in no event shall such an Award be granted with respect to more than 20,000 shares in any fiscal year.

Substitute Awards.

The Committee may make Awards under the 2012 Plan to grantees of an acquired company through the assumption of, or in substitution for, outstanding equity-based awards previously granted to the grantees. Unless otherwise agreed, the assumed or substituted Awards will be subject to the terms and conditions of the original awards made by the acquired company, with any adjustments that the Committee considers necessary to comply with applicable law or appropriate to give effect to the relevant provisions of any agreement for the acquisition of the acquired company.

Change in Control.

Unless the applicable award certificate provides otherwise, for any participant who incurs a change in control termination, all unvested Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights will become exercisable as of the later of (i) the effective date of the change in control and (ii) the effective date of the change in control termination, and all conditions to vesting will be waived with respect to all other unvested Awards that are denominated in shares. In such a case, with respect to Long-Term Performance Awards, performance will be deemed to have been achieved at a level of performance, as determined in the sole discretion of the Committee, at the higher of 100% of the participant's target amount and the level of actual performance as of the date of the change in control.

In addition to the foregoing, no later than 90 days after the date of change in control, the Committee (as constituted prior to the date of change in control) shall provide for the following actions to apply to each Award that is outstanding as of the date of change in control: (i) an adjustment to such Award as the Committee deems appropriate to reflect such change in control, (ii) the acquisition of such Award, or substitution of a new right therefor, by the acquiring or surviving entity after such change in control, or (iii) the purchase of such Award for an amount of cash equal to the amount that could have been attained upon the exercise or redemption of such Award immediately prior to the change in control had such Award been exercisable or payable at such time; subject to certain limitations to promote compliance with Code Section 409A(a)(2).

Vesting upon Death, Disability and Retirement. Unless the applicable award certificate provides otherwise, upon the death or disability of a participant, all unvested Awards held by such participant will vest, and with respect to all of a participant's Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights, such Awards will be exercisable until the earlier of their original expiration date and the date that is three years after the date on which the participant dies or incurs a disability.

Unless the applicable award certificate provides otherwise, upon a participant's termination of employment for any reason other than death, disability or due to a change in control, if the participant has attained age 55, and the sum of the participant's age and years of service with the Company is 60 or higher, a pro rata portion of each Award held by such participant will vest based on the number of full months of service completed commencing on the grant date of such Award and ending on the date of termination of employment divided by the full number of months required to achieve complete vesting. With respect to all of such participant's Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights, such Awards will be exercisable until the earlier of their original expiration date and the date that is three years after the date of termination of employment.

Dividend Equivalents

At the discretion of the Committee and as set forth in the applicable award certificate, dividends issued on shares may be credited with respect to any Award other than a Stock Option or Stock Appreciation Right in the form of dividend equivalents. Dividend equivalents will be subject to such vesting and other terms as are determined by the Committee and set forth in the applicable award certificate. Unless the award certificate provides otherwise, for any Award that is entitled to dividend equivalents, (i) such dividend equivalent shall equal, on a per share basis, the quotient produced by dividing the cash value of the dividend by the fair market value of one share as of the date the dividend is paid, (ii) such dividend equivalent vest at the same time, and only to the extent that, the underlying Award vests (taking into account any applicable performance conditions).

Transfer.

Awards may not be transferred by a participant other than by will or the laws of descent and distribution. The Committee may permit a Participant to transfer an Award (other than an Incentive Stock Option) to family members, a trust for the benefit of family members and certain family partnerships. Any Award so transferred will be subject to the same terms and conditions as the original grant and may be exercised by the transferee only to the extent that the Award would have been exercisable or payable in the hands of the participant had no transfer occurred.

Forfeiture; Clawback.

The Committee may, in its discretion, provide in an award certificate provisions it deems appropriate related to non-competition, non-solicitation, confidentiality, anti-disparagement and similar matters. The Committee may, in its discretion, specify in an Award or a policy that will be incorporated into an Award agreement by reference, that the participant's rights, payments, and benefits with respect to an Award shall be subject to reduction, cancellation, forfeiture or recoupment upon the occurrence of certain specified events, in addition to any otherwise applicable vesting or performance conditions of an Award. Such events may include, but shall not be limited to, termination of employment for cause, termination of the participant's provision of services to the Company or any of its subsidiaries, breach of noncompetition, confidentiality, or other restrictive covenants that may apply to the participant, or restatement of the Company's financial statements to reflect adverse results from those previously released financial statements, as a consequence of errors, omissions, fraud, or misconduct.

Amendment and Termination.

The 2012 Plan may be amended or terminated by the Company's Board of Directors at any time without shareholder approval, except that any material revision to the terms of the 2012 Plan requires shareholder approval before it can be effective. A revision is "material" for this purpose if it materially increases the number of common shares that may be issued under the 2012 Plan (other than an increase pursuant to an "Adjustment," as described above), expands the types of Awards under the 2012 Plan, materially expands the class of persons eligible to receive Awards under the 2012 Plan, materially extends the term of the 2012 Plan, materially decreases the exercise price at which Stock Options or Stock Appreciation Rights may be granted, reduces the exercise price of outstanding Stock Options or Stock Appreciation Rights, or results in the replacement of outstanding Stock Options or Stock Appreciation Rights with Awards that have a lower exercise price, or otherwise requires the consent of shareholders under applicable law, regulation or exchange listing standard. The Board may, in its discretion, amend the 2012 Plan to increase the maximum amount of Awards that may be granted to a director in any fiscal year. No amendment of the 2012 Plan will adversely affect the rights of any participant with respect to any outstanding Award without the participant's written consent. If not earlier terminated by the Company's Board of Directors, the 2012 Plan will automatically terminate on October 1, 2022. No Awards may be granted under the 2012 Plan after it is terminated, but any previously granted Awards will remain in effect until they expire.

Summary of Federal Income Tax Consequences of Awards.

The following is a brief summary of the principal United States federal income tax consequences of the grant, exercise and disposition of Awards under the 2012 Plan, based on advice received from counsel to the Company regarding current United States federal income tax laws. This summary is not intended to be exhaustive and, among other things, does not describe state, local or foreign tax consequences.

Nonqualified Stock Options and Stock Appreciation Rights. A Participant will not recognize any income at the time a Nonqualified Stock Option or Stock Appreciation Right is granted, nor will the Company be entitled to a deduction at that time. When a Nonqualified Stock Option is exercised, the Participant will recognize ordinary income in an amount equal to the excess of the Fair Market Value of the common shares received as of the date of exercise over the exercise price. When a Stock Appreciation Right is exercised, the participant will recognize ordinary income in an amount equal to the cash received or, if the Stock Appreciation Right is paid in common shares, the fair market value of the common shares received as of the date of exercise. Payroll taxes are required to be withheld from the Participant on the amount of ordinary income recognized by the participant. The Company will be entitled to a tax deduction with respect to a Nonqualified Stock Option or Stock Appreciation Right at the same time and in the same amount as the participant recognizes income.

Incentive Stock Options (“ISOs”). A participant will not recognize any income at the time an ISO is granted. Nor will a Participant recognize any income at the time an ISO is exercised. However, the excess of the fair market value of the common shares on the date of exercise over the exercise price paid will be a preference item that could create a liability under the alternative minimum tax. If a participant disposes of the common shares acquired on exercise of an ISO after the later of two years after the date of grant of the ISO or one year after the date of exercise of the ISO (the “holding period”), the gain (i.e., the excess of the proceeds received on sale over the exercise price paid), if any, will be long-term capital gain eligible for favorable tax rates. If the participant disposes of the common shares prior to the end of the holding period, the disposition is a “disqualifying disposition”, and the participant will recognize ordinary income in the year of the disqualifying disposition equal to the excess of the lesser of (i) the fair market value of the common shares on the date of exercise or (ii) the amount received for the common shares, over the exercise price paid. The balance of the gain or loss, if any, will be long-term or short-term capital gain or loss, depending on how long the common shares were held by the participant prior to disposition. The Company is not entitled to a deduction as a result of the grant or exercise of an ISO unless a participant recognizes ordinary income as a result of a disqualifying disposition, in which case the Company will be entitled to a deduction at the same time and in the same amount as the participant recognizes ordinary income.

Short-Term and Long-Term Performance Awards. A participant will not recognize any income at the time a Short-Term or Long-Term Performance Award is granted, nor will the Company be entitled to a deduction at that time. To the extent a Short-Term or Long-Term Performance Award is paid in cash, a participant will recognize compensation income in the year of payment and in the amount of cash payable. To the extent a Short-Term or Long-Term Performance Award is paid in stock, a participant will recognize compensation in the year of payment in the amount of the fair market value of the stock as of the date of payment. Payroll taxes are required to be withheld on the amount paid. The Company will be entitled to a deduction at the same time and in the same amount as the participant recognizes income.

Restricted Stock. A participant will not recognize any income at the time a share of Restricted Stock is granted. Nor will the Company be entitled to a deduction at that time. In the year in which restrictions on shares of Restricted Stock lapse, the participant will recognize ordinary income in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of the common shares on the date of vesting over the amount, if any, the participant paid for the common shares. A participant may, however, elect within 30 days after receiving Restricted Stock to recognize ordinary income in the year of receipt instead of the year of vesting. If an election is made, the amount of income recognized by the participant will be equal to the excess of the fair market value of the common shares on the date of receipt over the amount, if any, the participant paid for the common shares. Payroll taxes are required to be withheld on the income recognized by the participant. The Company will be entitled to a tax deduction at the same time and in the same amount as the participant recognizes income.

Restricted Units, Restricted Stock and Deferred Stock Units. A participant will not recognize any income at the time a Restricted Unit or Deferred Stock Unit is granted, nor will the Company be entitled to a deduction at that time. When payment on a Restricted Unit or Deferred Stock Unit is made, the participant will recognize ordinary income in an amount equal to the fair market value of the common shares received. If a Restricted Unit is paid in cash, the participant will recognize ordinary income in the amount payable. Payroll taxes are required to be withheld on the income recognized by the participant. The Company will be entitled to a tax deduction at the same time and in the same amount as the participant recognizes income.

Code Section 162(m). With certain exceptions, Section 162(m) of the Code limits the Company's deduction for compensation in excess of $1 million paid to covered employees (referred to in the 2012 Plan as "Key Employees"). Compensation paid to Key Employees is not subject to the deduction limitation, however, if it is considered "qualified performance-based compensation" within the meaning of Section 162(m) of the Code. If shareholders approve the 2012 Plan, the Company believes that all Stock Options, Stock Appreciation Rights, Short-Term and Long-Term Performance Awards granted to Key Employees under the 2012 Plan will meet the requirements of "qualified performance-based Compensation" and therefore may be deducted from the federal income tax recognized by the Company.

Code Section 409A. Section 409A of the Code requires acceleration of income and imposes an additional 20% tax, and in some cases an additional tax in the nature of interest, in the case of "non-qualified deferred compensation" arrangement that do not comply with the requirement of Section 409A. Therefore, if any Award potentially constitutes non-qualified deferred compensation, it will be necessary that the Award be structured to comply with Section 409A to avoid the imposition of additional tax, penalties and interest on the participant.

The Board recommends that shareholders vote FOR the 2012 Stock and Incentive Plan.

ANNEX A

ADT CORPORATION PRELIMINARY INFORMATION STATEMENT

Subject to Completion, Dated July 27, 2012

The ADT Corporation

Common Stock

(par value $0.01 per share)

Tyco International Ltd. (“Tyco”) is furnishing this Information Statement to its shareholders in connection with the planned distribution by Tyco to its shareholders of all of the outstanding shares of common stock of its wholly-owned subsidiary The ADT Corporation (“ADT”), which owns and operates the residential and small business security business of Tyco in the United States and Canada.

Tyco will distribute all of the outstanding shares of common stock of ADT on a pro rata basis to holders of Tyco common shares, which we refer to as the “Distribution.” Each Tyco common share outstanding as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on September 17, 2012, the record date for the Distribution (the “record date”), will entitle its holder to receive 0.5 shares of ADT common stock. The distribution of shares will be made in book-entry form. We expect that the Distribution will be tax-free to Tyco’s shareholders for Swiss withholding tax and, except for any cash received in lieu of fractional shares, for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Immediately after the Distribution is completed, we will be an independent, publicly-traded company.

Approval of certain matters required for the Distribution is being sought from the holders of Tyco common shares at a special general meeting of Tyco’s shareholders to be held at 9:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time on September 14, 2012 at Tyco’s offices in Schaffhausen, Switzerland. In connection with and prior to the special general meeting, Tyco will distribute a proxy statement, which we refer to as the “Tyco Proxy Statement,” to all holders of its common shares. The Tyco Proxy Statement will contain a proxy and will describe the procedures for voting your Tyco common shares and other details regarding the special general meeting. As a result, this Information Statement does not contain a proxy and is not intended to constitute solicitation material under the U.S. federal securities law.

By the time that you receive this document in completed form, the Distribution and certain related matters will have been approved by Tyco’s shareholders and certain other conditions to the Distribution will have been satisfied. However, because this document must be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) prior to the completion of those steps, the descriptions contained in this document are written from the perspective that they have not yet occurred.

Other than shareholder approval of the Distribution, no action will be required of you to receive shares of ADT common stock, which means that:

- you will not be required to pay for the shares of our common stock that you receive in the Distribution; and
- you do not need to surrender or exchange any of your Tyco shares in order to receive shares of our common stock, or take any other action in connection with the spin-off.

There is currently no trading market for our common stock. However, we expect that a limited market, commonly known as a “when-issued” trading market, for our common stock will develop on or shortly before the record date for the Distribution, and we expect “regular way” trading of our common stock will begin the first trading day after the completion of the Distribution. We expect to list our common stock on the New York Stock Exchange (the “NYSE”) under the symbol “ADT.”

In reviewing this Information Statement, you should carefully consider the matters described under “Risk Factors” for a discussion of certain factors that should be considered by recipients of our common stock.

Neither the SEC nor any state securities commission has approved or disapproved of these securities or determined if this Information Statement is truthful or complete. Any representation to the contrary is a criminal offense.

This Information Statement does not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy any securities.

The date of this Information Statement is , 2012.

INTRODUCTION

On September 19, 2011, Tyco announced that its board of directors had approved a plan to separate Tyco into three independent, publicly-traded companies: one for Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada (ADT), one for its flow control business (Tyco Flow Control) and one for its remaining businesses, including its commercial fire and security businesses (Tyco). Tyco will effect the separation through distributions to Tyco shareholders of all of the outstanding shares of ADT and Tyco Flow Control that, together, hold or will hold, through their respective subsidiaries, all of the assets and liabilities of their respective businesses.

On March 28, 2012, Tyco announced that it, Tyco Flow Control, Panthro Acquisition and Panthro Merger Sub had entered into a Merger Agreement with Pentair, providing that promptly following the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, Panthro Merger Sub will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the Merger.

On September 28, 2012, the planned date of the Distribution (the "distribution date"), each Tyco shareholder will receive 0.5 shares of our common stock for each common share of Tyco held as of the record date. Immediately following the Distribution, Tyco's shareholders will own all of the outstanding shares of common stock of ADT. You will not be required to make any payment, surrender or exchange your Tyco common shares or take any other action to receive your shares of ADT and Tyco Flow Control. Tyco will not distribute any fractional shares of common stock of ADT. Instead, an independent agent will aggregate fractional shares into whole shares, sell the whole shares in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales pro rata to each holder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share in the Distribution.

The historical selected combined financial and other operating data have been prepared to include all of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada, and are a combination of the assets and liabilities that have been used in managing and operating this business. The summary results of operations data for the fiscal years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009 and the summary balance sheet data as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 are derived from our audited combined financial statements included elsewhere in this Information Statement, which have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States, or "GAAP." The results of operations data for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011 and the summary balance sheet data as of March 30, 2012 are derived from our unaudited combined financial statements included elsewhere in this Information Statement. The summary balance sheet data as of March 25, 2011 and September 25, 2009 are derived from our unaudited combined financial statements that are not included in this Information Statement. The unaudited combined financial statements have been prepared on the same basis as our audited combined financial statements and in our opinion include all adjustments, consisting only of normal recurring adjustments that we consider necessary for a fair statement of our results of operations and financial position for these periods and as of such dates. We have a 52 or 53-week fiscal year that ends on the last Friday in September. Fiscal years 2010 and 2009 were 52-week years, while fiscal year 2011 was a 53-week year.

This summary financial and other operating data should be read in conjunction with our combined financial statements, the accompanying notes and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" presented elsewhere in this Information Statement.

The following table also presents summary unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial data. The pro forma adjustments give effect to the spin-off and the related transactions, as described in the notes to the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined statements of operations for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and the fiscal year ended September 30, 2011 give effect to the spin-off and related transactions as if they had occurred on September 25, 2010, the first day of fiscal year 2011. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet as of March 30, 2012 gives effect to the spin-off and related transactions as if they had occurred on March 30, 2012. These unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements include adjustments to reflect the following:

- the contribution to us of all of the assets and liabilities, including the entities holding the assets and liabilities, of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- the distribution of shares of our common stock by Tyco to its shareholders and the elimination of historical parent company investment;
- the post-Distribution capital structure, as described in the notes to the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements; and
- the execution of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement.

For a more complete explanation see "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Financial Data" presented elsewhere in this Information Statement.

Our historical combined financial data and pro forma condensed combined financial data may not be indicative of our future performance and do not necessarily reflect what our financial condition and results of operations would have been had we operated as an independent, publicly-traded entity during the periods presented, including changes that will occur in our operations and capitalization as a result of our spin-off from Tyco.

- (1) Operating income and net income include $28 million and $36 million of corporate expense allocated from Tyco for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, respectively. Operating income and net income include $67 million, $69 million and $67 million of corporate expense allocated from Tyco for the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, respectively.
- (2) Long-term debt and total liabilities include $1,478 million and $1,510 million of allocated debt as of March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, respectively. Long-term debt and total liabilities include $1,482 million, $1,301 million and $1,068 million of allocated debt as of September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, respectively.
- (3) Gross customer additions for fiscal year 2010 exclude approximately 1.4 million customer accounts acquired in connection with the acquisition of Brink's Home Security Holdings, Inc. ("Broadview Security") in May 2010. These accounts are included in the 6.3 million ending number of customers as of September 24, 2010.
- (4) The customer attrition rate is a 52-week trailing ratio, the numerator of which is the annualized recurring revenue lost during the period due to attrition, net of dealer charge-backs and re-sales, and the denominator of which is total annualized recurring revenue during the period based on an average of recurring revenue under contract at the beginning of each month during the period. Dealer charge-backs represent customer cancellations charged by us to dealers because the customer cancelled service during the initial period of the contract, generally 12 to 15 months.
- (5) Average revenue per customer ("ARPU") measures the average amount of recurring revenue per customer per month, and is calculated based on the recurring revenue under contract at the end of the period, divided by the total number of customers under contract at the end of the period.
- (6) Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA") is calculated as net income adjusted for interest, taxes and certain non-cash items which include depreciation of subscriber system assets and other fixed assets, amortization of deferred costs and deferred revenue associated with customer acquisitions and amortization of dealer and other intangible assets. This "non-GAAP measure" is further described and reconciled to net income, its closest GAAP counterpart, under "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Conditions and Results of Operations—Non-GAAP Measures" beginning on page 66.

- (7) Free cash flow (“FCF”) is calculated as net cash flow provided by operating activities less capital expenditures, internally generated subscriber systems, dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases. This “non-GAAP measure” is further described and reconciled to net cash flow provided by operating activities, its closest GAAP counterpart, under “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Conditions and Results of Operations—Non-GAAP Measures” beginning on page 66.

Summary of the Spin-Off

The following is a summary of the terms of the spin-off. See “The Spin-Off” for a more detailed description of the matters described below.

Distributing company	Tyco International Ltd. After the Distribution, Tyco will not own any shares of ADT.
Distributed company	The ADT Corporation
Primary purposes of the spin-off	Tyco’s board of directors has determined that the spin-off is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide each of Tyco and ADT the following key benefits: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management’s efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities, (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency and (v) enhanced management incentive tools. In determining whether to effect the spin-off, Tyco’s board of directors also considered the costs and risks relating to the transaction, including: (i) potential costs and disruptions to the businesses as a result of the spin-off, (ii) risks of being unable to achieve the benefits expected from the spin-off, (iii) increased significance of certain costs and contingent liabilities, (iv) the decreased capital available for investment, (v) the potential effect of the spin-off on the anticipated credit ratings of the separated companies and risk associated with refinancing Tyco’s debt, (vi) the reaction of Tyco’s shareholders to the spin-off, (vii) the potential loss of purchasing power and higher cost structure and (viii) the risk that the plan of separation might not be completed and the one-time and ongoing costs of the spin-off may be greater than expected. Tyco’s board of directors determined that in the aggregate the potential benefits of the spin-off outweighed the potential negative factors. See “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off” and “The Spin-Off—Reasons for the Spin-Off.”
Record date	Subject to Tyco shareholders approving the Distribution, record ownership will be determined as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on September 17, 2012.
Distribution date	The distribution date is expected to be September 28, 2012.
Distribution ratio	Each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date for the Distribution will entitle its holder to receive 0.5 shares of ADT common stock. Cash will be distributed in lieu of any fractional shares of ADT common stock you are entitled to, as described below.
Securities to be Distributed	All of the shares of ADT common stock will be distributed pro rata to Tyco shareholders who hold Tyco common shares as of the record date. Assuming a record date of June 30, 2012 and based on the 459,722,328 common shares of Tyco outstanding as of such date, and applying the distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each common share of Tyco, approximately 229,861,164 of our shares of common stock would have been distributed to Tyco shareholders. The number of shares of ADT common stock that Tyco will ultimately distribute to its shareholders will (i) fluctuate depending on the number of Tyco common shares actually outstanding as of the record date and (ii) be reduced to the extent that cash payments are to be made in lieu of the issuance of fractional shares, as described below.

The spin-off

On the distribution date, Tyco will release all of the shares of ADT common stock to the distribution agent to distribute to Tyco shareholders. The distribution of shares will be made in book-entry form. It is expected that it will take the distribution agent up to days to electronically issue shares of ADT common stock to you or your bank or brokerage firm on your behalf by way of direct registration in book-entry form. You will not be required to make any payment, surrender or exchange your Tyco common shares or take any other action to receive your shares of ADT common stock.

No fractional shares

Tyco will not distribute any fractional shares of ADT common stock. Instead, the distribution agent will aggregate fractional shares into whole shares, sell the whole shares in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales pro rata to each holder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share in the Distribution. Recipients of cash in lieu of fractional shares will not be entitled to any interest on payments made in lieu of fractional shares. The receipt of cash in lieu of fractional shares generally will be taxable to the recipient shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax as described in “The Spin-Off—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off,” but generally should not be subject to Swiss withholding tax, as described in “The Spin-Off—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off.”

Conditions to the spin-off

Under Swiss law, the approval of a relative majority of Tyco’s shareholders is required to effect the Distribution. The resolution to be proposed at the special general meeting of shareholders called to approve the Distribution will require that the following conditions are met or waived prior to implementation of the Distribution:

- the SEC shall have declared effective our Registration Statement on Form 10, of which this Information Statement is a part, under the U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, or the “Exchange Act,” and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Registration Statement shall be in effect;
- our common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the Internal Revenue Service (the “IRS”), which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution, to the effect that (i) the Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “Code”), except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of our common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;

- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the Distribution to the effect that the Distribution, including cash received in lieu of a fractional share of ADT common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the Distribution; and
- based on the closing price of the shares of ADT common stock trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the Distribution, the aggregate implied market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

In addition, we expect that prior to the special general meeting approving the Distribution the following conditions will be either met or waived:

- the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and each of the ancillary agreements contemplated by the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, as described in “Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco” (the “Ancillary Agreements”), will have been executed by each party thereto, and each of the internal transactions contemplated by such agreements to have been completed prior to the Distribution shall have been completed;
- Tyco shall have received the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- Tyco shall have received the opinion of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- Tyco shall have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the Distribution and the ordinary cash dividend to Tyco shareholders proposed in the Tyco Proxy Statement comply with Swiss law.

In the event that shareholder approval of the Distribution is received and the conditions to the spin-off included in the shareholders resolution are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the Distribution.

The Distribution and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution are not cross-conditioned—either may occur without the other. However, we currently expect the Distribution and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution to occur simultaneously.

Trading market and symbol

We intend to file an application to list our common stock on the NYSE under the ticker symbol “ADT.” We anticipate that, on or prior to the record date, trading of our common stock will begin on a “when-issued” basis and will continue up to and including the distribution date. See “The Spin-Off—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date.”

Dividend policy

We intend to pay quarterly dividends in an amount that approximates our proportionate share of the $1.00 per share annual dividend that Tyco currently pays to its shareholders, or approximately $0.50 per ADT share annually (based on the number of Tyco shares outstanding on , 2012 and a one for two distribution ratio). See “Dividend Policy.”

Financing Transactions

We have entered into a new five-year unsecured senior revolving credit facility. The initial commitment under the new credit facility is $750 million (provided that until the Distribution has occurred and certain related conditions have been met, availability under the revolving credit facility will be limited to $250 million). Tyco is initially guaranteeing the new credit facility, and its guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution. In addition to the revolving credit facility, we have issued $750 million aggregate principal amount of 2.25% unsecured notes due July 15, 2017, $1.0 billion aggregate principal amount of 3.50% unsecured notes due July 15, 2022, and $750 million aggregate principal amount of 4.875% unsecured notes due July 15, 2042. Tyco is initially guaranteeing the notes, and its guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution. The proceeds of these notes offerings will be used to repay intercompany debt and make other cash payments to Tyco to allow it to fund repurchases or redemptions of its indebtedness. See “Description of Material Indebtedness.”

Tax consequences to Tyco shareholders

Tyco shareholders are not expected to recognize any gain or loss, or include any amount in income, for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a result of the Distribution, except to the extent of cash received in lieu of fractional shares. See “The Spin-Off—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” for a more detailed description of the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Distribution.

Tyco shareholders are not expected to be subjected to any Swiss withholding tax (Verrechnungssteuer), including on any cash received in lieu of fractional shares, as a result of the Distribution. See “The Spin-Off—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” for a more detailed description of the Swiss tax consequences of the Distribution.

Each shareholder is urged to consult his, her or its tax advisor as to the specific tax consequences of the Distribution to that shareholder, including the effect of any Swiss, U.S., state, local or foreign income tax consequences of the Distribution.

Relationship with Tyco after the spin-off

We have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. Shortly before the Distribution, we will enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and other agreements with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control related to the spin-off. These agreements will govern the relationship between ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco subsequent to the completion of the Distributions and provide for the allocation between ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco of various assets, liabilities and obligations (including employee benefits and tax-related assets and liabilities). The Separation and Distribution Agreements, in particular, will provide for the settlement or extinguishment of certain obligations between ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco and will provide for certain employee compensation and benefit matters between Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco. We will enter into transition services agreements with Tyco in the United States and Canada (the “Transition Services Agreements”) pursuant to which a limited number of services will be provided by Tyco to us on an interim basis following the Distribution. Further, we will enter into a tax sharing agreement with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control (the “2012 Tax Sharing Agreement”) that will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain tax liabilities with respect to periods or portions thereof ending on or before the date of the Distributions. The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will also provide certain restrictions to preserve the tax-free status of the spin-off. In addition, each of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will agree to indemnify the other two parties against any amounts paid by such other parties pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and with respect to which such paying parties are not responsible pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. We describe these and related arrangements in greater detail under “Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco” and describe some of the risks of these arrangements under “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off.”

Risk factors

You should carefully consider the matters discussed under the section entitled “Risk Factors” beginning on page 11 of this Information Statement.

RISK FACTORS

You should carefully consider the risks described below, together with all the other information included in this Information Statement, in evaluating us and our common stock. If any of the risks described below actually occurs, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected. Any such adverse effect may cause the trading price of our common stock to decline and as a result you could lose all or part of your investment in us. Our business may also be adversely affected by risks and uncertainties not known to us or risks that we currently believe to be immaterial.

Risks Relating to Our Business

We sell our products in highly competitive markets, which results in pressure on our profit margins and limits our ability to maintain or increase the market share of our products.

The monitored security alarm industry is subject to significant competition and pricing pressures. We experience significant competitive pricing pressures on installation, monitoring and service fees. Several significant competitors offer installation fees that match or are lower than ours. Other competitors charge significantly more for installation but, in many cases, less for monitoring. In many cases we face competition for direct sales from our authorized dealers, who may offer installation for considerably less than we do in particular markets. We believe that the monitoring and service fees we offer are generally competitive with rates offered by other major security companies. We also face potential competition from improvements in self-monitoring systems, which enable customers to monitor their home environment without third-party involvement through the Internet, text messages, emails or similar communications, but with the disadvantage that alarm events may go unnoticed. It is possible that one or more of our competitors could develop a significant technical advantage over us that allows them to provide additional service or better quality service or to lower their price, which could put us at a competitive disadvantage. Continued pricing pressure or improvements in technology and shifts in customer preferences towards self-monitoring could adversely impact our customer base or pricing structure and have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our future growth is largely dependent upon our ability to successfully compete with new and existing competitors by developing or acquiring new technologies that achieve market acceptance with acceptable margins.

Our business operates in markets that are characterized by rapidly changing technologies, evolving industry standards and potential new entrants. For example, a number of cable and other telecommunications companies have introduced security services offerings, including interactive security services, that are competitive with our products and services. If these services gain market acceptance, our ability to grow our business, in particular our ADT Pulse offering, could be materially and adversely affected. Accordingly, our future success depends upon a number of factors, including our ability to accomplish the following: identify emerging technological trends in our target end-markets; develop, acquire and maintain competitive products and services; enhance our products and services by adding innovative features that differentiate us from our competitors; and develop or acquire and bring products and services to market quickly and cost-effectively. Our ability to develop or acquire new products and services based on technological innovation can affect our competitive position and requires the investment of significant resources. These acquisitions and development efforts divert resources from other potential investments in our businesses, and they may not lead to the development of new technologies, products or services on a timely basis. Moreover, as we introduce new products such as ADT Pulse, we may be unable to detect and correct defects in the product or in its installation, which could result in loss of sales or delays in market acceptance. New or enhanced products may not satisfy consumer preferences and potential product failures may cause consumers to reject our products. As a result, these products may not achieve market acceptance and our brand image could suffer. In addition, our competitors may introduce superior designs or business strategies, impairing our brand and the desirability of our products and services, which may cause consumers to defer or forego purchases of our products and services. In addition, the markets for our products and services may not develop or grow as we anticipate. The failure of our technology, products or services to gain market acceptance, the potential for product defects or the obsolescence of our products and services could significantly reduce our revenue, increase our operating costs or otherwise adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Failure to maintain the security of our information and technology networks, including personally identifiable and other information could adversely affect us.

We are dependent on information technology networks and systems, including the Internet, to process, transmit and store electronic information and, in the normal course of our business, we collect and retain significant volumes of certain types of personally identifiable and other information pertaining to our customers and employees, including video images of customer sites. The legal, regulatory and contractual environment surrounding information security and privacy is constantly evolving and companies that collect and retain such information are under increasing attack by cyber-criminals around the world. A significant actual or potential theft, loss, fraudulent use or misuse of customer, employee or other personally identifiable data, whether by third parties or as a result of employee malfeasance or otherwise, non-compliance with our contractual or other legal obligations regarding such data or a violation of our privacy and security policies with respect to such data could result in significant costs, fines, litigation or regulatory actions against us. Such an event could additionally result in adverse publicity and therefore adversely affect the market's perception of the security and reliability of our services, which could result in lost sales and increased customer attrition. In addition, we depend on our information technology infrastructure for business-to-business and business-to-consumer electronic commerce. Security breaches of, or sustained attacks against, this infrastructure could create system disruptions and shutdowns that could result in disruptions to our operations. Increasingly, our security products and services are accessed through the Internet, and security breaches in connection with the delivery of our services via the Internet may affect us and could be detrimental to our reputation, business, operating results and financial condition. We cannot be certain that advances in criminal capabilities, new discoveries in the field of cryptography or other developments will not compromise or breach the technology protecting the networks that access our products and services. If any one of these risks materializes our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Allegations that we have infringed the intellectual property rights of third parties could negatively affect us.

We may be subject to claims of intellectual property infringement rights by third parties. In particular, as our services have expanded into areas more heavily populated by intellectual property, we have become subject to claims alleging infringement of intellectual property, including litigation brought by special purpose or so-called "non-practicing" entities that focus solely on extracting royalties and settlements by enforcing patent rights. These companies typically have little or no business or operations and there are few effective deterrents available to prevent such companies from filing patent infringement lawsuits against us. In addition, we rely on licenses and other arrangements with third parties covering intellectual property related to the products and services that we market, including an arrangement with Tyco under the Patent Agreement described in "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transaction—Patent Agreement." Notwithstanding these arrangements, we could be at risk for infringement claims from third parties, including Tyco. Although the Patent Agreement generally includes a covenant by Tyco not to sue us for products and services in existence as of the Distribution date that may infringe Tyco patents, it does not protect us from infringement claims for future product or service expansions, or if we change third party product suppliers or if an alleged infringement involves certain patents. In general, if a court determines that one or more of our services infringes on intellectual property owned by others, we may be required to cease marketing those services, to obtain licenses from the holders of the intellectual property at a material cost or to take other actions to avoid infringing the intellectual property. The litigation process is costly and subject to inherent uncertainties, and we may not prevail in litigation matters regardless of the merits of our position. Intellectual property lawsuits or claims may become extremely disruptive if the plaintiffs succeed in blocking the trade of our products and services and may have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Unauthorized use of our brand name by third parties, and the expenses incurred in developing and preserving the value of our brand name, may adversely affect our business.

Our brand name is critical to our success. Unauthorized use of our brand name by third parties may adversely affect our business and reputation, including the perceived quality and reliability of our products. We rely on trademark law, company brand name protection policies and agreements with our employees, customers, business partners and others to protect the value of our brand name. Despite our precautions, we cannot assure you that those procedures provide effective protection against unauthorized third-party use of our brand name. In particular, in recent years various third parties have used the ADT® brand name to engage in fraudulent activities, including inducing customers to switch monitoring service providers, generating leads for competitors and obtaining personal financial information. We may not be successful in investigating, preventing or prosecuting unauthorized third-party use. Future litigation with respect to such unauthorized use could also result in substantial costs and diversion of our resources. These factors could adversely affect our reputation, business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We will not own the right to use certain of our trademarks, including the ADT® brand name, outside of the United States and Canada.

Following the spin-off, Tyco will own the ADT® brand name outside of the United States and Canada. Therefore, in order to expand our business outside the United States and Canada, we would need to either acquire or otherwise license the ADT® brand name from Tyco (to the extent not already used by Tyco in the applicable jurisdictions(s)) or use an alternative brand name. This would put us at a distinct competitive disadvantage. Development of a new brand outside the United States and Canada could be costly and would also require us to market other brands as superior alternatives to the ADT® brand, which could undermine its value among customers within the United States and Canadian residential and small business security markets. These factors may make it difficult for us to develop a business outside of the United States and Canada. These factors also expose us to the risk that the ADT® brand name could suffer reputational damage or devaluation for reasons outside of our control, including Tyco's business conduct outside of the United States and Canada. Any of these factors may materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Infringement of our intellectual property rights could negatively affect us.

We rely on a combination of patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, confidentiality provisions and licensing arrangements to establish and protect our proprietary rights. We cannot guarantee, however, that the steps we have taken to protect our intellectual property will be adequate to prevent infringement of our rights or misappropriation of our technology. Adverse events affecting the use of our trademarks could affect our use of those trademarks and negatively impact our brands. In addition, if we expand our business outside of the United States and Canada in the future, effective patent, trademark, copyright and trade secret protection may be unavailable or limited in some jurisdictions. Furthermore, while we enter into confidentiality agreements with certain of our employees and third parties to protect our intellectual property, such confidentiality agreements could be breached or otherwise may not provide meaningful protection for our trade secrets and know-how related to the design, manufacture or operation of our products. If it becomes necessary for us to resort to litigation to protect our intellectual property rights, any proceedings could be burdensome and costly, and we may not prevail. Further, adequate remedies may not be available in the event of an unauthorized use or disclosure of our trade secrets and manufacturing expertise. If we fail to successfully enforce our intellectual property rights, our competitive position could suffer, which could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We depend on third-party software licenses for our products and services.

We rely on certain software technology that we license from third parties and use in our products and services to perform key functions and provide critical functionality. For example, we license the software platform for our monitoring operations and the home automation software for our ADT Pulse offering from third parties. Because our products and services incorporate software developed and maintained by third parties, we are, to a certain extent, dependent upon such third parties' ability to maintain or enhance their current products and services, to ensure that their products are free of defects or security vulnerabilities, to develop new products and services on a timely and cost-effective basis and to respond to emerging industry standards and other technological changes. Further, these third-party technology licenses may not always be available to us on commercially reasonable terms or at all. If our agreements with third-party vendors are not renewed or the third-party software becomes obsolete, is incompatible with future versions of our products or services or otherwise fails to address our needs, we cannot assure you that we would be able to replace the functionality provided by the third-party software with technology from alternative providers. Furthermore, even if we obtain licenses to alternative software products or services that provide the functionality we need, we may be required to replace hardware installed at our monitoring centers and at our customers' sites, including security system control panels and peripherals, in order to effect our integration of or migration to alternative software products. Any of these factors could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We rely on third party providers for the components of our security systems and any failure or interruption in products or services provided by these third parties could harm our ability to operate our business.

The components for the security systems that we install are manufactured by third parties, including divisions of Tyco that will not be part of our business following the spin-off. We are therefore susceptible to interruptions in supply and to the receipt of components that do not meet our high standards. Any financial or other difficulties our providers face may have negative effects on our business. We exercise little control over our suppliers, which increases our vulnerability to problems with the products and services they provide. Any interruption in supply could cause delays in installations and repairs and the loss of current and potential customers. Also, if a previously installed component were found to be defective, we might not be able to recover the costs associated with its repair or replacement across our installed customer base, and the diversion of technical personnel to address the defect could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We are exposed to greater risks of liability for employee acts or omissions or system failure, than may be inherent in other businesses.

If a customer or third party believes that he or she has suffered harm to person or property due to an actual or alleged act or omission of one of our employees or security system failure, he or she may pursue legal action against us, and the cost of defending the legal action and of any judgment against us could be substantial. In particular, because our products and services are intended to help protect lives and real and personal property, we may have greater exposure to litigation risks than businesses that provide other consumer and small business products and services. Substantially all of our customer contracts contain provisions limiting our liability; however, in the event of litigation with respect to such matters, it is possible that these limitations may be deemed not applicable or unenforceable and we may incur significant costs of defense regardless of the ultimate outcome.

We rely on a significant number of our customers remaining with us as customers for long periods of time.

We operate our business with the goal of retaining customers for long periods of time in order to recoup our initial investment in new customers, achieving cash flow break-even in slightly less than three years. Accordingly, our long-term profitability is dependent on long customer tenure. This requires that we minimize our rate of customer disconnects, or attrition. Factors that can increase disconnects include customers who relocate and do not reconnect, problems with our product or service quality, an economic slowdown, a downturn in the housing market and the desirability and pricing of our and our competitors' products and services. Our customer attrition rates for fiscal years 2011, 2010 and 2009 were, respectively, 13.0%, 13.3% and 14.3%. If we fail to keep our customers for a sufficiently long period of time, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

If we experience higher rates of customer attrition, we may be required to change the estimated useful lives of assets related to our security monitoring customers, increasing our depreciation and amortization expense or impairing such assets.

We amortize the costs of our acquired and dealer-generated contracts and related customer relationships based on the estimated life of the customer relationships. We similarly depreciate the cost of our internally generated residential and small business monitoring system assets. If attrition rates were to rise significantly, we may be required to accelerate the amortization of expenses related to such contracts and the depreciation of our subscriber system assets or to impair such assets, which could cause a material adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operations.

We are susceptible to downturns in the housing market and consumer discretionary income, which may inhibit our ability to sustain customer base growth rates.

Demand for alarm monitoring services is affected by the turnover in the housing market. Downturns in the rate of the sale of new and existing homes, which we believe drives a substantial portion of our new customer volume in any given year, would reduce opportunities to make sales of new security systems and services and reduce opportunities to take over existing security systems. In addition, because of personal economic circumstances, current security alarm customers may decide to disconnect our services in an effort to reduce their monthly spending and may default on their remaining contractual obligations to us. Our long-term revenue growth rate depends on installations exceeding disconnects. If the housing market downturn or the general economic downturn is prolonged, customer disconnects and defaults could increase and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

We will enter into non-compete and non-solicit restrictions that will prohibit us from competing with Tyco in the commercial security market in the United States and Canada for a period of time after the spin-off.

We expect that the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement to be entered into in connection with the spin-off will include non-compete provisions pursuant to which we will be prohibited from competing with Tyco in the commercial security market in the United States and Canada, subject to certain small business related exceptions, for two years after the distribution date. In addition, we expect that the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will contain non-solicitation provisions preventing us from soliciting Tyco's existing security customers in the United States and Canada for two years after the distribution date. This will effectively prevent us from expanding our business into the commercial security market, other than the small business market, in these jurisdictions during the restricted periods. These factors could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco—ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement—Non-Compete; Customer Non-Solicit."

Expiration of non-competition agreements will allow the entry of potential competitors with deep knowledge of our business.

We acquired Broadview Security in 2010. In connection with the separation of Broadview Security from The Brink's Company in 2008 (the "Broadview Spin-Off"), Broadview Security and The Brink's Company entered into a non-competition and non-solicitation agreement pursuant to which The Brink's Company agreed not to compete with Broadview Security in the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada with respect to the security alarm systems or personal emergency response systems businesses for a period of five years from the date of the Broadview Spin-Off. Upon the expiration of the non-competition and non-solicitation agreement in October 2013, The Brink's Company will be free to directly pursue competitive activities in these businesses or to license the Brink's brand to other existing or potential competitors in these businesses. In addition, although the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement that we plan to enter into in connection with the spin-off includes non-competition provisions, the non-competition provisions will expire two years after the distribution date, after which time Tyco will be free to compete with us in the residential and small business security market. Such competitive activities could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Shifts in our customers' choice of, or telecommunications providers' support for, telecommunications services and equipments could adversely impact our business and require significant capital expenditures.

Certain elements of our operating model have historically relied on our customers' continued selection and use of traditional land-line telecommunications to transmit alarm signals to our monitoring centers. There is a growing trend for customers to switch to the exclusive use of cellular, satellite or Internet communication technology in their homes and businesses, and telecommunication providers may discontinue their land-line services in the future. In addition, many of our customers who use cellular communication technology for their security systems use products that rely on 2G technology, and telecommunication providers may discontinue their 2G services in the future. The discontinuation of land-line, 2G cellular and any other services by telecommunications providers in the future will depend on a number of factors outside of our control, including legislation and government regulation, and would require customers to upgrade to alternative, and potentially more expensive, technologies to transmit alarm signals. This could increase our customer attrition rates and slow our new customer additions. In order to maintain our customer base that uses security alarm components that are or could become obsolete, we may be required to upgrade or implement new technologies, including by offering to subsidize the replacement of customers' outdated systems at our expense. Any such upgrades or implementations could require significant capital expenditures and also divert management's attention and other important resources away from our customer service and sales efforts. In the future, we may not be able to successfully implement new technologies or adapt existing technologies to changing market demands. If we are unable to adapt timely to changing technologies, market conditions or customer preferences, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

An event causing a disruption in the ability of our monitoring facilities to operate could adversely affect our business.

A disruption in our ability to provide alarm monitoring services and serve our customers could have a material adverse effect on our business. A disruption could occur for many reasons, including fire, natural disasters, weather, disease, transportation interruption, extended power outages, terrorism or sabotage or as a result of disruptions to third-party transmission lines. Monitoring could also be disrupted by information systems and network-related events such as computer hacking, computer viruses, worms or other malicious software, denial of service attacks, malicious social engineering or other destructive or disruptive activities that could also cause damage to our properties, equipment and data. While our monitoring systems are fully redundant, a failure of our back up procedures or a disruption affecting multiple monitoring facilities could disrupt our ability to provide monitoring services. During a transition period after the spin-off, our monitoring facilities will include facilities owned and operated by Tyco that will provide monitoring services to our customers pursuant to the Monitoring Agreement that we will enter into with Tyco in connection with the spin-off (the "Monitoring Agreement"). See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco—Monitoring Agreements" for a summary of this agreement.

Providers of broadband services may be able to block our services or charge their customers more for using our services, which could adversely affect our revenue and growth.

Our interactive and home automation services are accessed through the Internet and our security monitoring services are increasingly delivered using Internet technologies. Some providers of broadband access may take measures that affect their customers' ability to use these products and services, such as degrading the quality of the data packets we transmit over their lines, giving those packets low priority, giving other packets higher priority than ours, blocking our packets entirely or attempting to charge their customers more for using our services.

In the United States, there continues to be some uncertainty regarding whether suppliers of broadband Internet access have a legal obligation to allow their customers to access services such as ours without interference. In December 2010, the U.S. Federal Communications Commission (the "FCC") adopted new net neutrality rules that would protect services like ours from such interference. Several parties have sought judicial review of the FCC's net neutrality rules. These appeals are currently pending. Interference with our services or higher charges to customers by broadband service providers for using our products and services could cause us to lose existing customers, impair our ability to attract new customers and materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We have significant deferred tax assets, and any impairments of or valuation allowances against these deferred tax assets in the future could adversely affect our results of operations, financial condition and cash flows.

We are subject to income taxes in the United States and Canada and in various state, provincial and local jurisdictions. The amount of income taxes we pay is subject to our interpretation and application of tax laws in jurisdictions in which we file. Changes in current or future laws or regulations, the imposition of new or changed tax laws or regulations or new related interpretations by taxing authorities in the jurisdictions in which we file could materially and adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our consolidated federal and state income tax liability may be significantly reduced by tax credits and tax net operating loss (“NOL”) carryforwards available to us under the applicable tax codes. Our ability to fully utilize these deferred tax assets, however, may be limited for various reasons, such as if projected future taxable income becomes insufficient to recognize the full benefit of our NOL carryforwards prior to their expirations. Our ability to fully use these tax assets will also be adversely affected if we have an “ownership change” within the meaning of Section 382 of the Code. An ownership change is generally defined as a greater than 50% increase in equity ownership by “5% shareholders,” as the term is defined for purposes of Section 382 of the Code, in any three-year period. Future changes in our stock ownership, depending on the magnitude, including the purchase or sale of our common stock by 5% shareholders, and issuances or redemptions of common stock by us could result in an ownership change that would trigger the imposition of limitations under Section 382 of the Code. In addition, as a significant taxpayer, we are subject to regular audits by the IRS as well as state, provincial and local tax authorities. These audits could subject us to tax liabilities if tax authorities make adverse determinations with respect to our NOLs or tax credits. Further, any future disallowance of some or all of our tax credits or NOL carryforwards as a result of legislative change could materially affect our tax obligations. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that in the future we will not be subject to increased taxation or experience limitations with respect to recognizing the benefits of our NOL carryforwards and other tax attributes. Any such increase in taxation or limitation of benefits could have a material and adverse affect on our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Our operations and employees are subject to various U.S. and Canadian federal, state, provincial and local consumer protection, occupational licensing and other laws and regulations. Most states and provinces in which we operate have licensing laws directed specifically toward the security services industry. Our business relies heavily upon both wireline and wireless telecommunications to communicate signals. Telecommunications companies are currently regulated by both the federal, state and local governments.

In certain jurisdictions, we are required to obtain licenses or permits to comply with standards governing employee selection and training and to meet certain standards in the conduct of our business. The loss of such licenses or permits or the imposition of conditions to the granting or retention of such licenses or permits could have a material adverse effect on us. Furthermore, in certain jurisdictions, certain security systems must meet fire and building codes in order to be installed, and it is possible that our current or future products and service offerings will fail to meet such codes, which could require us to make costly modifications to our products and services or to forgo marketing in certain jurisdictions.

Changes in laws or regulations could require us to change the way we operate or to utilize resources to maintain compliance, which could increase costs or otherwise disrupt operations. In addition, failure to comply with any applicable laws or regulations could result in substantial fines or revocation of our operating permits and licenses. If laws and regulations were to change or if we or our products failed to comply with them, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Increasing government regulation of telemarketing, email marketing and other marketing methods may increase our costs and restrict the operation and growth of our business.

We rely on telemarketing and email marketing conducted internally and through third parties to generate a substantial number of leads for our business. The telemarketing and email marketing services industries are subject to an increasing amount of regulation in the United States and Canada. In the United States, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (“FTC”) and FCC have issued regulations that place restrictions on unsolicited automated telephone calls to residential and wireless telephone subscribers by means of automatic telephone dialing systems, prerecorded or artificial voice messages and telephone fax machines, and require us to maintain a “do not call” list and to train our personnel to comply with these restrictions. The FTC regulates both general sales practices and telemarketing specifically and has broad authority to prohibit a variety of advertising or marketing practices that may constitute “unfair or deceptive acts or practices.” Most of the statutes and regulations in the United States allow a private right of action for the recovery of damages or provide for enforcement by the FTC, state attorneys general or state agencies permitting the recovery of significant civil or criminal penalties, costs and attorneys’ fees in the event that regulations are violated. Additionally, we are subject to a 2007 consent decree with the FTC which, among other things, requires us to monitor compliance by our authorized dealers and third parties whom we expressly authorize to telemarket our residential security monitoring services with specified telemarketing regulations and to take certain actions with regard to those who fail to comply. The Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission enforces rules regarding unsolicited communications using automatic dialing and announcing devices, live voice and fax. In December 2010, the Government of Canada passed legislation to restrict the sending of unsolicited commercial electronic messages including email messages, although that legislation has not yet been proclaimed into force. We are diligent in our efforts to comply with all such applicable regulations, but cannot assure you that we or third parties that we rely on for telemarketing, email marketing and other lead generation activities will be in compliance with all applicable regulations at all times. Although our contractual arrangements with such third parties expressly require them to comply with all such regulations and to indemnify us for their failure to do so, we cannot assure you that the FTC, FCC, private litigants or others will not attempt to hold us responsible for any unlawful acts conducted by such third parties or that we could successfully enforce or collect upon such indemnities. Additionally, changes in such regulations or the interpretation thereof that further restrict such activities could result in a material reduction in the number of leads for our business and could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We could be assessed penalties for false alarms.

Some local governments impose assessments, fines, penalties and limitations on either customers or the alarm companies for false alarms. A few municipalities have adopted ordinances under which both permit and alarm dispatch fees are charged directly to the alarm companies. Our alarm service contracts generally allow us to pass these charges on to customers, but we may not be able to collect these charges if customers are unwilling or unable to pay them and such outcome may materially and adversely affect our operating results. Furthermore, our customers may elect to terminate or not renew our services if assessments, fines or penalties for false alarms become significant. If more local governments were to impose assessments, fines or penalties, our customer base, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Police departments could refuse to respond to calls from monitored security service companies.

Police departments in a limited number of U.S. and Canadian jurisdictions do not respond to calls from monitored security service companies, either as a matter of policy or by local ordinance. In certain cases, we have offered affected customers the option of receiving response from private guard companies, in most cases through contracts with us, which increases the overall cost to customers. If more police departments were to refuse to respond or be prohibited from responding to calls from monitored security service companies, our ability to attract and retain customers could be negatively impacted and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be adversely affected.

Adoption of statutes and governmental policies purporting to characterize certain of our charges as unlawful may adversely affect our business.

If a customer cancels its contract with us prior to the end of the initial contract term, other than in accordance with the contract, we may charge the customer an early cancellation fee. Consumer protection policies or legal precedents could be proposed or adopted to restrict the charges we can impose upon contract cancellation. Such initiatives could compel us to increase our prices during the initial term of our contracts and consequently lead to less demand for our services and increased attrition. Adverse judicial determinations regarding these matters could cause us to incur legal exposure to customers against whom such charges have been imposed and expose us to the risk that certain of our customers may seek to recover such charges through litigation. In addition, the costs of defending such litigation and enforcement actions could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We face risks in acquiring and integrating customer accounts.

An element of our business strategy involves the bulk acquisition of customer accounts. Acquisitions of customer accounts involve a number of special risks, including the possibility of unexpectedly high rates of attrition and unanticipated deficiencies in the accounts acquired despite our investigations prior to acquisition. We face competition from other alarm monitoring companies, including companies that may offer higher prices and more favorable terms for customer accounts purchased, lower minimum financial qualifications for purchased accounts or lower prices for monitoring services provided. This competition could reduce the acquisition opportunities available to us, thus slowing our rate of growth and/or increase the price we pay for such account acquisitions, thus reducing our return on investment and negatively impacting our revenue and results of operations. We cannot assure you that we will be able to purchase customer accounts on favorable terms in the future.

The purchase price we pay for customer accounts is affected by the recurring revenue historically generated by such accounts, as well as several other factors, including the level of competition, our prior experience with accounts purchased in bulk from specific sellers, the geographic location of accounts, the number of accounts purchased, the customers' credit scores and the type of security equipment used by the customers. In purchasing accounts, we have relied on management's knowledge of the industry, due diligence procedures and representations and warranties of bulk account sellers. We cannot assure you that in all instances the representations and warranties made by bulk account sellers are true and complete or, if the representations and warranties are inaccurate, that we will be able to recover damages from bulk account sellers in an amount sufficient to fully compensate us for any resulting losses. If any of these risks materializes our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Our customer generation strategies and the competitive market for customer accounts may affect our future profitability.

A principal element of our business strategy is the generation of new customer accounts through our authorized dealer program, which accounted for approximately 45% of our new customer accounts for our 2011 fiscal year. Our future operating results will depend in large part on our ability to manage this generation strategy effectively. Although we currently generate accounts through hundreds of authorized dealers, a significant portion of our accounts originate from a smaller number of authorized dealers. In particular, during our 2011 fiscal year one authorized dealer accounted for approximately 10% of all our new accounts. We experience loss of authorized dealers from our authorized dealer program due to various factors, such as authorized dealers becoming inactive or discontinuing their electronic security business, non-renewal of our dealer contracts and competition from other alarm monitoring companies. If we experience a loss of authorized dealers representing a significant portion of our account generation from our authorized dealer program or if we are unable to replace or recruit authorized dealers in accordance with our business plans, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be adversely affected.

In addition, successful promotion of our brand depends on the effectiveness of our marketing efforts and on our ability to offer member discounts and special offers for our products and services. We have actively pursued affinity marketing programs, which provide members of participating organizations with discounts on our products and services. The organizations with which we have affinity marketing programs closely monitor their relationships with us, as well as their members' satisfaction with our products and services. These organizations may require us to increase our fees to them, decrease our pricing for their members or otherwise alter the terms of our participation in their marketing programs in ways that are unfavorable to us. These organizations may also terminate their relationships with us if we fail to meet member satisfaction standards. If any of our important affinity or marketing relationships, such as our relationships with USAA or AARP, were terminated, we would lose a significant source of sales leads and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Our business strategy includes making acquisitions and investments that complement our existing business. These acquisitions and investments could be unsuccessful or consume significant resources, which could adversely affect our operating results.

We will continue to analyze and evaluate the acquisition of strategic businesses or product lines with the potential to strengthen our industry position or enhance our existing set of products and services offerings. We cannot assure you that we will identify or successfully complete transactions with suitable acquisition candidates in the future. Nor can we assure you that completed acquisitions will be successful.

Acquisitions and investments may involve significant cash expenditures, debt incurrence, operating losses and expenses that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Acquisitions involve numerous other risks, including:

- diversion of management time and attention from daily operations;
- difficulties integrating acquired businesses, technologies and personnel into our business;
- difficulties in obtaining and verifying the financial statements and other business information of acquired businesses;
- inability to obtain required regulatory approvals and/or required financing on favorable terms;
- potential loss of key employees, key contractual relationships or key customers of acquired companies or of us;
- assumption of the liabilities and exposure to unforeseen liabilities of acquired companies; and
- dilution of interests of holders of shares of our common stock through the issuance of equity securities or equity-linked securities.

It may be difficult for us to complete transactions quickly and to integrate acquired operations efficiently into our current business operations. Any acquisitions or investments may ultimately harm our business or financial condition, as such acquisitions may not be successful and may ultimately result in impairment charges.

We may pursue business opportunities that diverge from our current business model, which may cause our business to suffer.

We may pursue business opportunities that diverge from our current business model, including expanding our products or services, investing in new and unproven technologies, adding customer acquisition channels and forming new alliances with companies to market our services. We can offer no assurance that any such business opportunities will prove to be successful. Among other negative effects, our pursuit of such business opportunities could cause our cost of investment in new customers to grow at a faster rate than our recurring revenue and revenue from installations. Additionally, any new alliances or customer acquisition channels could have higher cost structures than our current arrangements, which could reduce operating margins and require more working capital. In the event that working capital requirements exceeded operating cash flow, we might be required to draw on the revolving credit facility that we have entered into in connection with the spin-off or pursue other external financing, which may not be readily available. Any of these factors could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We may be subject to liability for obligations of The Brink's Company under the Coal Act.

On May 14, 2010, Tyco acquired Broadview Security, a business formerly owned by The Brink's Company. Under the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992, as amended (the "Coal Act"), The Brink's Company and its majority-owned subsidiaries as of July 20, 1992 (including certain legal entities acquired in the Broadview Security acquisition) are jointly and severally liable with certain of The Brink's Company's other current and former subsidiaries for health care coverage obligations provided for by the Coal Act. A Voluntary Employees' Beneficiary Associate ("VEBA") trust has been established by The Brink's Company to pay for these liabilities, although the trust may have insufficient funds to satisfy all future obligations. At the time of the Broadview Spin-Off, Broadview Security entered into an agreement pursuant to which The Brink's Company agreed to indemnify it for any and all liabilities and expenses related to The Brink's Company's former coal operations, including any health care coverage obligations. The Brink's Company has agreed that this indemnification survives Tyco's acquisition of Broadview Security. We have evaluated our potential liability under the Coal Act as a contingency in light of all known facts, including the funding of the VEBA and indemnification provided by The Brink's Company. We have concluded that no accrual is necessary due to the existence of the indemnification and our belief that The Brink's Company and VEBA will be able to satisfy all future obligations under the Coal Act. However, if The Brink's Company and the VEBA are unable to satisfy all such obligations, we could be held liable, which could have a material and adverse affect on our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Risks Relating to Our Liquidity

Disruptions in the financial markets could adversely affect us and our suppliers by increasing funding costs or by reducing availability of credit.

In the normal course of our business, we may access credit markets for general corporate purposes, which may include repayment of indebtedness, acquisitions, additions to working capital, repurchase of common stock, capital expenditures and investments in our business. Although we expect to have sufficient liquidity to meet our foreseeable needs, our access to and the cost of capital could be negatively impacted by disruptions in the credit markets. In 2008, 2009 and 2010, credit markets experienced significant dislocations and liquidity disruptions, and similar disruptions in the credit markets could make financing terms for borrowers unattractive or unavailable. These factors may make it more difficult or expensive for us to access credit markets if the need arises. In addition, these factors may make it more difficult for our suppliers to meet demand for their products or for potential strategic partners to commence new projects, as they may experience increased costs of debt financing or difficulties in obtaining debt financing. Disruptions in the financial markets have had adverse effects on other areas of the economy and have led to a slowdown in general economic activity that may continue to adversely affect our businesses. These disruptions may have other unknown adverse effects. One or more of these factors could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Covenants in our debt instruments may adversely affect us.

As discussed under "Description of Material Indebtedness," we have entered into a new revolving credit facility and issued senior unsecured notes maturing in 2017, 2022 and 2042. Our revolving credit agreement contains customary covenants, including a limit on the ratio of debt to EBITDA, a minimum required ratio of EBITDA to interest expense and limits on incurrence of liens and subsidiary debt. In addition, the indenture governing our senior unsecured notes contains customary covenants including limits on liens and sale/leaseback transactions.

Our ability to meet our financial covenants can be affected by events beyond our control, and we cannot provide assurance that we will meet those tests. A breach of any of these covenants could result in a default under our credit agreement or our indenture. Upon the occurrence of an event of default under our credit facility or our indenture, the lenders or trustees could elect to declare all amounts outstanding thereunder to be immediately due and payable and, in the case of credit facility lenders, terminate all commitments to extend further credit. If the lenders or trustees accelerate the repayment of borrowings, we cannot provide assurance that we will have sufficient assets to repay our credit facility and our other indebtedness. Furthermore, acceleration of any obligation under any of our material debt instruments will permit the holders of our other material debt to accelerate their obligations, which could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition.

Material adverse legal judgments, fines, penalties or settlements could adversely affect our financial health and prevent us from fulfilling our obligations under our outstanding indebtedness.

We have entered into a new unsecured senior revolving credit facility in the amount of $750 million and issued senior unsecured notes in an aggregate principal amount of $2.5 billion in connection with the spin-off. We also expect to have approximately $300 million of cash on hand at the time of the Distribution. We expect that our available cash, our cash flow from operations and amounts available to us under the credit facility will be adequate to fund our operations and service our debt over both the short term and the long term. However, material adverse legal judgments, fines, penalties or settlements arising from litigation and similar contingencies could require additional funding. If such developments require us to obtain additional funding, we cannot provide assurance that we will be able to obtain the additional funding that we need on commercially reasonable terms or at all, which could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Such an outcome could have important consequences to you. For example, it could:

- require us to dedicate a substantial portion of our cash flow from operations to payments on our indebtedness, thereby reducing the availability of our cash flow to fund working capital, capital expenditures, research and development efforts and other corporate purposes, including dividend payments;
- increase our vulnerability to adverse economic and industry conditions;
- limit our flexibility in planning for, or reacting to, changes in our business and the markets in which we operate;
- restrict our ability to introduce new technologies or exploit business opportunities;
- make it more difficult for us to satisfy our payment obligations with respect to our outstanding indebtedness; and
- increase the difficulty and/or cost to us of refinancing our indebtedness.

Risks Relating to the Spin-Off

We will share responsibility for certain of our, Tyco's and Tyco Flow Control's income tax liabilities for tax periods prior to and including the distribution date, and such liabilities may include a portion of Tyco's obligations under its tax sharing agreement with Covidien Ltd. ("Covidien") and TE Connectivity Ltd. ("TE Connectivity") for tax liabilities for tax periods prior to and including June 29, 2007.

In connection with the 2007 distributions of Covidien and TE Connectivity by Tyco (the "2007 Separation"), Tyco entered into a tax sharing agreement (the "2007 Tax Sharing Agreement") that governs the rights and obligations of each party with respect to certain pre-2007 Separation tax liabilities and certain tax liabilities arising in connection with the 2007 Separation. More specifically, Tyco, Covidien and TE Connectivity share 27%, 42% and 31%, respectively, of income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to Tyco's, Covidien's and TE Connectivity's U.S. and certain non-U.S. income tax returns and certain taxes attributable to internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the 2007 Separation. In addition, in the event the 2007 Separation or certain related transactions is determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the 2007 Separation by Tyco, Covidien or TE Connectivity, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on Tyco, Covidien or TE Connectivity as a result thereof. If none of the companies is responsible for such failure, then Tyco, Covidien and TE Connectivity would be responsible for such taxes, in the same manner and in the same proportions as other shared tax liabilities under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Costs and expenses associated with the management of these shared tax liabilities are generally shared equally among the parties.

With respect to years prior to and including the 2007 Separation, tax authorities have raised issues and proposed tax adjustments that are generally subject to the sharing provisions of the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which may require Tyco to make a payment to a taxing authority, Covidien or TE Connectivity. Tyco has recorded a liability of $411 million as of March 30, 2012 which it has assessed and believes is adequate to cover the payments that Tyco may be required to make under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Tyco is reviewing and contesting certain of the proposed tax adjustments.

With respect to adjustments raised by the IRS, although Tyco has resolved a substantial number of these adjustments, a few significant items remain open with respect to the audit of the 1997 through 2004 years. As of the date hereof, Tyco has not been able to resolve certain open items, which primarily involve the treatment of certain intercompany debt issued during the period, through the IRS appeals process. As a result, Tyco expects to litigate these matters once it receives the requisite statutory notices from the IRS, which is likely to occur within the next six months. However, the ultimate resolution of these matters is uncertain and could result in Tyco being responsible for a greater amount than it expects under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement.

In connection with the Distribution, we will enter into the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control that will be separate from the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain pre-Distribution tax liabilities, including Tyco's obligations under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement, as more fully described in "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco—Tax Sharing Agreement" below. To the extent we are responsible for any liability under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there could be a material adverse impact on our financial position, results of operations, cash flows or our effective tax rate in future reporting periods.

If the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the spin-off are determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we, our shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax and/or Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities.

Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Distributions to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and 361 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock and the Tyco Flow Control common shares. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The receipt of such private letter ruling and the opinion are conditions to the Distribution that must be either satisfied or waived by Tyco. The private letter ruling relies and the opinion will rely on certain facts and assumptions and certain representations and undertakings from us, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters. Notwithstanding the private letter ruling and the opinion, the IRS could determine on audit that the Distribution or the internal transactions should be treated as taxable transactions if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings is not correct or has been violated, or that the Distribution or the internal transactions should be taxable for other reasons, including as a result of significant changes in stock or asset ownership after the Distribution. An opinion of counsel represents counsel's best legal judgment, is not binding on the IRS or the courts, and the IRS or the courts may not agree with the opinion. In addition, the opinion will be based on current law, and cannot be relied upon if current law changes with retroactive effect. If the Distribution ultimately is determined to be taxable, the Distribution could be treated as a taxable dividend or capital gain to you for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and you could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities. In addition, Tyco would recognize gain in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of shares of our common stock and the Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed to Tyco shareholders on the distribution date over Tyco's tax basis in such shares, but such gain, if recognized, generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. However, we or Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if it is ultimately determined that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution are taxable.

In addition, under the terms of the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, in the event the Distribution, the Tyco Flow Control Distribution or the internal transactions were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distribution by us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result thereof. If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distribution by us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, then we, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco would be responsible for any taxes imposed on us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as we share Shared Tax Liabilities (as defined in the section "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco—Tax Sharing Agreement"). Such tax amounts could be significant. In the event that any party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement defaults in its obligation to pay Distribution Taxes (as defined in the section "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco—Tax Sharing Agreement") to another party that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be responsible for an equal amount of the defaulting party's obligation to make a payment to another party in respect of such other party's taxes. To the extent we are responsible for any liability under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there could be a material adverse impact on our financial position, results of operations, cash flows or our effective tax rate in future reporting periods.

If the Distribution is determined to be taxable for Swiss withholding tax purposes, we and Tyco could incur significant Swiss withholding tax liabilities.

Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to our and Tyco's shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlage) accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). We have obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that the Distribution qualifies as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distribution.

This tax ruling relies on certain facts and assumptions and certain representations and undertakings from Tyco regarding the past conduct of its businesses and other matters. Notwithstanding this tax ruling, the Swiss Federal Tax Administration could determine on audit that the Distribution should be treated as a taxable transaction for withholding tax purposes if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings is not correct or has been violated. If the Distribution ultimately is determined to be taxable for withholding tax purposes, we and Tyco could incur material Swiss withholding tax liabilities that could significantly detract from or eliminate the benefits of the spin-off. In addition, we could become liable to indemnify Tyco for part of any Swiss withholding tax liabilities to the extent provided under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement.

We may be unable to achieve some or all of the benefits that we expect to achieve from our spin-off from Tyco.

As an independent, publicly-traded company, we believe that our business will benefit from, among other things, allowing us to better focus our financial and operational resources on our specific business, allowing our management to design and implement corporate strategies and policies that are based primarily on the business characteristics and strategic decisions of our business, allowing us to more effectively respond to industry dynamics and allowing the creation of effective incentives for our management and employees that are more closely tied to our business performance. However, we may not be able to achieve some or all of the benefits that we expect to achieve as an independent company in the time we expect, if at all. For example, it is possible that investors and securities analysts will not place a greater value on our business as an independent company than on our business as a part of Tyco.

We may increase our debt or raise additional capital in the future, which could affect our financial health and may decrease our profitability.

We may increase our debt or raise additional capital in the future, subject to restrictions in our credit facility and indenture and possibly future debt agreements. If our cash flow from operations is less than we anticipate, or if our cash requirements are more than we expect, we may require more financing. However, debt or equity financing may not be available to us on terms acceptable to us, if at all. If we incur additional debt or raise equity through the issuance of additional capital stock, the terms of the debt or our capital stock issued may give the holders rights, preferences and privileges senior to those of holders of our common stock, particularly in the event of liquidation. The terms of the debt may also impose additional and more stringent restrictions on our operations than we currently have. If we raise funds through the issuance of additional equity, your percentage ownership in us would decline. If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, it could affect our financial health, which could negatively affect your investment in us. Also, regardless of the terms of our debt or equity financing, the amount of our stock that we can issue may be limited because the issuance of our stock may cause the Distribution to be a taxable event for Tyco under Section 355(e) of the Code, and under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, we could be required to indemnify Tyco for that tax. See “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off—We might not be able to engage in desirable strategic transactions and equity issuances following the Distribution because of restrictions relating to U.S. federal income tax requirements for tax-free distributions.”

Our accounting and other management systems and resources may not be adequately prepared to meet the financial reporting and other requirements to which we will be subject following the Distribution.

Our financial results previously were included within the consolidated results of Tyco, and we believe that our financial reporting and internal controls were appropriate for those of subsidiaries of a public company. However, we were not directly subject to the reporting and other requirements of the Exchange Act. In connection with the Distribution, we will become directly subject to reporting and other obligations under the Exchange Act. Beginning with our Annual Report on Form 10-K for fiscal year 2013, we will be required to comply with Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (the “Sarbanes-Oxley Act”) which will require annual management assessments of the effectiveness of our internal control over financial reporting and a report by our independent registered public accounting firm addressing these assessments. These reporting and other obligations may place significant demands on our management, administrative and operational resources, including accounting systems and resources.

The Exchange Act will require that we file annual, quarterly and current reports with respect to our business and financial condition. Under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, we will be required to maintain effective disclosure controls and procedures and internal controls over financial reporting. To comply with these requirements, we may need to upgrade our systems; implement additional financial and management controls, reporting systems and procedures; and hire additional accounting and finance staff. We expect to incur additional annual expenses for the purpose of addressing these requirements, and those expenses may be significant. If we are unable to upgrade our financial and management controls, reporting systems, information technology systems and procedures in a timely and effective fashion, our ability to comply with our financial reporting requirements and other rules that apply to reporting companies under the Exchange Act could be impaired. Any failure to achieve and maintain effective internal controls could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We may be unable to make, on a timely or cost-effective basis, the changes necessary to operate as an independent company, and we may experience increased costs after the spin-off.

We have historically operated as part of Tyco's corporate organization, and Tyco has assisted us by providing certain corporate functions. Following the completion of the spin-off, Tyco will be obligated contractually to provide to us only those transition services specified in agreements we enter into with Tyco. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco" for a summary of these agreements. We may be unable to replace in a timely manner or on comparable terms the services or other benefits that Tyco previously provided to us that are not specified in any transition services agreement. Upon expiration of any transition services agreement, many of the services that are covered in the agreement will have to be provided internally or by unaffiliated third parties and we may be unable to replace those services in a timely manner or on comparable terms. In addition, if Tyco does not continue to perform the transition services and the other services that are called for under any transition services agreement, we may not be able to operate our business as effectively and our profitability may decline.

In addition, for a period of time of up to two years after the spin-off, we will continue to share monitoring facilities with Tyco as we work to separate our security monitoring system from that of Tyco. In connection with the spin-off, we will also enter into a Monitoring Agreement with Tyco pursuant to which we will provide third-party monitoring services to certain of their customers and they will provide third-party monitoring services to certain of our customers for a period of time. See "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco—Monitoring Agreements" for a summary of this agreement. We may not be able to effect the spin-off of our operations and security monitoring system from Tyco as smoothly as anticipated, which may result in disruption to our ongoing business, distraction of management and an increase in our cost of operation.

Our historical and pro forma condensed combined financial data are not necessarily representative of the results we would have achieved as an independent, publicly-traded company and may not be a reliable indicator of our future results.

The historical and pro forma financial data we have included in this Information Statement may not reflect what our results of operations, financial condition and cash flows would have been had we been an independent, publicly-traded company during the periods presented or what our results of operations, financial condition and cash flows will be in the future when we are an independent company. This is primarily because:

- Prior to our spin-off, our business was operated by Tyco as part of its broader corporate organization, rather than as an independent, publicly-traded company. In addition, prior to our spin-off, Tyco, or one of its affiliates, performed significant corporate functions for us, including tax and treasury administration and certain governance functions, including internal audit and external reporting. Our historical and pro forma financial statements reflect allocations of corporate expenses from Tyco for these and similar functions and may not reflect the costs we will incur for similar services in the future as an independent company. Furthermore, following the spin-off, we will also be responsible for the additional costs associated with being an independent, publicly-traded company, including costs related to corporate governance and external reporting.
- Our working capital requirements and capital for our general corporate purposes, including acquisitions and capital expenditures, historically have been satisfied as part of the company-wide cash management practices of Tyco. Following the completion of the spin-off, Tyco will not be providing us with funds to finance our working capital or other cash requirements. Without the opportunity to obtain financing from Tyco, we may need to obtain additional financing from banks, through public offerings or private placements of debt or equity securities or other arrangements.
- Other significant changes may occur in our cost structure, management, financing and business operations as a result of our operating as a company separate from Tyco.

In addition, the pro forma financial data included in this Information Statement is based on the best information available, which in part includes a number of estimates and assumptions. These estimates and assumptions may prove not to be accurate, and accordingly, our pro forma financial data should not be assumed to be indicative of what our financial condition or results of operations actually would have been as a stand-alone company nor to be a reliable indicator of what our financial condition or results of operations actually may be in the future.

For additional information about our past financial performance and the basis of presentation of our financial statements, see “Selected Historical Combined Financial Data,” “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations” and our financial statements and the notes thereto included in this Information Statement.

As an independent, publicly-traded company, we may not enjoy the same benefits that we did as a segment of Tyco.

There is a risk that, by separating from Tyco, we may become more susceptible to market fluctuations and other adverse events than we would have been if we were still a part of the current Tyco organizational structure. As part of Tyco, we have been able to enjoy certain benefits from Tyco’s operating diversity, purchasing power, available capital for investments and opportunities to pursue integrated strategies with Tyco’s other businesses. As an independent, publicly-traded company, we will not have similar diversity or integration opportunities and may not have similar purchasing power or access to capital markets.

Following our spin-off from Tyco, our capital structure and sources of liquidity will change significantly from our historical capital structure.

We have entered into a new unsecured senior revolving credit facility in the amount of $750 million and issued senior unsecured notes in an aggregate principal amount of $2.5 billion in connection with the spin-off. We also expect to have approximately $300 million of cash on hand at the time of the Distribution. As an independent, publicly-traded company, we will no longer participate in cash management and funding arrangements with Tyco. Instead, our ability to fund our capital needs will depend on our ongoing ability to generate cash from operations, and to access our borrowing facilities and capital markets, which is subject to general economic, financial, competitive, regulatory and other factors that are beyond our control.

Certain of the contracts to be transferred or assigned to us contain provisions requiring the consent of a third party in connection with the transactions contemplated by the Distribution. If such consent is not given, we may not be entitled to the benefit of such contracts in the future.

Certain of the contracts to be transferred or assigned to us in connection with the Distribution and the internal transactions described below in this Information Statement contain provisions which require the consent of a third party to the internal transactions, the Distribution or both. If we are unable to obtain such consents on commercially reasonable and satisfactory terms, our ability to obtain the benefit of such contracts in the future may be impaired.

Our suppliers or other companies with whom we conduct business may need assurances that our financial stability on a stand-alone basis is sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing or continuing to do business with them.

Some of our suppliers or other companies with whom we conduct business may need assurances that our financial stability on a stand-alone basis is sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing or continuing to do business with them. Any failure of parties to be satisfied with our financial stability could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

The ownership by our executive officers and some of our directors of common shares, options or other equity awards of Tyco or Tyco Flow Control may create, or may create the appearance of, conflicts of interest.

Because of their current or former positions with Tyco, substantially all of our executive officers, including our chief executive officer and some of our non-employee director nominees, own common shares of Tyco, options to purchase common shares of Tyco or other Tyco equity awards. Following Tyco's distribution of Tyco Flow Control common shares to its shareholders, these officers and non-employee directors will own common shares, options to purchase common shares and other equity awards in Tyco and Tyco Flow Control. The individual holdings of common shares, options to purchase common shares or other equity awards of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control may be significant for some of these persons compared to their total assets. These equity interests may create, or appear to create, conflicts of interest when these directors and officers are faced with decisions that could benefit or affect the equity holders of Tyco or Tyco Flow Control in ways that do not benefit or affect us in the same manner.

We might not be able to engage in desirable strategic transactions and equity issuances following the Distribution because of restrictions relating to U.S. federal income tax requirements for tax-free distributions.

Our ability to engage in significant equity transactions could be limited or restricted after the Distribution in order to preserve, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the tax-free nature of the Distribution by Tyco. Even if the Distribution otherwise qualifies for tax-free treatment under Section 355 of the Code, it may result in corporate-level taxable gain to Tyco and certain of its affiliates under Section 355(e) of the Code if 50% or more, by vote or value, of our shares or Tyco's shares are acquired or issued as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distribution. Any acquisitions or issuances of our shares or Tyco's shares within two years after the Distribution will generally be presumed to be part of such a plan, although we or Tyco may be able to rebut that presumption.

To preserve the tax-free treatment to Tyco of the Distribution, under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, we expect that we will be prohibited from taking or failing to take any action that prevents the Distribution and related transactions from being tax-free. Further, for the two-year period following the Distribution, without obtaining the consent of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control, a private letter ruling from the IRS or an unqualified opinion of a nationally recognized law firm, we may be prohibited from:

- approving or allowing any transaction that results in a change in ownership of more than 35% of our common shares when combined with any other changes in ownership of our shares,
- redeeming equity securities,
- selling or otherwise disposing of more than 35% of ADT's assets, or
- engaging in certain internal transactions.

These restrictions may limit our ability to pursue strategic transactions or engage in new business or other transactions that may maximize the value of our business. Moreover, we expect the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement to also provide that we will be responsible for any taxes imposed on Tyco or any of its affiliates or on Tyco Flow Control or any of its affiliates as a result of the failure of the Distribution or the internal transactions to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code if such failure is attributable to certain actions taken after the Distribution by or in respect of us, any of our affiliates or our shareholders.

The spin-off might not be completed and the one-time and ongoing costs of the spin-off may be greater than we expected.

There are risks and uncertainties relating to the execution of the spin-off, including the timing and certainty of the completion of the internal reorganization prior to the Distribution and the timing and certainty of the satisfaction or waivers of the conditions to the Distribution. In addition, we and Tyco will incur costs in connection with the transition to being a stand-alone public company that relate primarily to accounting, tax, legal and other professional costs; financing costs in connection with refinancing Tyco's outstanding indebtedness and obtaining our financing as a standalone company; compensation, such as modifications to certain incentive awards upon completion of the spin-off; recruiting and relocation costs associated with hiring our senior management personnel; and costs to separate information systems. These costs, whether incurred before or after the spin-off, may be greater than anticipated and could have a material adverse effect on our financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

Risks Relating to Our Common Stock and the Securities Market

There is no existing market for our common stock and we cannot be certain that an active trading market will develop or be sustained after the spin-off, and following the spin-off our stock price may fluctuate significantly.

There is currently no public market for our common stock. We intend to list our common stock on the NYSE. It is anticipated that before the distribution date for the spin-off, trading of shares of our common stock will begin on a "when-issued" basis and such trading will continue up to and including the distribution date. However, there can be no assurance that an active trading market for our common stock will develop as a result of the spin-off or be sustained in the future. The lack of an active market may make it more difficult for you to sell our common stock and could lead to the price of our common stock being depressed or more volatile.

We cannot predict the prices at which our common stock may trade after the spin-off. The market price of our common stock may fluctuate widely, depending on many factors, some of which may be beyond our control, including:

- our business profile and market capitalization may not fit the investment objectives of some Tyco shareholders and, as a result, these Tyco shareholders may sell our shares after the Distribution;
- actual or anticipated fluctuations in our operating results due to factors related to our business;
- success or failure of our business strategy;
- our quarterly or annual earnings, or those of other companies in our industry;
- our ability to obtain third-party financing as needed;
- announcements by us or our competitors of significant acquisitions or dispositions;
- changes in accounting standards, policies, guidance, interpretations or principles;
- the failure of securities analysts to cover our common stock after the spin-off;
- changes in earnings estimates by securities analysts or our ability to meet those estimates;
- the operating and stock price performance of other comparable companies;
- investor perception of our company;
- natural or other disasters that investors believe may affect us;
- overall market fluctuations;
- results from any material litigation or government investigations;
- changes in laws and regulations affecting our business; and
- general economic conditions and other external factors.

Stock markets in general have experienced volatility that has often been unrelated to the operating performance of a particular company. These broad market fluctuations could adversely affect the trading price of our common stock.

Investors may be unable to accurately value our shares.

Investors often value companies based on the stock prices and results of operations of other comparable companies. We believe that currently, no public company exists that is directly comparable to our size, scale and product offerings. For these reasons, investors may find it difficult to accurately value our common stock, which may cause our common stock to trade below our true value.

Substantial sales of common stock may occur in connection with the spin-off, which could cause our stock price to decline.

The shares of ADT common stock that Tyco distributes to its shareholders generally may be sold immediately in the public market. Although we have no actual knowledge of any plan or intention on the part of any significant shareholder to sell shares of our common stock following the spin-off, it is likely that some Tyco shareholders, possibly including some of our larger shareholders, will sell shares of our common stock received in the Distribution for various reasons such as if our business profile or market capitalization as an independent company does not fit their investment objectives. In particular, Tyco is a member of the S&P 500 Index, while we will not initially be and may not be in the future. Accordingly, certain Tyco shareholders may elect or be required to sell our shares following the spin-off due to investment guidelines or other reasons. The sales of significant amounts of our common stock or the perception in the market that this will occur may result in the lowering of the market price of our common stock.

We cannot assure you that we will pay dividends on our common stock, and our indebtedness could limit our ability to pay dividends on our common stock.

We intend to pay quarterly dividends in an amount that approximates our proportionate share of the $1.00 per share annual dividend that Tyco currently pays to its shareholders, or approximately $0.50 per ADT share annually (based on a one for two distribution ratio). Whether our board of directors exercises its discretion to propose any dividends to holders of our common stock will depend on many factors, including our financial condition, earnings, capital requirements of our business, covenants associated with debt obligations, legal requirements, regulatory constraints, industry practice and other factors that our board of directors deems relevant. See “Description of Our Capital Stock—Common Stock.”

There can be no assurance that we will pay a dividend in the future or continue to pay any dividend if we do commence the payment of dividends. There can also be no assurance that the combined annual dividends on Tyco common shares, Tyco Flow Control common shares and our common stock, if any, will be equal to the annual dividends on Tyco common shares prior to the spin-off. Additionally, indebtedness that we have incurred in connection with the spin-off could have important consequences for holders of our common stock. If we cannot generate sufficient cash flow from operations to meet our debt-payment obligations, then our ability to pay dividends, if so determined by the board of directors, will be impaired and we may be required to attempt to restructure or refinance our debt, raise additional capital or take other actions such as selling assets, reducing or delaying capital expenditures or reducing our dividend. There can be no assurance, however, that any such actions could be effected on satisfactory terms, if at all, or would be permitted by the terms of our new debt or our other credit and contractual arrangements.

Your percentage ownership in ADT will be diluted in the future.

Your percentage ownership in ADT will be diluted in the future because of additional equity awards that we expect will be granted to our directors, officers and employees in the future. We intend to establish equity incentive plans that will provide for the grant of common stock-based equity awards to our directors, officers and other employees. In addition, we may issue equity as all or part of the consideration paid for acquisitions and strategic investments we may make in the future.

Provisions in our certificate of incorporation and by-laws and of Delaware law may prevent or delay an acquisition of our company, which could decrease the trading price of our common stock.

Our proposed certificate of incorporation and by-laws and Delaware law contain provisions that are intended to deter coercive takeover practices and inadequate takeover bids by making such practices or bids more expensive to the acquiror and to encourage prospective acquirors to negotiate with our board of directors rather than to attempt a hostile takeover. These provisions include rules regarding how shareholders may present proposals or nominate directors for election at shareholder meetings and the right of our board of directors to issue preferred stock without shareholder approval.

Delaware law also imposes some restrictions on mergers and other business combinations between any holder of 15% or more of our outstanding common stock and us. For more information, see “Description of Our Capital Stock—Certain Provisions of Delaware Law, Our Certificate of Incorporation and By-laws.”

We believe these provisions protect our shareholders from coercive or otherwise unfair takeover tactics by requiring potential acquirors to negotiate with our board of directors and by providing our board of directors with more time to assess any acquisition proposal. These provisions are not intended to make us immune from takeovers. However, these provisions apply even if the offer may be considered beneficial by some shareholders and could delay or prevent an acquisition that our board of directors determines is not in the best interests of our company and our shareholders. Accordingly, in the event that our board of directors determines that a potential business combination transaction is not in the best interests of our company and our shareholders but certain shareholders believe that such a transaction would be beneficial to our company and our shareholders, such shareholders may elect to sell their shares in our company and the trading price of our common stock could decrease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE COMPANY AND THE SPIN-OFF

Set forth below are commonly asked questions and answers about the spin-off and the transactions contemplated thereby. You should read the section entitled “The Spin-Off” of this Information Statement for a more detailed description of the matters described below.

Q: What is the spin-off?

A: The spin-off is the Distribution and all other transactions required under the ADT Separation and Distribution agreement for the consummation of the separation of ADT from Tyco. The Distribution is the final step in the separation of ADT from Tyco, which will be accomplished through a series of transactions that will result in our shareholders owning the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada which is currently operated by Tyco. The Distribution will be a pro rata distribution of our common stock by Tyco to holders of Tyco shares.

In addition, Tyco expects to separate its flow control business from Tyco through the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and immediately thereafter to effect the Merger, whereupon the businesses of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will be combined. Information regarding the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the Merger will be provided to Tyco shareholders in a separate prospectus. Our Distribution and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution are not cross-conditioned—either may occur without the other. However, we currently expect the Distribution and the Flow Control Distribution to occur simultaneously.

Q: What is ADT?

A: We are a newly-formed wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco organized under the laws of Delaware. Following the spin-off, we will be an independent, publicly-traded company organized under the laws of Delaware operating the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada formerly operated by Tyco.

Q: What is the reason for the spin-off?

A: Tyco’s board of directors has determined that the spin-off is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide the following key benefits: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management’s efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities, (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency and (v) enhanced management incentive tools. See “The Spin-Off—Reasons for the Spin-Off.”

Q: Why is the separation of ADT structured as a spin-off?

A: Tyco believes that a tax-free distribution of our shares for Swiss withholding tax and, except for any cash received in lieu of fractional shares, U.S. federal income tax purposes is the most efficient way to separate our business from Tyco in a manner that will improve flexibility and benefit both Tyco and us and create long-term value for Tyco shareholders.

Q: What will I receive in the spin-off?

A: As a holder of Tyco common shares, you will receive a distribution of one share of our common stock for every two Tyco common shares held by you as of the record date for the Distribution. Your proportionate ownership interest in Tyco will not change as a result of the Distribution. For a more detailed description, see “The Spin-Off.”

Q: What is being distributed in the spin-off?

A: We estimate that approximately 229,861,164 shares of our common stock will be distributed to Tyco shareholders in the spin-off, based on the number of Tyco common shares outstanding on June 30, 2012. The actual number of our shares that are distributed will be determined based on the number of Tyco shares outstanding as of the record date for the Distribution. The shares of our common stock to be distributed by Tyco will constitute all of the issued and outstanding shares of our common stock immediately prior to the Distribution. For more information on the shares being distributed in the spin-off, see “Description of Our Capital Stock—Common Stock.”

Q: What is the record date for the Distribution?

A: Subject to Tyco shareholders approving the Distribution, record ownership will be determined as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on September 17, 2012, which we refer to as the record date.

Q: When will the Distribution occur?

A: The distribution date of the spin-off is expected to be September 28, 2012. We anticipate that the distribution date for the spin-off will be the same date as the distribution date for the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. We expect that it will take the distribution agent, acting on behalf of Tyco, up to three business days after the distribution date to fully distribute the shares of our common stock to Tyco shareholders.

Q: Can Tyco decide to cancel the distribution of ADT common stock after the shareholders have approved that transaction if all the conditions have been met?

A: No. Under Swiss law, the power and authority to authorize the distribution of a dividend falls within the sole competence of the shareholders of the relevant company acting pursuant to a shareholders’ meeting and may not be delegated to the company’s board of directors. However, in the event that any of the conditions to the Distribution have not been met by March 31, 2013, Tyco will have the ability to discontinue the Distribution.

Q: What are the main conditions to the distribution of ADT common stock?

A: The distribution of ADT common stock is subject to the satisfaction or waiver of a number of conditions, including that the SEC shall have declared effective our Registration Statement on Form 10, of which this Information Statement is a part, that our common shares shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance and that a number of tax rulings shall have been obtained and shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution. See “The Spin-Off—Spin-Off Conditions and Termination” for a description of these and other conditions.

Q: What will happen to the listing of Tyco shares?

A: Nothing. Tyco shares will continue to be traded on the NYSE under the symbol “TYC.”

Q: Will the spin-off affect the trading price of my Tyco common shares?

A: Yes. We expect the trading price of Tyco common shares immediately following the Distribution to be lower than immediately prior to the Distribution because the trading price will no longer reflect the value of Tyco’s residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada, which is being spun-off through the distribution of shares of ADT common stock, and its flow control business, which is being spun-off through the distribution of Tyco Flow Control shares. Furthermore, until the market has fully analyzed the value of Tyco without its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and its flow control business, the price of Tyco common shares may fluctuate.

In addition, it is also anticipated that shortly before the record date and continuing up to and including the distribution date, there will be two markets in Tyco common shares: a “regular-way” market and an “ex-distribution” market. Tyco common shares that trade on the regular way market will trade with an entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distributions. Shares that trade on the ex-distribution market will trade without an entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distribution. See “The Spin Off—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date.”

Q: What do I have to do to participate in the spin-off?

A: Approval of certain matters required for the Distribution is being sought from the holders of Tyco common shares at a special general meeting of Tyco shareholders. In conjunction with the shareholder approval of the Distribution, Tyco shareholders will also be asked to approve the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, but approval of the Tyco Flow Control Distribution is not a condition to the Distribution. In connection with the special general meeting, the Tyco Proxy Statement is being distributed to Tyco's shareholders. The Tyco Proxy Statement contains a proxy, the procedures for voting your Tyco shares and other details regarding the special general meeting being called to approve certain matters required for the Distribution. As a result, this Information Statement does not contain a proxy. Other than shareholder approval of the Distribution, no action will be required of Tyco shareholders to receive shares of ADT common stock, which means that (1) you will not be required to pay for the shares of ADT common stock that you receive in the Distribution, and (2) you do not need to surrender or exchange any Tyco common shares in order to receive shares of ADT common stock or to take any other action in connection with the spin-off.

Q: What if I want to sell my Tyco common shares or my shares of ADT common stock?

A: You should consult with your financial advisors, such as your stockbroker, bank or tax advisor. Neither Tyco nor ADT makes any recommendations on the purchase, retention or sale of Tyco common shares or the shares of ADT common stock to be distributed in the spin-off.

If you decide to sell any shares before the Distribution, you should make sure your stockbroker, bank or other nominee understands whether you want to sell your Tyco common shares or the shares of ADT common stock you will receive in the Distribution. If you sell your Tyco common shares in the "regular-way" market up to and including the distribution date, you will be selling your right to receive shares of ADT common stock in the Distribution and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Tyco Flow Control Distribution. If you own Tyco common shares as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date and sell those shares on the "ex-distribution" market up to and including the distribution date, you will still receive the shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares, that you would be entitled to receive in respect of the Tyco common shares you owned as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date. See "The Spin-Off—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date."

Q: How will Tyco distribute shares of our common stock?

A: Holders of Tyco common shares as of the record date will receive shares of ADT common stock in book-entry form. See "The Spin-Off—Manner of Effecting the Spin-Off."

Q: How will fractional shares be treated in the spin-off?

A: No fractional shares will be distributed in connection with the spin-off. Instead, the distribution agent will aggregate all fractional shares into whole shares and sell the whole shares in the open market at prevailing market prices. The distribution agent will then distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and other costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share in the Distribution. See "The Spin-Off—Manner of Effecting the Spin-Off."

Q: What are the U.S. federal income tax consequences to me of the spin-off?

A: Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distributions, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of our common stock or Tyco Flow Control common shares, will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive prior to the special meeting approving the Distribution an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The private letter ruling relies and the opinion will rely on certain facts and assumptions and certain representations and undertakings, provided by us, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters. The receipt by Tyco of the opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP is a condition to effecting the spin-off.

Assuming that the Distribution qualifies under Section 355 of the Code, for U.S. federal income tax purposes no gain or loss will be recognized by a Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax, and no amount will be included in the income of a shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax, upon the receipt of our common shares pursuant to the Distribution. A Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax generally will recognize gain or loss with respect to any cash received in lieu of a fractional share.

See “The Spin-Off—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” and “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off—If the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the spin-off are determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we, our shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax and/or Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities” for more information regarding the potential tax consequences to you of the Distribution.

Each Tyco shareholder is urged to consult his, her or its tax advisor as to the specific tax consequences of the Distribution to that shareholder, including the effect of any state, local or non-U.S. tax laws and of changes in applicable tax laws.

Q: How will I determine the tax basis I will have in the shares of ADT common stock I receive in the Distribution?

A: Generally, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, your aggregate basis in the stock you hold in Tyco and the new ADT and Tyco Flow Control shares received in the Distributions (including any fractional share interests in ADT and Tyco Flow Control for which cash is received) will equal the aggregate basis of Tyco common shares held by you immediately before the Distributions. This aggregate basis will be allocated among your Tyco common shares and the ADT common stock and/or the Tyco Flow Control common shares that you receive in the distributions (including any fractional share interests in ADT and Tyco Flow Control for which cash is received) in proportion to the relative fair market value of each immediately following the Distributions. See the section entitled “The Spin-Off—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” included elsewhere in this information statement for more information.

You should consult your tax advisor about how this allocation will work in your situation (including a situation where you have purchased Tyco shares at different times or for different amounts) and regarding any particular consequences of the Distribution to you, including the application of state, local and non-U.S. tax laws.

Q: What are the Swiss withholding tax and income tax consequences to me of the spin-off?

A: Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to our and Tyco’s shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). We have obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that the Distribution qualifies as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distribution.

Shareholders who are not resident in Switzerland for tax purposes, who, during the respective taxation year, have not engaged in a trade or business carried on through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes and who are not subject to corporate or individual income taxation in Switzerland for any other reason will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distribution including any cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock.

Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as private assets, will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distribution out of the qualifying contributed surplus including any cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of Tyco Flow Control shares are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax and, conversely, capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss Private Shareholders. Corporate and individual shareholders who are resident in Switzerland for tax purposes and corporate and individual shareholders who are not resident in Switzerland, and who, in each case, hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes, will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the Distribution out of the qualifying contributed surplus including any cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock, to the extent that the participation income cannot be reduced by a respective depreciation on the investment in Tyco and/or where the participation relief (Beteiligungsabzug) is not applicable.

For more information regarding the potential tax consequences to you of the spin-off, see “The Spin-Off—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” and “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off—If the Distribution is determined to be taxable for Swiss withholding tax purposes, we and Tyco could incur significant Swiss withholding tax liabilities.”

Q: Does ADT intend to pay cash dividends?

A: We intend to pay quarterly dividends in an amount that approximates our proportionate share of the $1.00 per share annual dividend that Tyco currently pays to its shareholders, or approximately $0.50 per ADT share annually (based on a one for two distribution ratio. See “Dividend Policy.”

Q: How will ADT common stock trade?

A: Currently, there is no public market for our common stock. We intend to list our common stock on the NYSE under the symbol “ADT.”

We anticipate that trading will commence on a “when-issued” basis on or shortly prior to the record date and before the distribution date. When-issued trading in the context of a spin-off refers to a transaction effected on or before the distribution date and made conditionally because the securities of the spun-off entity have not yet been distributed. When-issued trades generally settle within four trading days of the distribution date. On the first trading day following the distribution date, any when-issued trading in respect of our common stock will end and “regular-way” trading will begin. Regular-way trading refers to trading after the security has been distributed and typically involves a trade that settles on the third full trading day following the date of the sale transaction. See “The Spin-Off—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date.” We cannot predict the trading prices for our common stock before or after the distribution date.

Q: Do I have appraisal rights?

A: No. Holders of Tyco common shares are not entitled to appraisal rights in connection with the spin-off.

Q: Who is the transfer agent for ADT common stock?

A: Wells Fargo Shareowner Services will serve as the transfer agent for ADT common stock.

Q: Are there risks associated with owning ADT common stock?

A: Our business is subject to both general and specific risks and uncertainties relating to our business. Our business is also subject to risks relating to the spin-off. Following the spin-off, we will also be subject to risks relating to being an independent, publicly-traded company. Accordingly, you should read carefully the information set forth in the section entitled “Risk Factors” beginning on page 11 of this Information Statement.

- risks associated with Tyco’s ownership of the ADT® brand name outside of the United States and Canada
- failure to enforce our intellectual property rights;
- our dependence on certain software technology that we license from third parties;
- failure or interruption in products or services of third-party providers;
- our greater exposure to liability for employee acts or omissions or system failures;
- an increase in the rate of customer attrition;
- downturns in the housing market and consumer discretionary income;
- risks associated with our non-compete and non-solicit arrangements with Tyco;
- entry of potential competitors upon the expiration of non-competition agreements;
- shifts in consumers’ choice of, or telecommunication providers’ support for, telecommunication services and equipments;
- interruption to our monitoring facilities;
- interference with our customer’s access to some of our products and services through the Internet by broadband service providers;
- potential impairment of our deferred tax assets;
- changes in U.S. and non-U.S. governmental laws and regulations;
- risks associated with acquiring and integrating customer accounts;
- potential loss of authorized dealers and affinity marketing relationships;

- risks associated with pursuing business opportunities that diverge from our current business model;
- potential liabilities for obligations of The Brink's Company under the Coal Act;
- other capital market conditions, including availability of funding sources;
- failure to fully realize expected benefits from the spin-off; and
- difficulty in operating as an independent public company separate from Tyco.

These factors should not be construed as exhaustive and should be read in conjunction with the other cautionary statements that are included in this Information Statement. If one or more of these or other risks or uncertainties materialize or if our underlying assumptions prove to be incorrect, actual results may vary materially from what we projected. Consequently, actual events and results may vary significantly from those included in or contemplated or implied by our forward-looking statements. The forward-looking statements included in this Information Statement are made only as of the date of this Information Statement, and we undertake no obligation to publicly update or review any forward-looking statement made by us or on our behalf, whether as a result of new information, future developments, subsequent events or circumstances or otherwise.

THE SPIN-OFF

General

Tyco regularly reviews and evaluates the various businesses that it conducts and the fit that these businesses have within its overall business and growth strategies to help ensure that its resources are being put to use in a manner that is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders.

On September 19, 2011, Tyco announced its plan to spin-off its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and flow control business into separate independent, publicly-traded companies, to be accomplished by means of a pro rata dividend to Tyco's shareholders. Following the Distributions, Tyco will cease to own any equity interest in us (and in the flow control business), and we will operate as an independent, publicly traded company. This Information Statement does not include information relating to the spin-off of Tyco's flow control business or the Merger, which are described in further detail under a separate registration statement on Form 10 filed by Tyco Flow Control International Ltd., the holding company for the flow control business (and on the Information Statement included therein).

On September 28, 2012, the planned distribution date, each shareholder holding Tyco common shares that were outstanding as of the record date will be entitled to receive, in respect of each such Tyco common share, 0.5 shares of ADT common stock, as described below. Immediately following the Distribution, Tyco's shareholders will own all of the outstanding common stock of ADT. You will not be required to make any payment, surrender or exchange your common shares of Tyco or take any other action to receive your shares of ADT common stock.

The distribution of shares of our common stock as described in this Information Statement is subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions. For a more detailed description of these conditions, see "—Spin-Off Conditions and Termination."

Reasons for the Spin-Off

Tyco's board of directors has determined that the spin-off is in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it will provide the following key benefits: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management's efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities, (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency and (v) enhanced management incentive tools.

Greater Strategic Focus of Financial Resources and Management's Efforts. Our business historically exhibited different financial and operating characteristics than Tyco's other businesses. In particular, unlike Tyco's commercial fire and security business and its flow control business, our business is largely a subscriber-based business with very different capital requirements and operating characteristics from traditional manufacturing and contracting businesses. As a result, our financial results tend to be more consistent from period to period than the financial results of Tyco's commercial fire and security business and its flow control businesses. In addition, unlike the flow control and commercial fire and security businesses, we generate substantially all of our revenue from the United States and Canada. Owing to these and other factors, we and Tyco's other businesses employ different capital expenditure and acquisition strategies. Consequently, Tyco has determined that its current structure may not be optimized to design and implement the distinct strategies necessary to operate its businesses in a manner that maximizes the long-term value of each business. We and Tyco believe that our respective management resources would be more efficiently utilized if Tyco's management concentrated solely on the commercial fire and security business and our management concentrated solely on our business.

Both Tyco and we expect to more efficiently use management and financial resources as a result of having board and management teams solely focused on our respective businesses. We believe the spin-off will allow us to better align our management's attention, compensation and resources to pursue opportunities in the markets that we serve and to manage our cost structure more actively. Tyco similarly expects to benefit from its management's ability to focus on the operation of its businesses.

Direct and Differentiated Access to Capital Resources. After the spin-off, we will no longer need to compete with Tyco's other businesses for capital resources. As a subscriber-based business with operations in the United States and Canada, our businesses' financial and operating characteristics differ from most of Tyco's other businesses. ADT's subscriber-based business requires a significant amount of capital to grow each year. In order for ADT to fund these capital needs it requires a higher debt level than the other businesses. Both Tyco and we believe that direct and differentiated access to capital resources will allow us to better optimize the amounts and terms of the capital needed for our respective businesses, aligning financial and operational characteristics with investor and market expectations. Tyco's management also believes that as a stand-alone company we will attract investors who are interested in the unique characteristics of our business.

Enhanced Investor Choices by Offering Investment Opportunities in Separate Entities. We believe that after the spin-off, investors will be better positioned to evaluate our financial performance and strategy within the context of our markets and peer groups and that this will enhance the likelihood that we achieve an appropriate market valuation. Tyco's management and financial advisors believe that our investment characteristics may appeal to types of investors who differ from Tyco's current investors. We expect that, as a result of the spin-off, our management will be better positioned to implement goals and evaluate strategic opportunities in light of investor expectations within the context of the markets we serve.

Improved Ability to Use Stock as an Acquisition Currency. Although we are not currently evaluating any acquisitions involving the use of our stock, the spin-off will enable us to use our stock as currency to pursue certain financial and strategic objectives, including acquisitions. We expect that we will be able to more easily facilitate potential future transactions with similar businesses through the use of our stand-alone stock as consideration.

Improved Management Incentive Tools. We expect to use our equity to compensate current and future employees. It is more difficult for multi-business conglomerates such as Tyco to structure equity incentives that reward managers in a manner directly related to the performance of their respective business units. By granting stock linked to a specific business, we will be able to offer our managers equity compensation that is linked more directly to their work product than Tyco's current equity compensation.

In determining whether to effect the spin-off, the board of directors of Tyco also considered the costs and risks associated with the transaction, including:

- Potential costs and disruptions to the businesses as a result of the spin-off: Some of our current and prospective customers and suppliers may not believe that our financial stability on a stand-alone basis is sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing business with us. If our customers, prospective customers or suppliers are not satisfied with our financial stability we may not be successful in obtaining new business or retaining existing business.
- Risks of being unable to achieve the benefits expected from the spin-off: By separating from Tyco, we may become more susceptible to, among other things, market fluctuations and other adverse events; actual or anticipated fluctuations in our operating results due to factors related to our business; and competitive pressures from new or existing competitors.
- Increased significance of certain costs and contingent liabilities. Certain costs and contingent liabilities that were otherwise less material to Tyco as a whole will be more material for us as a stand-alone company.
- The decreased capital available for investment: We have historically relied upon Tyco for working capital requirements on a short-term basis and for other financial support functions. After the spin-off, we will not be able to rely on Tyco's earnings, assets or cash flows, and we will be responsible for servicing our own debt and maintaining sufficient working capital.

- The potential effect of the spin-off on the anticipated credit ratings of the separated companies and risks associated with refinancing Tyco's debt: Given our smaller size relative to Tyco, after the spin-off we may incur higher debt servicing costs on our new indebtedness than we would have incurred as a subsidiary of Tyco and we may not have access to less expensive sources of capital from short-term debt markets.
- The reaction of Tyco's shareholders to the spin-off: The market price of our common stock may fluctuate widely, depending on many factors, many of which will be beyond our control, including the sale of shares of our common stock by Tyco shareholders after the Distribution because our business profile and market capitalization may not fit their investment objectives. In particular, Tyco is a member of the S&P 500 Index, while we initially will not be and may not be added in the future. Accordingly, certain Tyco shareholders may elect or be required to sell our shares following the spin-off due to investment guidelines or other reasons, leading to turnover in our investor base and stock price volatility.
- The potential loss of purchasing power and higher cost structure: As a current part of Tyco, we take advantage of Tyco's size and purchasing power in procuring certain goods, services and other resources, such as health care benefits, computing and communications equipment and intellectual property licenses. After the spin-off, as a separate, independent entity, we may be unable to obtain these goods, services and technologies at prices or on terms as favorable to us as those we obtained prior to the Distribution. Our costs for functions previously performed by or paid for by Tyco, such as accounting, tax, legal, human resources and other general and administrative functions, may be higher than the amounts reflected in our financial statements, which could cause our profitability to decrease.
- The risk that the plan of separation might not be completed and the one-time and ongoing costs of the spin-off may be greater than expected: There are risks and uncertainties relating to the execution of the spin-off, including the timing and certainty of the completion of the internal reorganization prior to the Distribution. In addition, we and Tyco will incur costs in connection with the transition to being a stand-alone public company that relate primarily to accounting, tax, legal and other professional costs; financing costs in connection with refinancing Tyco's outstanding indebtedness and obtaining our financing as a standalone company; compensation, such as modifications to certain incentive awards upon completion of the spin-off; recruiting and relocation costs associated with hiring our senior management personnel; and costs to separate information systems. These costs, whether incurred before or after the spin-off, may be greater than anticipated and could cause our profitability to decrease.

In view of the wide variety of factors considered in connection with the evaluation of the spin-off and the complexity of these matters, Tyco's board of directors did not find it useful to, and did not attempt to, quantify, rank or otherwise assign relative weights to the factors considered.

Tyco's board of directors will receive prior to the special general meeting of shareholders to approve the Distribution an opinion from Duff & Phelps to the effect that Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and ADT will each be solvent and adequately capitalized immediately after the spin-off.

Interests of ADT Directors and Officers in the Spin-off

ADT directors and officers receive compensation for their services in such capacities. See "Compensation of Directors" and "Compensation of Executive Officers." In addition, certain equity awards with respect to Tyco common shares have been granted to various employees in Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada who will become officers and employees of ADT following the spin-off. In connection with the spin-off, these equity awards will be adjusted to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under such awards. See “Compensation of Executive Officers—Treatment of Outstanding Options, Restricted Stock Units, Performance Share Units and Deferred Stock Units.” ADT’s directors and officers have no other interests in the spin-off.

Manner of Effecting the Spin-Off

Each Tyco common share outstanding as of September 17, 2012, the record date for the Distribution, will entitle its holder to 0.5 shares of ADT common stock. Tyco will not distribute any fractional shares to its shareholders. Instead, a distribution agent will aggregate fractional shares into whole shares, sell the whole shares in the open market at prevailing market prices, net of brokerage fees and other costs, and distribute the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales pro rata, based on the fractional share such holder would otherwise be entitled to receive, to each holder who otherwise would have been entitled to receive a fractional share in the Distribution.

The aggregate net cash proceeds of these sales generally will be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes but will not be subject to Swiss withholding tax. See “The Spin-Off—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” and “The Spin-Off—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off” for an explanation of the tax consequences of the Distribution. If you physically hold certificates for Tyco common shares and are the registered holder, you will receive a check from the distribution agent in an amount equal to your pro rata share of the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales. We estimate that it will take approximately days from the distribution date for the distribution agent to complete the distributions of the aggregate net cash proceeds. If you hold your Tyco common shares through a bank or brokerage firm, your bank or brokerage firm will receive, on your behalf, your pro rata share of the aggregate net cash proceeds of the sales and will electronically credit your account for your share of such proceeds. Shareholders should consult their bank or broker for further detail.

Tyco expects to distribute shares of our common stock on September 28, 2012, the planned distribution date. Wells Fargo Shareowner Services will serve as transfer agent and registrar for our common stock.

If you own Tyco common shares which were outstanding as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date, the shares of ADT common stock that you are entitled to receive in the Distribution will be issued electronically, as of the distribution date, to you or to your bank or brokerage firm on your behalf by way of direct registration in book-entry form. Registration in book-entry form refers to a method of recording share ownership when no physical share certificates are issued to shareholders, as is the case in this distribution. If you sell common shares of Tyco in the “regular-way” market up to and including the distribution date, you will be selling your right to receive shares of our common stock in the Distribution.

Commencing on or shortly after the distribution date, if you hold physical share certificates that represent your common shares of Tyco and you are the registered holder of the Tyco shares represented by those certificates, the distribution agent will mail to you an account statement that indicates the number of our common shares that have been registered in book-entry form in your name.

Most Tyco shareholders hold their common shares of Tyco through a bank or brokerage firm. In such cases, the bank or brokerage firm would be said to hold the shares in “street name” and ownership would be recorded on the bank or brokerage firm’s books. If you hold your Tyco common shares through a bank or brokerage firm, your bank or brokerage firm will credit your account for the shares of ADT common stock that you are entitled to receive in the Distribution. If you have any questions concerning the mechanics of having shares held in “street name,” we encourage you to contact your bank or brokerage firm.

Results of the Spin-Off

After our spin-off from Tyco, we will be an independent, publicly-traded company. Immediately following the Distribution, we expect to have approximately 25,350 shareholders of record (which excludes beneficial owners whose shares are held by bank or brokerage firms in “street name”), based on the number of registered holders of Tyco common shares on June 30, 2012, and approximately 230 million shares of outstanding common stock. The actual number of shares to be distributed will be determined on the record date on the basis of all outstanding shares entitled to receive dividends. The Distribution will not affect the number of outstanding common shares of Tyco or any rights of Tyco’s shareholders.

We have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement. Shortly before the Distribution, we will enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and other agreements with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control to effect the Distribution and provide a framework for our relationships with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control after the Distribution. These agreements will govern the relationships among Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and us subsequent to the completion of the spin-off and provide for the allocation between Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and us of Tyco’s assets, liabilities and obligations attributable to periods prior to our spin-off from Tyco. For a more detailed description of these agreements, see “Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco.”

Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off

The following is a summary of the material U.S. federal income tax consequences to Tyco and to the holders of Tyco common shares in connection with the spin-off. This summary is based on the Code, the Treasury Regulations promulgated thereunder and judicial and administrative interpretations thereof, in each case as in effect and available as of the date of this Information Statement and all of which are subject to change at any time, possibly with retroactive effect. Any such change could affect the tax consequences described below.

This summary is limited to holders of Tyco common shares that are U.S. Holders, as defined immediately below. A U.S. Holder is a beneficial owner of Tyco common shares that is, for U.S. federal income tax purposes:

- an individual who is a citizen or a resident of the United States;
- a corporation, or other entity taxable as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes, created or organized under the laws of the United States or any state thereof or the District of Columbia;
- an estate, the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income taxation regardless of its source; or
- a trust, if (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary jurisdiction over its administration and one or more U.S. persons have the authority to control all of its substantial decisions or (ii) in the case of a trust that was treated as a U.S. trust under the law in effect before 1997, a valid election is in place under applicable Treasury Regulations.

This summary also does not discuss all tax considerations that may be relevant to shareholders in light of their particular circumstances, nor does it address the consequences to shareholders subject to special treatment under the U.S. federal income tax laws, such as:

- dealers or traders in securities or currencies;
- tax-exempt entities;
- banks, financial institutions or insurance companies;
- persons who acquired Tyco common shares pursuant to the exercise of employee stock options or otherwise as compensation;
- shareholders who own, or are deemed to own, at least 10% or more, by voting power or value, of Tyco equity;

- holders owning Tyco common shares as part of a position in a straddle or as part of a hedging, conversion or other risk reduction transaction for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- certain former citizens or long-term residents of the United States;
- holders who are subject to the alternative minimum tax; or
- persons that own Tyco common shares through partnerships or other pass-through entities.

This summary does not address the U.S. federal income tax consequences to Tyco shareholders who do not hold Tyco common shares as a capital asset. Moreover, this summary does not address any state, local or non-U.S. tax consequences or any estate, gift or other non-income tax consequences.

If a partnership (or any other entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes) holds Tyco common shares, the tax treatment of a partner in that partnership will generally depend on the status of the partner and the activities of the partnership. Such a partner or partnership should consult its own tax advisor as to the tax consequences of the Distribution.

YOU SHOULD CONSULT YOUR OWN TAX ADVISOR WITH RESPECT TO THE U.S. FEDERAL, STATE AND LOCAL AND NON-U.S. TAX CONSEQUENCES OF THE DISTRIBUTION.

Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distribution, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares of our common stock, will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code.

In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive prior to the special meeting approving the Distribution an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The receipt by Tyco of the private letter ruling from the IRS (including that such ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution) and the opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP are conditions to effecting the spin-off.

Assuming the Distribution qualifies under Section 355 of the Code, for U.S. federal income tax purposes:

- no gain or loss will be recognized by Tyco as a result of the Distribution;
- no gain or loss will be recognized by, or be includible in the income of, a holder of Tyco common shares, solely as a result of the receipt of our common stock in the Distribution;
- the aggregate tax basis of the Tyco common shares, the Tyco Flow Control common shares and shares of our common stock in the hands of Tyco's shareholders immediately after the Distributions will be the same as the aggregate tax basis of the Tyco common shares held by the holder immediately before the Distributions, allocated among the Tyco common shares, the Tyco Flow Control common shares and shares of our common stock, including any fractional share interest for which cash is received, in proportion to their relative fair market values on the date of the Distributions;
- the holding period of shares of our common stock received by Tyco's shareholders, including any fractional share interest for which cash is received, will include the holding period of their Tyco common shares, provided that such Tyco common shares are held as a capital asset on the date of the Distribution; and
- a Tyco shareholder who receives cash in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock in the Distribution will be treated as having sold such fractional share for cash and generally will recognize capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount of cash received and such shareholder's adjusted tax basis in the fractional share. That gain or loss will be a long-term capital gain or loss if the shareholder's holding period for its Tyco common shares exceeds one year.

Although the private letter ruling generally is binding on the IRS, it is based on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from us, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco that certain conditions that are necessary to obtain tax-free treatment under the Code have been satisfied. Furthermore, the IRS will not rule on whether a distribution satisfies certain requirements necessary to obtain tax-free treatment under the Code. Rather, the private letter ruling is based on representations by Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and us that these conditions have been or will be satisfied, and any inaccuracy in such representations could invalidate the ruling. The opinion that Tyco expects to receive from McDermott Will & Emery LLP will address all of the requirements necessary for the Distribution to qualify under Section 355 of the Code, including those on which the IRS will not rule, and will be based on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, provided by us, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco. If any of these facts, representations, assumptions or undertakings is not correct or has been violated, the private letter ruling could be revoked retroactively or modified by the IRS, and the ability to rely on the opinion of counsel could be jeopardized. We are not aware of any facts or circumstances, however, that would cause these facts, representations or assumptions to be untrue or incomplete, or that would cause any of these undertakings to fail to be complied with, in any material respect.

If, notwithstanding the conclusions included in the private letter ruling and the opinion, it is ultimately determined that the Distribution does not qualify as tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes, then Tyco would recognize gain in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of our common stock distributed to Tyco shareholders on the date of the Distribution over Tyco's tax basis in such shares, but such gain, if recognized, generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax.

In addition, if the Distribution were not to qualify as tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes, each Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax and who receives shares of our common stock in the Distribution could be treated as receiving a taxable distribution in an amount equal to the fair market value of such shares. You could be taxed on the full value of the shares of our common stock that you receive, which generally would be treated first as a taxable dividend to the extent of Tyco's earnings and profits, then as a non-taxable return of capital to the extent of each shareholder's tax basis in his, her or its Tyco common shares, and thereafter as capital gain with respect to any remaining value.

Even if the Distribution otherwise qualifies for tax-free treatment under Section 355 of the Code, it may result in corporate-level gain to Tyco and certain of its affiliates under Section 355(e) of the Code if 50% or more, by vote or value, of our common stock or Tyco's common shares are acquired or issued as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distribution. For this purpose, any acquisitions or issuances of Tyco's common shares within two years before the Distribution and any acquisitions or issuances of our common stock or Tyco's common shares within two years after the Distribution generally are presumed to be part of such a plan, although we or Tyco may be able to rebut that presumption. We are not aware of any acquisitions or issuances of Tyco's common shares within the two years before the date of the Distribution (up through the date of this Form 10) that would be considered to occur as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distribution. If an acquisition or issuance of our shares or Tyco's shares triggers the application of Section 355(e) of the Code, Tyco would recognize taxable gain as described above, but such gain generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. However, certain of our subsidiaries or affiliates or subsidiaries or affiliates of Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities as a result of the application of Section 355(e) of the Code.

If, notwithstanding the conclusions included in the private letter ruling, it is ultimately determined that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution do not qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, we or Tyco could incur significant tax liabilities.

Tyco's shareholders that have acquired different blocks of Tyco common shares at different times or at different prices should consult their tax advisors regarding the allocation of their aggregate adjusted basis among, and their holding period of, shares of our common stock distributed with respect to such blocks of Tyco common shares.

We do not believe that our shares will constitute “United States real property interests” for purposes of the Foreign Investment in Real Property Act (“FIRPTA”) provisions of the Code as of the date of the Distribution. Because Tyco is a “foreign person” for purposes of FIRPTA, however, Tyco must provide certain certifications to its shareholders who receive our stock in the Distribution to avoid the imposition of a withholding obligation on such shareholders. Tyco will provide such certifications in the form and manner prescribed by the IRS.

Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Spin-Off

Scope of Discussion

This discussion does not generally address any aspects of Swiss taxation other than federal, cantonal and communal income taxation, federal withholding taxation and federal stamp duty. This discussion is not a complete analysis or listing of all of the possible tax consequences of the Distribution and does not address all tax considerations that may be relevant to you. Special rules that are not discussed in the general descriptions below may also apply to you.

This discussion is based on the laws of the Confederation of Switzerland, including the Federal Income Tax Act of 1990, the Federal Harmonization of Cantonal and Communal Income Tax Act of 1990, The Federal Withholding Tax Act of 1965 and the Federal Stamp Duty Act of 1973, as amended, which we refer to as the “Swiss tax law,” existing and proposed regulations promulgated thereunder, published judicial decisions and administrative pronouncements, each as in effect on the date of this Information Statement or with a known future effective date. These laws may change, possibly with retroactive effect.

For purposes of this discussion, a “Swiss holder” is any beneficial owner of shares that for Swiss federal income tax purposes is:

- an individual resident of Switzerland or otherwise subject to Swiss taxation under article 3, 4 or 5 of the Federal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended, or article 3 or 4 of the Federal Harmonization of Cantonal and Communal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended;
- a corporation or other entity taxable as a corporation organized under the laws of the Switzerland under article 50 or 51 of the Federal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended, or article 20 or 21 of the Federal Harmonization of Cantonal and Communal Income Tax Act of 1990, as amended; or
- an estate or trust, the income of which is subject to Swiss income taxation regardless of its source.

A “non-Swiss holder” of shares is a holder that is not a Swiss holder. For purposes of this summary, “holder” or “shareholder” means either a Swiss holder or a non-Swiss holder or both, as the context may require.

You are advised to consult your own tax advisers in light of your particular circumstances as to the Swiss tax laws, regulations and regulatory practices that could be relevant for you in connection with the Distribution.

Swiss Withholding Tax—Distribution to Shareholders

Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to our and Tyco’s shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlage) accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax (Kapitaleinlageprinzip), if certain conditions are met. We have obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration confirming that Tyco’s contributed surplus in the amount of CHF 38,380,489,155 as of September 24, 2010 (reduced to CHF 37,037,568,207 as of February 23, 2012) represents such qualifying contributed surplus accumulated after January 1, 1997. We have obtained a second ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Authorities confirming that the Distribution qualifies as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distribution up to the amount of such qualified contributed surplus.

Swiss Federal, Cantonal and Communal Individual Income Tax and Corporate Income Tax

Non-Swiss Holders

Non-Swiss holders will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the Distribution.

Swiss Private Holders and Swiss Commercial Holders

Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as private assets (“Swiss Private Shareholders”) are not required to include the Distribution in their personal income tax return. Based on Swiss tax law, the Distribution corresponds to the repayment of the contributed surplus and should not be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal or communal individual income tax. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of shares of ADT common stock are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax and, conversely, capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss Private Shareholders. Special rules may apply to Swiss resident individuals who hold Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as private assets and transfer—alone or together with other shareholders—5% or more into a personal (partially) owned corporation or if a shareholder sells alone or together with other shareholders more than 20% of the shares out of his private assets to a buyer who owns the shares as business assets.

Corporate and individual shareholders who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland (or, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes) (“Swiss Commercial Shareholders”) will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the Distribution, including any cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock, to the extent that the participation income cannot be reduced by a respective depreciation on the investment in Tyco and/or where the participation relief (Beteiligungszug) is not applicable. In addition, a gain or loss realized on the sale or other disposition of rights must be recognized in such shareholder’s income statement for the respective taxation period and such shareholders will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal individual or corporate income tax, as the case may be, on any net taxable earnings for such taxation period, unless a participation exemption is applicable. The same taxation treatment also applies to Swiss-resident private individuals who, for income tax purposes, are classified as “professional securities dealers” for reasons of, inter alia, frequent dealing or leveraged investments in shares and other securities. Only Swiss Commercial Shareholders who are corporate taxpayers may be eligible for a participation relief (Beteiligungszug) in respect of the Distribution if the Tyco shares held by them as part of a Swiss business have an aggregate market value of at least CHF 1 million. In addition, Swiss Commercial Shareholders who are corporate taxpayers may be eligible for a participation relief (Beteiligungszug) in respect of a potential gain realized on the sale or other disposition of the shares of ADT common stock if the selling price of the shares of ADT common stock held by them as part of a Swiss business exceeds their investment cost, the shares were held for at least one year and account for at least 10% of the total shares in ADT.

Swiss Cantonal and Communal Private Wealth Tax and Capital Tax

Non-Swiss holders are not subject to Swiss cantonal and communal private wealth tax or capital tax.

Swiss Private Shareholders and Swiss Commercial Shareholders who are individuals are required to report their Tyco shares and shares of ADT common stock as part of private wealth or their Swiss business assets, as the case may be, and will be subject to Swiss cantonal and communal private wealth tax on any net taxable wealth (including Tyco shares and shares of ADT common stock).

Swiss Commercial Shareholders are subject to Swiss cantonal and communal capital tax on taxable capital to the extent the aggregate taxable capital is allocable to Switzerland.

Listing and Trading of Our Common Stock

As of the date of this Information Statement, we are a wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco. Accordingly, there is currently no public market for our common stock, although a “when-issued” market in our common stock may develop prior to the Distribution. See “The Spin-Off—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date” below for an explanation of a “when-issued” market. We intend to list our shares of common stock on the NYSE under the symbol “ADT.” Following the spin-off, Tyco common shares will continue to trade on the NYSE under the symbol “TYC.”

Neither we nor Tyco can assure you as to the trading price of Tyco common shares or our common stock after the spin-off, or as to whether the combined trading prices of our common stock and Tyco common shares after the spin-off will be less than, equal to or greater than the trading prices of Tyco common shares prior to the spin-off. The trading price of our common stock may fluctuate significantly following the spin-off. See “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to Our Common Stock and the Securities Market” beginning on page 29 of this Information Statement for more detail.

The shares of ADT common stock distributed to Tyco shareholders will be freely transferable, except for shares received by individuals who are our affiliates. Individuals who may be considered our affiliates after the spin-off include individuals who control, are controlled by or are under common control with us, as those terms generally are interpreted for U.S. federal securities law purposes. These individuals may include some or all of our directors and executive officers. Individuals who are our affiliates will be permitted to sell their shares of ADT common stock only pursuant to an effective registration statement under the U.S. Securities Act of 1933, as amended (which we refer to in this Information Statement as the Securities Act), or an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act, such as the exemptions afforded by Section 4(1) of the Securities Act or Rule 144 thereunder.

Trading Prior to the Distribution Date

It is anticipated that shortly before the record date and continuing up to and including the distribution date, there will be a “when-issued” market in our common stock. When-issued trading refers to a sale or purchase made conditionally because the security has been authorized but not yet issued. The when-issued trading market will be a market for ADT common stock that will be distributed to Tyco shareholders on the distribution date. If you own Tyco common shares as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date, you will be entitled to shares of ADT common stock distributed pursuant to the spin-off. You may trade this entitlement to shares of ADT common stock, without the Tyco common shares you own, on the when-issued market. On the first trading day following the distribution date, we expect when-issued trading with respect to our common stock will end and regular-way trading will begin.

Following the distribution date, we expect ADT common stock to be listed on the NYSE under the trading symbol “ADT.” We will announce our when-issued trading symbol when and if it becomes available.

It is also anticipated that shortly before the record date and continuing up to and including the distribution date, there will be two markets in Tyco common shares: a “regular-way” market and an “ex-distribution” market. Because we expect the Distribution to occur simultaneously Tyco common shares that trade on the regular way market will trade with an entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distributions. Shares that trade on the ex-distribution market will trade without an entitlement to shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distributions. Therefore, if you sell Tyco common shares in the regular-way market up to and including the distribution date, you will be selling your right to receive shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distributions. However, if you own Tyco common shares as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date and sell those shares on the ex-distribution market up to and including the distribution date, you will still receive the shares of ADT common stock and Tyco Flow Control common shares that you would otherwise be entitled to receive pursuant to your ownership of Tyco common shares because you owned these common shares as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date.

Spin-Off Conditions and Termination

Under Swiss law, Tyco is required to obtain the approval of shareholders to effect the Distribution. The resolution to be proposed to the special general meeting of shareholders called to approve the Distribution will require that the following conditions are met or waived prior to implementation of the Distribution:

- the SEC shall have declared effective our Registration Statement on Form 10, of which this Information Statement is a part, under the Exchange Act, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the Registration Statement shall be in effect;
- our common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS, which ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution, to the effect that (i) the Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the distribution of our common stock to Tyco shareholders to the effect that the Distribution, including for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax, shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the Distribution; and
- based on the closing price of the shares of ADT common stock trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the Distribution, the aggregate implied market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion.

In addition, we expect that prior to the special general meeting approving the Distribution the following conditions are either met or waived:

- the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and each of the Ancillary Agreements shall have been executed by each party thereto, and each of the internal transactions contemplated by such agreements to have been completed prior to the Distribution shall have been completed;
- Tyco shall have received the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- Tyco shall have received the opinions of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- Tyco shall have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the Distribution and the ordinary cash dividend to Tyco shareholders proposed in the Tyco Proxy Statement comply with Swiss law.

In the event that shareholder approval of the Distribution is received and the conditions to the spin-off included in the shareholders resolution are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013 Tyco will be obligated to effect the Distribution. In the event these conditions to the spin-off are not met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013 the Distribution will not take place.

Reason for Furnishing this Information Statement

This Information Statement is being furnished solely to provide information to Tyco shareholders who will receive shares of ADT common stock in the Distribution. It is not to be construed as an inducement or encouragement to buy or sell any of our securities or any securities of Tyco, nor is it to be construed as a solicitation of proxies in respect of the proposed Distribution or any other matter. A separate Tyco Proxy Statement is being distributed to Tyco shareholders in connection with the special general meeting scheduled for September 14, 2012. We believe that the information contained in this Information Statement is accurate as of the date set forth on the cover. Changes to the information contained in this Information Statement may occur after that date, and neither we nor Tyco undertakes any obligation to update the information except in the normal course of our respective public disclosure obligations.

DIVIDEND POLICY

We intend to pay quarterly dividends in an amount that approximates our proportionate share of the $1.00 per share annual dividend that Tyco currently pays to its shareholders, or approximately $0.50 per ADT share annually (based on a one for two distribution ratio).

Whether our board of directors exercises its discretion to approve any dividends in the future will depend on many factors, including our financial condition, capital requirements of our business, covenants associated with debt obligations, legal requirements, regulatory constraints, industry practice and other factors that our board of directors deems relevant. See “Description of Our Capital Stock—Common Stock.” There can be no assurance that we will pay a dividend in the future or continue to pay any dividend if we do commence the payment of dividends.

CAPITALIZATION

The following table presents our capitalization as of March 30, 2012 on an unaudited historical basis and on an unaudited pro forma basis giving effect to the Distribution and the transactions related to the Distribution as if they occurred on March 30, 2012. ## UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED COMBINED FINANCIAL DATA

The following unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements are derived from the historical combined financial statements of the ADT North American Residential Security Business of Tyco International Ltd., which are included elsewhere in this Information Statement, and are prepared according to GAAP. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined statements of operations for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2011 and for the six months ended March 30, 2012 give effect to the spin-off and related transactions as if they had occurred on September 25, 2010, the first day of fiscal year 2011. The unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet as of March 30, 2012 gives effect to the spin-off and related transactions as if they had occurred on March 30, 2012. These unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements include adjustments to reflect the following:

- the contribution to us of all of the assets and liabilities, including the entities holding the assets and liabilities, of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- the distribution of shares of our common stock by Tyco to its shareholders and the elimination of historical parent company investment;
- the post-spin-off capital structure, as described in the notes to the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements; and
- the execution of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement.

The unaudited pro forma condensed combined balance sheet includes an adjustment to increase the amount of deferred tax assets that are reflected in ADT's historical combined balance sheet. These deferred tax assets will be transferred to ADT from Tyco upon separation. In addition to these deferred tax assets, ADT expects to have the ability to accelerate certain tax deductions that would allow it to minimize its cash tax rate for a period of time beyond the full utilization of the deferred tax assets. No adjustments have been made to the pro forma financial statements to reflect these amounts.

In addition, no adjustments have been included in pro forma amounts for any anticipated cost savings or other efficiencies as a result of the spin-off, or for any potential inefficiencies or increased costs that may result from the separation. However, we anticipate that, as a result of the separation of our business from the commercial security business of Tyco, we will incur additional annual operating costs in the range of $30 million to $50 million.

The assumptions underlying the pro forma adjustments are described in the accompanying notes, which should be read in conjunction with the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial data. The assumptions used and pro forma adjustments derived from such assumptions are based on currently available information, and we believe such assumptions are reasonable under the circumstances. However, these pro forma adjustments are subject to change as we and Tyco finalize the terms of the spin-off and our agreements related to the spin-off. No pro forma adjustments have been made in respect of any of the agreements related to the spin-off other than the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements should be read in conjunction with the historical combined financial statements for Tyco's residential and small business security business and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations." The unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial data has been presented for informational purposes only. The pro forma data is not necessarily indicative of our results of operations or financial condition had the spin-off and the related transactions been completed on the dates assumed. Also, they may not reflect the results of operations or financial condition which would have resulted had we been operating as an independent, publicly-traded company during such periods. In addition, they are not necessarily indicative of our future results of operations or financial condition.

- (a) Adjusted to eliminate the interest allocated to the ADT North American Residential Security Business of Tyco International for carve-out purposes of $42 million for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and $87 million for the year ended September 30, 2011, and to include interest expense of $45 million for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and $89 million for the year ended September 30, 2011 on ADT's recent issuance of $2.5 billion of fixed rate debt described in (e) below.

	For the Six Months Ended March 30, 2012	Fiscal Year Ended September 30, 2011
Elimination of historical interest expense on debt allocated for carve out purposes described in (e) below . . . . .	$(42)	$(87)
Interest expense associated with new debt raised described in (e) below . . . . .	45	89
Amortization of deferred financing costs and other fees . . . . .	2	4
Total pro forma adjustment to interest expense, net . . . . .	$ 5	$ 6

- (b) For purposes of these unaudited pro forma financial statements, pro forma statement of operation adjustments were tax effected using the applicable statutory tax rate in the jurisdiction the adjustment related to. The effective tax rate of ADT could be significantly different (either higher or lower) depending on post-spin activities.

- (c) Pro forma earnings per share from continuing operations and pro forma weighted-average shares outstanding reflect the hypothetical number of common shares we would have had outstanding if the Distribution had been completed as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, respectively, based on an expected distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each common share of Tyco. Pro forma diluted weighted-average shares outstanding reflect potential dilution from the issuance of ADT common shares from Tyco equity plans giving effect to the distribution ratio and conversion of certain Tyco equity awards into ADT equity awards. While the actual impact on a go-forward basis will depend on various factors, including employees who may change employment from one company to another, we believe the estimate provided yields a reasonable approximation of the dilutive impact of Tyco equity plans. We expect that the actual amounts will differ from these estimates.

- (d) To adjust cash and cash equivalents as follows:

Settlement of receivables due to/from Tyco and Affiliates . . .	$ (62)
Net proceeds raised from debt issuance . . . . .	2,468
Repayment of long-term portion of allocated debt and cash transactions with Tyco in connection with the separation . .	(2,198)
Total pro forma adjustment to cash and cash equivalents . . . .	$ 208

- (e) Reflects a $1.5 billion elimination of long-term debt that was allocated to ADT for carve out purposes. Also reflects ADT's recent issuance of $2.5 billion of debt. The aggregate principal amount of $2.5 billion is comprised of $750 million of 2.25% notes that will mature on July 15, 2017, $1.0 billion of 3.50% notes that will mature on July 15, 2022, and $750 million of 4.875% notes that will mature on July 15, 2042.

- (f) Reflects 231,106,224 common shares at a par value of $0.01 per share. The number of common shares is based on the number of Tyco common shares outstanding on March 30, 2012 and an expected distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each common share of Tyco.

(g) Reflects a $37 million increase to an income tax sharing receivable, as defined by the Tax Sharing Agreement that will be entered into with Tyco. The actual amounts that ADT may be entitled to receive under this agreement could vary depending upon the outcome of the unresolved tax matters, which may not be resolved for several years.

(h) Other assets reflects a $372 million increase to deferred tax assets for U.S. federal and state net operating loss and tax credit carryforwards that will be transferred to ADT from Tyco upon separation.

Other liabilities reflects a $56 million increase to non-current income taxes payable for certain U.S. income tax liabilities related to uncertain tax positions that will be transferred to ADT from Tyco upon separation and a $13 million increase to reflect the fair value of the ADT contractual obligation to Tyco and Tyco Flow Control under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement which will be entered into at the time of the spin-off.

(i) Reflects a $22 million increase to other assets primarily related to deferred financing costs associated with ADT's recent debt issuance of $2.5 billion.

(j) Reflects a $62 million settlement of net payables due to Tyco and its affiliates as shown below:

Assets:
Prepaid expenses and other current assets . . . . .	$ 6
Liabilities:
Accrued and other current liabilities . . . . .	$ (2)
Other liabilities . . . . .	(65)
Accounts payable . . . . .	(1)
Settlement of net payables due to Tyco and Affiliates . . . . .	$(62)

(k) Represents a reduction to parent company investment to reflect the following:

- the increase in debt of $1.0 billion related to our recent issuance of $2.5 billion of debt described in (e) above; and
- the increase to non-current income taxes payable of $56 million and a $13 million increase to reflect the fair value of ADT's contractual obligation to Tyco and Tyco Flow Control described in (h) above.

This reduction is partially offset by increases to equity to reflect the following:

- the increase in cash and cash equivalents of $208 million due to our anticipated capital structure described in (d) above;
- the increase of an income tax sharing receivable of $37 million described in (g) above;
- the increase of $372 million to deferred tax assets described in (h) above; and
- the increase of $22 million to other assets for deferred financing costs described in (i) above.

(l) Represents Tyco's net investment in ADT which was recorded as parent company investment in our historical condensed combined financial statements.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

Introduction

The following information should be read in conjunction with the "Selected Historical Combined Financial Data" and our combined financial statements and related notes included elsewhere in this Information Statement. The following discussion and analysis contains forward-looking statements that involve risks, uncertainties and assumptions. Actual results may differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of many factors, including but not limited to those under the headings "Risk Factors" and "Cautionary Statement Concerning Forward-Looking Statements."

On September 19, 2011, Tyco announced its plan to spin-off its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada into a separate independent, publicly-traded company, to be accomplished by means of a pro rata dividend to Tyco's shareholders. Following the spin-off, Tyco shareholders will own all of the outstanding shares of ADT, and we will operate as an independent, publicly-traded company.

Prior to the spin-off, Tyco will complete the Internal Transactions as described in "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco." Additionally, we and Tyco expect to enter into a series of agreements, including the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, Transition Services Agreements, 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and certain other commercial arrangements which are also described in "Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco." Completion of the Distribution is subject to certain conditions, as described in "The Spin-Off—Spin-off Conditions and Termination."

In connection with the transition to being a stand-alone public company, we will incur certain costs. These costs relate primarily to accounting, tax, legal and other professional costs; financing costs in connection with obtaining our financing as a standalone company; compensation, such as modifications to certain incentive awards upon completion of the spin-off; recruiting and relocation costs associated with hiring our senior management personnel; and costs to separate information systems. In addition, we will incur certain ongoing costs including corporate overhead, debt and related interest expense as a stand-alone public company, which may differ from allocated amounts included in our combined financial statements.

The combined financial statements have been prepared to include all of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and reflect a combination of the assets and liabilities that have been used in managing and operating this business. All revenue and most assets and liabilities, including subscriber-related assets and liabilities, and most expenses reflected in the combined financial statements are directly associated with ADT's business. Due to existing functions and facilities shared among Tyco and us, certain working capital, property and equipment and operating expense balances have been allocated to ADT. We used certain underlying activity drivers as a basis of allocation, including revenue, materials usage, head-count utilization and other factors. Management believes that such allocations are reasonable; however, they may not be indicative of the financial position, results of operations and cash flows that would have been achieved had we operated as an independent stand-alone entity for the periods presented. We anticipate that, as a result of the separation of our business from the commercial security business of Tyco, we will incur additional annual operating costs in the range of $30 million to $50 million.

In addition, certain general corporate overhead, debt and related interest expense have been allocated by Tyco to us. Historically, Tyco has provided services to us for certain corporate functions, however these allocations may not be indicative of the costs that will be incurred by us in the future as an independent publicly-traded company. See Note 7 ("Related Party Transactions") to our audited combined financial statements for further information. Also, in connection with the separation, we have issued third-party debt as described in the "Liquidity" discussion below. The amount of this issuance differs from the amounts allocated by Tyco which are further described in Note 6 ("Debt") to our audited combined financial statements.

We have a 52- or 53-week fiscal year that ends on the last Friday in September. Fiscal years 2010 and 2009 were 52-week years, while fiscal year 2011 was a 53-week year. Fiscal year 2012 will be a 52-week year.

Business Overview

ADT is a leading provider of electronic security, interactive home and business automation and related monitoring services. We currently serve more than six million customers, making us the largest company of our kind in both the United States and Canada. With a 138-year history, the ADT® brand is one of the most trusted and well-known brands in the security industry today. Our broad and pioneering set of products and services, including our ADT Pulse interactive home and business solutions, and our home health services, meet a range of customer needs for modern lifestyles. Our partner network is the broadest in the industry, and includes dealers, affinity organizations like USAA and AARP and technology providers. ADT delivers an integrated customer experience by maintaining the industry's largest sales, installation and service field force and most robust monitoring network, all backed by the support of more than 16,000 employees and approximately 200 field offices.

For the year ended September 30, 2011, our revenue was $3.1 billion and our operating income was $693 million. The majority of the monitoring services and a large portion of the maintenance services we provide to our customers are governed by multi-year contracts with automatic renewal provisions. This provides us with significant recurring revenue, which for the year ended September 30, 2011 was approximately 89% of our revenue. We believe that the recurring nature of the majority of our revenue enables us to continuously invest in growing our business. This includes investments in technologies to further enhance the attractiveness of our solutions to current and potential customers, to continue development and training to enable our direct sales, installation, customer service and field service personnel to more effectively deliver exceptional service to our customers, to expand our dealer and partner network and to make continued enhancements to operations efficiency.

Factors Affecting Operating Results

Our subscriber-based business requires significant upfront costs to generate new customers, which in turn provide predictable recurring revenue generated from monthly monitoring fees. In any period, our business results will be impacted by the following factors: customer additions, costs associated with adding new customers, average revenue per customer, costs related to providing services to customers and customer tenure. We manage our business to optimize these factors. We focus on investing wisely in each of our customer acquisition channels to grow our account base in a cost effective manner and generate positive future cash flows and attractive margins. We also focus on "Creating Customers for Life" by maintaining consistently high levels of customer satisfaction, which increases customer tenure and improves profitability.

Our ability to add new accounts depends on the overall demand for our solutions, which is driven by a number of external factors. Growth in our customer base can be influenced by the overall state of the housing market in the geographies we serve. A significant factor is the rate of household moves, whether involving newly constructed housing stock or existing homes. Household moves may drive a majority of new customer volume in any given period, but as household moves increase, our attrition rate also tends to increase. The overall performance of the economies in geographies in which we operate may also affect our ability to attract new customers and grow our business. Although we have not observed a noticeable impact to our financial results of operations during the most recent economic downturn, that does not preclude any future downturn from having a negative effect on our performance. Another external factor that affects customer additions is the perceived level of crime in the communities we serve.

Our marketing efforts are designed to direct potential customers into one of our customer acquisition channels, where we work with the potential customers to identify the most appropriate set of solutions to meet their needs. We closely monitor and manage our costs associated with on-boarding new customers. We have found that the costs do not vary significantly between direct and indirect channels. We utilize a structured customer acquisition process that is designed to produce customers with attractive characteristics, including strong credit scores and high usage of automated payment methods, which we believe results in long average customer tenure.

The monthly fees that we generate from any individual customer depend primarily on the customer's level of service. We offer a wide range of services at various price points, from basic burglar alarm monitoring to our full suite of ADT Pulse interactive services. Our ability to increase the average revenue per customer per month depends on a number of factors, including our ability to effectively introduce and market additional features and services that increase the value of our offerings to customers, which we believe drives customers to purchase higher levels of service and supports our ability to make periodic adjustments to pricing.

We focus on keeping customer service and monitoring costs as low as possible without detracting from the high-quality service levels for which we are known and that our customers have come to expect. We believe that our ability to retain customers for longer periods of time is driven in part by our disciplined customer selection practices and our delivery of a superior customer experience.

Key Performance Measures

We operate our business with the goal of retaining customers for long periods of time in order to recoup our initial investment in new customers, achieving cash flow break-even in slightly less than three years. We generate substantial recurring net operating cash flow from our customer base. In evaluating our results, we review the following key performance indicators:

Customer Growth. Growth of our customer base is crucial to drive our recurring customer revenue as well as to leverage costs of operations. To grow our customer base, we market our electronic security systems and services through national television advertisements, Internet advertising and also through a direct sales force and an authorized dealer network. The key customer metrics that we use to track customer growth are gross customer additions and ending customers. Gross customer additions are new monitored customers installed or acquired during the period.

Customer Attrition Rate. Our economic model is highly dependent on customer retention. Success in retaining customers is driven in part by our discipline in accepting new customers with favorable characteristics and by providing high quality equipment, installation, monitoring and customer service. We evaluate our customer retention based upon the recurring revenue lost resulting from customer attrition, net of dealer charge-backs and re-sales. Dealer charge-backs represent customer cancellations charged back to the dealers because the customer cancelled service during the initial period of the contract, generally 12 to 15 months, as further described under "Business—Sales and Distribution Channels." Re-sales are inactive customer sites that are returned to active service during the period. The attrition rate is a 52 week trailing ratio, the numerator of which is the annualized recurring revenue lost during the period due to attrition and the denominator of which is total annualized recurring revenue based on an average of recurring revenue under contract at the beginning of each month during the period.

Recurring Customer Revenue. Recurring customer revenue is generated by contractual monthly recurring fees for monitoring and other recurring services provided to our customers. For fiscal year 2011, recurring customer revenue represented approximately 89% of total revenue. Our other revenue, which represented the remaining 11% of total revenue in fiscal year 2011, consists of revenue associated with sales of equipment, deferred revenue related to upfront installations fees, non-routine repair and maintenance services, customer termination charges and dealer charge-backs.

Average Revenue per Customer (ARPU). ARPU measures the average amount of recurring revenue per customer per month, and is calculated based on the recurring revenue under contract at the end of the period, divided by the total number of customers under contract at the end of the period.

Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (EBITDA). EBITDA is a non-GAAP measure reflecting net income adjusted for interest, taxes and certain non-cash items which include depreciation of subscriber system assets and other fixed assets, amortization of deferred costs and deferred revenue associated with customer acquisitions, and amortization of dealer and other intangible assets. We believe EBITDA is useful to provide investors with information about operating profits, adjusted for significant non-cash items, generated from the existing customer base. We reconcile EBITDA to net income, its closest GAAP counterpart under “—Results of Operations—Non-GAAP Measures.”

Free Cash Flow (FCF). FCF is a non-GAAP measure that our management employs to measure cash that is free from any significant existing obligation and is available to service debt and make investments. The difference between net cash provided by operating activities (the most comparable GAAP measure) and FCF is cash outlays for capital expenditures, subscriber system assets, dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases. We reconcile FCF to net cash provided by operating activities under “—Results of Operations—Non-GAAP Measures.”

<sup>(1)</sup> Gross customer additions for fiscal year 2010 exclude approximately 1.4 million customer accounts acquired in connection with the acquisition of Broadview Security in May 2010. These accounts are included in the 6.3 million ending number of customers as of September 24, 2010.

Six Months Ended March 30, 2012 Compared with Six Months Ended March 25, 2011

Revenue

Revenue of $1.6 billion increased by $69 million, or 4.5%, for the six months ended March 30, 2012 as compared with the six months ended March 25, 2011, primarily due to the growth in recurring customer revenue, which increased by $64 million, or 4.7%. This increase was due primarily to higher ARPU as well as growth in customer accounts, net of attrition.

ARPU increased by $1.27, or 3.5%, as of March 30, 2012 compared with March 25, 2011 primarily due to planned price escalations to certain existing customers and the addition of new customers at higher monthly rates. Increased take rates on new service offerings, including ADT Pulse, contributed to the higher ARPU. ADT Pulse, which was launched during 2011, generates ARPU that, on average, is approximately $10 higher than we generate on our standard services.

Gross customer additions were approximately 586,000 during the six months ended March 30, 2012, reflecting customer account growth in both our direct and dealer channels. Net of attrition, our ending number of customers grew by 111,000 from March 25, 2011 to March 30, 2012. Our annualized customer attrition as of March 30, 2012 was 13.2%. Although this is consistent with the rate as of March 25, 2011, it represents an increase from the rate as of September 30, 2011. We attribute this modest increase in customer attrition to higher disconnects primarily as a result of planned price escalations. We continue to focus on high quality service and our disciplined customer selection process in order to limit customer attrition.

Operating Income

Operating income of $362 million increased by $26 million, or 7.7%, for the six months ended March 30, 2012 as compared with the six months ended March 25, 2011. Operating margin was 22.6% for the six months ended March 30, 2012 compared with 21.9% for the six months ended March 25, 2011. The increase in operating income and operating margin was due primarily to the increase in recurring customer revenue at a higher ARPU. The improvement in operating margin was also attributable to efficiencies gained through previous restructuring actions, integration initiatives, and other cost containment activities. These favorable impacts were partially offset by an increase of approximately $21 million in selling related expenses as a result of investments to grow our business, including expansion of our internal sales force as well as increased advertising and other lead generating activities. Operating income for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011 includes integration costs related to the acquisition of Broadview Security of $10 million and $14 million, respectively.

Interest Expense, net

Net interest expense was $44 million for the six months ended March 30, 2012 compared with $46 million for the six months ended March 25, 2011. Included in the six months ended March 30, 2012 was $42 million of allocated interest expense related to Tyco's external debt, compared with $45 million for the six months ended March 25, 2011.

Income Tax Expense

Income tax expense of $120 million increased $10 million for the six months ended March 30, 2012 as compared with the six months ended March 25, 2011, while the effective tax rate did not significantly change between the periods. The effective tax rate can vary from period to period due to permanent tax adjustments, discrete items such as the settlement of income tax audits and changes in tax laws, as well as recurring factors such as changes in the overall effective state tax rate.

Year Ended September 30, 2011 Compared with Year Ended September 24, 2010

Revenue

Revenue of $3.1 billion increased by $519 million, or 20.0%, for the year ended September 30, 2011 as compared with the year ended September 24, 2010, primarily due to the growth in recurring customer revenue, which increased by $483 million, or 21.2%. The increase in recurring revenue includes approximately $339 million due to the acquisition of Broadview Security in May 2010. In addition, an estimated $4 million of revenue is attributable to the additional week in fiscal year 2011. The remaining increase was primarily due to higher ARPU as well as growth in customer accounts, net of attrition.

ARPU increased by $1.14, or 3.2%, as of September 30, 2011 compared with September 24, 2010 primarily due to planned price escalations to certain existing customers. The increase in ARPU was also driven by the addition of new customers at higher monthly rates as well as increased take rates on new service offerings. Such offerings included the launch of ADT Pulse, which generates ARPU that, on average, is approximately $10 higher than we generate on our standard services.

Gross customer additions were approximately 1.1 million during the year ended September 30, 2011, reflecting customer account growth from all channels. Net of attrition, our ending number of customers grew by 66,000 during 2011. Our annualized customer attrition as of September 30, 2011 was 13.0% compared with 13.3% as of September 24, 2010. We attribute the reduction in customer attrition to our disciplined customer selection process and our continued focus on high quality service.

Operating Income

Operating income of $693 million increased by $189 million, or 37.5%, for the year ended September 30, 2011 as compared with the year ended September 24, 2010. Operating margin was 22.3% for the year ended September 30, 2011 compared with 19.5% for the year ended September 24, 2010. Operating income and operating margin for the year ended September 30, 2011 were favorably impacted by the increase in recurring customer revenue at a higher ARPU and synergies achieved from the integration of Broadview Security.

During fiscal year 2011, we continued to integrate Broadview Security, which resulted in synergies related to the elimination of redundant facilities, headcount and marketing costs. We estimate these synergies contributed approximately $102 million of operating income benefit for the year ended September 30, 2011, compared with $30 million for the prior year. To achieve these synergies, we incurred $28 million of integration costs for the year ended September 30, 2011, compared with $18 million of integration costs and $17 million of acquisition costs for the prior year.

In addition, for the year ended September 24, 2010, we recorded restructuring expenses of $18 million, of which we incurred $14 million in conjunction with the Broadview Security acquisition, as compared with nil in the year ended September 30, 2011. Lastly, operating income was unfavorably impacted by approximately $5 million due to the 53rd week in fiscal year 2011.

Interest Expense, net

Net interest expense was $89 million for the year ended September 30, 2011 as compared with $106 million for the year ended September 24, 2010. Included in the year ended September 30, 2011 was $87 million of allocated interest expense related to Tyco's external debt compared with $102 million for the year ended September 24, 2010.

Income Tax Expense

Income tax expense of $228 million increased $69 million for the year ended September 30, 2011 as compared with the year ended September 24, 2010, while the effective tax rate decreased to 37.7% from 39.9%. The increase in the tax expense is primarily related to an increase in pre-tax income of $206 million, while the decrease in the effective tax rate for the year ended September 30, 2011 was primarily the result of a decrease in the overall effective state income tax rate. The effective tax rate can vary from year to year due to permanent tax adjustments, discrete items such as the settlement of income tax audits and changes in tax laws, as well as recurring factors such as changes in the overall effective state tax rate.

Revenue

Revenue of $2.6 billion increased by $343 million, or 15.3%, during the year ended September 24, 2010 as compared with the year ended September 25, 2009, primarily due to the growth in recurring customer revenue, which increased by $346 million, or 17.9%. The increase includes approximately $193 million due to the acquisition of Broadview Security in May 2010. The remaining increase is due to higher ARPU and growth in customer accounts, net of attrition.

ARPU increased by $0.18, or 0.5%, as of September 24, 2010 compared with September 25, 2009 primarily due to planned price escalations and the addition of new customers at higher monthly rates. Excluding the Broadview Security acquisition, gross customer additions were approximately 1.0 million during 2010 reflecting customer account growth from all channels. In addition, we acquired approximately 1.4 million customer accounts in connection with the acquisition of Broadview Security.

Net of attrition and the customer accounts acquired in connection with the acquisition of Broadview Security, our ending number of customers grew by 174,000 during 2010. Our annualized customer attrition rate as of September 24, 2010 was 13.3% compared with 14.3% as of September 25, 2009. We attribute the reduction in customer attrition to our disciplined customer selection process, our continued focus on high quality service and the creation of our “Customer Experience” team to ensure that each customer touch point is measured and improved upon, which was a best practice adopted from Broadview Security.

Operating Income

Operating income of $504 million increased by $30 million, or 6.3%, for the year ended September 24, 2010 as compared with the year ended September 25, 2009. Operating margin was 19.5% for the year ended September 24, 2010 compared with 21.1% for the year ended September 25, 2009. Operating income for the year ended September 24, 2010 was favorably impacted by the increase in recurring customer revenue, offset by incremental costs associated with the Broadview Security acquisition, which also contributed to the decrease in operating margin in 2010.

For the year ended September 24, 2010, we incurred approximately $35 million of Broadview Security acquisition and integration costs. In addition, approximately $187 million of Broadview Security operating costs are included in the year ended September 24, 2010, of which $73 million relates to depreciation of subscriber system assets and amortization of dealer and other intangible assets.

For the year ended September 24, 2010, we recorded restructuring expenses of $18 million, of which we incurred $14 million in conjunction with the Broadview Security acquisition, as compared with $6 million for the prior year related to facility exit costs and work-force reductions to improve operating efficiencies.

Interest Expense, net

Net interest expense was $106 million for the year ended September 24, 2010 as compared with $81 million for the year ended September 25, 2009. Included in the year ended September 24, 2010 was $102 million of allocated interest expense related to Tyco’s external debt compared with $78 million for the year ended September 25, 2009.

Income Tax Expense

Income tax expense of $159 million increased $9 million for the year ended September 24, 2010 as compared with the year ended September 25, 2009, while the effective tax rate increased to 39.9% from 38.2%. The increase in the effective income tax rate for the year ended September 30, 2010 was primarily the result of an increase in the overall effective state income tax rate. The effective tax rate can vary from year to year due to permanent tax adjustments, discrete items such as the settlement of income tax audits and changes in tax laws, as well as recurring factors such as changes in the overall effective state tax rate.

Non-GAAP Measures

In an effort to provide investors with additional information regarding our results as determined by GAAP, we also disclose non-GAAP measures which management believes provide useful information to investors.

These measures consist of EBITDA and FCF. These measures are not financial measures under GAAP and should not be considered as substitutes for net income, operating profit, cash from operating activities or any other operating performance measure calculated in accordance with GAAP, and they may not be comparable to similarly titled measures reported by other companies. We use EBITDA to measure the operational strength and performance of our business. We use FCF as an additional performance measure of our ability to service debt and make investments. These measures, or measures that are based on them, may be used as components in our incentive compensation plans.

We believe EBITDA is useful because it measures our success in acquiring, retaining and servicing our customer base and our ability to generate and grow our recurring revenue while providing a high level of customer service in a cost-effective manner. EBITDA excludes interest expense and the provision for income taxes. Excluding these items eliminates the expenses associated with our capitalization and tax structure. Because EBITDA excludes interest expense, it does not give effect to cash used for debt service requirements and thus does not reflect available funds for distributions, reinvestment or other discretionary uses. EBITDA also excludes depreciation and amortization, which eliminates the impact of non-cash charges related to capital investments. Depreciation and amortization includes depreciation of subscriber system assets and other fixed assets, amortization of deferred costs and deferred revenue associated with subscriber acquisitions and amortization of dealer and other intangible assets.

There are material limitations to using EBITDA. EBITDA may not be comparable to similarly titled measures reported by other companies. Furthermore, EBITDA does not take into account certain significant items, including depreciation and amortization, interest expense and tax expense, which directly affect our net income. These limitations are best addressed by considering the economic effects of the excluded items independently, and by considering EBITDA in conjunction with net income as calculated in accordance with GAAP.

FCF is defined as cash from operations less cash outlays related to capital expenditures, subscriber system assets, dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases. Dealer generated accounts are accounts that are generated through our network of authorized dealers. Bulk account purchases represent accounts that we acquire from third parties outside of our authorized dealer network, such as other security service providers, on a selective basis. These items are subtracted from cash from operating activities because they represent long-term investments that are required for normal business activities. As a result, FCF is a useful measure of our cash that is free from significant existing obligations and available for other uses.

Furthermore, FCF adjusts for cash items that are ultimately within management's and the board of directors' discretion to direct and therefore may imply that there is less or more cash that is available for our programs than the most comparable GAAP measure. This limitation is best addressed by using FCF in combination with the GAAP cash flow numbers.

The tables below reconcile EBITDA to net income and FCF to cash flows from operating activities.

EBITDA of $785 million increased $45 million, or 6.1%, for the six months ended March 30, 2012, as compared with the same period of the prior year. The increase was primarily due to higher operating income from growth in our recurring customer revenue and associated higher margins.

EBITDA of $1.5 billion increased $328 million, or 27.8%, for the year ended September 30, 2011, as compared with the prior year. The increase was primarily due to growth in our higher margin recurring customer base and incremental revenue from new service offerings, including ADT Pulse, which we launched in fiscal year 2011.

EBITDA of $1.2 billion increased $144 million, or 13.9%, for the year ended September 24, 2010, as compared with the prior year. The increase was primarily due to higher operating income from growth in our recurring customer revenue and associated higher margins, offset by incremental Broadview Security acquisition and integration costs.

FCF

(in millions)	Six Months Ended		Years Ended
	March 30, 2012	March 25, 2011	September 30, 2011	September 24, 2010	September 25, 2009
FCF .....	$202	$250	$ 537	$ 269	$245

Net cash provided by operating activities .....	$709	$667	$1,439	$1,070	$981

For the six months ended March 30, 2012, FCF decreased $48 million compared with the six months ended March 25, 2011. This decrease was primarily due to higher cash spend on dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases of $54 million and higher investments in internally generated subscriber systems and capital expenditures of $34 million and $2 million, respectively. This decrease was partially offset by a $42 million increase in net cash provided by operating activities due to higher operating income and changes in working capital.

For the year ended September 30, 2011, FCF increased $268 million compared with the year ended September 24, 2010. The increase of $369 million in net cash provided by operating activities was primarily due to higher operating income contributed from the Broadview Security acquisition and growth in our customer account base, as well as favorable changes in working capital. This increase was partially offset by higher cash spend on dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases of $49 million and higher investments in internally generated subscriber systems and capital expenditures of $43 million and $9 million, respectively.

During the year ended September 24, 2010, FCF increased $24 million compared with the year ended September 25, 2009. The increase primarily resulted from lower capital expenditures of $14 million and an $89 million increase in net cash provided by operating activities attributable to higher operating income contributed from growth in our customer account base as well as favorable changes in working capital, partially offset by incremental costs associated with the Broadview Security acquisition. This increase was partially offset by higher cash spend on dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases of $21 million and higher investments in internally generated subscriber systems of $58 million.

Liquidity & Capital Resources

Cash Flow and Liquidity Analysis

Significant factors driving our liquidity position include cash flows generated from operating activities and investments in internally generated subscriber systems and dealer generated customer accounts. Our cash flows from operations includes cash received from monthly recurring revenue and upfront installation fees received from customers, less cash costs to monitor customers and certain costs, principally marketing and indirect selling, general and administrative costs, associated with new customer installations. Historically, we have generated and expect to continue to generate positive cash flow from operations. Historically, Tyco used a centralized approach to cash management and financing operations. Transfers of cash both to and from Tyco's cash management system are reflected as a component of parent company investment within parent company equity in the combined balance sheets and statements of cash flows.

Cash Flows from Operating Activities

We typically reinvest the cash flow from operating activities in our business primarily to maintain and grow our customer base and to expand our infrastructure. These investments are intended to enhance the overall customer experience, improve productivity of our field workforce and support greater efficiency of our back-office systems and our customer care centers. For the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, we reported net cash provided by operating activities of $709 million and $667 million, respectively. For the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, we reported net cash provided by operating activities of $1.4 billion, $1.1 billion and $1.0 billion, respectively. See discussion of changes in net cash provided by operating activities included in FCF under "—Results of Operations—Non-GAAP Measures."

Cash Flows from Investing Activities

(in millions)	Six Months Ended		Fiscal Years
	March 30, 2012	March 25, 2011	2011	2010	2009
Cash Flows used in Investing Activities:	$ (507)	$ (417)	$(909)	$(1,250)	$(740)

For the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, our investing activities consisted of subscriber systems asset additions and capital expenditures totaling $184 million and $148 million, respectively. Additionally, during the six months ended March 30, 2012, we paid $323 million for approximately 267,000 dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases, compared with $269 million paid for approximately 229,000 dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases during the same period in the prior year.

For the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, our investing activities consisted of subscriber system asset additions and capital expenditures totaling $321 million, $269 million and $225 million, respectively. Additionally, during the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, we paid $581 million, $532 million and $511 million, respectively, for approximately 491,000, 459,000 and 464,000 dealer generated customer accounts and bulk account purchases, respectively. During the year ended September 24, 2010, we acquired Broadview Security which resulted in net cash paid of $449 million.

Cash Flows from Financing Activities

Cash Flows (used in) provided by Financing Activities:	$ (177)	$ (264)	$(548)	$230	$(259)

For the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, the net cash used in financing activities of $177 million and $264 million, respectively, was primarily the result of changes in parent company investment of ($177) million and ($288) million, respectively, and allocated debt activity of ($2) million and $20 million, respectively.

For the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, the net cash (used in) provided by financing activities of ($548) million, $230 million and ($259) million, respectively, was primarily the result of changes in parent company investment of ($574) million, ($140) million and ($416) million, respectively, allocated debt activity of ($5) million, $371 million and $181 million, respectively, and changes in balances due to (from) Tyco and affiliates of $32 million, nil and ($23) million, respectively.

Liquidity

Following our spin-off from Tyco, our capital structure and sources of liquidity will change significantly from our historical capital structure. We will no longer participate in cash management and funding arrangements with Tyco. Instead, our ability to fund our capital needs will depend on our ongoing ability to generate cash from operations, and to access our borrowing facilities and capital markets. We believe that our future cash from operations, together with our access to funds on hand and capital markets, will provide adequate resources to fund our operating and financing needs.

We expect to have approximately $300 million of cash on hand at the time of the Distribution. Our primary future cash needs will be centered on operating activities, working capital, capital expenditures and strategic investments. Our ability to fund these needs will depend, in part, on our ability to generate or raise cash in the future, which is subject to general economic, financial, competitive, regulatory and other factors that are beyond our control.

On June 22, 2012, we entered into a new five-year unsecured senior revolving credit facility. The initial commitment under the new credit facility is $750 million (provided that until the Distribution has occurred and certain related conditions have been met, availability under the revolving credit facility will be limited to $250 million). The interest rate for borrowings under the new credit facility is based on the London Interbank Offered Rate (“LIBOR”) or, at our option, an alternative base rate, plus a spread, based upon our credit rating. The new credit facility will be available to use for working capital, capital expenditures and other general corporate purposes, however, we do not anticipate drawing upon the facility at this time. Tyco is initially guaranteeing the new credit facility, and its guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution. Pursuant to the terms of our credit facility, we must maintain a ratio of consolidated total debt to consolidated EBITDA on a rolling four quarter basis of no greater than 3.50 to 1.00 (calculated by reference to (i) Tyco and its subsidiaries on a consolidated basis prior to the release of the guarantee and (ii) us and our subsidiaries on a consolidated basis following such release). Following the release and cancellation of Tyco’s guarantee, we must also maintain a ratio of consolidated EBITDA to consolidated interest expense of no less than 3.00 to 1.00 as measured on a quarterly basis.

In addition to the revolving credit facility, on July 5, 2012, we issued $750 million aggregate principal amount of 2.25% unsecured notes due July 15, 2017, $1.0 billion aggregate principal amount of 3.50% unsecured notes due July 15, 2022, and $750 million aggregate principal amount of 4.875% unsecured notes due July 15, 2042. Tyco is initially guaranteeing the notes, and its guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution. Net cash proceeds from the issuance of this term indebtedness totaled approximately $2.47 billion and will be used to repay intercompany debt and to make other cash payments to Tyco to allow it to fund repurchases or redemptions of its indebtedness.

Dividends

We intend to pay quarterly dividends in an amount that approximates our proportionate share of the $1.00 per share annual dividend that Tyco currently pays to its shareholders, or approximately $0.50 per ADT share annually (based on a one for two distribution ratio).

Whether our board of directors exercises its discretion to approve any dividends in the future will depend on many factors, including our financial condition, capital requirements of our business, covenants associated with debt obligations, legal requirements, regulatory constraints, industry practice and other factors that our board of directors deems relevant. See “Description of Our Capital Stock—Common Stock.” There can be no assurance that we will pay a dividend in the future or continue to pay any dividend if we do commence the payment of dividends. In addition, the terms of the agreements governing our new debt or debt that we may incur in the future may limit or prohibit the payments of dividends. There can also be no assurance that the combined annual dividends on Tyco common shares, Tyco Flow Control common shares and our common stock after the spin-off, if any, will be equal to the annual dividends on Tyco common shares prior to the spin-off.

Commitments and Contractual Obligations

- (1) Purchase obligations consist of commitments for purchases of goods and services.
- (2) We have net unfunded pension and postretirement benefit obligations of $24 million and $5 million, respectively, to certain employees and former employees as of the year ended September 30, 2011. We are obligated to make contributions to our pension plans and postretirement benefit plans; however, we are unable to determine the amount of plan contributions due to the inherent uncertainties of obligations of this type, including timing, interest rate charges, investment performance, and amounts of benefit payments. The minimum required contributions to our pension plans are expected to be approximately $4 million in fiscal year 2012. These plans and our estimates of future contributions and benefit payments are more fully described in Note 11 (“Retirement Plans”) to our annual combined financial statements.
- (3) Total contractual cash obligations in the table above exclude income taxes as we are unable to make a reasonably reliable estimate of the timing for the remaining payments in future years. See Note 4 (“Income Taxes”) to our combined financial statements for further information. We also excluded debt allocated to us by Tyco, which was $1,478 million and $1,482 million as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, respectively. See supplemental pro-forma table below which reflects our recent issuance of third party debt. As of September 30, 2011, we had approximately $5 million of outstanding letters of credit or bank guarantees.

There have been no amounts drawn under our new five-year $750 million revolving credit facility, and we do not intend to utilize the facility at this time.

Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements

In the normal course of business, we are liable for product performance. In the opinion of management, such obligations will not significantly affect our financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosure about Market Risk

Our operations include activities in the United States and Canada. These operations expose us to a variety of market risks, including the effects of changes in interest rates and foreign currency exchange rates. We monitor and manage these financial exposures as an integral part of our overall risk management program.

Interest Rate Risk

We have entered into a new revolving credit facility that will bear interest at a floating rate. As a result, we will be exposed to fluctuations in interest rates to the extent of our borrowings under the revolving credit facility. Our long-term debt portfolio is expected to primarily consist of fixed rate instruments including our recent issuance of $2.5 billion of fixed rate debt. To help manage borrowing costs, we may from time to time enter into interest rate swap transactions with financial institutions acting as principal counterparties. These interest rate swap transactions have the effect of converting part of fixed-rate debt to variable rates.

Foreign Currency Risk

We have exposure to the effects of foreign currency exchange rate fluctuations on the results of our Canadian operations. Our Canadian operations use the Canadian dollar to conduct business but our results are reported in U.S. dollars.

We are exposed periodically to the foreign currency rate fluctuations that affect transactions not denominated in the functional currency of our U.S. and Canadian operations. We may from time to time use financial derivatives, which may include forward foreign currency exchange contract and foreign currency options, to hedge this risk. We do not use derivative financial instruments to hedge investments in foreign subsidiaries since such investments are long-term in nature.

Critical Accounting Policies & Estimates

The preparation of the combined financial statements in conformity with US GAAP requires management to use judgment in making estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses. The following accounting policies are based on, among other things, judgments and assumptions made by management that include inherent risks and uncertainties. Management's estimates are based on the relevant information available at the end of each period.

Revenue Recognition

Major components of our revenue include contractual monitoring and maintenance service revenue, non-refundable installation fees related to subscriber system assets, sales of equipment and other services. We follow the authoritative literature on revenue recognition, which requires us to defer certain revenue associated with customer acquisition.

We recognize revenue from the sale of services as services are rendered. We recognize contractual fees for monitoring and maintenance services on a straight-line basis over the contract term. We defer customer billings for services not yet rendered and recognize them as revenue as the services are rendered. We include the balance of deferred revenue in current liabilities or long-term liabilities, as appropriate.

For transactions in which we retain ownership of the security system asset, referred to as subscriber system assets, we defer non-refundable fees received in connection with the initiation of a monitoring contract and associated direct and incremental selling costs and amortize them over the estimated life of the customer relationship.

Sales of security monitoring systems may have multiple elements, including equipment, installation, monitoring services and maintenance agreements. We assess our revenue arrangements to determine the appropriate units of accounting. When ownership of the system is transferred to the customer, we consider each deliverable provided under the arrangement a separate unit of accounting. We recognize revenue associated with sale of equipment and related installations once delivery, installation and customer acceptance are completed. We recognize the revenue for monitoring and maintenance services as services are rendered. Early termination of the contract by the customer results in a termination charge in accordance with the customer contract, which is due immediately following the termination date. ADT may refund up-front consideration and monitoring fees paid during the six months following installation of a system in limited circumstances after all attempts to resolve customer concerns have been exhausted. Amounts assigned to each unit of accounting are based on an allocation of total arrangement consideration using a hierarchy of estimated selling price for the deliverables. The selling price used for each deliverable will be based on Vendor Specific Objective Evidence (“VSOE”) if available, Third Party Evidence (“TPE”) if VSOE is not available, or estimated selling price if neither VSOE nor TPE is available. Revenue recognized for equipment and installation is limited to the lesser of their allocated amounts under the estimated selling price hierarchy or the non-contingent up-front consideration received at the time of installation, since collection of future amounts under the arrangement with the customer is contingent upon the delivery of monitoring and maintenance services.

We account for provisions for certain rebates and discounts to customers as reductions in determining revenue in the same period the related revenue is recorded. These provisions are based on terms of arrangements with direct, indirect and other market participants. We estimate rebates based on sales terms, historical experience and trend analysis.

Depreciation and Amortization Methods for Security Monitoring-Related Assets

We classify assets related to the generation of new customers in two asset categories for purposes of depreciation and amortization methods: internally generated residential subscriber systems (referred to as subscriber system assets) and customer accounts generated through the ADT dealer program (referred to as dealer intangibles). Subscriber system assets include installed property and equipment for which ADT retains ownership and deferred costs directly related to the customer acquisition and system installation. We account for subscriber system assets and any deferred costs and revenue resulting from the customer acquisition over the expected life of the customer relationship. We account for subscriber system assets and related deferred costs and revenue using pools, with separate pools for the components of subscriber system assets and any related deferred costs and revenue based on the month and year of acquisition. We depreciate our pooled subscriber system assets and related deferred costs and revenue using an accelerated method over 15 years.

We amortize intangible assets arising from the ADT dealer program in pools determined by the same month and year of contract commencement on an accelerated basis over the expected life of the customer relationship of 15 years.

Loss Contingencies

We record accruals for various contingencies including legal proceedings and other claims that arise in the normal course of business. The accruals are based on judgment, the probability of losses and, where applicable, the consideration of opinions of internal and/or external legal counsel and actuarially determined estimates. We record an accrual when a loss is deemed probable to occur and is reasonably estimable. Additionally, we record insurance recovery receivables from third-party insurers when recovery has been determined to be probable.

Acquisitions

We account for acquired businesses using the purchase method of accounting. Under the purchase method, our combined financial statements reflect the operations of an acquired business starting from the completion of the acquisition. In addition, the assets acquired and liabilities assumed must be recorded at the date of acquisition at their respective estimated fair values, with any excess of the purchase price over the estimated fair values of the net assets acquired recorded as goodwill.

Significant judgment is required in estimating the fair value of intangible assets and in assigning their respective useful lives. Accordingly, we typically obtain the assistance of third-party valuation specialists for significant items. The fair value estimates are based on available historical information and on future expectations and assumptions deemed reasonable by management, but are inherently uncertain.

Goodwill and Indefinite-Lived Intangible Asset Impairments

We assess goodwill and indefinite-lived intangible assets for impairment annually and more frequently if triggering events occur. In performing these assessments, management relies on various factors, including operating results, business plans, economic projections, anticipated future cash flows, comparable market transactions (to the extent available) and other market data.

We recorded no goodwill impairments in conjunction with our annual goodwill impairment assessment performed during the fourth quarter of fiscal year 2011. While historical performance and current expectations have resulted in fair values of goodwill in excess of carrying values, if our assumptions are not realized, it is possible that in the future an impairment charge may need to be recorded. However, it is not possible at this time to determine whether an impairment charge would result or if such a charge would be material. We will continue to monitor the recoverability of our goodwill.

Fair value determinations require considerable judgment and are sensitive to changes in underlying assumptions and factors. As a result, there can be no assurance that the estimates and assumptions made for purposes of the annual goodwill impairment test will prove to be accurate predictions of the future. Examples of events or circumstances that could reasonably be expected to negatively affect the underlying key assumptions and ultimately impact the estimated fair value of the business may include such items as follows: a prolonged downturn in the business environment (i.e. sales volumes and prices); an economic recovery that significantly differs from our assumptions in timing or degree; volatility in equity and debt markets resulting in higher discount rates; and unexpected regulatory changes.

Long-Lived Assets

We review asset groups held and used by us, including property and equipment and amortizable intangible assets, for impairment whenever events or changes in business circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of the asset group may not be fully recoverable. If an impairment is determined to exist, we calculate any related impairment loss based on fair value.

We record impairments to long-lived assets to be disposed of based upon the fair value less cost to sell of the applicable assets. The calculation of the fair value of long-lived assets is based on assumptions concerning the amount and timing of estimated future cash flows and assumed discount rates, reflecting varying degrees of perceived risk.

Income Taxes

For purposes of our combined financial statements, we recorded income tax expense and deferred tax balances as if we filed tax returns on a stand-alone basis separate from Tyco (“Separate Return Method”). The Separate Return Method applies the accounting guidance for income taxes to the standalone financial statements as if we were a separate taxpayer and a standalone enterprise for the periods presented. The calculation of our income taxes on a separate return basis requires a considerable amount of judgment and use of both estimates and allocations. Historically, we have primarily operated within a Tyco U.S. consolidated group as well as within a standalone Canadian entity. In certain instances, tax losses or credits generated by Tyco's other businesses will be available to us going forward after the Distribution.

In determining taxable income for our combined financial statements, we must make certain estimates and judgments. These estimates and judgments affect the calculation of certain tax liabilities and the determination of the recoverability of certain of the deferred tax assets, which arise from temporary differences between the tax and financial statement recognition of revenue and expense.

In evaluating our ability to recover deferred tax assets, we consider all available positive and negative evidence including our past operating results, the existence of cumulative losses in the most recent years and our forecast of future taxable income. In estimating future taxable income, we develop assumptions including the amount of future pre-tax operating income, the reversal of temporary differences and the implementation of feasible and prudent tax planning strategies. These assumptions require significant judgment about the forecasts of future taxable income and are consistent with the plans and estimates we are using to manage the underlying businesses.

We currently do not have any significant valuation allowances recorded in our combined balance sheets.

The tax carryforwards reflected in our combined financial statements are based on a hypothetical stand-alone income tax return basis. The tax carryforwards include net operating losses and tax credits. The tax carryforwards are not representative of the tax carryforwards we will have available for use after being spun-off from Tyco. We anticipate that as a result of the final spin-off transactions, our post spin-off tax carryforwards will be significantly higher than those reflected in our combined financial statements. Adjustments to reflect these tax carryforwards are included in the pro forma financial information included elsewhere in this Information Statement. The utilization of the post spin-off tax carryforwards will allow us to minimize our cash tax rate consistent with our combined financial statements in the initial periods post-spin until such carryforwards are fully utilized. In addition to the post spin-off tax carryforwards, we expect to have the ability to accelerate certain tax deductions that would allow us to minimize our cash tax rate for a period of time beyond the full utilization of the post spin-off tax carryforwards.

Changes in tax laws and rates could also affect recorded deferred tax assets and liabilities in the future. Management records the effect of a tax rate or law change on our deferred tax assets and liabilities in the period of enactment. Future tax rate or law changes could have a material effect on our results of operations, financial condition or cash flows.

In addition, the calculation of our tax liabilities involves dealing with uncertainties in the application of complex tax regulations in the United States and Canada. We recognize potential liabilities and record tax liabilities for anticipated tax audit issues in the United States and other tax jurisdictions based on our estimate of whether, and the extent to which, additional taxes will be due. These tax liabilities are reflected net of related tax loss carryforwards. We adjust these reserves in light of changing facts and circumstances; however, due to the complexity of some of these uncertainties, the ultimate resolution may result in a payment that is materially different from our current estimate of the tax liabilities. If our estimate of tax liabilities proves to be less than the ultimate assessment, an additional charge to expense would result. If payment of these amounts ultimately proves to be less than the recorded amounts, the reversal of the liabilities would result in tax benefits being recognized in the period when we determine the liabilities are no longer necessary. For purposes of our combined financial statements, we have computed these estimated tax liabilities on a separate return basis.

Accounting Developments

We have presented the information about accounting pronouncements not yet implemented in Note 1 ("Basis of Presentation and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies") to our annual and quarterly combined financial statements include in this Information Statement.

BUSINESS

Overview

ADT is a leading provider of electronic security, interactive home and business automation and related monitoring services. We currently serve more than six million customers, making us the largest company of our kind in both the United States and Canada. With a 138-year history, the ADT® brand is one of the most trusted and well-known brands in the security industry today. Our broad and pioneering set of products and services, including our ADT Pulse interactive home and business solutions, and our home health services, meet a range of customer needs for modern lifestyles. Our partner network is the broadest in the industry, and includes dealers, affinity organizations like USAA and AARP and technology providers. ADT delivers an integrated customer experience by maintaining the industry's largest sales, installation and service field force and most robust monitoring network, all backed by the support of more than 16,000 employees and approximately 200 field offices. We believe we are well positioned to continue to lead the large and growing residential and small business security market, and that our demonstrated expertise and established footprint will help us to become a leader in the evolving market for integrated security, home health monitoring, lifestyle and business productivity solutions.

For the year ended September 30, 2011, our revenue was $3.1 billion and our operating income was $693 million. The majority of the monitoring services and a large portion of the maintenance services we provide to our customers are governed by multi-year contracts with automatic renewal provisions. This provides us with significant recurring revenue, which for the year ended September 30, 2011 was approximately 89% of our revenue. We believe that the recurring nature of the majority of our revenue enables us to invest continuously in growing our business. This includes investments in technologies to further enhance the attractiveness of our solutions to current and potential customers, to continue development and training to enable our direct sales, installation, customer service and field service personnel to more effectively deliver exceptional service to our customers, to expand our dealer and partner network and to make continued enhancements to operations efficiency.

History and Developments

We were originally formed in 1874 as the American District Telegraph Company, a consortium of 57 telegraph operators. During the early part of the 20th century, we began offering fire and burglar alarm solutions. Over the years, we engaged in a variety of communications related activities and by 1987 had become one of the leading electronic security services providers. Tyco acquired us in 1997.

In 2010, we acquired our largest competitor, Broadview Security. We are in the final stages of completing the integration of Broadview Security into ADT and believe that our work to combine the businesses has resulted in meaningful synergies in sales, service, marketing and operations.

Our Strengths

ADT is a security industry leader, supported by one of the industry's most trusted and well-known brands

We believe that we serve roughly 25% of the approximately $12.5 billion U.S. and Canadian residential and small business monitored security market, a share we believe is substantially larger than any single competitor's. Based on internal and external market research, we believe that approximately 19% of U.S. households currently have a monitored security system. Built in part on our long-standing record of providing quality, reliable electronic security services, ADT® has become one of the most trusted and well-known brands in the security industry. We believe the strength of our brand helps to drive and support our leading market position.

We have an attractive business model which generates strong cash flows, which we can utilize to reinvest in growing and optimizing the business

In order to optimize the financial performance of our business, we focus on several key business drivers, including customer additions, costs to add a new customer, ARPU, costs incurred providing services to customers and customer tenure. We believe we have a proven track record of successfully balancing the key business drivers to optimize our returns. We use a structured customer acquisition process designed to generate new customers with attractive characteristics, high adoption of automatic payment methods and strong credit scores, which we believe results in long average customer tenure. We have contractual monitoring and maintenance agreements with our customers, many of which are extended beyond their initial term. This generates recurring revenue for us. With a large base of more than 6 million customers and growing ARPU, our highly efficient operating model drives strong cash flows that we can utilize to reinvest continually in growing and optimizing our business.

We have an experienced management team with a proven track record

Our senior management team is highly regarded in the electronic security industry and has significant experience in leadership roles. Collectively, our executive officers have an average of nearly twenty years of relevant industry and/or functional leadership experience. Our leadership team has a proven track record of growing our customer base, developing effective channels to market, reducing customer and ongoing service costs, improving operating efficiency and integrating acquired businesses such as Broadview Security.

We have industry leading solutions and services, including ADT Pulse, our pioneering interactive services platform

Our broad portfolio of security and home and small business automation solutions serves customers with a variety of needs. Our pioneering ADT Pulse offering has been recognized by external reviewers, including Electronic House and Digital Trends, as a leading interactive services platform. We believe this positions us well to continue to meet emerging customer needs and compete with both existing and new competitors.

Our nationwide footprint of branch offices, field resources and broad partner network, including our indirect dealer channel, affords us coverage and scale leverage

We have the largest branch and field network in the industry, with approximately 200 branch locations and approximately 3,800 installation and service technicians across the United States and Canada. We continue to expand and grow both our team of approximately 4,500 direct sales professionals and our network of indirect channel partners, which today includes more than 400 authorized dealers who are exclusive to ADT for security services and a wide range of partners with whom we have lead generation relationships. Our scale provides us with significant cost advantages as we are able to leverage the volume of goods and services that we purchase to drive more favorable pricing from our suppliers.

Our monitoring capabilities set us apart in the security industry today

Our network of six company-operated monitoring centers are all U.L. certified and fully redundant, allowing us to shift signal and call volume in real-time should the need arise as a result of increased signals or an emergency. Our monitoring centers handle more than 25 million signals/calls per year, and our sophisticated 24/7 staffing model allows us to flex staffing levels in response to shifting call and signal volumes across the centers. We believe this infrastructure allows us to provide superior levels of service to our customers due to our ability to provide rapid response while reducing the risk of non-response due to our redundant fail-over capabilities. We believe the knowledge that ADT is actively monitoring and responding to alarms offers greater peace of mind and benefit to our customers than unmonitored or 'self-monitored' solutions, which either do not provide any external notification or may notify a customer only via an unconfirmed text message or similar passive alert that may go unnoticed.

Strategies

We intend to achieve sustained, profitable growth in the markets we serve today, as well as in adjacent segments, by executing against strategies that leverage our key assets and core competencies.

Strengthen and grow the core residential business

We will continue to manage our business by optimizing the key business drivers noted above to maximize the value from our core business. We intend to grow our customer base through the expansion of our current channels and the development of new ones, by continuing to improve sales force effectiveness and by strengthening our strategic marketing and promotional tactics. We will continue to manage the costs associated with adding new customers by optimizing lead generation and conversion, working collaboratively with our solution partners to reduce hardware costs and deliver differentiated solutions and leveraging mobility tools to automate technician scheduling and deployment. We also intend to continue to increase ADT Pulse adoption rates and thereby increase our average monthly recurring revenue per customer and customer tenure. We regularly evaluate our pricing strategies to optimize pricing for our installed base and for new customers. We continue to standardize our product platform to enhance our ability to resolve customer issues remotely, which we believe will reduce ongoing service costs and increase the ease of supporting our customer base.

We also continue to implement enhancements to every customer touch point. We continue to train and incent our employees to provide high-quality service through prompt handling of calls and quick and effective resolution of customer issues. We intend to continue making ongoing improvements to enhance the customer experience, offer more options for customer self-service, including via the Internet, and create opportunities for field employees to meet our customers and hear directly how we impact customers' lives. We believe our emphasis on customer value drives customer satisfaction and tenure, decreasing customer attrition and improving our profitability.

Invest in growth platforms, including in segments in which ADT has low market share, as well as in underpenetrated and new segments

We believe we have significant opportunity to increase our share of the monitored security market for small businesses. We intend to grow our share of small business customers by expanding our small business field sales force, which currently represents only about one third of our overall direct sales force. We plan to provide strengthened small business marketing support to this enhanced sales force, including by building a larger, more robust partner network to improve our lead generation capabilities and by assisting in marketing additional value-added services, including ADT Pulse.

Additionally, we believe monitored security services are underpenetrated in North American households. Based on internal and external market research studies, we estimate current monitored electronic security penetration to be approximately 19% of U.S. households, significantly lower than other home services such as video and Internet that are in 60-85% of households. We intend to increase penetration of residential security services through the development of new solutions and enhanced offerings that attract new customers to enter the market. In addition, through our efficient operating model we believe we can significantly reduce the cost of basic security installation and services, opening up the potential for a much larger portion of households to purchase monitored security.

We also intend to explore other adjacent markets that leverage our existing assets and core competencies. Where appropriate, we will supplement our organic growth efforts with bolt-on acquisitions, leveraging the expertise we have developed in effectively integrating acquired businesses.

Our Brands and Services

Our key brands are ADT®, ADT Pulse™ and Companion Service®. We believe our brands are some of the most respected, trusted and well-known brands in the electronic security industry. The strength of our brands is built upon our long-standing record of providing quality, reliable electronic security services. Due to the importance that customers place on reputation and trust when purchasing home and small business security, we believe the strength of our brand is a key contributor to our success.

Our electronic security offering involves the installation and monitoring of residential and small business security systems designed to detect intrusion, control access and react to movement, smoke, carbon monoxide, flooding, temperature and other environmental conditions and hazards, as well as to address personal emergencies, such as injuries, medical emergencies or incapacitation. We believe the breadth of our solutions allows us to meet a wide variety of customer needs. Our electronic security systems connect, upon the occurrence of a triggering event, to one of our state-of-the-art monitoring centers. Depending upon the type of service contract and the response specified by the customer, our skilled monitoring center personnel respond to alarms by relaying appropriate information to local fire or police departments and notifying the customer or others on the customer's emergency contact list. Additional action may be taken by call center associates as needed, depending on the specific situation and recorded customer preferences.

Through the introduction of ADT Pulse we have pioneered interactive technologies that allow our customers to remotely monitor and manage their homes and small business environments through their electronic security systems. Depending on the service plan that they purchase and the type and level of product installation, customers can remotely access information regarding the security of their home or business, arm and disarm their security system, adjust lighting or thermostat levels or view real-time video from cameras covering different areas of their premises, all via secure access from web-enabled devices (such as smart phones, laptops and tablet computers) and a customized web portal. ADT Pulse also allows customers to create customized schedules and automation for managing lights, thermostats and appliances, and can be programmed to perform certain functions, such as recording and viewing live video and sending text messages, based on triggering events.

Many of our customers are driven to purchase monitored security as a result of a perceived or actual increase in crime or other life safety concerns in their neighborhood, such as a break-in or fire nearby, or as a result of a move to new home and/or neighborhood. These life events tend to heighten interest in solutions which can enhance safety and security and provide customers with greater peace of mind. We believe many of our customers purchase security systems and monitoring services as a result of encouragement by their insurance carriers, who often offer lower insurance premium rates if a security system is installed or may require that a system be installed as a condition of coverage.

The majority of our customers use standard land-line telephone service as the primary communication method for alarm signals from their sites. However, as the use of land-line telephone service has decreased, the ability to provide alternative communication methods from a customer's control panel to our central monitoring stations has become increasingly important. We currently offer a variety of alternate and back-up alarm transmission methods including cellular, digital radio and broadband Internet.

Under our Companion Services brand, we provide monitoring center supported personal emergency response system, or PERS, products and services which leverage our safety monitoring infrastructure to provide customers with solutions that help sustain independent living, encourage better self-care activities and improve communication of critical health information. Our core PERS offering consists of a console unit and a wireless transmitter generally worn as a necklace or wristband by the client. In the event of an emergency the transmitter allows the client to summon assistance via a two-way voice system that connects the client's home telephone with our emergency response center, where dedicated PERS monitoring specialists relay information to the appropriate local emergency responder, including police and fire departments. We offer customers the option to install the PERS unit themselves or to have one of our trained field staff perform the unit set-up.

In addition to monitoring services, we provide technical services to our customer base for routine maintenance and the installation of upgraded or additional equipment. More than half of our customer base is enrolled in a service plan which generates incremental recurring monthly revenue. Purchasers of our electronic systems typically contract for ongoing security system monitoring and maintenance at the time of initial equipment installation.

Most of the monitoring services and a large portion of the maintenance services that we provide to our customers are governed by multi-year contracts with automatic renewal provisions that provide us with recurring monthly revenue. Under our typical service agreement, the customer pays the initial installation fee and is then obligated to make monthly payments for the remainder of the initial contract term. The standard agreement term is three years (two years in California), with automatic renewals for successive 30-day periods unless cancelled by either party. If a customer cancels or is otherwise in default under the contract prior to the end of the initial contract term, we have the right under the contract to receive from the customer an amount equal to a percentage of all remaining monthly payments. Monitoring services are generally billed monthly or quarterly in advance. More than half of our customers pay us through automated payment methods, with a significantly higher percentage of new customers opting for these payment methods. We periodically adjust the standard monthly monitoring rate charged to new customers. From time to time, we also may adjust the monthly rates of our existing customers.

Our Customers and Marketing

We serve more than 6 million residential and small business customers throughout the United States and Canada. Our residential customers are typically owners of single-family homes, while our small business customers include, among others, retail businesses, small-scale commercial facilities and offices of professional service providers and similar businesses. We manage our existing customer base to maximize customer lifetime value, which includes continually evaluating our pricing and service strategies, managing our costs to provide service to customers and achieving long customer tenure. Our ability to increase ARPU is derived from, and largely dependent on, our continued introduction of additional features and services that increase the value of our offerings to customers.

To support the growth of our customer base and to improve awareness of our brands, we market our electronic security systems and services through national television advertisements, Internet advertising, including paid search, yellow pages, direct mail and social media tools. We continually work to optimize our marketing spend through a lead modeling process whereby we flex and shift our spending based on lead flow and measured marketing channel effectiveness. We utilize a variety of third-party referral providers, who generate leads and sales referrals for both our direct sales team and our authorized dealers. Our partner lead generation methods include agreements with affinity organizations such as USAA and AARP, third-party referral companies and, in some instances, co-branding arrangements.

We are constantly trialing new customer lead methods and channels in an effort to increase our customer base and drive greater penetration within homes and small businesses without sacrificing customer quality. We continually explore opportunities to provide ADT-branded solutions through additional channels, including telecommunications companies, broadband and cable companies, retailers and public and private utilities.

Sales and Distribution Channels

We utilize a network of complementary distribution channels that includes a mix of direct and indirect. In our fiscal year 2011, we generated just over half of our new customers through our internal sales force, including our phone and field teams, supported by our direct response marketing efforts. We generated our remaining new customers in fiscal year 2011 through our authorized dealer program and, to a small extent, through agreements with leading homebuilders and related partners. As opportunities arise, we may engage in selective bulk account purchases, which typically involve the purchase of a set of customer accounts from other security service providers, sometimes including competitors.

Our national sales call center (inbound and outbound) closes sales from prospective customers generated through national marketing efforts and lead generation channel partners. Our highly trained telephone sales associates work to understand customer needs and then direct customers to the most suitable sales approach. We close a sale over the phone if appropriate, while balancing the opportunity for up-sales and customer education that occurs when a sales representative works with the customer in their home or business to fully understand their individual needs. When the sale is best handled in the customer's home or business, the sales center associate can schedule a field sales consultant appointment in real-time.

Our field sales force of approximately 4,000 sales consultants generates sales from residential and small business customers, through both company generated leads and leads generated by our field sales force through customer referrals and other lead "self-generation" methods. Our field sales consultants undergo an in-depth screening process prior to hire. Each sales consultant completes comprehensive centralized training prior to conducting customer sales presentations and participates in ongoing training in support of new offerings and the use of our structured model sales call. We utilize a highly structured sales approach, which includes, in addition to the structured model sales call, weekly monitoring of sales activity and effectiveness metrics and regular coaching by our sales management teams.

Our extensive dealer network, which consists of more than 400 authorized dealers operating across the United States and Canada, extends our reach by aligning us with select independent security sales and installation companies. These authorized dealers agree to exclusivity with us for security related services. We train and monitor each dealer to help ensure the dealer's financial stability, use of sound and ethical business practices and delivery of reliable and consistent high-quality sales and installation methods. Authorized dealers are required to adhere to the same high quality standards for sales and installation as company-owned field offices. We provide dealers with a full range of services designed to assist them in all aspects of their business.

Typically, our authorized dealers are contractually obligated to offer exclusively to us all qualified alarm accounts they generate, but we are not obligated to accept these accounts. We pay our authorized dealers for the services they provide in generating qualified monitored accounts. In those instances when we reject an account, we generally still provide alarm monitoring services for that account by means of a monitoring services agreement with the authorized dealer. Like our direct sales contracts, dealer generated customer contracts typically have an initial term of three years (two years in California) with automatic renewals for successive 30-day periods unless cancelled by either party. If an accepted alarm account is canceled during an initial guarantee period, generally 12 to 15 months, the dealer is required to provide an account with equivalent economic characteristics or to refund our payment for their services for generating the account.

Additions to our customer base typically require an upfront investment, consisting primarily of direct materials and labor to install the security systems, direct sales costs, indirect sales costs, marketing costs and administrative costs related to installation activities. The economics of our installation business varies slightly depending on the customer acquisition channel. We operate our business with the goal of retaining customers for long periods of time in order to recoup our initial investment in new customers, achieving cash flow break-even in slightly less than three years.

Field Operations

We serve our customer base from approximately 200 field offices located throughout the United States and Canada. From these locations our staff of approximately 3,800 installation and service technicians provides security system installations and field service and repair. We staff our field offices to efficiently and effectively make sales calls, install security systems and provide service support based on customer needs and our evaluation of growth opportunities in each market. We maintain the relevant and necessary licenses related to the provision of installation and security and related services in the jurisdictions in which we operate.

Monitoring Facilities and Support Services

We operate six fully redundant monitoring facilities located across the United States and Canada. We employ approximately 3,500 monitoring center customer care professionals, who are required to complete extensive initial training and receive ongoing training and coaching. All monitoring facilities hold U.L. listings as protective signaling services stations. U.L. specifications for monitoring centers cover building integrity, back-up computer and power systems, staffing and standard operating procedures. Insurers of certain customers require U.L. listing of the monitored security provider as a condition of insurance coverage. In the event of an emergency at one of our monitoring facilities (e.g., fire, tornado, major interruption in telephone or computer service or any other event affecting the functionality of the facility), all monitoring operations can be automatically transferred to another monitoring facility. All of our monitoring facilities operate 24 hours a day on a year-round basis. Incoming alarm signals are routed via an internal communications network to the next available operator, which allows for real-time load sharing across these facilities.

Customer Care

We maintain a service culture aimed at “Creating Customers for Life” because developing customer loyalty and continually increasing customer tenure is an important value driver for our business. To maintain our high standard of customer service, we provide ongoing high quality training to call center and field employees and to dealer personnel. We also continually measure and monitor key operating and financial metrics, including customer satisfaction oriented metrics across each customer touch point.

Customer care specialists answer non-emergency inquiries regarding service, billing and alarm testing and support. Our monitoring centers provide customers with telephone and Internet coverage 24-hours a day on a year-round basis. To ensure that technical service requests are handled promptly and professionally, all requests are routed through our customer contact centers. Customer care specialists help customers resolve minor service and operating issues related to security systems and in many cases are able to remotely resolve customer concerns. We continue to implement new customer self-service tools via interactive voice response systems and the Internet, which will provide customers additional choices in managing their services.

Suppliers

We purchase equipment and components of our products from a limited number of suppliers and distributors. We maintain minimal inventories of equipment and components at each field office. Generally our third-party distributors maintain safety stock of certain key items to cover any minor supply chain disruptions. We also utilize dual sourcing methods to minimize the risk of a disruption from a single supplier. We do not anticipate any major interruptions in our supply chain.

Industry and Competition

We estimate that the market for residential and small business electronic security system sales, installation, monitoring and service in the United States and Canada was approximately $12.5 billion in 2011 and that it has grown at a compound annual growth rate of approximately 2% per year over the past five years. We believe the primary factors driving industry growth include heightened concerns about crime, especially for an aging population that is increasingly concerned about security related to break-ins and theft of high-value items. A combination of increasing customer interest in lifestyle and business productivity and technology advancements which are decreasing the cost of Internet Protocol-enabled security equipment is supporting the increasing penetration of interactive services and home/business automation.

The security systems market in the United States and Canada is highly competitive and fragmented, with a number of major firms and thousands of smaller regional and local companies. The high fragmentation of the industry is primarily the result of relatively low barriers to entering the business in local geographies and the availability of wholesale monitoring (whereby smaller companies outsource their monitoring to operations that provide monitoring services but do not maintain the customer relationship). We believe that our principal competitors within the residential and small business security systems market are Protection One, Inc., Monitronics International, Inc. and Vivint, Inc.

Success in acquiring new customers in the residential and small business security markets is dependent on a variety of factors, including company brand and reputation, market visibility, service and product capabilities, quality, price and the ability to identify and sell to prospective customers. Competition is often based primarily on price in relation to value of the solutions and service. Rather than compete purely on price, we emphasize the quality of our electronic security services, the reputation of our industry leading brands and our knowledge of customer needs, which together allow us to deliver an outstanding customer experience. In addition, we are increasingly offering added features and functionality, such as those in our ADT Pulse interactive services offering, which provide new services and capabilities which serve to further differentiate our offering and support a pricing premium.

As we move into the interactive services and home automation space, we face new competition from competitors such as cable and telecom companies. However, we believe our robust field force, including our nationwide team of in-home sales consultants, our solid reputation for and expertise in providing reliable security and monitoring services through our in-house network of fully redundant monitoring centers and our highly skilled installation and service organization position us well to compete with these new competitors.

In the PERS market our primary competition is Phillips/Lifeline. We believe we have the opportunity to enhance our position in this segment, and that as the demographics of the United States and Canada continue to change towards an increasingly older population, the market is poised to experience significant growth.

Seasonality

Our business experiences a certain level of seasonality. Because more household moves take place during the second and third calendar quarters of each year, our disconnect rate is typically higher in those quarters than in the first and fourth calendar quarters. There is also a slight seasonal effect on our new customer installation volume and related cash expenses incurred in investment in new subscribers; however, other factors, such as the level of marketing expense, can offset any seasonality effects. In addition, due to weather related incidences during the summer months, we can see increased servicing costs related to higher alarm signals and customer service requests as a result of customer power outages and related issues.

Intellectual Property

Patents, trademarks, copyrights and other proprietary rights are important to our business. We also rely upon trade secrets, continuing technological innovations and licensing arrangements to maintain and improve our competitive position. We review third-party proprietary rights, including trademarks, patents and patent applications, in an effort to develop an effective intellectual property strategy, avoid infringement of third-party proprietary rights, identify licensing opportunities and misappropriation of our proprietary rights and monitor the intellectual property claims of others. In addition, we typically enter into confidentiality agreements with our employees and third parties to protect our intellectual property.

We own a portfolio of patents that relate to a variety of security technologies utilized in our business, including security panels and sensors and video and information management solutions. We also own a portfolio of trademarks, including ADT®, ADT Pulse™, ADT Always There®, Companion Service® and Creating Customers for Life®, and are a licensee of various patents and trademarks, including from our third-party suppliers and technology partners. Due to the importance that customers place on reputation and trust when making a decision on a security provider, our brand is critical to our business. Patents for individual products extend for varying periods according to the date of patent filing or grant and the legal term of patents in the various countries where patent protection is obtained. Trademark rights may potentially extend for longer periods of time and are dependent upon national laws and use of the marks.

Employees

As of December 30, 2011, we employed more than 16,000 people. Approximately 10% of our field employees are covered by collective bargaining agreements. We believe that our relations with our employees and labor unions are good.

Facilities and Equipment

We operate through a network of approximately 200 sales and service offices, six monitoring facilities, four customer and field support locations and two national sales call centers, located throughout the United States and Canada. These properties total approximately three million square feet, the majority of which is leased. We lease approximately 3,800 vehicles which are used in the installation and service activities of our business.

Our corporate headquarters is located in Boca Raton, FL. We are currently co-located in the same facility as Tyco and, pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, we have agreed to share the facility with Tyco for the duration of the lease term. However, we intend to be in segregated space within the facility, with each company having its own entrance, security and maintenance systems. We have agreed to lease this space directly from the third-party building owner at market rates for a 12-year period from the distribution date. Post-separation we expect to maintain certain transition arrangements with Tyco related to our monitoring, information technology and branch operations. See “Certain Relationships and Related Party Transactions—Agreements with Tyco.”

Government Regulation and Other Regulatory Matters

Our operations are subject to numerous federal, state and local laws and regulations in the United States and Canada in areas such as consumer protection, government contracts, trade, environmental protection, labor and employment, tax, licensing and others. For example, most U.S. states in which we operate have licensing laws directed specifically toward the alarm industry. In certain jurisdictions, we must obtain licenses or permits in order to comply with standards governing employee selection, training and business conduct.

We also currently rely extensively upon the use of wireline and wireless telephone service to communicate signals, and wireline and wireless telephone companies in the United States are regulated by the federal and state governments. The Federal Communications Commission and state public utilities commissions regulate the operation and use of wireless telephone and radio frequencies. While the usage of wired phone service has been decreasing, we believe we are well positioned to respond to these trends with alternate transmission methods, including cellular, digital radio and broadband Internet technologies. Our advertising and sales practices are regulated by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission and state consumer protection laws. In addition, we are subject to certain administrative requirements and laws of the jurisdictions in which we operate. These laws and regulations may include restrictions on the manner in which we promote the sale of our security alarm services and require us to provide most purchasers of our services with three-day or longer rescission rights.

Some local government authorities have adopted or are considering various measures aimed at reducing false alarms. Such measures include requiring permits for individual alarm systems, revoking such permits following a specified number of false alarms, imposing fines on alarm customers or alarm monitoring companies for false alarms, limiting the number of times police will respond to alarms at a particular location after a specified number of false alarms, requiring additional verification of an alarm signal before the police respond or providing no response to residential system alarms.

The alarm industry is also subject to requirements, codes and standards imposed by various insurance, approval and listing and standards organizations. Depending upon the type of customer, security service provided and requirements of the applicable local governmental jurisdiction, adherence to the requirements, codes and standards of such organizations is mandatory in some instances and voluntary in others.

These and other laws and regulations impact the manner in which we conduct our business, and changes in legislation or government policies can affect our operations, both positively and negatively.

Legal Proceedings

We have been named as a defendant in two putative class actions that were filed on behalf of purported classes of persons who claim to have received unsolicited “robocalls” in contravention of the U.S. Telephone Consumer Protection Act (“TCPA”). These lawsuits were brought by plaintiffs seeking class action status and monetary damages on behalf of all plaintiffs who allegedly received such unsolicited calls, claiming that millions of calls were made by third party entities on our behalf. We assert that such entities were not retained by us nor authorized to make calls on our behalf. These matters have been consolidated in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois into one civil action. Each violation under the TCPA provides for $500 in statutory damages ($1,500 if a willful violation is shown). We believe that ADT has meritorious defenses to these claims and, accordingly, intends to vigorously defend against these actions. We have made no provision for this contingency as a reasonable estimate of loss cannot be made at this time.

In addition, we are subject to various claims and lawsuits in the ordinary course of our business, including from time to time contractual disputes, product and general liability claims, claims that we have infringed the intellectual property rights of others, claims related to alleged security system failures and consumer class actions. We have recorded accruals for losses that we believe are probable to occur and are reasonably estimable. See Note 9 (“Commitments and Contingencies”) to our combined financial statements for further information. While the ultimate outcome of these matters cannot be predicted with certainty, we believe that the resolution of any such proceedings, will not have a material adverse effect on our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

and Governance Committee charter. The initial members of the Nominating and Governance Committee will be determined prior to the spin-off.

Codes of Conduct

Prior to the completion of the spin-off, we intend to adopt a written code of ethics for executive officers and senior financial officers that is designed to deter wrongdoing and to promote, among other things:

- honest and ethical conduct, including the ethical handling of actual or apparent conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships;
- full, fair, accurate, timely and understandable disclosure in reports and documents that we file with the SEC and other regulators and in our other public communications;
- compliance with applicable laws, rules and regulations, including insider trading compliance; and
- accountability for adherence to the code and prompt internal reporting of violations of the code, including illegal or unethical behavior regarding accounting or auditing practices.

A copy of our code of ethics will be posted on our website immediately prior to the Distribution.

Director Nomination Process

Our initial board of directors will be selected through a process involving both us and Tyco.

We intend to adopt corporate governance policies that will contain information concerning the responsibilities of the Nominating and Governance Committee with respect to identifying and evaluating future director candidates.

In accordance with these governance policies, the Nominating and Governance Committee will seek to create a board of directors that as a whole is strong in its collective knowledge and has a diversity of skills and experience with respect to vision and strategy, management and leadership, business operations, business judgment, crisis management, risk assessment, industry knowledge, accounting and finance, corporate governance and global markets. Our board of directors will not have a specific policy regarding diversity. Instead, the Nominating and Governance Committee will consider the board of directors' overall composition when considering a potential new candidate, including whether the board of directors has an appropriate combination of professional experience, skills, knowledge and variety of viewpoints and backgrounds in light of our current and expected future needs. We believe that it is desirable for new candidates to contribute to a variety of viewpoints on the board of directors, which may be enhanced by a mix of different professional and personal backgrounds and experiences.

General criteria for the nomination of director candidates will include:

- the highest ethical standards and integrity;
- a willingness to act on and be accountable for board of directors' decisions;
- an ability to provide wise, informed and thoughtful counsel to top management on a range of issues;
- a history of achievement that reflects superior standards for themselves and others;
- loyalty and commitment to driving the success of ADT;
- an ability to take tough positions while at the same time working as a team player; and
- individual backgrounds that provide a portfolio of experience and knowledge commensurate with our needs.

Communications with Non-Management Members of the Board of Directors

Generally, it is the responsibility of management to speak for ADT in communications with outside parties, but we intend to set forth, in our corporate governance policies, certain processes by which shareholders and other interested third parties may communicate with non-management members of our board of directors.

COMPENSATION OF DIRECTORS

Director Compensation

Following the spin-off, director compensation will be determined by our board of directors with the assistance of its Nominating and Governance Committee. It is anticipated that such compensation will consist of an annual cash retainer in the amount of $80,000 per year and an annual equity award of restricted stock units (“RSUs”) with a grant date fair value of approximately $120,000 and a one-year vesting term. In addition, we anticipate that the non-executive chairman of our board of directors will receive an additional cash retainer in the amount of $150,000 per year, the chairs of the Audit Committee and ADT Compensation Committee will receive an additional cash retainer in the amount of $20,000 per year and that the chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee will receive an additional cash retainer in the amount of $15,000 per year. We will not provide directors who are also our employees any additional compensation for serving as a director.

The following table sets forth information concerning the fiscal year 2011 compensation paid by Tyco to non-employee directors of Tyco who are expected to be non-employee directors of ADT. All non-employee directors received an annual cash retainer of $100,000 and RSUs with one year vesting terms and a value at grant of approximately $120,000. The table below sets forth the 2011 grant date fair value of equity based compensation computed in accordance with GAAP.

Director Compensation for 2011

Mr. Timothy Donahue . . . . .	$ 90,879	$120,043	$ —	$210,922
Mr. Bruce Gordon . . . . .	$131,319	$120,043	$10,000	$261,362
Mr. Dinesh Paliwal . . . . .	$ 54,615	$120,043	$21,950	$196,608

- (1) During fiscal year 2011, Tyco’s directors received a pro-rated portion of the cash fees described above.
- (2) This column reflects the fair value of the entire amount of awards granted to directors calculated in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board Accounting Standards Codification (“FASB ASC”) Topic 718, excluding estimated forfeitures. The fair value of RSUs is computed by multiplying the total number of shares subject to the award by the closing market price of Tyco common shares on the date of grant. RSUs granted to board members generally vest and the underlying units are converted to shares and delivered to board members on the anniversary of the grant date.
- (3) All other compensation for Mr. Gordon includes the aggregate value of all matching charitable contributions made by Tyco on behalf of the directors during the fiscal year. Tyco matches the contributions of directors made to qualifying charities up to a maximum of $10,000 per calendar year. For Mr. Paliwal, all other compensation includes $20,000 of fees paid to him in fiscal year 2011 prior to his election at the annual meeting of shareholders in March 2011. Tyco invited Mr. Paliwal to observe certain board meetings prior to his election in March 2011 and agreed to pay fees in connection therewith. Mr. Paliwal also received $20,000 in such fees in fiscal year 2010. In addition, all other compensation includes the value of the discount on home security systems installed by Tyco in Directors’ homes and discounts on security monitoring services. These discounts did not exceed $1,950 for any director listed above in fiscal year 2011.

COMPENSATION OF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Compensation Discussion and Analysis

This section presents information concerning compensation arrangements for our named executive officers. Our named executive officers are the individuals who will be the chief executive officer, chief financial officer and the three most highly compensated ADT executive officers based on their fiscal year 2011 compensation with Tyco. We provide historical information concerning the compensation of the ADT named executive officers who are listed below.

ADT Named Executive Officers	Historic Role at Tyco
Mr. Naren Gursahaney Chief executive officer	President of Tyco Security Solutions
Ms. Kathryn Mikells Chief financial officer	Not applicable<sup>(1)</sup>
Mr. David Bleisch Chief legal counsel	General Counsel of Tyco Security Solutions
Mr. Mark Edoff Senior vice president of business operations optimization	Chief Financial Officer of Tyco Security Solutions
Ms. Anita Graham Chief human resources and administrative officer	Vice President of Human Resources of Tyco Security Solutions

(1) Ms. Mikells joined ADT in April 2012 and therefore had no historic role or compensation at Tyco.

This historical compensation information is provided to give context to our new pay practices at ADT, which are based on Tyco's historic pay practices. ADT's pay practices are being developed and revised to fit with the pay philosophy of ADT and therefore the amounts and forms of compensation reported below do not necessarily reflect the compensation these executive officers will receive following the spin-off. The ADT Compensation Committee will review the impact of the spin-off from Tyco and will review all aspects of compensation and may make adjustments that it believes are appropriate in structuring our executive compensation arrangements. With respect to future compensation from ADT, we have presented information below under "—Key Elements of Expected Compensation from ADT" concerning anticipated compensation for each of these named executive officers. Each of our named executive officers holds various long-term equity-based incentive awards that were granted by Tyco. Treatment of these awards in the spin-off is described under "—Treatment of Outstanding Options, Restricted Stock Units, Performance Share Units and Deferred Share Units."

Compensation Overview and Philosophy

Historically. In designing Tyco's executive compensation programs, Tyco's Compensation & Human Resources Committee (the "Tyco Compensation Committee") has been guided by its philosophy that executive compensation programs must:

- reinforce Tyco's business objectives and the creation of long-term shareholder value;
- provide for performance-based reward opportunities that support growth and innovation without encouraging or rewarding excessive risk;
- align the interests of executives with those of shareholders by weighting a significant portion of compensation on sustained shareholder returns through long-term performance programs;
- attract, retain and motivate key executives by providing competitive compensation with an appropriate mix of fixed and variable compensation, short-term and long-term incentives and cash- and equity-based pay; and

- recognize and support outstanding individual performance and behaviors that demonstrate Tyco’s core values—Integrity, Excellence, Teamwork and Accountability.

Going Forward. Following the spin-off, the ADT Compensation Committee will evaluate and determine the appropriate executive compensation philosophy for ADT.

Role of the Compensation Committee

Historically. The Tyco Compensation Committee consists exclusively of independent directors, who are also “outside directors” as defined in Section 162(m) of the Code. The Tyco Compensation Committee is responsible for, among other things, (1) reviewing and approving Tyco’s compensation, benefits and human resources policies and objectives; (2) determining whether Tyco’s officers, directors and employees are compensated in accordance with those policies and objectives; and (3) fulfilling the board’s responsibilities relating to compensation of Tyco’s executives. Tyco’s board of directors and the Tyco Compensation Committee have direct approval authority over the compensation of Tyco’s “senior officers” (those “Section 16” officers who are required to report trading in Tyco securities under SEC rules) and its “senior executives” (those executives who are not senior officers, but who have a base salary of $400,000 or greater). During fiscal year 2011, Mr. Gursahaney was a named executive officer of Tyco, and none of our other named executive officers were considered senior officers or senior executives of Tyco. The authority for compensation decisions relating to Messrs. Bleisch and Edoff and Ms. Graham was delegated to Tyco’s CEO and its Senior Vice President, Human Resources.

Going Forward. Following the spin-off, we expect that the ADT Compensation Committee will have similar responsibilities and similar approval authority over the compensation for ADT’s executives.

Process Overview: How the Compensation Committee Designs and Establishes Executive Compensation

Historically. The Tyco Compensation Committee evaluates many factors when designing and establishing executive compensation plans and targets. In determining the appropriate compensation of individual named executive officers, the Tyco Compensation Committee considers critical data including the relative complexity and importance of the executive’s role within the organization, the executive’s experience, record of performance and potential, the compensation levels paid to similarly positioned executives at our peer group companies and internal pay equity considerations.

Each year, the Tyco Compensation Committee reviews the composition of Tyco’s peer group with the assistance of its independent compensation consultant to ensure that it aligns with Tyco’s size and lines of businesses. Any change to the peer group is subject to the Tyco Compensation Committee’s approval. The peer group is drawn from companies in the S&P 500 Index, and the Tyco Compensation Committee analyzes up to 17 factors in determining inclusion, including rank within the S&P 500 Index, overlapping business lines, number of employees and various performance and financial measures. The Tyco Compensation Committee did not make any changes to the peer group in fiscal year 2011 after updating the peer group in fiscal year 2010. The peer group consists of 17 industrial and service companies that reflect the competitive landscape in which Tyco operates. It also takes into account the diverse nature of Tyco’s operations, which are a blend of world-class manufacturing capabilities and premier service delivery.

| • 3M Co.               | • General Dynamics Corp.        | • Raytheon Co.              |
| • Danaher Corp.        | • Honeywell International, Inc. | • Sprint Nextel Corp.       |
| • Deere & Co.          | • Illinois Tool Works, Inc.     | • Time Warner Cable Inc.    |
| • DirecTV Group, Inc.  | • Ingersoll-Rand PLC            | • United Technologies Corp. |
| • Eaton Corp.          | • ITT Corp.                     | • Waste Management, Inc.    |
| • Emerson Electric Co. | • Johnson Controls Inc.         |                             |

In addition to the peer group, the Tyco Committee considers general industry data (excluding financial service companies) that is regressed to approximate the size and complexity of Tyco as a secondary source. Tyco's talent strategy calls for both the development of internal leadership and the recruitment of highly experienced leaders from outside Tyco. Tyco does not position executive pay to reflect a single percentile within the peer group, but broadly targets the 50th percentile for base salaries and performance-based pay at or slightly above the 50th percentile. Although these benchmarks represent useful guidelines, the Tyco Compensation Committee exercises discretion in setting individual executive compensation packages so that they appropriately reflect the value and expected contributions of each executive to Tyco, as well as the executive's leadership, commitment to our values and potential for advancement.

Tyco designed its executive compensation program to achieve balance between fixed and variable compensation, short- and long-term incentive and cash- and equity-based compensation. An overarching goal of Tyco's executive compensation program is to link a significant portion of executive pay with investor returns. As a result, in fiscal year 2011, over 65% of the targeted direct pay for each of Tyco's named executive officers, excluding Tyco's CEO, was in the form of long term equity awards. Additionally, over 48% of targeted cash compensation for Tyco's named executive officers was in the form of an annual performance bonus.

Going Forward. Following the spin-off, the ADT Compensation Committee will evaluate and determine the appropriate design of the ADT executive compensation program and the appropriate process for establishing executive compensation.

Elements of Compensation

Historically. When determining executive compensation, the Tyco Compensation Committee focuses on four primary categories of compensation, which are described in more detail below. Each year, the Tyco Compensation Committee completes a comprehensive review of these elements utilizing tally sheets prepared by company management for each Tyco named executive officer. Tally sheets identify the value of each pay element, including base salary, annual bonus, sign-on or other cash payments, long-term incentives and benefit and perquisite payments, and help the Tyco Compensation Committee to better understand the effect that changing any discrete pay element will have on the total compensation provided to each executive. This data also clearly illustrates the effect that changing the core compensation elements will have on Tyco's competitive positioning. Tally sheets also reveal how well each pay element is aligned with Tyco's compensation philosophy and objectives and show the value of all compensation elements under multiple termination scenarios. For fiscal year 2011, tally sheets were used by the Tyco Compensation Committee to evaluate the compensation of Mr. Gursahaney.

Tyco's executive compensation program incorporates four primary elements of compensation, which are described below:

- base salary;
- annual incentive compensation;
- long-term incentive compensation; and
- executive benefit plans and other elements of compensation.

Base Salary

Base salary recognizes the value of an individual based on his/her role, skill, performance, experience, leadership and potential. It is critical in attracting and retaining executive talent. The Tyco Compensation Committee reviews base salaries for both senior officers and senior executives on an annual basis. During fiscal year 2011, the Tyco Compensation Committee approved an 8.9% increase for Mr. Gursahaney, which was the first increase he received since January 2008. Also during fiscal year 2011, Mr. Bleisch received a 2.8% increase.

Annual Incentive Compensation

For fiscal year 2011, annual incentive compensation for Mr. Gursahaney and Tyco's other senior officers was paid in the form of an annual performance bonus under Tyco's 2004 Stock and Incentive Plan (the "2004 SIP"). For fiscal year 2011, annual incentive compensation for Messrs. Bleisch and Edoff and Ms. Graham was paid in the form of an annual performance bonus under Tyco's Annual Incentive Plan (AIP). Annual incentive compensation rewards the senior officers and executives for their execution of the operating plan and other strategic initiatives, as well as for financial performance that benefits the business and drives long-term shareholder value creation. It places a meaningful proportion of total cash compensation at risk, thereby aligning executive rewards with financial results. It also offers an opportunity for meaningful pay differentiation tied to the performance of individuals and groups.

In the first quarter of fiscal year 2011, the Tyco Compensation Committee established performance measures and targets for Tyco (and for each group, division and business segment), and they set a minimum performance threshold of $450 million in adjusted net income (adjusted for (i) business acquisitions and disposals, (ii) debt refinancing, (iii) legacy legal and tax matters, (iv) goodwill and intangible asset impairments, (v) tax law changes, (vi) discontinued operations and (vii) changes in accounting) that had to be met for its named executive officers to receive any bonuses for the year. The impact of these adjustments was not significant to the determination of whether the minimum threshold was met. These metrics were also approved by the independent members of Tyco's board of directors. The Tyco Compensation Committee also approved individual maximum bonus amounts for Mr. Gursahaney of 0.25% of adjusted net income, subject to a cap of $2.5 million. After setting these minimum performance thresholds and maximum payouts, the Tyco Compensation Committee further refined target and maximum payout values as a percentage of base salary. For Tyco's named executive officers, target incentive opportunities ranged from 80% to 125% of base salary for fiscal year 2011. Potential payouts ranged from 0% to 200% of the target incentive opportunity.

The performance measures approved for the corporate and group levels of the organization (including Tyco Security Solutions, of which ADT was a part) were also established in the first quarter of fiscal year 2011 and were used by the Tyco Compensation Committee and its board of directors to determine final bonuses for Tyco's named executive officers. These performance measures were based on the expectation that the global economy would modestly grow over the course of fiscal year 2011, with all of Tyco's businesses returning to organic revenue growth and operating margins improving based on volume growth and aggressive cost management. For fiscal year 2011, the Tyco Compensation Committee increased the weighting of the revenue component under the AIP for each of our named executive officers in order to emphasize the importance of organic growth at both the corporate level and for the Tyco Security Solutions business segment. These performance measures and related results are described in the table below. Target and maximum payout values under the annual performance bonus plan were set as a percentage of base salary. Target incentive opportunities ranged from 50% to 100% of base salary for fiscal year 2011 for our named executive officers. Potential payouts ranged from 0% to 200% of the target incentive opportunity.

Description of Performance Measures: For compensation purposes, EPS from continuing operations, Adjusted FCF and operating income are adjusted to exclude the effects of events that the Tyco Compensation Committee deems do not reflect the performance of the named executive officers. The categories of special items are identified at the time the performance measure is approved at the beginning of the fiscal year, although the Tyco Compensation Committee may at its discretion make adjustments during the fiscal year. Special items include gains, losses or cash outlays that may mask the underlying operating results and/or business trends of our company or our business segment, as applicable. For fiscal year 2011, the approved categories of adjustments included adjustments related to (i) business acquisitions and divestitures; (ii) debt refinancing; (iii) legacy legal and tax matters; (iv) goodwill and intangible asset impairments; (v) tax law changes; (vi) certain unbudgeted capital expenditures; (vii) unbudgeted restructuring charges; and (viii) realignments of segment and corporate costs. At the beginning of the fiscal year, the Tyco Compensation Committee also decided that it would be appropriate to continue to limit the effects of the volatility inherent in the EMP business segment (a majority of which was sold in the first fiscal quarter) on the performance measures applicable to the corporate level. Adjusted FCF is calculated by first adjusting cash flow from operations by removing the effects of the sale of accounts receivable programs, cash paid for purchase accounting and holdback liabilities and voluntary pension contributions, deducting net capital expenditures and then adding back the special items that increased or decreased cash flows. Working capital days are generally calculated by dividing annualized average working capital by revenue of the applicable unit. Revenue is calculated in constant currency, which negates the impact of fluctuations in foreign currency over the course of the year, with adjustments made to targets to reflect the acquisition or divestitures of businesses over the course of the fiscal year.

The table below shows the maximum and target annual incentive compensation opportunities for fiscal year 2011 and the actual payments earned by each of ADT named executive officers. These amounts are reported in the “Non-Equity Incentive Plan Compensation” column of the “—Summary Compensation Table.”

Fiscal Year 2011 Performance Bonus Summary

Anita Graham . . . . .	$ 468,000	$234,000	$316,953

(1) In December 2010, the Tyco Compensation Committee established and the Tyco board of directors approved potential maximum annual incentive compensation payouts of 0.25% of adjusted net income for Mr. Gursahaney, subject to a cap of $2.5 million. The Tyco Compensation Committee further established a maximum payout of 200% of target incentive opportunity for each of the ADT named executive officers.

(2) Ms. Mikells was not employed by Tyco during fiscal year 2011 and therefore no incentive compensation information with respect to Ms. Mikells appears in this table.

The Tyco Compensation Committee and the independent members of the Tyco board of directors approved award payout for Mr. Gursahaney in November 2011 based on the achievement of the minimum adjusted net income performance threshold of $450 million and the achievement of the quantitative performance measures shown in the “—Fiscal Year 2011 Annual Incentive Compensation Design Summary” table above.

Long-Term Incentive Awards

A key element in the compensation of Tyco’s officers is long-term equity incentive awards (“LTI compensation”), which tie a significant portion of compensation to Tyco’s performance. The Tyco Compensation Committee believes that LTI compensation serves Tyco’s executive compensation philosophy in several ways. It helps attract, retain and motivate talent. It aligns the interests of officers with the interests of shareholders by linking a significant portion of the officer’s total pay opportunity to share price. It provides long-term accountability for officers, and it offers the incentive of performance-based opportunities for capital accumulation in lieu of a pension plan for most of Tyco’s executive management.

Tyco uses a combination of stock options, restricted stock units and performance share units in its long-term incentive award program. In fiscal year 2011, Mr. Gursahaney was granted equity awards under the 2004 SIP consisting of stock options (40%), performance share units (40%) and restricted stock units (20%). Messrs. Bleisch and Edoff were granted awards consisting of stock options (33%), performance share units (34%) and restricted stock units (33%). As Ms. Graham was hired after the first quarter of fiscal year 2011, she was not eligible to receive performance share units. She was granted awards consisting of stock options (50%) and restricted stock units (50%).

Stock options granted by Tyco generally vest in equal installments over a period of four years, beginning on the first anniversary of the grant date, and the exercise price equals the fair market value of Tyco common stock on the date of grant. Each option holder has 10 years to exercise his or her stock options from the date of grant, unless forfeited earlier.

Restricted stock units granted by Tyco generally vest over a period of four years in equal installments. Restricted stock units accrue dividend-equivalent units during the vesting period, which vest and are delivered upon settlement, and do not carry voting rights until they are settled in shares.

Performance share units granted by Tyco generally vest at the end of the three-year performance period. The number of shares that are actually earned depends on whether, and at what level, the performance criteria have been met. Performance share units granted by Tyco in fiscal year 2011 accrue dividends prior to vesting, which vest and are paid out only to the extent that performance targets are achieved. Performance share units do not have any voting rights. For performance share units granted in connection with Tyco's fiscal year 2011 equity award, the relevant metrics are (i) Tyco's three-year total shareholder return ("TSR") between September 25, 2010 and September 27, 2013 (50% weighting) and (ii) Tyco's cumulative earnings per share before special items ("cumulative EPS") over the same period (50% weighting). Tyco's TSR is to be compared with the total shareholder return of all the companies in the S&P 500 Industrials Index for the same period. The TSR return measure is based on the average of the closing Tyco stock price for the 60 trading days preceding and the last 60 trading days of, the performance period, plus a total return factor to reflect the reinvestment of dividends during the three-year period. If Tyco's total shareholder return is not equal to or better than the total shareholder return for 35% of the companies constituting the S&P 500 Industrials Index, no shares will be delivered with respect to the TSR performance metric. If Tyco's total shareholder return is equal to the total shareholder return for 50% of the companies constituting the S&P 500 Industrials Index, the target number of shares for the TSR weighted component of the performance share units will vest and be paid out. If Tyco's total shareholder return is equal to or greater than the total shareholder return for 75% of the companies constituting the S&P 500 Industrials Index, the maximum number of shares for the TSR weighted component of the performance share units will vest and be paid out. Total shareholder returns that fall between the specified percentile levels are adjusted on a linear basis. Total shareholder return in between threshold, target and maximum will be interpolated on a straight-line basis. The cumulative EPS metric also contains a minimum performance threshold. The maximum number of shares each named executive officer can receive with respect to the fiscal year 2011 performance share plan is 200% of the target number of shares granted. In addition, if Tyco's TSR is negative at the end of the performance period, the maximum payout for the TSR metric is capped at 125% of the target number of shares, with a similar cap for the cumulative EPS performance threshold.

Forfeiture provisions related to involuntary terminations are described below under "—Change in Control and Severance Benefits." Special termination provisions apply for employees who are terminated in connection with the spin-off and are described below under "—Severance Arrangements Not in Connection with a Change in Control."

In October 2011, Tyco made its annual equity award in respect of fiscal year 2012. ADT named executive officers other than Ms. Graham continued to receive the same mix of equity awards that they had in fiscal year 2011. Fiscal year 2012 is the first year in which Ms. Graham was eligible to receive the same mix as Messrs. Bleisch and Edoff because it was her first complete year of service. Unlike performance share unit awards granted in prior years, with respect to the 2012 performance share units, the Tyco Compensation Committee replaced the cumulative earnings per share metric with a return on invested capital ("ROIC") measure, so that the performance shares units are 50% weighted on TSR and 50% weighted on ROIC. The ROIC metric is designed to reward executives for efficiently allocating capital and generating profitable growth. The TSR measure for the fiscal year 2012 award is consistent with the TSR measure for the fiscal year 2011 award. Additionally, the performance period was shortened to one year to coincide with the expected completion date of the spin-off, although a three-year holding period continues to apply for normal vesting.

For a description of the expected treatment of outstanding equity awards held by employees of ADT, including the named executive officers, see "—Treatment of Outstanding Options, Restricted Stock Units, Performance Share Units and Deferred Stock Units."

Going forward. With respect to base salaries, annual incentive compensation and long-term incentive awards (or their equivalents), it is expected that the ADT Compensation Committee will develop programs reflecting appropriate measures, goals and targets for the residential and small business security industry and business objectives and based on ADT's competitive marketplace.

Executive Benefit Plans and Other Elements of Compensation

Historically. All of our named executive officers, other than our chief financial officer, have been eligible to participate in the benefit plans that are available to substantially all of Tyco's U.S. employees. These benefit programs include Tyco's tax-qualified 401(k) Retirement Savings and Investment Plans ("RSIP") and its medical insurance, dental insurance, life insurance, long-term disability and long-term care plans. The retirement programs at Tyco generally do not include active defined benefit plans, and none of our named executive officers participate in a defined pension benefit plan. Our named executive officers, other than our chief financial officer, have been eligible to participate in the Tyco Supplemental Savings and Retirement Plan ("SSRP"), which is a deferred compensation plan that permits the elective deferral of base salary and annual performance-based bonus for executives earning more than $110,000 per year. The SSRP provides executives with the opportunity to:

- contribute retirement savings in addition to amounts permitted under the RSIP;
- defer compensation on a tax-deferred basis and receive tax-deferred market-based growth; and
- receive any Tyco contributions that were reduced under the RSIP due to IRS compensation limits.

In recent years, the Tyco Compensation Committee has reviewed the other elements of compensation that were historically part of the named executive officers' total compensation and has taken steps to phase-out programs that it believes are not in line with best practices. Tyco provided limited perquisites and other benefits to certain of its executives, including our named executive officers, consisting of the following:

Supplemental insurance benefits (executive life, disability and long-term care). These programs provide life insurance, long-term disability insurance and long-term care insurance to certain executives. Tyco's executive life insurance program typically provides a death benefit equal to approximately two times base salary and allows the executive to elect to pay additional premiums into the plan. Tyco's executive disability insurance program ensures salary continuation above the $15,000 monthly benefit limit provided by our broad based disability plan. The executive long-term care insurance program covers certain executives in the event of chronic illness or disability. Under the program, Tyco pays the long-term care premium for 10 years, after which the insurance is fully paid. If the executive leaves prior to the end of the 10-year payment period, he or she has the option to continue making the premium payments to maintain the coverage. Mr. Gursahaney was the only one of our named executive officers eligible for these benefits.

On January 1, 2010, Tyco ceased the practice of paying tax gross-ups for its executives on life insurance and long-term disability insurance programs, as the Tyco Compensation Committee determined that this benefit was not in line with best practices. Executives can elect to continue to receive supplemental insurance benefits at their expense when they leave us. In December 2010, Tyco ceased making premium payments for the supplemental life, disability and long-term care benefits described above for newly hired or promoted executives.

Cash perquisite allowance plan. In addition, in fiscal year 2012, the Tyco Compensation Committee decided to end the cash perquisite allowance program for all officers of Tyco that received the benefit, including Messrs. Gursahaney and Edoff. This program, which was instituted in 2003 to eliminate costly and administratively burdensome perquisites such as company cars, club dues and tax preparation services, provided for a cash payment equal to 10% of the officers' base salary (up to a maximum of $70,000) that the officer could use without limitation. The Tyco Compensation Committee determined that, in light of current market practices at Tyco's peers and in the broader market, the program's benefits—in attracting and retaining talented executives—were outweighed by its costs. The Tyco Compensation Committee discontinued this plan as of January 2012. In connection with the discontinuance of this plan, Tyco made a one-time grant of restricted stock units with a fair value equal to two times the annual value of the cash allowance to each of the existing officers who were receiving the benefit at the time of its termination. The fair value of the grant was equal to two times the annual value of the cash allowance for such officer, and the restricted stock units have a pro-rata vesting schedule of two years.

Executive physicals. During fiscal year 2011, the Tyco Compensation Committee instituted coverage for an annual executive physical. Tyco strongly believes in investing in the health and well being of its executives as an important component in providing continued effective leadership for the company. All of Tyco’s named executive officers were eligible for this benefit.

Going Forward. Following the spin-off, the ADT Compensation Committee will determine the appropriate benefits and perquisites, if any, that will be made available to its named executive officers.

Change in Control and Severance Benefits

Historically. The Tyco Severance Plan for U.S. Officers and Executives (the “Severance Plan”) and the Tyco Change in Control Severance Plan for Certain U.S. Officers and Executives (the “CIC Severance Plan”) generally govern the benefits that accrue to the named executive officers upon their termination of service to Tyco. As employees of Tyco affiliates, all of our named executives are eligible employees under the Severance Plan, and Mr. Gursahaney is eligible under the CIC Severance Plan.

Tyco offers severance and change in control protection termination in order to allow the named executive officers to remain focused on their duties rather than contingencies that may occur during the course of their employment. Tyco also believes that severance and change in control termination protection is needed to attract and retain the best talent available.

The table below summarizes the key terms and provisions of the severance plans that are currently in effect at Tyco. Refer to the “—Potential Payments Upon Termination and Change in Control” table for the estimated dollar value of the benefits that would have been available to our named executive officers under the severance plans in effect as of Tyco’s fiscal year-end.

(1) In connection with the proposed spin-off, the Tyco Compensation Committee approved certain changes to equity awards for employees (other than Tyco's CEO) who are terminated in connection therewith. Unvested equity awards granted prior to October 12, 2011 (the date of the annual grant for fiscal year 2012), including awards held by our named executive officers, have been modified to provide that, for each employee whose employment is terminated in connection with the spin-off prior to its one year anniversary,

(1) any unvested stock options, restricted share units or performance share units will fully vest upon termination of employment (subject, in the case of performance share units, to the completion of the applicable performance period) and (2) the exercise period for any stock options that were granted in the period from January 1, 2008 to October 11, 2011 will be extended to comprise the one-year period following the date of such termination for such employee.

Awards granted on or after October 12, 2011 in connection with Tyco's annual grant, including awards granted to our named executive officers (unless retirement eligible), provide that, for each employee whose employment is terminated in connection with the spin-off in the period from the grant date through the date that is one year following the completion of the spin-off, any unvested stock options, restricted stock units and performance share units will accelerate and vest pro rata based on the number of full months of service completed from the grant date through the employment termination date. Certain officers, including all of our named executive officers, will continue to be eligible for one additional year's worth of stock option vesting if they are terminated by Tyco not for "cause" after the one-year anniversary of the grant date. The one-year holding requirement will not apply to any such officer that is terminated in connection with the spin-off. Any stock options subject to such accelerated vesting provisions will have a one-year exercise period following the date of such termination for such employee.

The Severance Plan generally defines "Cause" as an executive's (i) substantial failure or refusal to perform duties and responsibilities of his or her job as required by Tyco; (ii) violation of any fiduciary duty owed to Tyco; (iii) conviction of a felony or misdemeanor; (iv) dishonesty; (v) theft; (vi) violation of Tyco rules or policy; or (vii) other egregious conduct, that has or could have a serious and detrimental impact on Tyco and its employees. The administrator of the Severance Plan, in its sole and absolute discretion, determines whether Cause exists.

With the exception of Mr. Gursahaney, none of our named executive officers are eligible to participate under Tyco's CIC Severance Plan. As described below, a "double trigger" is required under Tyco's CIC Severance Plan before most benefits become available to the executives covered by that plan. The spin-off does not constitute a triggering event that would result in severance benefits being paid to Mr. Gursahaney under Tyco's CIC Severance Plan.

Severance Arrangements in Connection with a Change in Control

Description	Mr. Gursahaney<sup>(1)</sup>
Governing document:	CIC Severance Plan. For equity awards, individual award agreements.
Additional events triggering severance cash benefits and benefits continuation (Change in Control Termination):	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Involuntary termination other than for Cause, permanent disability or death within the period beginning 60 days prior to and ending 24 months following a change in control.</li> <li>• Good Reason Resignation within the same time period.</li> </ul>
Severance cash benefit:	Two times base salary and two times annual target bonus.
Executive must sign release to receive severance benefits:	Yes.
Health and welfare benefits continuation:	Twelve months from date of termination for medical and dental and health care reimbursement account benefits only, if the executive does not commence employment with another company during the severance period. The executive will also be entitled to a cash payment equal to the projected value of the employer portion of medical and dental benefit premiums for a 12-month period.
Bonus in year of change in control:	Yes.
Equity treatment:	Substantially all of the individual equity awards for our named executive officers provide that, upon a change in control (and, with respect to awards granted in fiscal year 2009 and thereafter, upon a termination event): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• All options and RSUs vest in full.</li> <li>• All performance-based units vest at target.</li> <li>• Options remain exercisable until the earlier of (i) the expiration of the remainder of their term and (ii) up to three years following the executive's termination date.</li> </ul>
Excise tax gross-up payment:	No.
IRC Section 280G Cap on Benefits:	Yes, if the cap results in greater after tax payments to executive, otherwise benefits are not capped.
Outplacement assistance:	Up to 12 months.
Restrictive covenants:	Subject to confidentiality and non-disparagement covenants.

(1) The CIC Severance Plan applies only to Mr. Gursahaney while the equity treatment applies to all of our named executive officers.

Tyco's CIC Severance Plan provides the benefits outlined above only if, during the 60-day period prior to and the two-year period following a Change in Control, a Change in Control Termination occurs. The CIC Severance Plan generally defines "Cause" as (i) a material violation of any fiduciary duty owed to Tyco; (ii) conviction of or entry of a plea of nolo contendere with respect to, a felony or misdemeanor; (iii) dishonesty; (iv) theft; or (v) other egregious conduct, that is likely to have a materially detrimental impact on Tyco and its employees. Whether an executive's termination is due to "Cause" under the CIC Severance Plan is determined by the administrator of the CIC Severance Plan.

Tyco's CIC Severance Plan generally defines "Good Reason Resignation" as any retirement or termination of employment by an executive that is not initiated by Tyco and that is caused by any one or more of the following events, provided the event occurs in the period beginning 60 days before the change in control date and ending two years after that date:

- Without the executive's written consent, Tyco assigns the executive any duties inconsistent in any material respect with his or her authority, duties or responsibilities or any other action by Tyco which results in a significant diminution in such authority, duties or responsibilities;
- Without the executive's written consent, Tyco makes a material change in the geographic location at which the executive performs services to a location that is more than 60 miles from his or her existing principal place of employment;
- Without the executive's written consent, Tyco materially reduces the executive's base compensation and benefits, taken as a whole; or
- Tyco fails to obtain a satisfactory agreement from any successor to assume and agree to perform Tyco's obligations to the executive under the CIC Severance Plan.

If an executive remains employed for more than 150 days following the occurrence of any event set forth above, any subsequent retirement or termination of employment by the executive that is not initiated by Tyco will not constitute a "Good Reason Resignation." Whether an executive's termination is as a result of a "Good Reason Resignation" is determined by the administrator of the CIC Severance Plan.

Going Forward. It is expected that, upon completion of the Distribution, the ADT Compensation Committee will adopt and implement severance plans that are substantially the same as Tyco's Severance Plan and CIC Severance Plan, and that each of our named executive officers will participate in these plans. We expect that these plans will be the same as Tyco's plans in all material respects, except as follows:

Severance Arrangements Not in Connection with a Change in Control

Severance cash benefit:	Two times base salary and two times annual bonus target for the ADT CEO (same as Tyco's plan, except the Tyco plan references the higher of target or most recent annual bonus); 1.5 times base salary and 1.5 times annual bonus target for ADT's other named executive officers (compared to two times base salary and two times annual bonus for Tyco's officers).

Severance Arrangements in Connection with a Change in Control

Severance cash benefit:	Two times base salary and two times annual bonus target for the ADT CEO (compared to three times base salary and three times the higher of target or most recent annual bonus for Tyco's CEO); two times base salary and two times annual bonus target for ADT's other named executive officers (compared to 2.99 times (or two times for business unit presidents) base salary and 2.99 times annual bonus target (or two times for business unit presidents) for Tyco's officers).

Role of Independent Compensation Consultant and Company Management

Historically. In carrying out its role in establishing executive compensation plans, the Tyco Compensation Committee receives advice from an independent compensation consultant and considers pay strategies and recommendations prepared by Tyco's management. Under its charter, the Tyco Compensation Committee has the sole authority to retain, compensate and terminate the independent compensation consultants and any other advisors necessary to assist it in its evaluation of director, chief executive officer or other senior executive compensation. Since fiscal year 2007, the Tyco Compensation Committee has retained Exequity LLP ("Exequity") as its independent compensation consultant to provide services exclusively to the Tyco Compensation Committee. Among the responsibilities of Exequity are the following:

- conducting an ongoing review and critique of Tyco's director compensation programs;
- providing an ongoing review and critique of Tyco's executive compensation philosophy, the strategies associated with it and the composition of the peer group of companies;
- preparing periodic analyses of data, including data on competitive executive compensation;
- presenting updates on market trends;
- attending regular and special meetings of the Tyco Compensation Committee; and
- regularly conducting private meetings with the Tyco Compensation Committee and/or board of directors without management representatives.

In general, the independent compensation consultant develops pay strategies and recommendations relating to the Chief Executive Officer, which the consultant provides to the Tyco Compensation Committee. The Tyco Compensation Committee and the consultant then review and discuss all matters involving the Chief Executive Officer's compensation. After this review, the Tyco Compensation Committee prepares its own recommendation for the board of directors to review and discuss. The independent members of our board of directors have the sole authority to approve compensation decisions made with respect to the Chief Executive Officer, and the board of directors has established the scorecard against which the performance of the Chief Executive Officer is measured. The basis of the scorecard is the financial plan, as approved by the board of directors. However, the Tyco Compensation Committee reviews and approves the performance goals and objectives relevant to the Chief Executive Officer's compensation, evaluates his performance in light of those goals and objectives and, based upon this evaluation, recommends his compensation for approval by the independent members of the board of directors.

With respect to the named executive officers and Tyco's other senior officers and employees, it is the Chief Executive Officer and the Senior Vice President, Human Resources and Internal Communications, who develop the pay strategies and recommendations, which the Tyco Compensation Committee then reviews. However, the authority to approve those strategies and recommendations resides with different parties according to the employee's seniority. For Mr. Gursahaney and Tyco's other senior officers and senior executives, decisions must be approved by the independent members of the board of directors, subject to the Tyco Compensation Committee's authority regarding performance measures. For Messrs. Bleisch and Edoff, Ms. Graham and Tyco's other employees, the board of directors has granted the Chief Executive Officer and his designees the authority to approve pay actions. However, the Tyco Compensation Committee is responsible for approving actions related to other aspects of the compensation of these employees, such as the size of bonus pools, annual incentive plan performance goals, equity award design, equity value ranges and share pools and compensation packages for highly compensated employees who are not senior officers.

Going Forward. Following the spin-off, it is expected that the ADT Compensation Committee will retain a compensation consultant and the nature and scope of the compensation consultant's engagement will be similar to that of Tyco's Compensation Consultant.

Key Elements of Expected Compensation from ADT

Following the spin-off, ADT will be an independent public company with a board of directors and compensation committee separate from Tyco. Although the ADT Compensation Committee may make changes to the compensation arrangements for its executives, we expect that, at least initially, the elements of ADT's executive compensation program will be similar to those of Tyco. The following summarizes the principal elements of compensation that we expect to provide to each of our named executive officers following the spin-off.

Historical Compensation Information

The information set forth in the following table reflects compensation earned during fiscal year 2011 by our named executive officers (Mr. Gursahaney; Mr. Bleisch; Ms. Graham; and Mr. Edoff) but excluding Ms. Mikells, who was not employed by Tyco during the last fiscal year. The services rendered by these executives in fiscal year 2011 were, in some instances, in capacities not equivalent to the positions in which they will serve ADT or its subsidiaries. The information below reflects their positions and compensation information for fiscal year 2011, but is not necessarily indicative of the compensation these individuals will receive as executive officers of ADT. For information on the compensation of these individuals following the spin-off, see the description above under “—Compensation Discussion and Analysis—Key Elements of Expected Compensation from ADT.”

- (1) Bonus: The amount shown in column (d) reflects a sign-on bonus paid to Ms. Graham when she joined Tyco in March 2011.
- (2) Stock/Unit Awards and Option Awards: The amounts in columns (e) and (f) reflect the fair value of equity awards granted in fiscal year 2011, which consisted of stock options, restricted stock units (RSUs) and performance share units. These amounts represent the fair value of the entire amount of the award calculated in accordance with FASB ASC Topic 718, excluding the effect of estimated forfeitures. For stock options, amounts are computed by multiplying the fair value of the award (as determined under the Black-Scholes option pricing model) by the total number of options granted. For RSUs, fair value is computed by multiplying the total number of shares subject to the award by the closing market price of Tyco common stock on the date of grant. For performance share units, fair value is based on a model that considers the closing market price of Tyco common stock on the date of grant, the range of shares subject to such stock award and the estimated probabilities of vesting outcomes. The value of performance share units included in the table assumes target performance. The following amounts represent the maximum potential performance share value by individual for fiscal year 2011: Mr. Gursahaney—$1,795,514; Mr. Bleisch—$305,405; Mr. Edoff—$229,054. Information regarding the assumptions used to determine fair value appears in Note 12 (“Share Plans”) to our combined financial statements for fiscal year 2011.
- (3) Non-Equity Incentive Plan Compensation: The amounts reported in column (g) for each named executive officer reflect annual cash incentive compensation for fiscal year 2011. Annual incentive compensation is discussed in further detail above under the heading “Compensation Discussion and Analysis—Elements of Compensation—Annual Incentive Compensation.”
- (4) All Other Compensation: The amounts reported in column (i) for the named executive officers represent cash perquisites, insurance premiums paid by Tyco for the benefit of the officer (and, in some cases, the officer’s spouse), Tyco’s contributions to 401(k) plans and non-qualified plans of Tyco and its subsidiaries providing similar benefits and other miscellaneous benefits. The components of All Other Compensation for each named executive officer are shown in the following table.
- (5) Ms. Mikells was not employed by Tyco during fiscal year 2011 and therefore no historical compensation with respect to Ms. Mikells appears in this table.

Named Executive	Fiscal Year	Cash Perquisite (a)	Supplemental Executive Insurance Benefits(b)			Tax Gross-Ups (c)	Retirement Plan Contributions		Total All Other Compensation
			Variable Universal Life	Supplemental Disability	Long-Term Care		(d)	Miscellaneous (e)
Current Officers

David Bleisch	2011	—	—	—	—	$44,978	$33,179	$20,801	$98,958

- (a) Cash Perquisites reflect an annual cash perquisite payment equal to the lesser of 10% of the executive’s base salary and $70,000. Payments are made quarterly and are adjusted to reflect changes in salary. This benefit was discontinued by Tyco as of January 1, 2012.
- (b) Supplemental Executive Insurance Benefits reflect premiums paid by Tyco for insurance benefits for the executive and, in the case of long-term care, for the executive’s spouse as well. These benefits are provided to certain executives of Tyco upon the approval of the Tyco Compensation Committee.

- (c) The amounts shown in this column for Mr. Bleisch represent tax gross-up payments made with respect to taxable relocation expenses.
- (d) Retirement plan contributions include matching contributions made by Tyco on behalf of each executive to its tax-qualified 401(k) Retirement, Savings and Investment Plan and to its non-qualified Supplemental Savings and Retirement Plan.
- (e) Miscellaneous compensation in fiscal year 2011 includes matching contributions we made on behalf of Mr. Gursahaney and for Mr. Bleisch, the value of relocation benefits. Miscellaneous compensation also includes de minimis payments made for fractional shares to Messrs. Gursahaney, Bleisch and Edoff.

Grants of Plan-Based Awards in Fiscal Year 2011

The following table summarizes cash-based and equity-based awards for each of the named executive officers that were granted during fiscal year 2011 under the Tyco 2004 SIP. 	5/4/2011							4,620			$224,902

- (1) Amounts reported in columns (c) through (e) represent potential annual performance bonuses that the named executive officers could have earned under Tyco’s annual incentive plan for fiscal year 2011. Threshold amounts assume minimum performance levels are achieved with respect to each performance measure.
- (2) Amounts in (f) through (h) represent potential share payouts with respect to performance share unit awards that were made in connection with the fiscal year 2011 long-term compensation grant. Performance share units were granted to our named executive officers other than Ms. Graham in October 2010 and vest at the end of the three-year performance period on September 27, 2013. The number of shares that will be paid out will depend on Tyco’s (i) three-year annualized total shareholder return over the performance period, as compared to the return for the S&P 500 Industrials Index and (ii) achievement of cumulative earnings per share before special items over the performance period.
- (3) Amounts in column (l) show the grant date fair value of the option awards, restricted stock unit awards and performance share unit awards granted to our named executive officers. Amounts for performance share unit awards represent the estimate of the aggregate compensation cost to be recognized over the three year performance period determined as of the grant date under FASB ASC Topic 718, excluding the effect of estimated forfeitures. The actual number of shares that are paid out will depend on Tyco’s achievement of the performance metrics at the end of the performance period.
- (4) Ms. Mikells was not employed by Tyco during fiscal year 2011 and therefore no cash-based and equity-based awards with respect to Ms. Mikells appear in this table.

For a discussion of the terms of the annual performance bonuses, performance share unit awards, option awards and restricted stock unit awards, please see “—Compensation Discussion and Analysis—Elements of Compensation.”

Outstanding Equity Awards at 2011 Fiscal Year-End

The following table shows, for each of ADT's named executive officers, all Tyco equity awards that were outstanding as of September 30, 2011. Dollar amounts are based on the NYSE closing price of $40.75 for Tyco's common stock on September 30, 2011. - (2) The amounts in columns (f) and (g) reflect, for each named executive officer, the number and market value of RSUs which had been granted as of September 30, 2011, but which remained subject to additional vesting requirements (the officer's continued employment with Tyco). Scheduled vesting of all RSUs for each of the named executive officer is as follows:

- (3) Amounts in columns (h) and (i) reflect the number and market value, as of September 30, 2011, of performance share units that would be earned if the performance goals related to these awards were met at the target level at the end of the performance period. If the minimum performance threshold is not met, there will be no payout. The number of shares that will actually be earned will depend on Tyco's three-year shareholder return as compared to the total shareholder return of the S & P 500 Industrials Index and its cumulative EPS over the performance period. Scheduled vesting of all performance share units (based on achievement of target values) for each of the named executive officers is as follows:

(1) Amounts in columns (b) and (c) include employee and Tyco contributions, respectively, under the SSRP, a non-qualified retirement savings plan. All of the amounts shown in column (c) are included in the Summary Compensation Table under the column heading "All Other Compensation." Under the terms of the SSRP, an eligible executive may choose to defer up to 50% of his or her base salary and up to 100% of his or her performance bonus.

- (2) Amounts in column (d) include earnings or (losses) on the named executive officer's notional account in the SSRP and in Tyco's Supplemental Executive Retirement Plan (the "SERP"). The SERP was frozen with respect to additional contributions on December 31, 2004. Investment options under the SSRP include only funds that are available under Tyco's tax-qualified 401(k) retirement plans. Investment options under Tyco's SERP are the same as those available under the SSRP.
- (3) Under both the SSRP and the SERP, participants may elect to receive distributions in a single lump sum payment or in up to 15 annual installments. A participant who is still employed by Tyco may begin receiving distributions under each plan after a minimum of five years have elapsed from the plan year for which contributions have been made. A participant who has left Tyco may begin receiving distributions upon his or her termination of employment or retirement.
- (4) Ms. Mikells was not employed by Tyco during fiscal year 2011 and therefore no non-qualified deferred compensation information with respect to Ms. Mikells appears in this table.

Potential Payments Upon Termination or Change in Control

The following table summarizes the severance benefits that would have been payable to each of our named executive officers other than Ms. Mikells, who was not employed by Tyco during the last fiscal year, upon termination of employment or upon the occurrence of a change in control, assuming that the triggering event or events occurred on September 30, 2011. The amounts shown are based on the NYSE closing price of $40.75 per share for Tyco's common stock on September 30, 2011.

For each of ADT's named executive officers, the Severance Plan or the CIC Severance Plan governs termination benefits for the triggering events specified below. In addition, individual equity award agreements govern the treatment of those awards under certain circumstances. For the definition of "Good Reason" and "Cause" under the relevant documents, see the discussion under the heading "—Compensation, Discussion and Analysis—Change in Control and Severance Benefits."

<sup>(1)</sup> Severance benefits are available under the CIC Severance Plan (if the triggering event followed a change in control) for Mr. Gursahaney and for Messrs. Gursahaney (for other triggering events), Bleisch and Edoff and Ms. Graham under the Severance Plan. Under the CIC Severance Plan, Mr. Gursahaney would be entitled to a severance payment of 2 times base salary and 2 times target bonus for the fiscal year in which termination occurs, subject to possible reduction if the excise tax under Section 4999 would apply. Under the Severance Plan, Mr. Gursahaney would have been entitled to salary continuation and bonus payments for the 24 months following termination of employment and Messrs. Bleisch and Edoff and Ms. Graham would have been entitled to salary continuation and bonus payments for the 12 months following termination of employment. In addition to the amounts included in this table, each named executive officer would be entitled to the annual performance bonus for the year in which his or her employment was terminated. The bonus payments are included in the Summary Compensation table under the column heading “Non-Equity Incentive Plan Compensation,” and are discussed above under the heading “—Compensation Discussion and Analysis—Elements of Compensation—Annual Incentive Compensation.”

- (2) Upon a triggering event, medical and dental benefits are provided under the CIC Severance Plan or the Severance Plan, which both provide for 12 months of continuing coverage, and if the executive’s severance period is greater than 12 months, the executive will be entitled to a cash payment equal to the projected value of the employer portion of premiums during the severance period in excess of 12 months.
- (3) Amounts represent the intrinsic value of unvested Tyco equity awards that would vest upon a triggering event. Performance share units are assumed to vest at target for purposes of these calculations.
- (4) Amount represents the Tyco-provided supplemental life insurance benefit for Mr. Gursahaney upon his death.

Treatment of Outstanding Options, Restricted Stock Units, Performance Share Units and Deferred Stock Units

Options to purchase Tyco common shares (“Tyco Options”), restricted stock units with respect to Tyco common shares (“Tyco RSUs”) and performance share units with respect to Tyco common shares (“Tyco PSUs”) and, together with Tyco Options and Tyco RSUs, “Tyco Equity Awards”) have been granted to various employees in Tyco’s residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada who will become officers and employees of ADT following the spin-off.

Under the terms of the stock and incentive plans under which the outstanding Tyco Equity Awards were issued, the Tyco Compensation Committee has the authority to make equitable adjustments to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards in the event of certain transactions, including the distribution of our common stock in connection with the spin-off. Accordingly, the Tyco Compensation Committee has authorized that various adjustments be made to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Tyco Equity Awards following the spin-off, as discussed below. These adjustments will be made in the same manner for all ADT employees who hold Tyco Equity Awards, including our executive officers. Any options to purchase, or awards relating to, our common stock issued in connection with such adjustments will be our obligations.

We intend to file a registration statement with respect to shares of our common stock issuable upon exercise or vesting of the equity awards that we issue, prior to the effective date of the Distribution.

Treatment of Tyco Options

In connection with the Distribution, each Tyco Option held by a Tyco employee who will become our employee following the spin-off (other than a Tyco Option held by a Tyco corporate-level employee that was granted prior to October 12, 2011) will convert into an option to acquire our common stock, in the following manner:

- each converted option will be exercisable for a number of shares of ADT common stock determined by multiplying the number of Tyco common shares for which the option is exercisable by a fraction, the numerator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, and the denominator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of our common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, rounded down to the nearest whole share; and
- each converted option will have an exercise price equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the Distribution multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of our common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent.

Each Tyco Option held by certain Tyco corporate-level employees who will not become our employees following the spin-off, and which was granted prior to October 12, 2011 will convert into an option to separately acquire an equal number of shares of common stock of ADT and Tyco common shares, and, assuming the Distributions occur simultaneously, Tyco Flow Control common shares in the following manner:

- the adjusted number of shares subject to each option to acquire:
  - Tyco shares will be determined by multiplying the number of Tyco shares for which the Tyco Option is exercisable by a fraction, the numerator of which is the aggregate spread of the original Tyco Option, calculated by reference to the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, and the denominator of which is the sum of (a) the ex-distribution closing trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions minus the adjusted exercise price for Tyco options described below, (b) the product of (1) the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on NYSE on the last trading day prior to the Distribution) minus the adjusted exercise price for Tyco Flow Control options described below and (2) the distribution ratio for shares of Tyco Flow Control (which shall be determined on the distribution date), and (c) the product of (1) the when-issued closing trading price of ADT shares of common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions minus the adjusted exercise price for ADT options described below and (2) the distribution ratio for shares of ADT of 0.5 (based on one share of ADT common stock for every two shares of Tyco common stock outstanding as of the record date), rounded down to the nearest whole share;
  - Tyco Flow Control shares will be determined by multiplying the number of Tyco shares subject to the converted option by the distribution ratio for shares of Tyco Flow Control (which shall be determined on the distribution date); and
  - ADT shares will be determined by multiplying the number of Tyco shares subject to the converted option by the distribution ratio for shares of ADT of 0.5 (based on one share of ADT common stock for every two shares of Tyco common stock outstanding as of the record date).
- each converted option will have an exercise price as follows:
  - The exercise price for each converted Tyco option will be equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the Distributions multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions (or, in the absence of a when-issued trading market with respect to Tyco Flow Control, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day prior to the Distribution) and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distributions, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent.
  - the exercise price for each converted Tyco Flow Control option will be equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of Tyco Flow Control common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Tyco Flow Control Distribution, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent.

- the exercise price for each converted ADT option will be equal to the exercise price of the applicable Tyco Option prior to the Distributions multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of ADT shares of common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution and the denominator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, rounded up to the nearest hundredth of a cent.

Each converted option will take into account all employment with both Tyco and ADT for purposes of determining when the option vests and terminates.

Treatment of Tyco RSUs

In connection with the Distribution, each Tyco RSU held by a Tyco employee that will become our employee following the spin-off will be converted in the following manner (assuming the Distributions occur simultaneously):

- For each Tyco RSU granted on or after October 12, 2011, the holder thereof will be entitled to receive ADT restricted stock units in an amount determined by multiplying the number of Tyco RSUs by a fraction, the numerator of which is the closing regular-way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution and the denominator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of our common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution.
- For each Tyco RSU granted prior to October 12, 2011, the holder thereof will be entitled to receive, in addition to the Tyco restricted stock units, an additional award of ADT restricted stock units and Tyco Flow Control RSUs. The number of additional RSUs of ADT and Tyco Flow Control shall equal the number of common shares that the holder thereof would be entitled to if such RSUs were with respect to Tyco common shares.

The Distribution will not have any other effect on the Tyco RSUs being converted to ADT, Tyco Flow Control or new Tyco restricted stock units, as applicable, and such converted restricted stock units will be subject to the same terms and conditions as apply to Tyco RSUs. Each converted restricted stock unit will take into account all employment with both Tyco and ADT for purposes of determining when the award vests. Fractional restricted stock units will be adjusted or compensated by the Tyco Compensation Committee as appropriate in the sole discretion of the Tyco Compensation Committee.

Treatment of Tyco PSUs

Each Tyco PSU outstanding as of June 29, 2012 that is held by a Tyco employee who will become our employee following the spin-off will be converted into Tyco restricted stock units based on performance results through June 29, 2012. The resulting Tyco RSUs held as of the Distribution will then be converted into the right to receive a number of ADT RSUs determined by multiplying the number of such Tyco RSUs by a fraction, the numerator of which is the closing regular way trading price of Tyco common shares on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution and the denominator of which is the when-issued closing trading price of our common stock on the NYSE on the last trading day immediately prior to the Distribution, rounded down to the nearest whole share. The Tyco Compensation Committee will determine the level of performance attained with respect to the Tyco PSUs that convert into Tyco RSUs as of June 29, 2012.

Each Tyco PSU (i) that was granted prior to October 12, 2011, and that is held, as of June 29, 2012, by certain specified corporate-level employees of Tyco who will not become our employees following the spin-off or (ii) that is held by former Tyco employees will be converted into Tyco RSUs based on performance results through June 29, 2012. As of the distribution date, such Tyco RSUs will be converted into the right to receive the same number of Tyco restricted stock units and an additional award of ADT restricted stock units and Tyco Flow Control restricted stock units. The number of additional restricted stock units of ADT and Tyco Flow Control will equal the number of common shares that the holder thereof would be entitled to if such restricted stock units were with respect to Tyco common shares.

The Tyco PSUs that are ultimately converted into ADT restricted stock units will have a vesting period that is identical to the vesting period for the Tyco PSUs (generally, three years from grant date) and will take into account all employment with Tyco and ADT for these purposes. All other terms and conditions of the converted awards will be equivalent to those that apply to Tyco PSUs. Fractional shares will be adjusted or compensated by the Tyco Compensation Committee as appropriate in the sole discretion of the Tyco Compensation Committee.

Tyco deferred stock units (“DSUs”) held by corporate level employees will be converted into DSUs of each of the three publicly traded companies in the same manner as common shares.

2012 Omnibus Stock and Incentive Award Plan

General. Prior to the completion of the spin-off, we expect to adopt, with the approval of our sole stockholder, the 2012 Omnibus Stock and Incentive Plan (the “2012 Plan”), which we expect to be substantially similar to Tyco’s 2004 Stock and Incentive Plan. The following description of the 2012 Plan is a summary of certain provisions that are currently expected to be in the final version of the plan and is subject to change prior to completion of the spin-off. A copy of the final version of the 2012 Plan will be filed as an exhibit to the Registration Statement of which this Information Statement is a part.

Purpose. The purpose of the 2012 Plan is to promote the interests of ADT by aiding in the recruitment and retention of exceptional directors, employees and consultants, providing incentives to its directors, employees and consultants in consideration of their services to ADT, promoting the growth and success of ADT’s business by aligning the interests of directors, employees and consultants with those of shareholders and providing directors, employees and consultants an opportunity to participate in the growth and financial success of ADT. To accomplish these objectives, the 2012 Plan will provide for the award of stock options, stock appreciation rights (“SARs”), restricted stock, restricted stock units, other stock-based awards and performance-based awards.

Administration. The 2012 Plan will be administered by the ADT Compensation Committee. It is intended, but not required, that the directors appointed to serve on the ADT Compensation Committee be “Non-Employee Directors” (within the meaning of Rule 16b-3 under the Exchange Act) and “Outside Directors” within the meaning of Section 162(m) of the Code, to the extent Rule 16b-3 and Section 162(m) are applicable. However, the fact that a member of the ADT Compensation Committee shall fail to qualify under these requirements will not invalidate any award that is otherwise validly granted under the 2012 Plan. Subject to the terms of the 2012 Plan, the ADT Compensation Committee will have the authority to grant awards, to determine the number of shares of our common stock for which each award may be granted and to determine any terms and conditions pertaining to the exercise or to the vesting of each award. The ADT Compensation Committee will have the power, in its sole discretion, to accelerate the exercisability of any option and to remove any restriction on any restricted stock or restricted stock unit granted under the 2012 Plan. The ADT Compensation Committee will also have full power to construe and interpret the 2012 Plan and any award agreement executed pursuant to the 2012 Plan and to establish, amend, suspend or waive any rules for the proper administration of the 2012 Plan. The determination of the ADT Compensation Committee on all matters relating to the 2012 Plan or any award agreement will be conclusive.

Eligibility. Our officers, employees, directors and consultants and those of our subsidiaries or affiliates will be eligible to be designated a participant under the 2012 Plan. The ADT Compensation Committee will have the sole and complete authority to determine the participants to whom awards will be granted under the 2012 Plan, subject to certain limitations described below.

Number of Shares Authorized. We expect that 8 million shares of our common stock will be available for grant under the 2012 Plan. The 2012 Plan will provide that no person may be granted awards or options and stock appreciation rights, or SARs, with respect to more than 3 million shares of common stock in any one year, except that additional awards in excess of such limitations up to 5 million shares of common stock may be granted to a newly hired director or employee who is subject to the reporting requirements of Section 16(a) of the Exchange Act. The maximum amount payable to any one person pursuant to a cash bonus under our 2012 Plan is expected to be $5 million. As will be described more fully in the 2012 Plan, if an award expires or terminates or is forfeited or if any option terminates, expires or lapses without being exercised, the number of shares previously subject to such award will again be available for future grant. If the ADT Compensation Committee determines that certain corporate transactions or events (as described in the 2012 Plan), such as a stock split, affect the shares of common stock such that an adjustment is to be consistent with such event and necessary or equitable to carry out the purposes of the 2012 Plan, the ADT Compensation Committee shall appropriately adjust the maximum number of shares and the classes or series of our common stock which may be delivered pursuant to the 2012 Plan, the number of shares and the classes or series of our common stock subject to outstanding awards, the price per share of all of our common stock subject to outstanding awards and any other provisions of the 2012 Plan. In addition, upon the occurrence of certain corporate events or transactions (to be described in the 2012 Plan), such as certain mergers, consolidations or reorganizations, the ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion and with prior notice to the participants, cancel all outstanding awards and pay the holders thereof the value of such awards in a form and an amount equal to what they would have received or been entitled to receive had they exercised all such awards immediately prior to the consummation of such corporate event or transaction.

The 2012 Plan will have a term of 10 years and no further awards may be granted under the 2012 Plan after the end of the 10-year term.

Terms and Conditions of Awards. Under the 2012 Plan, the ADT Compensation Committee will have the authority to grant awards of nonqualified stock options, or “NSOs,” incentive stock options, or “ISOs,” SARs, restricted stock, restricted stock units, stock bonus awards, performance compensation awards (including cash bonus awards) or any combination of the foregoing. The ADT Compensation Committee may provide, but is not required to provide, in an award agreement that there will be a vesting acceleration or payout of the award upon a change in control, as defined in the 2012 Plan.

Options. The ADT Compensation Committee will be authorized to grant options to purchase shares of common stock that are either “qualified,” meaning they are intended to satisfy the requirements of Section 422 of the Code for incentive stock options, or “nonqualified,” meaning they are not intended to satisfy the requirements of Section 422 of the Code. An option provides a participant with the right to purchase, within a specified period of time, a stated number of shares of our common stock at the price specified in the award agreement. Options granted under the 2012 Plan will be subject to the terms, including the exercise price and the conditions and timing of exercise, not inconsistent with the 2012 Plan, determined by the ADT Compensation Committee and specified in the applicable award agreement or thereafter. The maximum term of an option granted under the 2012 Plan will be 10 years from the date of grant (or five years in the case of an ISO granted to a 10.0% shareholder).

The exercise price per share paid by a participant will be determined by the ADT Compensation Committee at the time of grant but will not be less than 100.0% of the fair market value of one share on the date the option is granted (or no less than 110.0% of such fair market value in the case of an ISO granted to an employee who is a 10.0% stockholder). Payment in respect of the exercise of an option may be made in cash or by check, except that the ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion, allow such payment to be made by surrender of unrestricted shares of our common stock (at their fair market value on the date of exercise) which have been held by the participant for at least six months, or by such other method as the ADT Compensation Committee may determine and that is permitted by law. The ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion and to the extent permitted by law, allow such payment to be made through a broker-assisted cashless exercise mechanism. The ADT Compensation Committee may also establish rules permitting the deferral of shares of our common stock upon the exercise of options for tax planning purposes, provided, however, that such rules do not result in the imposition of an excise tax under Section 409A of the Code.

SARs. The ADT Compensation Committee will be authorized to award SARs under the 2012 Plan. SARs will be subject to the terms and conditions established by the ADT Compensation Committee. A SAR is a contractual right that allows a participant to receive, either in the form of cash, shares of our common stock or a combination of the foregoing, the appreciation, if any, in the value of one share of our common stock over a certain period of time. In no event will the base amount of SAR granted under the Plan be less than the fair market value of one share the date of grant. An option granted under the 2012 Plan may include SARs, either on the date of grant or, except in the case of an ISO, by subsequent amendment. The ADT Compensation Committee may also award SARs to a participant independent of the grant of an option. SARs granted in connection with an option will become exercisable, be transferable and will expire according to the same vesting schedule, transferability rules and expiration provisions as the corresponding option. If SARs are granted independent of an option, the SARs will become exercisable, be transferable and will expire in accordance with the vesting schedule, transferability rules and the expiration provisions established by the ADT Compensation Committee and reflected in the award agreement.

No Repricing. The 2012 Plan will prohibit the repricing of stock options or SARs awarded under the 2012 Plan or any similar substitutions.

Restricted Stock. The ADT Compensation Committee will be authorized to award restricted stock under the 2012 Plan. An award of restricted stock is a grant of shares subject to conditions and restrictions set by the ADT Compensation Committee. The grant or the vesting of an award of restricted stock may be conditioned upon service to us or our affiliates or upon the attainment of performance goals or other factors, as determined in the discretion of the ADT Compensation Committee. The ADT Compensation Committee may also, in its discretion, provide for the lapse of restrictions imposed upon an award of restricted stock. Holders of an award of restricted stock will generally have, with respect to the restricted stock granted, all of the rights of a shareholder, including the right to vote and to receive dividends.

Restricted Stock Units. The ADT Compensation Committee will be authorized to award restricted stock units to participants. The ADT Compensation Committee will be authorized to establish the terms, conditions and restrictions applicable to each award of restricted stock units, including the time or times at which restricted stock units will be granted or vested and the number of units to be covered by each award. The terms and conditions of each restricted stock unit award will be reflected in a restricted stock unit agreement. At the discretion of the ADT Compensation Committee, each restricted stock unit (representing one share of our common stock) awarded to a participant will be credited with an amount equal to the cash or stock dividends paid by us in respect of one share of our common stock (“dividend equivalents”). At the discretion of the ADT Compensation Committee, dividend equivalents may either be paid currently to the participant or withheld by us for the participant’s account. Upon the pre-set settlement date of a restricted stock unit award, we will deliver to the participant or his beneficiary (i) one share of our common stock or, at the election of the ADT Compensation Committee, an amount in cash equal to the fair market value of that number of shares at the expiration of the period over which the units are to be earned for each restricted stock unit with respect to which the vesting period has expired and (ii) cash or shares of common stock equal to any dividend equivalents credited to the restricted stock unit.

With respect to an award of restricted stock or restricted share units that is intended to qualify as “performance-based compensation” for covered employees under Section 162(m) of the Code, the timing, establishment and adjustment of performance goals will be implemented by the ADT Compensation Committee in a manner designed to preserve the treatment of such award as “performance-based compensation” for purposes of Section 162(m) of the Code. However, the ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion, issue performance-based restricted stock units (or other awards) to any employee that is not intended to qualify under Section 162(m) of the Code.

Other Stock Based Awards. The ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion, grant an award of unrestricted shares of our common stock, either alone or in tandem with other awards, under such terms and conditions as the ADT Compensation Committee in its sole discretion may decide. A stock bonus award may be granted as or in payment of a bonus or to provide special incentives or recognize special achievements or contributions.

Performance Criteria. The ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion, condition the vesting of any award granted under the 2012 Plan upon the satisfaction of certain performance goals. To the extent an award is intended to qualify as “performance-based compensation” under Section 162(m) of the Code, the performance goals will be established by the ADT Compensation Committee with reference to one or more performance criteria to be set forth in the 2012 Plan, either on a company-wide basis or, as relevant, in respect of one or more of our affiliates, divisions or operations.

Transferability. Generally, each award will be exercisable during the participant’s lifetime only by the participant or, if permissible under applicable law, by the participant’s guardian or legal representative, and such award may not be assigned, alienated, pledged, attached, sold or otherwise transferred or encumbered by a participant other than by will or by the laws of descent and distribution. However, the ADT Compensation Committee may, in its discretion, provide that awards granted under the 2012 Plan that are not ISOs may be transferred by a participant without consideration to certain “permitted transferees” (to be defined in the 2012 Plan), pursuant to the terms of the 2012 Plan and rules adopted by the ADT Compensation Committee.

Amendment. Our board of directors will have the ability to amend, alter, suspend, discontinue or terminate the 2012 Plan or any portion thereof at any time. No such action may be taken, however, without stockholder approval if such approval is necessary to comply with any regulatory requirement. No amendment may, however, reduce the exercise price of an option, cancel an existing option and replace it with a new option having a lower exercise price or take any other action, that would result in such option being considered “repriced” for purposes of the applicable stock exchange rules or that would result in the option being accounted for as a liability award, without stockholder approval of such amendment.

DESCRIPTION OF MATERIAL INDEBTEDNESS

Senior Notes

On July 5, 2012, ADT and Tyco entered into an indenture (the “Indenture”) with Wells Fargo Bank, National Association, N.A., as trustee, relating to the issuance by ADT of $750 million aggregate principal amount of 2.250% senior notes due 2017 (the “2017 Notes”), $1,000 million aggregate principal amount of 3.500% senior notes due 2022 (the “2022 Notes”) and $750 million aggregate principal amount of 4.875% senior notes due 2042 (the “2042 Notes”) and, together with the 2017 Notes and the 2022 Notes, the “Notes”) in a private placement to qualified institutional buyers pursuant to Rule 144A under the Securities Act.

The 2017 Notes bear interest at a rate of 2.250% per annum, the 2022 Notes bear interest at a rate 3.500% per annum and the 2042 Notes bear interest at a rate 4.875% per annum. Interest on the Notes accrues from July 5, 2012. Interest on the Notes is payable on January 15 and July 15 of each year, commencing on January 15, 2013. The 2017 Notes will mature on July 15, 2017, the 2022 Notes will mature on July 15, 2022 and the 2042 Notes will mature on July 15, 2042.

The Notes are initially guaranteed on a senior unsecured basis by Tyco. The guarantee will terminate and be automatically and unconditionally released upon the Distribution.

The public offering price of the Notes was (i) 99.896% of the principal amount of the 2017 Notes, (ii) 99.764% of the principal amount of the 2022 Notes and (iii) 98.925% of the principal amount of the 2042 Notes.

The Indenture includes covenants that restrict the ability of ADT, subject to exceptions, to incur debt secured by liens and engage in sale and lease-back transactions. The Indenture also provides for customary events of default (subject, in certain cases, to receipt of notice of default and/or customary grace and cure periods), including but not limited to, (i) failure to pay interest for 30 days, (ii) failure to pay principal when due, (iii) failure to perform any other covenant in the Indenture for 90 days after receipt of notice from the trustee or from holders of 25% of the outstanding principal amount and (iv) certain events of bankruptcy, insolvency or reorganization of ADT. ADT may redeem each series of the Notes, in whole or in part, at any time at a redemption price equal to the principal amount of the Notes to be redeemed, plus a make-whole premium. If a change of control triggering event occurs, as defined in the Indenture, ADT will be required to make an offer to purchase the Notes at a price equal to 101% of their principal amount plus accrued and unpaid interest to the date of repurchase.

Registration Rights Agreement

In connection with the sale of the Notes, Tyco and ADT entered into an Exchange and Registration Rights Agreement (the “Registration Rights Agreement”) with the initial purchasers of the Notes, dated as of July 5, 2012. Under the Registration Rights Agreement, ADT and Tyco agree, at their cost, to (i) file with the SEC an exchange offer registration statement with respect to an exchange offer registered under the Securities Act to exchange the Notes of each series for an issue of another series of notes (the “Exchange Notes”) that are identical in all material respects to the applicable series of Notes (except that the Exchange Notes will not contain transfer restrictions or any increase in annual interest rate) within 180 days after July 5, 2012, (ii) to use their commercially reasonable efforts to cause the exchange offer registration statement to be declared effective under the Securities Act within 365 days of July 5, 2012, (iii) to use their commercially reasonable efforts to commence the exchange offer promptly, but no later than 10 business days after the registration statement has become effective, (iv) to hold the exchange offer open for not less than 20 business days and (v) to complete the exchange offer no later than 30 days after the commencement of the exchange offer. If the exchange offer is not consummated, under certain circumstances and within specified time periods, ADT and Tyco are required to file a shelf registration statement covering resales of the Notes, use commercially reasonable efforts to cause the shelf registration statement to be declared effective and to keep the shelf registration statement effective until such time as the Notes cease to be registrable securities.

Senior Revolving Credit Facility

In connection with the spin-off, on June 22, 2012 ADT entered into a new unsecured senior revolving credit facility (the “revolving credit facility”), with an aggregate commitment of $750 million (provided that until the Distribution has occurred and certain related conditions have been met, availability under the revolving credit facility will be limited to $250 million). The revolving credit facility is available to be used for working capital, capital expenditures and other corporate purposes, however, we do not anticipate drawing upon the facility at this time. Tyco is a guarantor under the revolving credit facility, which guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution.

Guarantee

The obligations under the revolving credit facility are unconditionally and irrevocably guaranteed by Tyco; provided that the Tyco guarantee is to be released upon the consummation of the Distribution.

Interest and Fees

Borrowings under the revolving credit facility bear interest at a rate per annum equal to, at our option, (x) LIBOR plus an applicable margin based on our credit ratings or (y) an alternate base rate equal to the highest of (i) Citibank, N.A.’s base rate, (ii) the federal funds effective rate plus 1/2 of 1% and (iii) one-month LIBOR plus 1%, in each case plus an applicable margin based on our credit ratings.

We are required to pay the lenders a facility fee on the amount of the lenders’ commitments under the revolving credit facility from time to time at rates based on our applicable credit ratings.

Optional Prepayment and Commitment Reductions

Under our revolving credit facility we have the option to prepay amount outstanding without penalty, subject to breakage costs and a minimum notice requirement. In addition, we may voluntarily reduce unutilized portions of the commitment under the revolving credit facility without penalty, subject to certain conditions pertaining to minimum reduction amount and a minimum notice requirement.

Covenants

The revolving credit facility contains customary affirmative and negative covenants, including covenant related to the delivery of financial statements, the filing of documents with the SEC, the delivery of financial information and notices to lenders and the operation of our business. The revolving credit facility also includes financial covenants limiting the ratio of debt to EBITDA and requiring a minimum ratio of EBITDA to interest expense. We must maintain a ratio of consolidated total debt to EBITDA on a rolling four quarter basis of no greater than 3.50 to 1.00 (calculated by reference to (i) Tyco and its subsidiaries on a consolidated basis prior to the release of the guarantee and (ii) us and our subsidiaries on a consolidated basis following such release). Following the release of Tyco’s guarantee, we must also maintain a ratio of consolidated EBITDA to consolidated interest expense of no less than 3.00 to 1.00 as measured on a quarterly basis.

The negative covenants of the revolving credit facility include, among other things, limitations (each of which is subject to customary exceptions for financings of this type) on our ability to:

- grant liens;
- enter into transactions resulting in fundamental changes (such as mergers or sales of all or substantially all of our assets or Tyco);
- restrict subsidiary dividends or other subsidiary distributions;
- enter into transactions with affiliates;

- permit subsidiaries to provide guarantees to other material debt;
- and incur additional subsidiary debt.

Events of Default

The revolving credit facility specifies customary events of default (subject to grace periods, as appropriate) including among others: nonpayment of principal, interest or fees; breach of the financial, affirmative or negative covenants; inaccuracy of the representations or warranties in any material respect; payment default on, or acceleration of, other material indebtedness; bankruptcy or insolvency; material unsatisfied judgments; certain ERISA violations; invalidity or unenforceability of such revolving credit facility or other documents associated with such revolving credit facility; and a change of control.

SECURITY OWNERSHIP OF CERTAIN BENEFICIAL OWNERS AND MANAGEMENT

As of the date of this Information Statement, all of the outstanding shares of our common stock are beneficially owned by Tyco. After the spin-off, Tyco will not own any shares of our common stock. The following table sets forth the number and percentage of outstanding Tyco common shares beneficially owned as of June 30, 2012 by (i) each of our directors following the spin-off; (ii) each officer named in the Summary Compensation Table and (iii) all of our directors and executive officers as a group. The table also sets forth the number and percentage of shares of our common stock each of these persons is expected to receive in the Distribution, assuming that there are no change in these persons' holdings of Tyco common shares after June 30, 2012 and giving effect to a distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each common share of Tyco, with no fractional shares. The beneficial owners listed in the table may have also been granted stock-based awards whose value is derived from the value of Tyco common shares, including options, restricted shares, restricted stock units and deferred stock units. These stock-based awards are not shown in the table because, except in the limited cases specified in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, the awards will be adjusted based on the market prices of Tyco and ADT shares immediately prior to the Distribution and therefore we cannot estimate the number of shares of common stock that, immediately after the Distribution, each person will be entitled to acquire within 60 days. See "Compensation of Executive Officers—Treatment of Outstanding Options, Restricted Stock Units, Performance Share Units and Deferred Stock Units."

The table also sets forth the number and percentage of shares of common stock each of these persons or groups is expected to receive in the Distribution, assuming that there have been and will be no change in these persons' or groups' holdings of Tyco common shares after the dates indicated and giving effect to a distribution ratio of 0.5 shares of ADT common stock for each common share of Tyco, with no fractional shares.

CERTAIN RELATIONSHIPS AND RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

Agreements with Tyco

Following the spin-off, ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco will operate independently, and none will have any ownership interest in any other. In order to govern certain ongoing relationships between ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco after the spin-off and to provide mechanisms for an orderly transition, ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT and Tyco will enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution agreement and ADT, Tyco or Tyco Flow Control, as applicable, intend to enter into other agreements pursuant to which certain services and rights will be provided for following the spin-off, and ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco will indemnify each other against certain liabilities arising from our respective businesses. The following is a summary of the terms of the material agreements we have entered into or expect to enter into with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control. This summary does not purport to be complete and it may not contain all of the information about these agreements.

ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement

We intend to enter into the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement with Tyco before the Distribution. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will set forth our agreement with Tyco regarding the principal transactions necessary to separate us from Tyco. It will set forth other agreements that govern certain aspects of our relationship with Tyco after the completion of the spin-off.

Distribution Overview. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide for the spin-off of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada from Tyco. Among other things, the agreement will: set forth the process by and conditions under which Tyco will spin off its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada to the holders of Tyco common shares; specify the relevant assets of Tyco and certain of its subsidiaries related to our business to be transferred to us; and set forth certain liabilities and covenants to be assumed by us and Tyco. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that, on the Distribution Date, each holder of Tyco common shares will be entitled to one share of ADT common stock for every two Tyco common shares held on the record date for the Distribution.

Cash Adjustment. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will include a provision for a cash adjustment immediately prior to the closing of the Distribution. Pursuant to this provision, the target amount of cash at ADT immediately following the Distribution is $300 million. However, the actual amount that will be available will depend on the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries at the time of the Distribution (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries). If immediately prior to the Distribution, the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), after (1) subtracting certain unpaid transaction expenses arising in connection with the spin-off and certain other unpaid liabilities, if any, and (2) giving credit for $200 million of cash to be paid by Tyco Flow Control (or Pentair) to Tyco immediately prior to the Distribution, in each case, as set forth in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, would be less than $700 million, then ADT's cash balance shall be reduced by an amount equal to (i) the amount by which the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), after giving effect to the adjustments described above, is below $700 million (ii) multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters by ADT and its subsidiaries and the denominator of which is the free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters by ADT, Tyco and their respective subsidiaries (excluding Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), collectively. In the event that the aggregate cash balance of Tyco, ADT and their respective subsidiaries (excluding the cash balance of or attributable to Tyco Flow Control and its subsidiaries), after giving effect to the adjustments described above, is greater than $700 million, such excess cash will be allocated to each of ADT and Tyco on the basis of each parties' respective contribution to free cash flow generated in the prior four fiscal quarters.

Transfer of Assets. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will identify certain transfers of assets that are necessary in advance of our separation from Tyco so that each of ADT and Tyco retains the assets of, and the liabilities associated with, our respective businesses.

The assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by ADT or its subsidiaries will include the following:

- the ownership interests of ADT's subsidiaries;
- all ADT contracts, any rights or claims arising thereunder, and any other rights or claims or contingent rights or claims primarily relating to, or arising from, any ADT asset or Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- any and all assets (other than cash subject to the cash adjustment described above) reflected on ADT's balance sheet as of August 31, 2012 and any assets acquired by or for ADT or any of its subsidiaries subsequent to the date of such balance sheet which, had they been so acquired on or before such date and owned as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any dispositions of any of such assets subsequent to the date of such balance sheet;
- rights of ADT and its subsidiaries under any insurance policies and contracts, including any rights thereunder arising after the Distribution in respect of any occurrence-based policies;
- any and all assets owned or held immediately prior to the Distribution by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries that primarily relate to or are primarily used in Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- certain scheduled assets and any and all assets that are expressly contemplated as assets that have been or that are to be transferred to ADT or any of its subsidiaries;
- subject to certain exceptions, any and all furnishings and office equipment located at a physical site to the extent the ownership or leasehold interest with respect to such physical site is being transferred to, or retained by, ADT; and
- 34.375% of certain Tyco contingent assets arising under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by ADT or one of its subsidiaries will not in any event include any assets to the extent they are expressly contemplated to be retained by or transferred to Tyco or its subsidiaries under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

The assets to be transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco or its subsidiaries will include the following:

- the ownership interests in Tyco's subsidiaries;
- all Tyco contracts, any rights or claims arising thereunder, and any other rights or claims or contingent rights or claims primarily relating to, or arising from, any asset owned by Tyco or Tyco's business other than those primarily relating to, or arising from, Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada;
- any and all assets (except that cash shall be subject to the cash adjustment described above) reflected on Tyco's unaudited combined balance sheet as of August 31, 2012 prepared to give pro forma effect to the spin-off and the Distribution (but not the separation of Tyco Flow Control from Tyco and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and any assets acquired by or for Tyco or any subsidiary of Tyco subsequent to the date of such balance sheet which, had they been so acquired on or before such date and owned as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any dispositions of any of such assets subsequent to the date of such balance sheet;

- any and all rights of Tyco and its subsidiaries under any insurance policies and contracts;
- any and all assets owned or held immediately prior to the Distribution by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries that primarily relate to or are primarily used in Tyco's business;
- certain scheduled assets and any and all assets that are expressly contemplated as assets that have been or that are to be transferred to Tyco or any of its subsidiaries; and
- subject to certain exceptions, any and all furnishings and office equipment located at a physical site to the extent the ownership or leasehold interest with respect to such physical site is being transferred to or retained by Tyco.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the assets transferred or assigned to or retained by Tyco or its subsidiaries will not include any assets to the extent they are expressly contemplated as assets to be retained by or transferred to ADT or any of its subsidiaries.

Assumptions of Liabilities. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will also provide for the settlement or extinguishment of certain liabilities and other obligations between ADT and Tyco and identify the liabilities and other obligations which each of ADT and Tyco and their respective subsidiaries will assume or retain.

The liabilities to be assumed or retained by ADT or one of its subsidiaries will include the following:

- certain scheduled liabilities and any and all liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities that have been or that are to be assumed by ADT or any of its subsidiaries;
- any and all liabilities primarily relating to, arising out of or resulting from the operation or conduct of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada whether arising before, on or after the Distribution, the operation or conduct of any business conducted by any subsidiary of ADT after the Distribution, or any ADT assets, whether arising before, on or after the Distribution;
- any liabilities to the extent relating to, arising out of or resulting from any terminated or divested business entity, business or operation formerly and primarily owned or managed by or primarily associated with Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada or any ADT subsidiary;
- subject to limited exceptions, 34.375% of certain contingent liabilities of Tyco relating to obligations under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or arising from certain outstanding litigation;
- any liabilities relating to any ADT employee or former ADT employee before, on or after the Distribution;
- any liabilities relating to, arising out of, or resulting from, (x) any indebtedness (including debt securities and asset-backed debt) of ADT or any of its subsidiaries or indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) incurred after the Distribution, and exclusively relating to Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada and (y) any indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) incurred after the Distribution and secured exclusively by any of ADT's assets (including any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from a claim by a holder of any such indebtedness, in its capacity as such);
- certain specified shared expenses; and
- all liabilities reflected as liabilities or obligations on ADT's balance sheet as of August 31, 2012, and all liabilities arising or assumed after the date of such balance sheet which, had they arisen or been assumed on or before such date and been retained as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any discharge of such liabilities subsequent to the date of the balance sheet.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the liabilities that are to be assumed or retained by ADT or one of its subsidiaries will not in any event include any of the following: (x) any liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities to be retained or assumed by Tyco or any of its other subsidiaries; (y) any contracts expressly assumed or expressly contemplated as liabilities to be assumed by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries; and (z) any intercompany payables expressly discharged pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

The liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco or one of its subsidiaries will include the following:

- certain scheduled liabilities and any and all liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities that have been or that are to be assumed by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries);
- any and all liabilities primarily relating to, arising out of or resulting from: (A) the operation or conduct of Tyco's business other than Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada as conducted at any time prior to, on or after the Distribution; (B) the operation or conduct of any business conducted by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries other than the residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada at any time after the Distribution; or (C) any assets owned by Tyco, whether arising before, on or after the Distribution;
- any liabilities to the extent relating to, arising out of or resulting from any terminated or divested business entity, business or operation formerly and primarily owned or managed by or primarily associated with Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries) or Tyco's business (other than Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada);
- any liabilities relating to any Tyco employee or former Tyco employee that is not an ADT employee or former ADT employee immediately following the Distribution;
- any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from (x) any indebtedness (including debt securities and asset-backed debt) of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries or indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) exclusively relating to the Tyco business (other than Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada) or (y) any indebtedness (regardless of the issuer of such indebtedness) secured exclusively by any of Tyco's assets (including any liabilities relating to, arising out of or resulting from a claim by a holder of any such indebtedness, in its capacity as such);
- certain specified shared expenses; and
- all liabilities reflected as liabilities or obligations on Tyco's unaudited combined balance sheet as of August 31, 2012 prepared to give pro forma effect to the spin-off and the Distribution (but not the separation of Tyco Flow Control from Tyco and the Tyco Flow Control Distribution) and all liabilities arising or assumed after the date of such balance sheet which, had they arisen or been assumed on or before such date and been retained as of such date, would have been reflected on such balance sheet if prepared on a consistent basis, subject to any discharge of such liabilities subsequent to the date of Tyco's balance sheet.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that the liabilities to be assumed or retained by Tyco or one of its subsidiaries shall not include: (w) any liabilities that are expressly contemplated as liabilities to be retained or assumed by ADT or any of its subsidiaries; (x) any contracts expressly assumed by ADT or any of its subsidiaries; and (y) any intercompany payables expressly discharged pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Consents and Delayed Transfers. If any transfers or assumptions are not consummated by the closing of the Distribution, Tyco and ADT are to use reasonable best efforts to effect such transfers and assumptions while holding such assets or liabilities for the benefit of the appropriate party so that all the benefits and burdens relating to such asset or liability inure to the party entitled to receive or assume such asset or liability. Tyco and ADT are to use reasonable best efforts to obtain consents required to transfer assets and contracts and to novate obligations under contracts and liabilities as necessary to effectuate the spin-off. Additionally, Tyco and ADT will use reasonable best efforts to remove ADT as a guarantor of liabilities retained by Tyco and its subsidiaries and to remove Tyco and its subsidiaries as a guarantor of liabilities to be assumed by ADT.

Shared Contracts. Certain shared contracts are to be assigned or amended to facilitate the separation of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada from Tyco. If such contracts may not be assigned or amended, the parties are required to take reasonable actions to cause the appropriate party to receive the benefit of the contract after the spin-off is complete.

Intercompany Arrangements and Guarantees. A series of intercompany transactions will be undertaken in order to transfer the equity interests in certain subsidiaries of Tyco which hold assets and liabilities associated with Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada to ADT. These will include the settlement and forgiveness of intercompany payables and receivables among us and our subsidiaries and Tyco and its subsidiaries, respectively. Except for matters covered by the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement or in any ancillary agreement or other arms'-length transactions entered into in the ordinary course of business, any and all agreements, arrangements, commitments and understandings, including all intercompany accounts payable or accounts receivable, between us and our subsidiaries and other affiliates and Tyco and its subsidiaries and other affiliates, respectively, will terminate as of the applicable distribution date.

Mutual Releases and Indemnification. Except as otherwise provided in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, we and Tyco have agreed to release the other and its affiliates, successors and assigns, directors, officers, agents and employees from any claims against any of them that arise out of or relate to events, circumstances or actions occurring or failing to occur or any conditions existing at or prior to the time of the Distribution. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, however, will provide that neither party will be released from the following liabilities:

- with respect to Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries), any liability assumed or retained by Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries) and, with respect to ADT or any of its subsidiaries, any liability of ADT assumed or retained by ADT or its subsidiaries;
- any liability for the sale, lease, construction or receipt of goods, property or services purchased, obtained or used in the ordinary course of business by a party from, or on behalf of, another party prior to the effective time of the Distribution;
- any liability for unpaid amounts for products or services or refunds owing on products or services due on a value-received basis for work done by a party at the request or on behalf of another party;
- any liability provided in, or resulting from, any other contract or understanding that is entered into after the effective time of the Distribution between any party or any of its subsidiaries, on the one hand, and the other party or any of its subsidiaries, on the other hand;
- any liability with respect to certain contingent liabilities of Tyco;
- any liability with respect to certain continuing arrangements;
- any liability with respect to insurance policies written by Tyco's captive insurance subsidiary; and
- any liability that the parties may have with respect to indemnification or contribution pursuant to the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement or otherwise for claims brought against the parties by third persons.

Under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco will agree to indemnify, defend and hold harmless ADT from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with (a) the liabilities retained or allegedly retained by Tyco, including, after the Distribution, the failure of Tyco or any of its subsidiaries (other than ADT or any of its subsidiaries) to pay, perform, fulfill, discharge and, to the extent applicable, comply with, in due course and in full, any such liabilities and (b) any breach by Tyco of any provision of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement or any ancillary agreement unless such ancillary agreement expressly provides for separate indemnification therein, in which case any such indemnification claims shall be made thereunder.

Under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT will agree to indemnify, defend and hold harmless Tyco and its subsidiaries (including Tyco Flow Control) from and against any and all indemnifiable losses arising out of, by reason of or otherwise in connection with (a) the liabilities of Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada or alleged liabilities, including, after the Distribution, the failure of ADT or any of its subsidiaries to pay, perform, fulfill, discharge and, to the extent applicable, comply with, in due course and in full, any such liabilities and (b) any breach by ADT of any provision of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement or any ancillary agreement unless such ancillary agreement expressly provides for separate indemnification therein, in which case any such indemnification claims shall be made thereunder.

ADT Stock and Incentive Plan. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that, prior to the spin-off, Tyco will cause ADT to adopt an equity compensation plan for the benefit of the employees of ADT, which will be in a form agreed to by the parties within 90 days following the date of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Non-Compete; Customer Non-Solicit. Each of ADT and Tyco has agreed that for a period of two years from the Distribution (other than for locations in which sales personnel of members of each of ADT's and Tyco's respective groups are collocated for which the non-compete period shall be extended until such collocation terminates), none of ADT, Tyco or members of their respective groups shall engage in certain competitive activities with respect to the other party's respective businesses in the United States and Canada, subject to (i) certain customary exceptions and (ii) exceptions for certain activities currently being conducted by each of the ADT or Tyco businesses, as applicable. Generally, for the non-compete period (i) ADT is prohibited from manufacturing or selling products and providing installation, monitoring and maintenance services related to security, fire detection, fire suppression and life safety for commercial, industrial, retail, institutional and governmental customers (other than to residential or small business customers ("Small Business Customers") owning or operating an enterprise where the secured space is 7,500 square feet or less) and (ii) Tyco is prohibited from providing monitoring and certain on-premise installation and maintenance security services to residential and Small Business Customers. Additionally, each of ADT and Tyco has agreed that for a period of two years from the Distribution not to solicit customers of the other party.

Employee Matters. The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will set forth the agreements between us and Tyco as to certain employee compensation and benefit matters. In general, employees of ADT participate in various Tyco retirement, health and welfare and other employee benefit plans. After the Distribution, it is anticipated that our employees will generally participate in similar plans and arrangements established and maintained by ADT. Except as to be expressly provided in the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, our employees will immediately cease active participation in Tyco benefit plans.

Options to purchase Tyco common shares ("Tyco Options"), restricted stock units with respect to Tyco common shares ("Tyco RSUs") and performance share units with respect to Tyco common shares ("Tyco PSUs" and, together with Tyco Options and Tyco RSUs, "Tyco Equity Awards") have been granted to various Tyco employees, including employees in Tyco's residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada who will become officers and employees of ADT following the spin-off.

Under the terms of the stock and incentive plans under which the outstanding Tyco Equity Awards were issued, the Compensation Committee of Tyco (the “Tyco Compensation Committee”) has the authority to make equitable adjustments to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards in the event of certain transactions, including the distribution of shares of ADT common stock in connection with the spin-off. Accordingly, the Tyco Compensation Committee has authorized that various adjustments be made to outstanding Tyco Equity Awards to prevent the dilution or enlargement of the benefits or potential benefits intended to be made available under the applicable Tyco Equity Awards following the spin-off. These adjustments will be made in the same manner for all employees of Tyco who will become employees of ADT who hold Tyco Equity Awards, including our executive officers. Any options to purchase, or awards relating to, our common stock issued in connection with such adjustments will be our obligations.

We intend to file a registration statement with respect to shares of our common stock issuable upon exercise, or vesting, of the equity awards that we issue, prior to the Distribution. See “Compensation of Executive Officers—Treatment of Outstanding Options, Restricted Stock Units, Performance Share Units and Deferred Share Units.”

Exchange of Information. We and Tyco will agree to provide each other with information reasonably necessary to comply with reporting, disclosure, filing or other requirements of any national securities exchange or governmental authority, for use in judicial, regulatory, administrative and other proceedings and to satisfy audit, accounting, litigation and other similar requests. We and Tyco will also agree to retain such information until the latest of (i) seven years following the Distribution Date or (ii) the date on which such records are no longer required to be retained pursuant to each party’s applicable records retention policy.

Conditions and Termination. Under the terms of the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement, the consummation of the Distribution is subject to the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of the following conditions:

- Tyco shall have obtained the approval of the Distribution from its stockholders;
- the SEC shall have declared effective our registration statement on Form 10, and no stop order suspending the effectiveness of the registration statement shall be in effect;
- our common stock shall have been accepted for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- Tyco shall have received a private letter ruling from the IRS to the effect that (i) the Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock and (ii) certain internal transactions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code; and such letter ruling shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution;
- the ruling obtained from the Swiss Federal Tax Administration regarding the Swiss withholding tax consequences of the distribution of our common stock to Tyco shareholders to the effect that the Distribution, including for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common stock, is not subject to Swiss withholding tax, shall be in full force and effect at the time of the Distribution;
- all permits, registrations and consents required under the U.S. securities or blue sky laws in connection with the Distribution and all other material governmental approvals and other consents necessary to consummate the Distribution shall have been received;
- no order, injunction or decree issued by any governmental authority of competent jurisdiction or other legal restraint or prohibition preventing consummation of the Distribution shall be in effect, and no other event outside the control of Tyco shall have occurred or failed to occur that prevents the consummation of the Distribution;
- based on the closing price of the shares of ADT common stock trading on the last “when-issued” trading day prior to the Distribution, the aggregate implied market capitalization of ADT shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion; and

- the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement and each of the ancillary agreements contemplated by the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement shall have been executed by each party thereto, and each of the internal transactions contemplated by such agreements to have been completed prior to the Distribution shall have been completed.

In addition, we expect that prior to the Distribution the following conditions will be either met or waived:

- Tyco shall have received the opinion of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes;
- Tyco shall have received the opinions of Duff & Phelps relating to the solvency of each of Tyco, ADT and Tyco Flow Control following completion of the Distributions; and
- Tyco shall have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the Distribution and the ordinary cash dividend to Tyco shareholders proposed in the Tyco Proxy Statement comply with Swiss law.

The ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement will provide that prior to the Distribution Date it may be terminated by the mutual consent of us and Tyco.

Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement

We have entered into the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement with Tyco Flow Control and Tyco. The Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement addresses many of the same matters as the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement but with respect to Tyco Flow Control.

Under the Tyco Flow Control Separation and Distribution Agreement, ADT, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control, Pentair and their subsidiaries must refrain from, either directly or indirectly, hiring employees or independent contractors of another party at or above a specified management level (a “Restricted Person”) without the prior written consent of the Senior Vice President for Human Resources of such party. In addition, for two years after the Distribution, ADT, Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair must refrain from, either directly or indirectly, soliciting, aiding or inducing any Restricted Person to leave his employment, provided that any general solicitation through advertisements and search firms not specifically directed at employees of the party are permitted, so long as the soliciting party has not encouraged or advised such employment firm to approach any such employee.

For three years following the consummation of the spin-off and the Merger, neither Tyco, ADT and their subsidiaries, on one hand, nor Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, may establish or acquire any new businesses that involve the sale of products or the provisions of services that compete with the business of Tyco and ADT, on one hand, or the business of Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, subject to certain exceptions, including for ownership of securities in entities at various specified thresholds.

Transition Services Agreements

We intend to enter into transition services agreements with Tyco in connection with the transactions, including a master transition services agreement and an agreement governing the provision of services in Canada (collectively, the “Transition Services Agreements”). Pursuant to these agreements, we and Tyco will provide to each other certain transition services from the period beginning on or prior to the Distribution Date and generally ending within two years after the commencement of such services, subject in certain cases to the right of the service recipient to extend the initial term or to terminate services early. The transition services to be provided under each of the agreements are intended to facilitate an orderly and efficient separation of the residential and small business security business of ADT from Tyco’s commercial security segment. The fees payable by a service recipient under the agreements are generally based on the cost of the service provided plus associated taxes, costs and expenses during the initial term, and a markup of 125% or 150% of cost for periods following the initial term (depending on the length of the time period beyond the initial term).

In addition, under the master transition services agreement, Tyco will acquire certain third-party products and supply them to ADT for installation at ADT customer sites. Tyco will also provide end to end supply chain management for ADT under the agreement, including warehouse and logistics services, for certain third party and Tyco products used by ADT in its operations. The logistics and supply services will be provided by Tyco under the agreement beginning on or prior to the Distribution and ending within two years after the commencement of such services, subject in certain cases to extension of the initial term or early termination. The fees payable by ADT to Tyco for products supplied under this arrangement will be based on (i) the arm's length purchase price of the products paid to the product manufacturer plus (ii) a mark-up approximately equal to Tyco's cost of providing warehouse and logistics services for the products supplied to ADT. At the end of the agreement, ADT may be required to purchase from Tyco a portion of the remaining inventory of Tyco and third party product held by Tyco for supply to ADT.

Tax Sharing Agreement

We intend to enter into the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control that will govern the respective rights, responsibilities and obligations of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and us after the spin-offs with respect to tax liabilities and benefits, tax attributes, tax contests and other tax matters regarding income taxes, other taxes and related tax returns. Because certain of our subsidiaries are members of one of Tyco's U.S. consolidated groups, we have (and will continue to have following the spin-offs) several liability with Tyco to the IRS for the consolidated U.S. federal income taxes of such consolidated group relating to the taxable periods in which our subsidiaries were part of such consolidated group. We expect that the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will provide that ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will share (i) certain pre-Distribution income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to ADT's, Tyco's and Tyco Flow Control's U.S. income tax returns, and (ii) payments required to be made by Tyco in respect to the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement (collectively, "Shared Tax Liabilities"). Tyco will be responsible for the first $500 million of Shared Tax Liabilities. ADT and Tyco Flow Control will share 58% and 42%, respectively, of the next $225 million of Shared Tax Liabilities. ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will share 27.5%, 52.5% and 20.0%, respectively, of Shared Tax Liabilities above $725 million.

In the event the Distributions or certain internal transactions undertaken in connection therewith were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distribution by us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result thereof. Taxes resulting from the determination that the Distribution, the Tyco Flow Control Distribution or any internal transactions that were intended to be tax-free is taxable are referred to herein as "Distribution Taxes." If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distribution by us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, then we, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco would be responsible for any Distribution Taxes imposed on us, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as we share Shared Tax Liabilities. We will have sole responsibility for any income tax liability arising as a result of Tyco's acquisition of Broadview Security in May 2010, including any liability of Broadview Security under the tax sharing agreement between Broadview Security and The Brink's Company dated October 31, 2008 (collectively, the "Broadview Tax Liabilities"). Costs and expenses associated with the management of Shared Tax Liabilities, Distribution Taxes and Broadview Tax Liabilities will generally be shared 20% by Tyco Flow Control, 27.5% by ADT, and 52.5% by Tyco. We are responsible for all of our own taxes that are not shared pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae. Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are responsible for their tax liabilities that are not subject to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae.

The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement is also expected to provide that, if any party were to default in its obligation to another party to pay its share of the Distribution Taxes that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be required to pay, equally with any other non-defaulting party, the amounts in default. In addition, if another party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that is responsible for all or a portion of an income tax liability were to default in its payment of such liability to a taxing authority, we could be legally liable under applicable tax law for such liabilities and required to make additional tax payments. Accordingly, under certain circumstances, we may be obligated to pay amounts in excess of our agreed-upon share of our, Tyco's and Tyco Flow Control's tax liabilities.

Each of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will agree to indemnify the other two parties against any amounts paid by such other parties pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and with respect to which such paying parties are not responsible pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. Though valid as between the parties, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will not be binding on the IRS.

Under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there will be restrictions on our ability to take actions that could cause the Distribution or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution to fail to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, including entering into, approving or allowing any transaction that results in a change in ownership of more than 35% of our common stock (when combined with any other changes in ownership of our stock), a redemption of equity securities, a sale or other disposition of more than 35% of our assets, or engaging in certain internal transactions. These restrictions will apply for the two-year period after the Distribution, unless, for certain transactions, we obtain the consent of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control or we obtain a private letter ruling from the IRS or an unqualified opinion of a nationally recognized law firm that such action will not cause the Distribution or the internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution to fail to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, and such letter ruling or opinion, as the case may be, is acceptable to Tyco and Tyco Flow Control. Moreover, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will also provide that we are responsible for any taxes imposed on Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or any of their affiliates as a result of the failure of the Distribution or the internal transactions to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code if such failure is attributable to certain post-Distribution actions taken by or in respect of us, any of our affiliates or our shareholders, regardless of whether the actions occur more than two years after the Distribution, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control consent to such actions or we obtain a favorable letter ruling or opinion of tax counsel as described above. For example, we would be responsible for a third party's acquisition of us at a time and in a manner that would cause such failure. These restrictions may prevent us from entering into transactions which might be advantageous to us or our shareholders.

Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement

We intend to enter into a tax sharing agreement with Tyco that will govern the respective rights, responsibilities and obligations of Tyco and us after the Distributions with respect to tax returns, tax liabilities, tax attributes, tax contests and other tax matters regarding non-income taxes related to specified legal entities (the "Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement"). We expect that the Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement will provide that ADT and Tyco will share certain pre-Distribution non-income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to the non-income tax returns of the specified legal entities. Tyco will be responsible for amounts equal to accrued liabilities for non-income tax contingencies with respect to the specified entities that will be members of the Tyco group after the Distribution, and ADT will be responsible for amounts equal to accrued liabilities for non-income tax contingencies with respect to the specified entities that will be members of the ADT group after the Distribution. ADT will have sole responsibility of any non-income tax liability assessed against the entities acquired in the acquisition of Broadview Security. In each case, payments required to be made in excess of such accrued liabilities will be shared by Tyco (40%) and ADT (60%).

ADT and Tyco will agree to indemnify each other against any amounts paid by the other party which such paying party is not responsible pursuant to the Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement. Although valid as between the parties, the Non-Income Tax Sharing Agreement will not be binding on any taxing authority.

Patent Agreement

We intend to enter into a Patent Agreement with Tyco in connection with the spin-off under which Tyco will provide ADT with a covenant not to sue under Tyco's pre-spin-off patent portfolio (excluding patents from Tyco's Visonic and Proximex businesses) for ADT's continued use of pre-spin-off products (and certain modifications thereof) from the same pre-spin-off suppliers. There is no covenant for any pre-spin-off product if ADT changes the supplier of that product, no covenant for any new products, and no covenant for any product that may be covered by a Visonic or Proximex patent. The covenant extends to ADT's affiliates, dealers, partners, vendors, customers and others in the supply chain to the extent their activities relate to the operation of ADT's businesses.

This covenant is not intended to modify the parties' obligations under the non-competition agreement described above under the ADT Separation and Distribution Agreement.

Neither ADT nor Tyco may assign the Patent Agreement without the prior written consent of the other party in its sole discretion, except that either party shall assign the Patent Agreement to any acquirer of the patents governed by the Patent Agreement, such that the Patent Agreement cannot be separated from the patents covered thereby.

The Patent Agreement is expected to take effect on the date of the Distribution, and remain in effect until the last patent covered thereby falls into the public domain.

Trademark Ownership Agreement

Prior to the Distribution, we intend to enter into a Trademark Ownership Agreement with Tyco in connection with the spin-off that will govern each party's use of certain trademarks, including the ADT trademark and logo (the "ADT Brand"), pursuant to which Tyco will transfer to us all of its rights in the ADT Brand in North America (specifically, Canada, Puerto Rico and the United States) and Tyco will retain rights to the ADT Brand elsewhere in the world. Each of ADT and Tyco will agree that they and their affiliates will not register or use (subject to a "phase out" transitional license to Tyco in North America) the ADT Brand for any goods or services in the other party's territory. The parties are not restricted from competing with each other under other brands. Under the Trademark Ownership Agreement, we will exclusively own the PULSE trademark.

The Trademark Ownership Agreement will allocate the ownership of, and the parties' rights and obligations with respect to, the ADT Brand online. In general, each party will have the right to register domain names containing the ADT Brand in domain names ending in country codes in its respective territory. The Trademark Ownership Agreement will contain provisions for allocating ownership, rights and obligations in other domains. The agreement will also contain provisions regarding the redirection of Internet traffic to the appropriate website of each party.

The Trademark Ownership Agreement will contain other standard provisions, including quality control provisions, compliance with applicable laws, and security, system and data protection measures. The Trademark Ownership Agreement is expected to take effect on the date of the Distribution, and remain in effect in perpetuity.

Neither ADT nor Tyco may assign the Trademark Ownership Agreement without the consent of the other party, except under certain circumstances to an affiliate, or in connection with a merger, change of control, reorganization or equity or asset sale relating to the business to which the agreement relates, and in each case the assignee must assume in writing all of the assigning party's obligations under the agreement.

Monitoring Agreements

We intend to enter into monitoring services agreements in the United States and Canada (collectively, the "Monitoring Agreements"), pursuant to which we and Tyco will each provide alarm receiving and notification and associated services for certain of each other's customers in the United States and Canada. The Monitoring Agreements will begin on or prior to the Distribution Date and generally end by September 30, 2014, subject in certain cases to the right of the service recipient to extend the initial term or to terminate services early. The provision of monitoring services for each other's customers is intended to facilitate an orderly and efficient separation of alarm monitoring activity between ADT's alarm receiving centers and Tyco's alarm receiving centers. The fees payable by a service recipient under the Monitoring Agreements are generally based on the cost of providing the service plus associated taxes, costs and expenses during the initial term, and a markup of 25% or 50% of cost for periods following the initial term (depending on the length of the time period beyond the initial term).

Guard Service Agreements

We expect to enter into guard services agreements in the United States and Canada (collectively, the “Guard Services Agreements”), pursuant to which ADT will provide alarm response and patrol services for Tyco’s customers in certain parts of the United States and Tyco will provide such services for ADT’s customers in certain parts of Canada. All terms and conditions under the Guard Services Agreements, including fees, are expected to be arms’ length.

The initial term of each Guard Services Agreement is expected to be for one year following the Distribution, subject to renewal at the option of both parties.

Master Supply Agreement

We intend to enter into a Master Supply Agreement with Tyco that will provide for the supply of Tyco products to ADT for installation at ADT customer sites. The initial term of the agreement will be for one year following the Distribution. All terms and conditions under the agreement, including product pricing, are expected to be arms’ length.

Sublease Agreements

At the locations where ADT and Tyco are physically co-located the parties will enter into subleases (or at owned sites, leases) to end the sooner of the expiration of the master lease, mutual agreement, or September 30, 2014. Rent (including pass through of operating expenses and asset depreciation) is allocated based on the percentage of the premises the subtenant occupies. The sublandlord will own all furniture, fixtures and equipment as well as any asset retirement obligation. Master lease terms, where applicable, are incorporated. The parties agree to indemnify the other for their own negligence. The sublandlords, where feasible and permitted under the master lease, may physically demise the sublease premises, but otherwise where not physically separated the parties agree to cooperate and abide by security protocols as may be established.

Consulting Agreement

Upon separation, we expect to enter into an agreement with Mr. Edward Breen, Tyco’s current chairman and chief executive, pursuant to which Mr. Breen will agree to provide consulting and advisory services to ADT on strategic and general corporate matters within Mr. Breen’s areas of expertise and prior experience, including but not limited to:

- Reviewing and providing constructive feedback on ADT’s strategic plans;
- Advising on business development, marketing and sales channels alternatives and other matters to enhance the growth of ADT;
- Advising on strategic partnerships and alliances;
- Consulting on service and brand extension concepts under consideration by ADT;
- Providing advice and guidance to the CEO; and
- Providing advice on such other strategic matters regarding ADT’s current or prospective business as mutually agreed between Mr. Breen and the CEO.

The initial term of the agreement is one year, which the parties can extend for an additional one year period upon mutual consent. During the term of the agreement, Mr. Breen will be paid $80,000 per year, plus reimbursement for all reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in providing his services under the agreement, and will agree to certain confidentiality and non-competition provisions.

Immediately following the spin-off, our authorized capital stock will consist of 1 billion shares of common stock, par value $0.01 per share, and 50 million shares of preferred stock, $0.01 par value per share.

Common Stock

Shares Outstanding. We estimate that immediately following the spin-off approximately 230 million shares of our common stock will be issued and outstanding, based on the number of Tyco common shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012. The actual number of shares of our common stock outstanding immediately following the spin-off will depend on the actual number of Tyco common shares outstanding on the record date, excluding Tyco common shares held in treasury by Tyco.

Dividends. Holders of shares of our common stock are entitled to receive dividends when, as and if declared by our board of directors out of funds legally available for that purpose. Future dividends are dependent on our earnings, financial condition, cash flow and business requirements, as determined by our board of directors.

The holders of our common stock do not have preemptive rights or preferential rights to subscribe for shares of our capital stock.

Preferred Stock

Our certificate of incorporation will authorize our board of directors to designate and issue from time to time one or more series of preferred stock without shareholder approval. Our board of directors may fix and determine the preferences, limitations and relative rights of each series of preferred stock. There are no present plans to issue any shares of preferred stock.

Certain Provisions of Delaware Law, Our Certificate of Incorporation and By-Laws

Certificate of Incorporation and By-laws

Certain provisions in our proposed certificate of incorporation and by-laws summarized below may be deemed to have an anti-takeover effect and may delay, deter or prevent a tender offer or takeover attempt that a shareholder might consider to be in its best interests, including attempts that might result in a premium being paid over the market price for the shares held by shareholders. These provisions are intended to enhance the likelihood of continuity and stability in the composition of the board of directors and in the policies formulated by the board of directors and to discourage certain types of transactions that may involve an actual or threatened change of control.

Our certificate of incorporation and by-laws will contain provisions that permit us to issue, without any further vote or action by the shareholders, up to 50 million shares of preferred stock in one or more series and, with respect to each such series, to fix the number of shares constituting the series, the designation of the series, the voting powers, if any, of the shares of the series, the preferences and relative, participating, optional and other special rights, if any, and any qualifications, limitations or restrictions of the shares of such series. The ability to issue such preferred stock could discourage potential acquisition proposals and could delay or prevent a change in control.

Delaware Takeover Statute

We are subject to Section 203 of the Delaware General Corporation Law, which, subject to certain exceptions, prohibits a Delaware corporation from engaging in any “business combination” (as defined below) with any “interested shareholder” (as defined below) for a period of three years following the date that such shareholder became an interested shareholder, unless: (1) prior to such date, the board of directors of the corporation approved either the business combination or the transaction that resulted in the shareholder becoming an interested shareholder; (2) on consummation of the transaction that resulted in the shareholder becoming an interested shareholder, the interested shareholder owned at least 85% of the voting stock of the corporation outstanding at the time the transaction commenced, excluding for purposes of determining the number of shares outstanding those shares owned (x) by persons who are directors and also officers and (y) by employee stock plans in which employee participants do not have the right to determine confidentially whether shares held subject to the plan will be tendered in a tender or exchange offer; or (3) on or subsequent to such date, the business combination is approved by the board of directors and authorized at an annual or special meeting of shareholders, and not by written consent, by the affirmative vote of at least 66<sup>2</sup>/<sub>3</sub>% of the outstanding voting stock that is not owned by the interested shareholder.

Section 203 of the Delaware General Corporation Law defines “business combination” to include: (1) any merger or consolidation involving the corporation and the interested shareholder; (2) any sale, transfer, pledge or other disposition of 10% or more of the assets of the corporation involving the interested shareholder; (3) subject to certain exceptions, any transaction that results in the issuance or transfer by the corporation of any stock of the corporation to the interested shareholder; (4) any transaction involving the corporation that has the effect of increasing the proportionate share of the stock of any class or series of the corporation beneficially owned by the interested shareholder; or (5) the receipt by the interested shareholder of the benefit of any loans, advances, guarantees, pledges or other financial benefits provided by or through the corporation. In general, Section 203 defines an “interested shareholder” as any entity or person beneficially owning 15% or more of the outstanding voting stock of the corporation and any entity or person affiliated with or controlling or controlled by such entity or person.

Transfer Agent and Registrar

After the Distribution, the transfer agent and registrar for our common stock will be Wells Fargo Shareowner Services.

Listing

We intend to list our common stock on the NYSE under the trading symbol “ADT.”

Limitation of Liability and Indemnification

Under Delaware law, a corporation may indemnify any individual made a party or threatened to be made a party to any type of proceeding, other than an action by or in the right of the corporation, because he or she is or was an officer, director, employee or agent of the corporation or was serving at the request of the corporation as an officer, director, employee or agent of another corporation or entity against expenses, judgments, fines and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred in connection with such proceeding if (1) he or she acted in good faith and in a manner he or she reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation or (2) in the case of a criminal proceeding, he or she had no reasonable cause to believe that his or her conduct was unlawful. A corporation may indemnify any individual made a party or threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending or completed action or suit brought by or in the right of the corporation because he or she was an officer, director, employee or agent of the corporation or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a director, officer, employee or agent of another corporation or other entity, against expenses actually and reasonably incurred in connection with such action or suit if he or she acted in good faith and in a manner he or she reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation, provided that such indemnification will be denied if the individual is found liable to the corporation unless, in such a case, the court determines the person is nonetheless entitled to indemnification for such expenses. A corporation must indemnify a present or former director or officer who successfully defends himself or herself in a proceeding to which he or she was a party because he or she was a director or officer of the corporation against expenses actually and reasonably incurred by him or her. Expenses incurred by an officer, director, employee or agent, as deemed appropriate by the board of directors, in defending civil or criminal proceedings may be paid by the corporation in advance of the final disposition of such proceedings upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of such director, officer, employee or agent to repay such amount if it shall ultimately be determined that he or she is not entitled to be indemnified by the corporation. The Delaware law regarding indemnification and expense advancement is not exclusive of any other rights which may be granted by our certificate of incorporation or by-laws, a vote of shareholders or disinterested directors, agreement or otherwise.

Under Delaware law, termination of any proceeding by conviction or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent shall not, of itself, create a presumption that such person is prohibited from being indemnified.

Delaware law permits a corporation to adopt a provision in its certificate of incorporation eliminating or limiting the personal liability of a director, but not an officer in his or her capacity as such, to the corporation or its shareholders for monetary damages for breach of fiduciary duty as a director, except that such provision may not limit the liability of a director for (1) any breach of the director's duty of loyalty to the corporation or its shareholders, (2) acts or omissions not in good faith or that involve intentional misconduct or a knowing violation of law, (3) unlawful payment of dividends or stock purchases or redemptions or (4) any transaction from which the director derived an improper personal benefit. Our certificate of incorporation will provide that, to the fullest extent permitted under Delaware law, no ADT director shall be liable to us or our shareholders for monetary damages for breach of fiduciary duty as a director.

Our by-laws will require indemnification, to the fullest extent permitted under Delaware law as it presently exists or may be amended, of any person (an "indemnitee") who is or was involved in any manner or threatened to be made so involved in any action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative or investigative, by reason of the fact that such person is or was serving as a director or officer of ADT or is or was serving at the request of ADT as a director, officer, employee or agent or trustee of another corporation, or of a partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, including service with respect to employee benefit plans, against all expense, liability and loss (including attorney's fees, judgments, fines, ERISA excise taxes or penalties and amounts paid in settlement) reasonably incurred by such indemnitee in connection with such proceeding; provided that the foregoing shall not apply to a director or officer with respect to a proceeding that was commenced by such director or officer except under certain circumstances.

In addition, our by-laws will provide that the expenses (including attorney's fees) incurred by or on behalf of an indemnitee in connection with any proceeding in advance of its final disposition or a proceeding brought to establish or enforce a right to indemnification or advancement of expenses under our by-laws will be advanced to the indemnitee by us upon the request of the indemnitee, which request, if required by law, will include an undertaking by or on behalf of the indemnitee to repay the amounts advanced if ultimately it is determined by final judicial decision from which there is no further right to appeal that the indemnitee was not entitled to be indemnified or entitled to advancement of the expenses under our by-laws.

Our bylaws will also expressly state that we may grant rights to indemnification and to the advancement of expenses to any of our employees or agents to the fullest extent of the provisions of our bylaws.

The indemnification rights to be provided in our by-laws will not be exclusive of any other right to which persons seeking indemnification may otherwise be entitled.

As permitted by Delaware law, our by-laws will authorize us to purchase and maintain insurance to protect any director, officer, employee or agent against any expense, liability or loss that such persons may incur in such capacities.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM

To the Board of Directors of Tyco International Ltd.:

We have audited the accompanying combined balance sheets of the ADT North American Residential Security Business of Tyco International Ltd. (the “Company”) as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, and the related combined statements of operations, parent company equity, and cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended September 30, 2011. Our audits also included the financial statement schedule listed in the Index at page F-1. The combined financial statements include the accounts of certain security-related businesses of Tyco International Ltd. (“Tyco”), which are under the common ownership, control and oversight of Tyco. These financial statements and financial statement schedule are the responsibility of the Company’s management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the financial statements and financial statement schedule based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States). Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. The Company is not required to have, nor were we engaged to perform, an audit of its internal control over financial reporting. Our audits included consideration of internal control over financial reporting as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company’s internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, such combined financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Company as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended September 30, 2011, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Also, in our opinion, such financial statement schedule, when considered in relation to the basic combined financial statements taken as a whole, presents fairly in all material respects the information set forth therein.

As discussed in Note 1 to the combined financial statements, the Company is comprised of the assets and liabilities used in managing and operating the Company. The combined financial statements also include allocations from Tyco. These allocations may not be reflective of the actual level of assets, liabilities, or costs which would have been incurred had the Company operated as a separate entity apart from Tyco.

ADT NORTH AMERICAN RESIDENTIAL SECURITY BUSINESS OF TYCO INTERNATIONAL LTD.

NOTES TO COMBINED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. Basis of Presentation and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Separation—On September 19, 2011, Tyco International Ltd. (“Tyco” or “Parent”) announced that its Board of Directors approved a plan to separate Tyco into three separate, publicly traded companies (the “Separation”), identifying the ADT North American Residential Security Business of Tyco (the “Company”), as one of those three companies. The Separation is expected to be completed by the end of the third calendar quarter of 2012 through a tax-free pro rata distribution of all of the equity interest in the Company (the “Distribution”). During January 2012, The ADT Corporation (“ADT”), which upon completion of the Separation will become the parent of the Company, was incorporated in the State of Delaware.

Completion of the proposed separation is subject to certain conditions, including final approval by the Tyco Board of Directors and shareholders, receipt of tax opinions and rulings and the filing and effectiveness of registration statements with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”). The Separation will also be subject to the completion of any necessary financing.

Basis of Presentation—The Combined Financial Statements include the combined operations, assets and liabilities of the Company. The Combined Financial Statements have been prepared in United States dollars (“USD”) and in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States (“GAAP”). Unless otherwise indicated, references to 2011, 2010 and 2009 are to the Company’s fiscal years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, respectively.

Additionally, the Combined Financial Statements do not necessarily reflect what the Company’s combined results of operations, financial position and cash flows would have been had the Company operated as an independent, publicly traded company during the periods presented. The Company’s Combined Financial Statements have been prepared to include all of Tyco’s residential and small business security business in the United States, Canada and certain U.S. territories, and reflect a combination of the assets and liabilities that have been used in managing and operating this business. All revenue and most assets and liabilities, including subscriber-related assets and liabilities, and most expenses reflected in the combined financial statements are directly associated with the Company. Due to existing functions and facilities shared among Tyco and us, certain working capital, property and equipment, and operating expense balances have been allocated to the Company. In addition, certain general corporate overhead, debt and related interest expense have been allocated by Tyco to the Company. The Company used certain underlying activity drivers as a basis of allocation, including revenue, materials usage, head-count utilization and other factors. Management believes such allocations are reasonable; however, they may not be indicative of the actual results of the Company had the Company been operating as an independent, publicly traded company for the periods presented or the amounts that will be incurred by the Company in the future. Note 6 provides further information regarding debt and related interest expense allocations and Note 7 provides further information regarding general corporate overhead allocations.

The Company has a 52 or 53-week fiscal year that ends on the last Friday in September. Fiscal 2011 was a 53-week year. Fiscal years 2010 and 2009 were 52-week years.

The Company conducts business in one operating segment. This segment is identified by the Company based on how resources are allocated and operating decisions are made. Management evaluates performance and allocates resources based on operating profit or loss of the Company as a whole.

The Company conducts business through its operating entities. All intercompany transactions have been eliminated. The results of companies acquired during the year are included in the Combined Financial Statements from the effective date of acquisition. See Note 3.

Use of Estimates—The preparation of the Combined Financial Statements in conformity with GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amount of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities and reported amounts of revenue and expenses. Significant estimates in these Combined Financial Statements include allowances for doubtful accounts receivable, estimates of future cash flows and valuation related assumptions associated with asset impairment testing, useful lives and methods for depreciation and amortization, loss contingencies, insurance reserves, income taxes and tax valuation allowances, accounting for business combinations and defined benefit obligations. Actual results could differ materially from these estimates.

Revenue Recognition—Major components of revenue for the Company include fees associated with contractual monitoring and maintenance services, non-refundable installation fees related to subscriber system assets, other repair and maintenance services and sales of equipment.

Revenue from the sale of services is recognized as services are rendered. Contractual fees for monitoring and maintenance services are recognized on a straight-line basis over the contract term. Customer billings for services not yet rendered are deferred and recognized as revenue as the services are rendered. The balance of deferred revenue is included in current liabilities or long-term liabilities, as appropriate.

For transactions in which the Company retains ownership of the security system asset, referred to as subscriber system assets, non-refundable fees (referred to as deferred subscriber acquisition revenue) received in connection with the initiation of a monitoring contract, along with associated direct and incremental selling costs (referred to as deferred subscriber acquisition costs), are deferred and amortized over the estimated life of the customer relationship.

Sales of security monitoring systems may have multiple elements, including equipment, installation, monitoring services and maintenance agreements. The Company assesses its revenue arrangements to determine the appropriate units of accounting. In certain circumstances, ownership of the system is contractually transferred to the customer, in which case each deliverable provided under the arrangement is considered a separate unit of accounting. Revenue associated with sale of equipment and related installations is recognized once delivery, installation and customer acceptance is completed, while the revenue for monitoring and maintenance services is recognized on a straight-line basis over the contract term as services are rendered. Early termination of the contract by the customer results in a termination charge in accordance with the customer contract, which is due immediately following the termination date. The amounts of contract termination charges recognized in revenue during the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009 were not material. The Company may refund up-front consideration and monitoring fees paid during the six months following installation of a system in limited circumstances after all attempts to resolve customer concerns have been exhausted. Amounts that the Company has refunded during the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009 were not material. Amounts assigned to each unit of accounting are based on an allocation of total arrangement consideration using a hierarchy of estimated selling price for the deliverables. The selling price used for each deliverable is based on Vendor Specific Objective Evidence (“VSOE”) if available, Third Party Evidence (“TPE”) if VSOE is not available, or estimated selling price if neither VSOE nor TPE is available. Revenue recognized for equipment and installation is limited to the lesser of their allocated amounts under the estimated selling price hierarchy or the non-contingent up-front consideration received at the time of installation, since collection of future amounts under the arrangement with the customer is contingent upon the delivery of monitoring and maintenance services.

Provisions for certain rebates and discounts to customers are accounted for as reductions in revenue in the same period the related revenue is recorded. These provisions are based on terms of arrangements with direct, indirect and other market participants. Rebates are estimated based on sales terms, historical experience and trend analysis.

The Company records estimated product warranty costs at the time of sale. The carrying amounts of the Company’s warranty accrual as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 were not material.

Advertising—Advertising costs which amounted to $152 million, $113 million and $76 million for 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively, are expensed when incurred and are included in selling, general and administrative expenses.

Acquisition Costs—Acquisition costs are expensed when incurred and are included in selling, general and administrative expenses. See Note 3.

Translation of Foreign Currency—The Company’s Combined Financial Statements are reported in U.S. dollars. A portion of the Company’s business is transacted in Canadian dollars. The Company’s Canadian entity maintains its records in Canadian dollars. The assets and liabilities are translated into U.S. dollars using rates of exchange at the balance sheet date and translation adjustments are recorded in accumulated other comprehensive income. Revenue and expenses are translated at average rates of exchange in effect during the year.

Cash and Cash Equivalents—All highly liquid investments with original maturities of three months or less from the time of purchase are considered to be cash equivalents.

Allowance for Doubtful Accounts—The allowance for doubtful accounts receivable reflects the best estimate of probable losses inherent in the Company’s receivable portfolio determined on the basis of historical experience and other currently available evidence.

Inventories—Inventories are recorded at the lower of cost (primarily first-in, first-out) or market value.

Property and Equipment, Net—Property and equipment, net is recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation. Depreciation expense for 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $35 million, $28 million and $25 million, respectively. Maintenance and repair expenditures are charged to expense when incurred. Depreciation is calculated using the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the related assets as follows:

Buildings and related improvements . . . . .	Up to 40 years
Leasehold improvements . . . . .	Lesser of remaining term of the lease or economic useful life
Other machinery, equipment and furniture and fixtures . . . . .	1 to 14 years

Subscriber System Assets and Related Deferred Costs and Deferred Revenue—Subscriber system assets, net are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation. Accumulated depreciation of subscriber system assets was $1,821 million and $1,551 million as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. Depreciation expense relating to subscriber system assets for 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $272 million, $209 million and $171 million, respectively. The Company considers security system assets related to its electronic security business in two asset categories: internally generated subscriber systems (referred to as subscriber system assets) and customer accounts generated through the ADT dealer program (referred to as dealer intangibles, as further described in the Dealer and Other Amortizable Intangible Assets, Net section below). Subscriber system assets include installed property and equipment for which the Company retains ownership and deferred costs directly related to the customer acquisition and system installation. Subscriber system assets represent capitalized equipment (e.g. security control panels, touchpad, motion detectors, window sensors, and other equipment) and installation costs incurred to prepare the asset for its intended use. The Company pays property taxes on the subscriber system assets and upon customer termination, may retrieve such assets. These assets embody a probable future economic benefit as they generate future monitoring revenue for the Company.

Deferred subscriber acquisition costs, net associated with subscriber system assets represent direct and incremental selling expenses (i.e. commissions) related to acquiring the customer. Commissions related to up-front consideration paid by customers in connection with the establishment of the monitoring arrangement are determined based on a percentage of the up-front fees and do not exceed deferred revenue. Depreciation expense relating to deferred subscriber acquisition costs for 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $102 million, $98 million and $96 million, respectively.

Subscriber system assets and any deferred costs and revenue resulting from the customer acquisition are accounted for over the expected life of the customer relationship. The Company accounts for subscriber system assets and related deferred costs and deferred revenue using pools, with separate pools for the components of subscriber system assets and any related deferred costs and deferred revenue based on the same month and year of acquisition. The Company depreciates its pooled subscriber system assets and related deferred costs and deferred revenue using an accelerated method over 15 years. In order to align the depreciation of these assets to the pattern in which their economic benefits are consumed, the accelerated method utilizes an average declining balance rate of 240% and converts to a straight-line methodology when the resulting depreciation charge is greater than that from the accelerated method, resulting in an average depreciation of 58% of the pool within the first five years, 25% within the second five years and 17% within the final five years.

Dealer and Other Amortizable Intangible Assets, Net—Intangible assets primarily include contracts and related customer relationships. Certain contracts and related customer relationships are generated from an external network of independent dealers who operate under the ADT dealer program. These contracts and related customer relationships are recorded at their contractually determined purchase price. During the initial period of the customer contract, generally twelve to fifteen months, any cancellation of monitoring service, including those that result from customer payment delinquencies, results in a chargeback by the Company to the dealer for the full amount of the contract purchase price. The Company records the amount charged back to the dealer as a reduction of the previously recorded intangible asset pool.

Intangible assets arising from the ADT dealer program described above are amortized in pools determined by the same month and year of contract commencement on an accelerated basis over the period and pattern of economic benefit that is expected to be obtained from the customer relationship. The estimated useful life of dealer intangibles is 15 years. The accelerated method for amortizing these intangible assets utilizes an average declining balance rate of 300% and converts to a straight-line methodology when the resulting amortization charge is greater than that from the accelerated method, resulting in an average amortization of 67% of the pool within the first five years, 22% within the second five years and 11% within the final five years.

Other contracts and related customer relationships are amortized on a straight-line basis over 4 to 14 years. The Company evaluates the amortization methods and remaining useful lives of intangible assets on a periodic basis to determine whether events and circumstances warrant a revision to the amortization method or remaining useful lives.

Long-Lived Asset Impairments—The Company reviews long-lived assets, including property and equipment and amortizable intangible assets, for impairment whenever events or changes in business circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of the asset may not be fully recoverable. The Company performs undiscounted operating cash flow analyses to determine if impairment exists. For purposes of recognition and measurement of an impairment for assets held for use, the Company groups assets and liabilities at the lowest level for which cash flows are separately identified. If an impairment is determined to exist, any related impairment loss is calculated based on fair value. Impairment losses on assets to be disposed of, if any, are based on the estimated proceeds to be received, less costs of disposal.

Goodwill—Goodwill is assessed for impairment annually and more frequently if triggering events occur. See Note 5. In performing these assessments, management relies on various factors, including operating results, business plans, economic projections, anticipated future cash flows, comparable transactions and other market data. There are inherent uncertainties related to these factors which require judgment in applying them to the testing of goodwill for impairment. The Company performs its annual impairment tests for goodwill on the first day of the fourth quarter of each year.

When testing for goodwill impairment, the Company first compares the fair value of its reporting unit with its carrying amount. The estimated fair value of the reporting unit used in the goodwill impairment test is determined utilizing a discounted cash flow analysis based on the Company's forecasts discounted using market participants' weighted-average cost of capital and market indicators of terminal year cash flows. Other valuation methods are used to corroborate the discounted cash flow method. If the carrying amount of the Company's reporting unit exceeds its fair value, goodwill is considered potentially impaired and further tests are performed to measure the amount of impairment loss. In the second step of the goodwill impairment test, the Company compares the implied fair value of a reporting unit's goodwill with the carrying amount of a reporting unit's goodwill. If the carrying amount of a reporting unit's goodwill exceeds the implied fair value of that goodwill, an impairment loss is recognized in an amount equal to the excess of the carrying amount of goodwill over its implied fair value. The implied fair value of goodwill is determined in the same manner that the amount of goodwill recognized in a business combination is determined. The Company allocates the fair value of its reporting unit to all of the assets and liabilities of that unit, including intangible assets, as if the reporting unit had been acquired in a business combination. Any excess of the fair value of its reporting unit over the amounts assigned to its assets and liabilities represents the implied fair value of goodwill.

Parent Company Investment—Parent company investment in the Combined Balance Sheets represents Tyco's historical investment in the Company, the Company's accumulated net earnings after taxes, and the net effect of transactions with and allocations from Tyco. Note 7 provides additional information regarding the allocation to the Company of various expenses incurred by Tyco.

Income Taxes—For purposes of the Company's Combined Financial Statements, income tax expense and deferred tax balances have been recorded as if it filed tax returns on a stand-alone basis separate from Tyco ("Separate Return Method"). The Separate Return Method applies the accounting guidance for income taxes to the standalone financial statements as if the Company was a separate taxpayer and a standalone enterprise for the periods presented. The calculation of income taxes for the Company on a separate return basis requires a considerable amount of judgment and use of both estimates and allocations. Historically, the Company has primarily operated within a Tyco U.S. consolidated group and within a standalone Canadian entity. In certain instances, tax losses or credits generated by Tyco's other businesses will be available to the Company going forward after the Separation.

In determining taxable income for the Company's Combined Financial Statements, the Company must make certain estimates and judgments. These estimates and judgments affect the calculation of certain tax liabilities and the determination of the recoverability of certain of the deferred tax assets, which arise from temporary differences between the tax and financial statement recognition of revenue and expense.

In evaluating the Company's ability to recover its deferred tax assets, the Company considers all available positive and negative evidence including its past operating results, the existence of cumulative losses in the most recent years and its forecast of future taxable income. In estimating future taxable income, the Company develops assumptions including the amount of future pre-tax operating income, the reversal of temporary differences and the implementation of feasible and prudent tax planning strategies. These assumptions require significant judgment about the forecasts of future taxable income and are consistent with the plans and estimates the Company is using to manage the underlying businesses.

The Company does not have any significant valuation allowances against its net deferred tax assets.

The tax carryforwards reflected in the Company's Combined Financial Statements have been determined using the Separate Return Method. The tax carryforwards include net operating losses and tax credits. The Company's post spin-off tax carryforwards will be different than those reflected in the Company's Combined Financial Statements.

Changes in tax laws and rates could also affect recorded deferred tax assets and liabilities in the future. Management records the effect of a tax rate or law change on the Company's deferred tax assets and liabilities in the period of enactment. Future tax rate or law changes could have a material effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or cash flows.

In addition, the calculation of the Company's tax liabilities involves dealing with uncertainties in the application of complex tax regulations in the United States and Canada. The Company recognizes potential liabilities and records tax liabilities for anticipated tax audit issues in the U.S. and other tax jurisdictions based on its estimate of whether, and the extent to which, additional taxes will be due. These tax liabilities are reflected net of related tax loss carryforwards. The Company adjusts these reserves in light of changing facts and circumstances; however, due to the complexity of some of these uncertainties, the ultimate resolution may result in a payment that is materially different from its current estimate of the tax liabilities. If the Company's estimate of tax liabilities proves to be less than the ultimate assessment, an additional charge to expense would result. If payment of these amounts ultimately proves to be less than the recorded amounts, the reversal of the liabilities would result in tax benefits being recognized in the period when the Company determines the liabilities are no longer necessary. For purposes of the Company's Combined Financial Statements, these estimated tax liabilities have been computed on a separate return basis.

Insurable Liabilities—The Company insures workers' compensation, property, product, general and auto liabilities through a wholly owned subsidiary of Tyco, a captive insurance company, which retains the risk of loss. The captive's policies covering these risks are deductible reimbursement policies. Tyco has insurance for losses in excess of the captive insurance company policies' limits through third party insurance companies.

These insurance costs have been allocated to the Company on a specific identification basis by Tyco. Management believes the allocations are reasonable; however, they may not be indicative of the actual insurance costs of the Company had the Company been operating as an independent, stand-alone entity for the periods presented. See Note 7.

Concentration of Credit Risks—Financial instruments which potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risks are principally cash and cash equivalents and accounts receivables. Cash and cash equivalents are held by major financial institutions. The large number of its customer receivables limit the Company's concentration of risk with respect to accounts receivable.

Recently Issued Accounting Pronouncements—In June 2011, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued authoritative guidance for the presentation of comprehensive income. The guidance amended the reporting of Other Comprehensive Income ("OCI") by eliminating the option to present OCI as part of the Combined Statements of Parent Company Equity. The amendment will not impact the accounting for OCI, but only its presentation in the Company's Combined Financial Statements. The guidance requires that items of net income and OCI be presented either in a single continuous statement of comprehensive income or in two separate but consecutive statements which include total net income and its components, consecutively followed by total OCI and its components to arrive at total comprehensive income. In December 2011, the FASB issued authoritative guidance to defer the effective date for those aspects of the guidance relating to the presentation of reclassification adjustments out of accumulated other comprehensive income. The guidance must be applied retrospectively and is effective for the Company in the first quarter of fiscal 2013, with early adoption permitted. The Company is currently assessing the timing of its adoption of the guidance.

In September 2011, the FASB issued authoritative guidance which expanded and enhanced the existing disclosures related to multi-employer pension and other postretirement benefit plans. The amendments require additional quantitative and qualitative disclosures to provide more detailed information, including the significant multi-employer plans in which the Company participates, the level of the Company's participation and contributions, and the financial health and indication of funded status, which will provide users of financial statements with a better understanding of the employer's involvement in multi-employer benefit plans. The guidance must be applied retrospectively and is effective for the Company for the fiscal 2012 annual period, with early adoption permitted. The Company is currently assessing the timing of its adoption of the guidance along with what impact, if any, the guidance will have on its annual disclosures.

In September 2011, the FASB issued authoritative guidance which amends the process of testing goodwill for impairment. The guidance permits an entity to first assess qualitative factors to determine whether the existence of events or circumstances leads to a determination that it is more likely than not, defined as having a likelihood of more than fifty percent, that the fair value of a reporting unit is less than its carrying amount. If an entity determines it is not more likely than not that the fair value of a reporting unit is less than its carrying amount, performing the traditional two step goodwill impairment test is unnecessary. If an entity concludes otherwise, it would be required to perform the first step of the two step goodwill impairment test. If the carrying amount of the reporting unit exceeds its fair value, then the entity is required to perform the second step of the goodwill impairment test. However, an entity has the option to bypass the qualitative assessment in any period and proceed directly to step one of the impairment test. The guidance is effective for the Company for interim and annual impairment testing beginning in the first quarter of fiscal 2013, with early adoption permitted. The Company is currently assessing the timing of its adoption of the guidance.

2. Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges, Net

From time to time, the Company will initiate various restructuring actions which result in employee severance, facility exit and other restructuring costs, as described below.

The Company initiated multi-year restructuring programs in 2009 (the “2009 Program”) and in 2011 (the “2011 Program”). Under each of these programs, the Company incurred restructuring and asset impairment charges (reversals), net, during 2011, 2010 and 2009 which are included in selling, general and administrative expenses, as follows ($ in millions):

	For the Year Ended September 30, 2011	For the Year Ended September 24, 2010	For the Year Ended September 25, 2009
2011 Program

The rollforward of the reserves from September 24, 2010 to September 30, 2011 is as follows ($ in millions):

	2011 Program	2009 Program	Total

Balance as of September 30, 2011 . . . . .	$ 2	$ 1	$ 3

The Company also incurred restructuring charges of $1 million, nil and $2 million for the years ended 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively, for restructuring actions initiated prior to 2009. The remaining reserve for these actions was $7 million as of both September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, which primarily relates to facility exit costs for long-term non-cancelable lease obligations.

3. Acquisitions

Fiscal 2011

Acquisitions

During the year ended September 30, 2011, there were no acquisitions made by the Company.

During the year ended September 30, 2011, the Company incurred integration costs of $28 million, primarily in connection with the integration of Brink's Home Security Holdings, Inc ("BHS" or "Broadview Security") in 2010. Of these costs, $26 million is recorded within selling, general and administrative expenses and $2 million is recorded within cost of revenue within the Company's Combined Statement of Operations for the year ended September 30, 2011.

Dealer Generated Customer Accounts and Bulk Account Purchases

In addition, the Company recorded $18 million of integration costs during the year ended September 24, 2010. Both acquisition and integration costs have been recorded within selling, general and administrative expenses in the Company's Combined Statement of Operations for the year ended September 24, 2010. In addition, the Company recorded $14 million of restructuring expenses in conjunction with the acquisition of Broadview Security, which have been recorded within selling, general and administrative expenses in the Company's Combined Statement of Operations for the year ended September 24, 2010.

Dealer Generated Customer Accounts and Bulk Account Purchases

During the year ended September 24, 2010, the Company paid $532 million for approximately 459,000 customer contracts for electronic security services.

Acquisition of Broadview Security

On May 14, 2010, the Company acquired all of the outstanding equity of Broadview Security, a publicly traded company that was formerly owned by The Brink's Company, in a cash-and-stock transaction valued at approximately $2.0 billion. Prior to its acquisition, Broadview Security's core business was to provide security alarm monitoring services for residential and small business properties in North America. Under the terms of the transaction, each outstanding share of BHS common stock was converted into the right to receive: (1) $13.15 in cash and 0.7562 Tyco common shares, for those shareholders who made an all-cash election, (2) 1.0951 Tyco common shares, for those shareholders who made an all stock election or (3) $12.75 in cash and 0.7666 Tyco common shares, for those shareholders who made a mixed cash/stock election or who failed to make an election.

Fair Value Calculation of Consideration Transferred—The calculation of the consideration transferred to acquire BHS is as follows. Certain amounts below cannot be recalculated as the exact BHS common share amounts have not been presented. ($ and common share data in millions, except per share data):

Cash Consideration

Total fair value of consideration transferred . . . . . $ 1,974

(1) Represents the fair value of BHS stock option, restricted stock unit and deferred stock unit replacement awards attributable to pre-combination service issued to holders of these awards in the acquisition. The fair value was determined using the Black-Scholes model for stock option awards and Tyco's closing stock price for the restricted and deferred stock unit awards. The fair value of outstanding BHS stock-based compensation awards that immediately vested at the effective time of the acquisition was attributed to pre-combination service and was included in the consideration transferred. In addition, there were certain BHS stock-based compensation awards that did not immediately vest upon completion of the acquisition. For those awards, the fair value attributed to post-combination service is being recognized as compensation expense over the requisite service period in the post-combination financial statements.

Fair Value Allocation of Consideration Transferred to Assets Acquired and Liabilities Assumed—The consideration transferred for BHS has been allocated to identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed as of the acquisition date. The following amounts represent the final determination of the fair value of the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed ($ in millions):

- (1) As of the acquisition date, the fair value of accounts receivable approximated book value. Included in net current assets is $32 million of accounts receivable. The gross contractual amount receivable was approximately $35 million of which $3 million was not expected to be collected.
- (2) Included in net non-current liabilities is approximately $456 million of deferred tax liabilities.
- (3) The goodwill recognized is primarily related to expected synergies and other benefits that the Company believes will result from combining the operations of BHS with the operations of the Company. All of the goodwill has been allocated. None of the goodwill is expected to be deductible for tax purposes.

The supplemental pro forma financial information reflect primarily the following pro forma pre-tax adjustments:

- Elimination of BHS historical intangible asset amortization and property and equipment depreciation expense;
- Elimination of BHS historical deferred acquisition costs amortization;
- Elimination of BHS historical deferred revenue amortization;

- Additional amortization and depreciation expense related to the fair value of identifiable intangible assets and property and equipment acquired; and
- All of the above pro forma adjustments were tax effected using a statutory tax rate of 39%

The supplemental pro forma financial information for the year ended September 24, 2010 reflect the following non-recurring adjustments:

- Direct acquisition costs primarily relating to advisory and legal fees and integration costs; and
- Restructuring charges primarily related to employee severance and one-time benefit arrangements

The supplemental pro forma financial information gives effect to the acquisition, but should not be considered indicative of the results that would have occurred in the periods presented above, nor are they indicative of future results. In addition, the supplemental pro forma financial information does not reflect the potential realization of cost savings relating to the integration of the two companies.

Acquisitions

During the year ended September 25, 2009, there were no acquisitions made by the Company.

Acquisition and Integration Related Costs

During the year ended September 25, 2009, the Company did not incur any acquisition or integration related costs.

Dealer Generated Customer Accounts and Bulk Account Purchases

During the year ended September 25, 2009, the Company paid $511 million for approximately 464,000 customer contracts for electronic security services.

4. Income Taxes

The Company's operating results have been included in Tyco's various consolidated U.S. federal and state income tax returns, as well as non-U.S. tax filings in Canada and certain U.S. territories. For purposes of the Company's Combined Financial Statements, income tax expense and deferred tax balances have been recorded as if the Company filed tax returns on a stand-alone basis separate from Tyco. The Separate Return Method applies the accounting guidance for income taxes to the standalone financial statements as if the Company was a separate taxpayer and a standalone enterprise for the periods presented.

Significant components of income before income taxes for the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009 are as follows:

	2011	2010	2009

Deferred income taxes result from temporary differences between the amount of assets and liabilities recognized for financial reporting and tax purposes. The components of the net deferred income tax asset as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 are as follows ($ in millions):

	2011	2010
	(in millions)
Deferred tax assets:

Deferred tax liabilities:

Valuation allowance . . . . .	(1)	(2)
Net deferred tax liability . . . . .	$(602)	$(640)

The valuation allowance for deferred tax assets of $1 million and $2 million as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively, relates principally to the uncertainty of the utilization of certain non-U.S. deferred tax assets. The Company believes that it will generate sufficient future taxable income to realize the tax benefits related to the remaining net deferred tax assets on the Company's Combined Balance Sheets.

The tax carryforwards reflected in the Company's Combined Financial Statements have been determined using the Separate Return Method. The tax carryforwards include net operating losses and tax credits. The Company's post spin-off tax carryforwards will be different than those reflected in the Combined Financial Statements. The Company's ability to use its federal and state post-separation net operating loss carryforwards and tax credit carryforwards to offset future taxable income and future taxes, respectively, may be subject to restrictions due to equity transactions that result in changes in ownership as defined by Code Section 382, under the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

As of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, the Company had unrecognized tax benefits of $3 million and $5 million, respectively, of which $2 million and $3 million, if recognized, would affect the effective tax rate. The Company recognizes interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits in income tax expense. The Company had accrued interest and penalties related to the unrecognized tax benefits of $1 million and $2 million as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. The Company recognized no income tax expense for interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits for the years ended September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009, respectively.

A rollforward of unrecognized tax benefits as of September 30, 2011, September 24, 2010 and September 25, 2009 is as follows (in millions):

	2011	2010	2009
	(in millions)
Balance as of beginning of year . . . . .	$ 5	$ 5	$ 5
Reductions based on tax positions related to prior years . .	(1)	—	—
Reductions related to settlements . . . . .	(1)	—	—
Balance as of end of year . . . . .	$ 3	$ 5	$ 5

The unrecognized tax benefits reflected in the Company’s Combined Financial Statements have been determined using the Separate Return Method. It is anticipated that as a result of the final Separation transactions, the Company’s unrecognized tax benefits will be higher than those reflected in the Combined Financial Statements.

The Company does not anticipate the total amount of the unrecognized tax benefits to change significantly within the next twelve months.

Many of the Company’s uncertain tax positions relate to tax years that remain subject to audit by the taxing authorities in the U.S. federal, state and local or foreign jurisdictions. Open tax years in significant jurisdictions are as follows:

Jurisdiction	Years Open To Audit
Canada . . . . .	2004 – 2011
United States . . . . .	1997 – 2011

Undistributed Earnings of Subsidiaries

The Company’s primary non-U.S. operations are located in Canada. No additional provision has been accrued for U.S. or non-U.S. income taxes on the undistributed earnings or for unrecognized deferred tax liabilities for temporary differences related to investments in the Company’s Canadian entity since the earnings are expected to be permanently reinvested and the investments are permanent in duration. Although the amount of undistributed earnings at the time of Separation is not currently known, it is anticipated that the Company’s deferral of U.S. income taxes or foreign withholding taxes on temporary differences will not be material.

Tax Sharing Agreement and Other Income Tax Matters

In connection with the Separation from Tyco, ADT expects to enter into a tax sharing agreement (the “2012 Tax Sharing Agreement”) with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control International, Ltd. (“Tyco Flow Control”) that will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain pre-Separation tax liabilities, including Tyco’s obligations under the tax sharing agreement among Tyco, Covidien Ltd. (“Covidien”), and TE Connectivity Ltd. (“TE Connectivity”) entered into in 2007 (the “2007 Tax Sharing Agreement”). The Company expects that the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will provide that ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will share (i) certain pre-Separation income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to ADT’s, Tyco’s, and Tyco Flow Control’s U.S. and certain non-U.S. income tax returns, and (ii) payments required to be made by Tyco in respect to the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement (collectively, “Shared Tax Liabilities”).

In addition, in the event the Distribution, the spin-off of Tyco Flow Control (the “Tyco Flow Control Spin-Off”), or certain internal transactions undertaken in connection therewith were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distribution by ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result thereof. Taxes resulting from the determination that the Distribution, the Tyco Flow Control Spin-Off, or any internal transaction that were intended to be tax-free is taxable are referred to herein as "Distribution Taxes." If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distribution by ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, then ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco would be responsible for any Distribution Taxes imposed on ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as the Shared Tax Liabilities. ADT will have sole responsibility of any income tax liability arising as a result of Tyco's acquisition of Broadview Security in May 2010, including any liability of Broadview Security under the tax sharing agreement between Broadview Security and The Brink's Company dated October 31, 2008 (collectively, "Broadview Tax Liabilities"). Costs and expenses associated with the management of Shared Tax Liabilities, Distribution Taxes, and Broadview Tax Liabilities will generally be shared 20% by Tyco Flow Control, 27.5% by ADT, and 52.5% by Tyco. ADT will be responsible for all of its own taxes that are not shared pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae. In addition, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are responsible for their tax liabilities that are not subject to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae.

The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement is also expected to provide that, if any party were to default in its obligation to another party to pay its share of the distribution taxes that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be required to pay, equally with any other non-defaulting party, the amounts in default. In addition, if another party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that is responsible for all or a portion of an income tax liability were to default in its payment of such liability to a taxing authority, ADT could be legally liable under applicable tax law for such liabilities and required to make additional tax payments. Accordingly, under certain circumstances, ADT may be obligated to pay amounts in excess of its agreed-upon share of its, Tyco's and Tyco Flow Control's tax liabilities.

5. Goodwill and Intangible Assets

Annually, in the fiscal fourth quarter, and more frequently if triggering events occur, the Company tests goodwill for impairment by comparing the fair value of the Company's reporting unit with its carrying amount. Fair value of the Company's reporting unit is determined utilizing a discounted cash flow analysis based on the Company's forecast cash flows discounted using an estimated weighted-average cost of capital of market participants. A market approach is utilized to corroborate the discounted cash flow analysis performed at the Company's reporting unit. If the carrying amount of the reporting unit exceeds its fair value, goodwill is considered potentially impaired. In determining fair value, management relies on and considers a number of factors, including operating results, business plans, economic projections, anticipated future cash flow, comparable market transactions (to the extent available), other market data and Tyco's overall market capitalization. There were no goodwill impairments as a result of performing the Company's 2011, 2010 and 2009 annual impairment tests.

The changes in the carrying amount of goodwill for the years ended 2011 and 2010 are as follows ($ in millions):

Balance as of September 24, 2010	$3,393
Acquisitions/Purchase Accounting Adjustments	2
Balance as of September 30, 2011	$3,395
Balance as of September 25, 2009	$2,461
Acquisitions/Purchase Accounting Adjustments	927
Currency Translation	5
Balance as of September 24, 2010	$3,393

Fiscal 2011 and 2010 Intangible Assets

The following table sets forth the gross carrying amounts and accumulated amortization of the Company's intangible assets as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010.

	September 30, 2011		September 24, 2010
	Gross Carrying Amount	Accumulated Amortization	Gross Carrying Amount	Accumulated Amortization
Amortizable: .....
Contracts and related customer relationships ...	$6,687	$3,938	$6,197	$3,511
Other .....	13	7	14	5
Total .....	$6,700	$3,945	$6,211	$3,516

Other than goodwill, the Company does not have any other indefinite-lived intangible assets as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010. Intangible asset amortization expense for 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $518 million, $450 million and $379 million, respectively. As of September 30, 2011, the weighted-average amortization period for contracts and related customer relationships, other intangibles and total intangible assets was 14 years, 6 years and 14 years, respectively.

The estimated aggregate amortization expense for intangible assets is expected to be approximately $475 million for 2012, $400 million for 2013, $350 million for 2014, $300 million for 2015, $250 million for 2016 and $980 million for 2017 and thereafter.

6. Debt

Debt as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 is as follows ($ in millions):

	September 30, 2011	September 24, 2010
Current maturities of long-term debt:
Allocated debt .....	$ —	$ 189
Capital lease obligations .....	1	1
Current maturities of long-term debt .....	1	190
Long-term debt:
Allocated debt .....	1,482	1,301
Capital lease obligations .....	24	25
Total long-term debt .....	1,506	1,326
Total debt .....	$1,507	$1,516

Tyco used a centralized approach to cash management and financing of its operations excluding debt directly incurred by any of its businesses, such as capital lease obligations. Accordingly, Tyco's consolidated debt and related interest expense, exclusive of amounts incurred directly by the Company, have been allocated to the Company based on an assessment of the Company's share of external debt using historical data. Interest expense was allocated in the same proportions as debt and includes the impact of interest rate swap agreements designated as fair value hedges. For fiscal 2011, 2010 and 2009, Tyco has allocated to the Company interest expense of $87 million, $102 million and $78 million, respectively. The fair value of the Company's allocated debt was $1,717 million and $1,734 million as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. The fair value of its debt was allocated in the same proportions as Tyco's external debt. In addition, cash paid for interest was allocated in the same proportions as Tyco's external debt, which is presented in the Combined Statements of Cash Flows.

Management believes the allocation basis for debt and interest expense is reasonable based on an assessment of historical data. However, these amounts may not be indicative of the actual amounts that the Company would have incurred had the Company been operating as an independent, publicly-traded company for the periods presented. The Company expects to issue third-party debt based on an anticipated initial post-separation capital structure for the Company. The amount of debt which could be issued may materially differ from the amounts presented herein.

7. Related Party Transactions

Cash Management—Tyco used a centralized approach to cash management and financing of operations. The Company's cash was available for use and was regularly "swept" by Tyco at its discretion. Transfers of cash both to and from Tyco are included within parent company investment on the Combined Statements of Parent Company Equity. The main components of the net transfers (to)/from Parent are cash pooling and general financing activities, cash transfers for acquisitions, investments and various allocations from Tyco.

Trade Activity—Accounts payable includes $9 million and $4 million of payables to Tyco affiliates as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. These amounts primarily relate to the purchase of inventory from Tyco affiliates, which totaled $79 million, $34 million and $32 million for fiscal 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively.

Service and Lending Arrangement with Tyco Affiliates—The Company has various debt and cash pool agreements with Tyco affiliates, which are executed outside of the normal Tyco centralized approach to cash management and financing of operations. Other liabilities include $63 million and $33 million of payables to Tyco affiliates as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively.

Additionally, the Company, Tyco and its affiliates pay for expenses on behalf of each other. Prepaid expenses and other current assets includes $7 million and $7 million of receivables from Tyco and its affiliates as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. Accrued and other current liabilities includes $2 million and $3 million of payables to Tyco and its affiliates as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively.

Interest Expense—The Company recognized $1 million, nil and nil of interest expense associated with the lending arrangements with Tyco affiliates during fiscal 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively.

Debt and Related Items—The Company was allocated a portion of Tyco's consolidated debt and interest expense. Note 6 provides further information regarding these allocations.

Insurable Liabilities—From fiscal 2009 through fiscal 2011, the Company was insured for worker's compensation, property, general and auto liabilities by a captive insurance company that was wholly-owned by Tyco. The Company was insured for product liability by the captive insurance company for 2010 and 2011. Tyco has insurance for losses in excess of the captive insurance company policies' limits through third party insurance companies. The Company paid a premium in each year to obtain insurance coverage during these periods. Premiums expensed by the Company were $24 million, $18 million and $16 million in 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively, and are included in the selling, general and administrative expenses in the Combined Statements of Operations.

As of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, the Company recorded insurance-related liabilities in the Combined Balance Sheets of $57 million and $61 million respectively, with an offsetting insurance asset of the same amount due from Tyco.

General Corporate Overhead—The Company was allocated corporate overhead expenses from Tyco for corporate related functions based on the relative proportion of either the Company's headcount or revenue to Tyco's consolidated headcount or revenue. Corporate overhead expenses primarily related to centralized corporate functions, including finance, treasury, tax, legal, information technology, internal audit, human resources and risk management functions. During fiscal 2011, 2010 and 2009, the Company was allocated $67 million, $69 million and $67 million, respectively, of general corporate expenses incurred by Tyco which are included within selling, general and administrative expenses in the Combined Statements of Operations. Further discussion of allocations is included in Note 1, Basis of Presentation.

Transaction with Tyco's Directors—During fiscal 2011, 2010 and 2009, the Company engaged in commercial transactions in the normal course of business with companies where Tyco's Directors were employed and served as officers. During each of these periods, the Company's purchases from such companies aggregated less than 1 percent of combined revenue.

8. Guarantees

In certain situations, Tyco has guaranteed the Company's performance to third parties or has provided financial guarantees for financial commitments of the Company. Tyco and the Company intend to obtain releases from these guarantees in connection with Separation. In situations where the Company and Tyco are unable to obtain a release, the Company will indemnify Tyco for any losses it suffers as a result of such guarantees.

In the normal course of business, the Company is liable for contract completion and product performance. In the opinion of management, such obligations will not significantly affect the Company's financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

As of September 30, 2011, the Company had total outstanding letters of credit and bank guarantees of approximately $5 million.

9. Financial Instruments

The Company's financial instruments consist primarily of cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable, accounts payable and debt. The fair value of cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable and accounts payable approximated book value as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010. See Note 6 for further information regarding the fair value of the Company's debt.

10. Commitments and Contingencies

The Company has facility, vehicle and equipment leases that expire at various dates through 2023. Rental expense under these leases was $38 million, $33 million and $27 million for 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively. Following is a schedule of minimum lease payments for non-cancelable leases as of September 30, 2011 ($ in millions):

	Operating Leases	Capital Leases
Fiscal 2012 .....	$ 39	$ 1
Fiscal 2013 .....	33	1
Fiscal 2014 .....	28	2
Fiscal 2015 .....	24	2
Fiscal 2016 .....	14	2
Thereafter .....	29	17
Total minimum lease payments .....	$167	$ 25
Less: amount representing interest .....		—
Total minimum lease payments less amounts representing interest . . . .		$ 25

The Company also has purchase obligations related to commitments to purchase certain goods and services. As of September 30, 2011, such obligations were $6 million for 2012.

Legal Proceedings

The Company is subject to various claims and lawsuits in the ordinary course of business, including from time to time, contractual disputes, product and general liability claims, claims that the Company has infringed the intellectual property rights of others, and claims related to alleged security system failures. The Company has recorded accruals for losses that it believes are probable to occur and are reasonably estimable. While the ultimate outcome of these matters cannot be predicted with certainty, the Company believes that the resolution of any such proceedings (other than matters specifically identified below), will not have a material adverse effect on its financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Broadview Security Contingency

On May 14, 2010, the Company acquired Broadview Security, a business formerly owned by The Brink's Company. Under the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992, as amended (the "Coal Act"), The Brink's Company and its majority-owned subsidiaries at July 20, 1992 (including certain legal entities acquired in the Broadview Security acquisition) are jointly and severally liable with certain of The Brink's Company's other current and former subsidiaries for health care coverage obligations provided for by the Coal Act. A Voluntary Employees' Beneficiary Associate ("VEBA") trust has been established by The Brink's Company to pay for these liabilities, however the trust may have insufficient funds to satisfy all future obligations. At the time of its spin-off from The Brink's Company, Broadview Security entered into an agreement in which The Brink's Company agreed to indemnify it for any and all liabilities and expenses related to The Brink's Company's former coal operations, including any health care coverage obligations. The Brink's Company has agreed that this indemnification survives the Company's acquisition of Broadview Security. The Company has evaluated its potential liability under the Coal Act as a contingency in light of all known facts, including the funding of the VEBA, and indemnification provided by The Brink's Company. The Company has concluded that no accrual is necessary due to the existence of the indemnification and the belief that The Brink's Company and VEBA will be able to satisfy all future obligations under the Coal Act. However, if The Brink's Company and the VEBA are unable to satisfy all such obligations, the Company could be held liable, which could have a material adverse effect on its financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Income Tax Matters

As discussed above in Note 4, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain tax liabilities with respect to periods or portions thereof ending on or before the date of the Distribution. ADT will be responsible for all of its own taxes that are not shared pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae. Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are responsible for their tax liabilities that are not subject to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae.

With respect to years prior to and including the 2007 separation of Covidien and TE Connectivity by Tyco, tax authorities have raised issues and proposed tax adjustments that are generally subject to the sharing provisions of the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which may require Tyco to make a payment to a taxing authority, Covidien or TE Connectivity. Tyco has recorded a liability of $436 million as of September 30, 2011 which it has assessed and believes is adequate to cover the payments that Tyco may be required to make under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Tyco is reviewing and contesting certain of the proposed tax adjustments.

With respect to adjustments raised by the IRS, although Tyco has resolved a substantial number of these adjustments, a few significant items remain open with respect to the audit of the 1997 through 2004 years. As of the date hereof, Tyco has not been able to resolve certain open items, which primarily involve the treatment of certain intercompany debt during the period, through the IRS appeals process. As a result, Tyco expects to litigate these matters once it receives the requisite statutory notices from the IRS, which is likely to occur within the next six months. However, the ultimate resolution of these matters is uncertain and could result in Tyco being responsible for a greater amount than it expects under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement.

To the extent ADT is responsible for any liability under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there could be a material adverse impact on its financial position, results of operations, cash flows or its effective tax rate in future reporting periods.

ADT Dealer Litigation

In 2002, the SEC's Division of Enforcement conducted an investigation related to past accounting practices for dealer connect fees that the Company had charged to its authorized dealers upon purchasing customer accounts. The investigation related to accounting practices employed by the Company's former management, which were discontinued in 2003. Although the Company settled with the SEC in 2006, a number of former dealers and related parties have filed lawsuits against the Company in the United States and in other countries, including a class action lawsuit filed in the District Court of Arapahoe County, Colorado, alleging breach of contract and other claims related to the Company's decision to terminate certain authorized dealers in 2002 and 2003. In February 2010, the Court granted a directed verdict in the Company's favor dismissing a number of the plaintiffs' key claims. Upon appeal, the Colorado Court of Appeals affirmed the verdict in the Company's favor in October 2011. The plaintiffs have requested that the Supreme Court of Colorado hear an appeal of the Court of Appeals' decision. The Supreme Court has not yet ruled. The Company expects a favorable resolution of the class action lawsuit in Colorado. While it is not possible at this time to predict the final outcome of the Colorado lawsuit or other lawsuits stemming from dealer terminations, the Company does not believe these claims will have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

11. Retirement Plans

The Company measures its retirement plans as of its fiscal year end.

Defined Benefit Pension Plan—The Company sponsors one noncontributory defined benefit retirement plan covering certain of its U.S. employees, designed in accordance with conditions and practices in the country. Net periodic pension benefit cost is based on periodic actuarial valuations which use the projected unit credit method of calculation and is charged to the Combined Statements of Operations on a systematic basis over the expected average remaining service lives of current participants. Contribution amounts are determined based on U.S. regulations and the advice of professionally qualified actuaries. The benefits under the defined benefit plan are based on various factors, such as years of service and compensation.

The plan is a co-mingled plan that includes plan participants of other Tyco subsidiaries. The Company has recorded its portion of the co-mingled plan expense and the related obligations which have been actuarially determined based on the Company's specific benefit formula by participant and allocated plan assets. The contribution amounts were determined in total for the co-mingled plan and allocated to the Company based on headcount. Management believes such allocations are reasonable; however, during 2012, when the plan is legally separated, the Company expects there will be a reallocation of assets based on the ERISA prescribed calculation which will result in adjustments to the components of the net amount recognized and future expense.

The net periodic benefit cost for the defined benefit pension plan for 2011, 2010 and 2009 is as follows ($ in millions):

	2011	2010	2009

During fiscal 2011, the Company froze its active U.S. pension plan. As a result, the Company amortizes its actuarial gains and losses over the average remaining life expectancy of the pension plan participants.

The estimated net actuarial loss for the pension benefit plan that will be amortized from accumulated other comprehensive income into net periodic benefit cost over the next fiscal year is expected to be $1 million.

The change in benefit obligations, plan assets and the amounts recognized on the Combined Balance Sheets for the defined benefit plan as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 is as follows ($ in millions):

	2011	2010

The Company adopted the measurement date provisions of the authoritative guidance for the employers' accounting for defined benefit pension and other postretirement plans on September 27, 2008. As a result, the Company measured its plan assets and benefit obligations on September 26, 2008 and adjusted its opening balances of parent company investment and accumulated other comprehensive income for the change in net periodic benefit cost and fair value, respectively, from the previously used measurement date of August 31, 2008. The adoption of the measurement date provisions resulted in a net increase to accumulated other comprehensive income of $1 million, net of income taxes of nil.

The accumulated and aggregate benefit obligation for the defined benefit plan as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 were both $72 million and $67 million, respectively.

The accumulated and aggregate benefit obligation and fair value of plan assets for the pension plan with accumulated benefit obligations in excess of plan assets were $72 million and $48 million, respectively, as of September 30, 2011 and $67 million and $47 million, respectively, as of September 24, 2010.

In determining the expected return on plan assets, the Company considers the relative weighting of plan assets by asset class, historical performance of asset classes over long-term periods, asset class performance expectations as well as current and future economic conditions.

The Company's investment strategy for its pension plan is to manage the plan on a going-concern basis. Current investment policy is to maintain an adequate level of diversification while maximizing the return on assets, subject to a prudent level of portfolio risk, for the purpose of enhancing the security of benefits for participants as well as providing adequate liquidity to meet immediate and future benefit payment requirements. In addition, U.S. regulations and financial considerations are factors in determining the appropriate investment strategy. The policy targets a 60% allocation to equity securities and a 40% allocation to debt securities.

The pension plan has the following weighted-average asset allocations:

	2011	2010
Asset Category:
Equity securities . . . . .	55%	59%
Debt securities . . . . .	44%	38%
Cash and cash equivalents . . . . .	1%	3%
Total . . . . .	100%	100%

Tyco's common shares are not a direct investment of the Company's pension fund, but may be held through investment funds. The aggregate amount of the securities would not be considered material relative to the total fund assets.

The Company evaluates its defined benefit plan's asset portfolio for the existence of significant concentrations of risk. Types of investment concentration risks that are evaluated include, but are not limited to, concentrations in a single entity, industry, foreign country and individual fund manager. As of September 30, 2011, there were no significant concentrations of risk in the Company's defined benefit plan assets.

The Company's plan assets are accounted for at fair value. Authoritative guidance for fair value measurements establishes a three level hierarchy that ranks the quality and reliability of information used in developing fair value estimates. The hierarchy gives the highest priority to quoted prices in active markets and the lowest priority to unobservable data. In cases where two or more levels of inputs are used to determine fair value, the level is determined based on the lowest level input that is considered significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety. The three levels of the fair value hierarchy are summarized as follows:

- Level 1—inputs are based upon quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities which are accessible as of the measurement date.
- Level 2—inputs are based upon quoted prices for similar assets or liabilities in active markets, quoted prices for identical or similar assets or liabilities in markets that are not active, and model derived valuations for the asset or liability that are derived principally from or corroborated by market data for which the primary inputs are observable, including forward interest rates, yield curves, credit risk and exchange rates.
- Level 3—inputs for the valuations are unobservable and are based on management's estimates of assumptions that market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability. The fair values are therefore determined using model based techniques such as option pricing models and discounted cash flow models.

The Company's asset allocations by level within the fair value hierarchy as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 are presented in the table below for the Company's defined benefit plan.

Equity securities consist primarily of publicly traded U.S. and non-U.S. equities. Publicly traded securities are valued at the last trade or closing price reported in the active market in which the individual securities are traded. Certain equity securities are held within commingled funds which are valued at the unitized net asset value (“NAV”) or percentage of the net asset value as determined by the custodian of the fund. These values are based on the fair value of the underlying net assets owned by the fund.

Fixed income securities consist primarily of government and agency securities, corporate debt securities, and mortgage and other asset-backed securities. When available, fixed income securities are valued at the closing price reported in the active market in which the individual security is traded. Government and agency securities and corporate debt securities are valued using the most recent bid prices or occasionally the mean of the latest bid and ask prices when markets are less liquid. Asset-backed securities including mortgage backed securities are valued using broker/dealer quotes when available. When quotes are not available, fair value is determined utilizing a discounted cash flow approach, which incorporates other observable inputs such as cash flows, underlying security structure and market information including interest rates and bid evaluations of comparable securities. Certain fixed income securities are held within commingled funds which are valued utilizing NAV determined by the custodian of the fund. These values are based on the fair value of the underlying net assets owned by the fund.

Cash and cash equivalents consist primarily of short-term commercial paper, bonds and other cash or cash-like instruments including settlement proceeds due from brokers, stated at cost, which approximates fair value.

The following tables set forth a summary of pension plan assets valued using NAV or its equivalent as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010 ($ in millions):

Investment ($ in millions)	September 30, 2011

The strategy of the Company’s investment managers with regard to the investments valued using NAV or its equivalent is to either match or exceed relevant benchmarks associated with the respective asset category. None of the investments valued using NAV or its equivalent contain any redemption restrictions or unfunded commitments.

During 2011, the Company contributed $1 million to its pension plan, which represented the Company’s minimum required contributions to its pension plan for fiscal year 2011. The Company also made voluntary contributions of $3 million to its plan during 2011.

The Company's funding policy is to make contributions in accordance with U.S. laws as well as to make discretionary voluntary contributions from time-to-time. The Company anticipates that it will contribute at least the minimum required to its pension plan in 2012 of $4 million.

Benefit payments, including those amounts to be paid and reflecting future expected service as appropriate, are expected to be paid as follows ($ in millions):

2013 .....	4
2014 .....	4
2015 .....	4
2016 .....	4
2017 - 2021 .....	22

The Company also participates in a number of multi-employer defined benefit plans on behalf of certain employees. Pension expense related to multi-employer plans was not material for 2011, 2010 and 2009.

Defined Contribution Retirement Plans—The Company maintains through Tyco several defined contribution retirement plans, which include 401(k) matching programs, as well as qualified and nonqualified profit sharing and share bonus retirement plans. Expense for the defined contribution plans is computed as a percentage of participants' compensation and was $17 million, $14 million and $10 million for 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively. The Company maintains through Tyco an unfunded Supplemental Executive Retirement Plan ("SERP"). This plan is nonqualified and restores the employer match that certain employees lose due to IRS limits on eligible compensation under the defined contribution plans. The expense related to the SERP was not material for 2011, 2010 and 2009.

Deferred Compensation Plans—The Company has a nonqualified deferred compensation plan maintained by Tyco, which permits eligible employees to defer a portion of their compensation. A record keeping account is set up for each participant and the participant chooses from a variety of measurement funds for the deemed investment of their accounts. The measurement funds correspond to a number of funds in the Company's 401(k) plans and the account balance fluctuates with the investment returns on those funds. Deferred compensation liabilities were $11 million and $9 million as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. Deferred compensation expense was $1 million, nil and $1 million for 2011, 2010 and 2009, respectively.

Postretirement Benefit Plans—The Company generally does not provide postretirement benefits other than pensions for its employees. However, certain acquired operations provide these benefits to employees who were eligible at the date of acquisition, and a small number of U.S. and Canadian operations provide ongoing eligibility for such benefits.

Net periodic postretirement benefit cost was not material for 2011, 2010 and 2009. The Company's Combined Balance Sheets include postretirement benefit obligations of $5 million and $6 million as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively. In addition, the Company recorded a net actuarial gain of $1 million and a net actuarial loss of $1 million within accumulated other comprehensive income included in the Combined Statements of Parent Company Equity as of September 30, 2011 and September 24, 2010, respectively.

The Company does not expect to make any material contributions to its postretirement benefit plans in 2012. Benefit payments, including those amounts to be paid and reflecting future expected service are not expected to be material for fiscal 2012 and thereafter.

12. Share Plans

As of September 30, 2011, all stock options, restricted stock units, performance share units and other stock-based awards (collectively “awards”) held by Company employees were granted under the Tyco International Ltd. 2004 Stock and Incentive Plan (the “2004 Plan”) or other Tyco equity incentive plans. The 2004 plan is administered by the Compensation and Human Resources Committee of the Board of Directors of Tyco, which consists exclusively of independent directors of Tyco and provides for the award.

Total share-based compensation cost recognized during 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $9 million, $8 million and $7 million, respectively, all of which is included in selling, general and administrative expenses. The tax benefit associated with the Company’s share-based compensation arrangements during 2011, 2010 and 2009 was not material.

The grant-date fair value of each option grant is estimated using the Black-Scholes option pricing model. The fair value is then amortized on a straight-line basis over the requisite service period of the awards, which is generally the vesting period. Use of a valuation model requires management to make certain assumptions with respect to selected model inputs. Expected volatility was calculated based on the historical volatility of Tyco International’s stock and measures for a set of peer companies of Tyco. The average expected life is based on the contractual term of the option and expected employee exercise and post-vesting employment termination behavior. The expected annual dividend per share was based on Tyco International’s expected dividend rate. The risk-free interest rate is based on U.S. Treasury zero-coupon issues with a remaining term equal to the expected life assumed at the date of grant. The compensation expense recognized is net of estimated forfeitures. Forfeitures are estimated based on voluntary termination behavior, as well as an analysis of actual share option forfeitures.

The weighted-average assumptions Tyco International used in the Black-Scholes option pricing model for 2011, 2010 and 2009 are as follows:

	2011	2010	2009
Expected stock price volatility . . . . .	33%	34%	32%
Risk Free interest rate . . . . .	1.11%	2.22%	2.43%
Expected annual dividend per share . . . . .	$0.84	$0.80	$0.80
Expected life of options (years) . . . . .	4.8	4.8	4.8

The weighted-average grant-date fair values of options granted during 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $8.79, $8.66 and $6.61, respectively. The total intrinsic value of options exercised during 2011 and 2010 was $7 million and $19 million, respectively, while 2009 was not material. The related excess cash tax benefit classified as a financing cash inflow for 2011, 2010 and 2009 was not material.

Share option activity for the Company’s employees as of September 30, 2011, and changes during the year then ended is presented below:

	Shares	Weighted-Average Exercise Price	Weighted Average Remaining Contractual Term (in years)	Aggregate Intrinsic Value ($ in millions)

As of September 30, 2011, there was $4 million of total unrecognized compensation cost related to non-vested options granted. The cost is expected to be recognized over a weighted-average period of 2.3 fiscal years.

Employee Stock Purchase Plans—Tyco’s Employee Stock Purchase Plan (“ESPP”) was suspended indefinitely during the quarter ended September 25, 2009. Prior to that date, substantially all full-time employees of the Company’s U.S. subsidiaries and employees of certain qualified non-U.S. subsidiaries were eligible to participate in the ESPP. Eligible employees authorized payroll deductions to be made for the purchase of shares. Tyco matched a portion of the employee contribution by contributing an additional 15% of the employee’s payroll deduction. All shares purchased under the plan were purchased on the open market by a designated broker.

Restricted Stock Units and Performance Share Units—Restricted stock units are granted subject to certain restrictions. Conditions of vesting are determined at the time of grant under the 2004 Plan. Restrictions on the award generally lapse upon normal retirement, if more than twelve months from the grant date, and death or disability of the employee.

The fair market value of restricted stock units, both time vesting and those subject to specific performance criteria, are expensed over the period of vesting. Restricted stock units that vest based upon passage of time generally vest over a period of four years. The fair value of restricted stock units is determined based on the closing market price of Tyco’s shares on the grant date. Restricted stock units that vest dependent upon attainment of various levels of performance that equal or exceed targeted levels generally vest in their entirety three years from the grant date. The fair value of performance share units is determined based on the Monte Carlo valuation model. The compensation expense recognized for restricted stock units is net of estimated forfeitures.

Tyco generally grants restricted stock units. Recipients of restricted stock units have no voting rights and receive dividend equivalent units (“DEUs”). Recipients of performance share units have no voting rights and may receive DEUs depending on the terms of the grant.

Share option activity of Tyco's restricted stock units including performance share units for the Company's employees as of September 30, 2011 and changes during the year then ended is presented in the tables below:

Non-vested Restricted Stock Units	Shares	Weighted-Average Grant-Date Fair Value

The weighted-average grant-date fair value of restricted stock units granted during 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $37.31, $35.00 and $28.50 respectively. The total fair value of restricted stock units vested during 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $6 million, $5 million and $6 million, respectively.

Non-vested as of September 30, 2011 . . . . .	126,413	36.14

The weighted-average grant-date fair value of performance share units granted during 2011, 2010 and 2009 was $41.95, $41.51 and $27.84, respectively. No performance share units vested during 2011, 2010 and 2009.

As of September 30, 2011, there was $8 million of total unrecognized compensation cost related to both non-vested restricted stock units and performance share units. The cost is expected to be recognized over a weighted-average period of 2.2 fiscal years.

Impact of the Separation—Prior to the Distribution, the Company's Board of Directors is expected to adopt, with the approval of Tyco as its sole shareholder, the establishment of stock incentive plans providing for future awards to the Company employees.

Prior to Separation, performance share units will convert into restricted stock units based on performance achieved on or about the closing date. Following the distribution, all equity awards (other than restricted stock units granted prior to October 12, 2011) held by the Company's active employees will convert into like-kind equity awards of the Company. With respect to restricted stock units granted prior to October 12, 2011, such awards will convert into like-kind equity awards of the three separately traded companies resulting from the Separation. All equity awards held by former employees of the Company will convert into equity awards of the three separately traded companies resulting from Separation. All equity awards will be converted at equivalent value determined using the intrinsic value method. The original vesting provisions will remain in effect for all equity awards.

INTERNATIONAL, LTD.

NOTES TO UNAUDITED COMBINED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. Basis of Presentation and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Separation—On September 19, 2011, Tyco International Ltd. (“Tyco” or “Parent”) announced that its Board of Directors approved a plan to separate Tyco into three separate, publicly traded companies (the “Separation”), identifying the ADT North American Residential Security Business of Tyco (the “Company”), as one of those three companies. The Separation is expected to be completed by the end of the third calendar quarter of 2012 through a tax-free pro rata distribution of all of the equity interest in the Company (“the Distribution”). During January 2012, The ADT Corporation (“ADT”), which upon completion of the Separation will become the parent of the Company, was incorporated in the State of Delaware.

Completion of the proposed separation is subject to certain conditions, including final approval by the Tyco Board of Directors and shareholders, receipt of tax opinions and rulings and the filing and effectiveness of registration statements with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”). The Separation will also be subject to the completion of any necessary financing.

Basis of Presentation—The Combined Financial Statements included the combined operations, assets and liabilities of the Company. The Combined Financial Statements have been prepared in United States dollars (“USD”), in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States (“GAAP”). The Combined Financial Statements included herein are unaudited, but in the opinion of management, such financial statements include all adjustments, consisting of normal recurring adjustments, necessary to summarize fairly the Company’s financial position, results of operations and cash flows for the interim periods. The results reported in these Combined Financial Statements should not be taken as indicative of results that may be expected for the entire year. These financial statements should be read in conjunction with the Company’s audited Combined Financial Statements included elsewhere in this registration statement.

Additionally, the Combined Financial Statements do not necessarily reflect what the Company’s combined results of operations, financial position and cash flows would have been had the Company operated as an independent, publicly traded company during the periods presented. The Company’s Combined Financial Statements have been prepared to include all of Tyco’s residential and small business security business in the United States, Canada and certain U.S. territories, and reflect a combination of the assets and liabilities that have been used in managing and operating this business. All revenue and most assets and liabilities, including subscriber-related assets and liabilities, and most expenses reflected in the combined financial statements are directly associated with the Company. Due to existing functions and facilities shared among Tyco and us, certain working capital, property and equipment, and operating expense balances have been allocated to the Company. In addition, certain general corporate overhead, debt and related interest expense have been allocated by Tyco to the Company. The Company used certain underlying activity drivers as a basis of allocation, including revenue, materials usage, head-count utilization and other factors. Management believes such allocations are reasonable; however, they may not be indicative of the actual results of the Company had the Company been operating as an independent, publicly traded company for the periods presented or the amounts that will be incurred by the Company in the future. Note 6 provides further information regarding debt and related interest expense allocations and Note 7 provides further information regarding general corporate overhead allocations.

References to 2012 and 2011 are to the Company’s six month fiscal periods ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, respectively, unless otherwise indicated.

The Company conducts business in one operating segment. This segment is identified by the Company based on how resources are allocated and operating decisions are made. Management evaluates performance and allocates resources based on operating profit or loss of the Company as a whole.

The Company has a 52 or 53-week fiscal year that ends on the last Friday in September. Fiscal year 2012 will be a 52-week, whereas fiscal year 2011 was a 53-week year.

The Company conducts business through its operating entities. All intercompany transactions have been eliminated. The results of companies acquired during the year are included in the Combined Financial Statements from the effective date of acquisition. See Note 3.

Recently Issued Accounting Pronouncements—In June 2011, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (“FASB”) issued authoritative guidance for the presentation of comprehensive income. The guidance amended the reporting of Other Comprehensive Income (“OCI”) by eliminating the option to present OCI as part of the Combined Statements of Parent Company Equity. The amendment will not impact the accounting for OCI, but only its presentation in the Company’s Combined Financial Statements. The guidance requires that items of net income and OCI be presented either in a single continuous statement of comprehensive income or in two separate but consecutive statements which include total net income and its components, consecutively followed by total OCI and its components to arrive at total comprehensive income. In December 2011, the FASB issued authoritative guidance to defer the effective date for those aspects of the guidance relating to the presentation of reclassification adjustments out of accumulated other comprehensive income by component. The guidance must be applied retrospectively and is effective for the Company in the first quarter of fiscal year 2013, with early adoption permitted. The Company is currently assessing the timing of its adoption of the guidance.

In September 2011, the FASB issued authoritative guidance which expanded and enhanced the existing disclosures related to multi-employer pension and other postretirement benefit plans. The amendments require additional quantitative and qualitative disclosures to provide more detailed information including the significant multi-employer plans in which the Company participates, the level of the Company’s participation and contributions and the financial health and indication of funded status, which will provide users of financial statements with a better understanding of the employer’s involvement in multi-employer benefit plans. The guidance must be applied retrospectively and is effective for the Company for the fiscal year 2012 annual period, with early adoption permitted. The Company is currently assessing the timing of its adoption of the guidance along with what impact, if any, the guidance will have on its annual disclosures.

In September 2011, the FASB issued authoritative guidance which amends the process of testing goodwill for impairment. The guidance permits an entity to first assess qualitative factors to determine whether the existence of events or circumstances leads to a determination that it is more likely than not, defined as having a likelihood of more than fifty percent that the fair value of a reporting unit is less than its carrying amount. If an entity determines it is not more likely than not that the fair value of a reporting unit is less than its carrying amount, performing the traditional two step goodwill impairment test is unnecessary. If an entity concludes otherwise, it would be required to perform the first step of the two step goodwill impairment test. If the carrying amount of the reporting unit exceeds its fair value, then the entity is required to perform the second step of the goodwill impairment test. However, an entity has the option to bypass the qualitative assessment in any period and proceed directly to step one of the impairment test. The guidance is effective for the Company for interim and annual impairment testing beginning in the first quarter of fiscal year 2013, with early adoption permitted. The Company is currently assessing the timing of its adoption of the guidance.

2. Restructuring and Asset Impairment Charges, Net

From time to time, the Company will initiate various restructuring actions which result in employee severance, facility exit and other restructuring costs, as described below.

The Company initiated multi-year restructuring programs in 2009 (the “2009 Program”) and 2011 (the “2011 Program”). Under each of these programs, the Company incurred restructuring and asset impairment charges, net, during 2012 and 2011 which are included in selling, general and administrative expenses, as follows ($ in millions):

	For the Six Months Ended March 30, 2012	For the Six Months Ended March 25, 2011
2011 Program
Facility exit and other charges . . . . .	$ 2	$ 4
2009 Program
Employee severance and benefits . . .	(1)	(3)
Total . . . . .	$ 1	$ 1

Restructuring and asset impairment charges, net, incurred cumulative to date from initiation are as follows ($ in millions):

	2011 Program	2009 Program
Employee severance and benefits . . . . .	$4	$ 9
Facility exit and other charges . . . . .	5	4
Total . . . . .	$9	$13

The rollforward of the reserves related to 2011 and 2009 programs from September 30, 2011 to March 30, 2012 is as follows ($ in millions):

	2011 Program	2009 Program	Total
Balance as of September 30, 2011 . . . . .	$ 2	$ 1	$ 3
Charges . . . . .	4	—	4
Reversals . . . . .	(2)	(1)	(3)
Utilization . . . . .	(2)	—	(2)
Reclass / transfers . . . . .	1	—	1
Balance as of March 30, 2012 . . . . .	$ 3	$—	$ 3

Restructuring charges for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011 were immaterial for restructuring actions initiated prior to 2009. The remaining reserve for these actions was $7 million as of both March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, respectively, which primarily relates to facility exit costs for long-term non-cancelable lease obligations.

3. Acquisitions

Acquisitions

During the six months ended March 30, 2012, there were no acquisitions made by the Company.

Dealer Generated Customer Accounts and Bulk Account Purchases

During the six months ended March 20, 2012, the Company paid $323 million of cash to acquire approximately 267,000 customer contracts for electronic security services.

Acquisition and Integration Related Costs

Acquisition and integration related costs are expensed as incurred. During the six months ended March 30, 2012, the Company incurred integration costs of $10 million, in connection with the integration of Brink's Home Security Holdings, Inc ("BHS" or "Broadview Security"). Such costs are recorded in selling, general and administrative expenses in the Company's Combined Statements of Operations.

Acquisitions

During the six months ended March 25, 2011, there were no acquisitions made by the Company.

Dealer Generated Customer Accounts and Bulk Account Purchases

During the six months ended March 25, 2011, the Company paid $269 million of cash to acquire approximately 229,000 customer contracts for electronic security services.

Acquisition and Integration Related Costs

Acquisition and integration related costs are expensed as incurred. During the six months ended March 25, 2011, the Company incurred integration costs of $14 million, in connection with the integration of Broadview Security. Such costs are recorded in selling, general and administrative expenses in the Company's Combined Statements of Operations.

4. Income Taxes

The Company did not have a significant change to its unrecognized tax benefits during the six months ended March 30, 2012. The Company's uncertain tax positions relate to tax years that remain subject to audit by taxing authorities. The Company does not anticipate the total amount of the unrecognized tax benefits to change significantly within the next twelve months.

Undistributed Earnings of Subsidiaries

The Company's primary non-U.S. operations are located in Canada. No additional provision has been accrued for U.S. or non-U.S. income taxes on the undistributed earnings or for unrecognized deferred tax liabilities for temporary differences related to investments in the Company's Canadian entity since the earnings are expected to be permanently reinvested and the investments are permanent in duration. Although the amount of undistributed earnings at the time of Separation is not currently known, it is anticipated that the Company's deferral of U.S. income taxes or foreign withholding taxes on temporary differences will not be material.

Tax Sharing Agreement and Other Income Tax Matters

In connection with the Separation from Tyco, ADT expects to enter into a tax sharing agreement with Tyco and Tyco Flow Control (the "2012 Tax Sharing Agreement") that will govern the respective rights, responsibilities and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain pre-Separation tax liabilities, including Tyco's obligations under the tax sharing agreement among Tyco, Covidien Ltd. ("Covidien"), and TE Connectivity Ltd. ("TE Connectivity") entered into in 2007 (the "2007 Tax Sharing Agreement"). The Company expects that the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will provide that ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will share (i) certain pre-Distribution income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to ADT's, Tyco's, and Tyco Flow Control's U.S. income tax returns, and (ii) payments required to be made by Tyco in respect to the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement (collectively, "Shared Tax Liabilities"). Tyco will be responsible for the first $500 million of Shared Tax Liabilities. Tyco Flow Control and ADT will share 42% and 58%, respectively, of the next $225 million of Shared Tax Liabilities. Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco will share 20.0%, 27.5% and 52.5%, respectively, of Shared Tax Liabilities above $725 million.

In addition, in the event the Distribution, the spin-off of Tyco Flow Control (the "Tyco Flow Control Spin-Off"), or certain internal transactions undertaken in connection therewith were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distribution by ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result thereof. Taxes resulting from the determination that the Distribution, the Tyco Flow Control Spin-Off, or any internal transactions that were intended to be tax-free is taxable are referred to herein as "Distribution Taxes." If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distribution by ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, then ADT, Tyco Flow Control and Tyco would be responsible for any Distribution Taxes imposed on ADT, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as the Shared Tax Liabilities. ADT will have sole responsibility for any income tax liability arising as a result of Tyco's acquisition of Broadview Security in May 2010, including any liability of Broadview Security under the tax sharing agreement between Broadview Security and The Brink's Company dated October 31, 2008 (collectively, "Broadview Tax Liabilities"). Costs and expenses associated with the management of Shared Tax Liabilities, Distribution Taxes, and Broadview Tax Liabilities will generally be shared 20.0% by Tyco Flow Control, 27.5% by ADT and 52.5% by Tyco. ADT is responsible for all of its own taxes that are not shared pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae. In addition, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are responsible for their tax liabilities that are not subject to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae.

The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement is also expected to provide that, if any party were to default in its obligation to another party to pay its share of the Distribution Taxes that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be required to pay, equally with any other non-defaulting party, the amounts in default. In addition, if another party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement that is responsible for all or a portion of an income tax liability were to default in its payment of such liability to a taxing authority, we could be legally liable under applicable tax law for such liabilities and required to make additional tax payments. Accordingly, under certain circumstances, ADT may be obligated to pay amounts in excess of its agreed-upon share of its, Tyco's and Tyco Flow Control's tax liabilities.

Each of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control will agree to indemnify the other two parties against any amounts paid by such parties pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement and with respect to which such paying parties are not responsible pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. Though valid as between the parties, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will not be binding on the IRS.

Under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there will be restrictions on the Company's ability to take actions that could cause the Distribution or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution to fail to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, including entering into, approving or allowing any transaction that results in a change in ownership of more than 35% of the Company's common shares (when combined with any other changes in ownership of its shares), a redemption of equity securities, a sale or other disposition of more than 35% of the Company's assets or engaging in certain internal transactions. These restrictions will apply for the two-year period after the Distribution, unless, for certain transactions, the Company obtains the consent of Tyco and Tyco Flow Control or obtains a private letter ruling from the IRS or an unqualified opinion of a nationally recognized law firm that such action will not cause the Distribution or the internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution to fail to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code, and such letter ruling or opinion, as the case may be, is acceptable to Tyco and Tyco Flow Control.

Moreover, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will also provide that the Company is responsible for any taxes imposed on Tyco, Tyco Flow Control or any of their affiliates as a result of the failure of the Distribution or the internal transaction to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code if such failure is attributable to certain post-Distribution actions taken by or in respect of the Company, any of its affiliates or its shareholders, regardless of whether the actions occur more than two years after the Distribution, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control consent so such actions or the Company obtains a favorable letter ruling or opinion of tax counsel as described above. For example, the Company would be responsible for a third party's acquisition of the Company at a time and in a manner that would cause such failure. These restrictions may prevent the Company from entering into transactions which might be advantageous to it or its shareholders.

5. Goodwill and Intangible Assets

Annually, in the fiscal fourth quarter, and more frequently if triggering events occur, the Company tests goodwill for impairment by comparing the fair value of each reporting unit with its carrying amount. Fair value for each reporting unit is determined utilizing a discounted cash flow analysis based on the Company's forecast cash flows discounted using an estimated weighted-average cost of capital of market participants. A market approach is utilized to corroborate the discounted cash flow analysis performed for each reporting unit. If the carrying amount of a reporting unit exceeds its fair value, goodwill is considered potentially impaired. In determining fair value, management relies on and considers a number of factors, including operating results, business plans, economic projections, anticipated future cash flow, comparable market transactions (to the extent available), other market data and Tyco's overall market capitalization.

The changes in the carrying amount of goodwill as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011 are as follows ($ in millions):

Balance as of September 30, 2011	$3,395
Currency Translation	5
Balance as of March 30, 2012	$3,400
Balance as of September 24, 2010	$3,393
Acquisitions/Purchase Accounting Adjustments	2
Balance as of September 30, 2011	$3,395

The following table sets forth the gross carrying amounts and accumulated amortization of the Company's intangible assets as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011.

	March 30, 2012		September 30, 2011
	Gross Carrying Amount	Accumulated Amortization	Gross Carrying Amount	Accumulated Amortization
Amortizable:
Contracts and related customer relationships	$6,983	$4,170	$6,687	$3,938
Other	14	9	13	7
Total	$6,997	$4,179	$6,700	$3,945

Other than goodwill, the Company does not have any other indefinite-lived intangible assets as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011. Intangible asset amortization expense for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011 was $269 million and $257 million, respectively. As of March 30, 2012, the weighted-average amortization period for contracts and related customer relationships, other intangibles and total intangible assets were 14 years, 6 years, and 14 years, respectively.

The estimated aggregate amortization expense on intangible assets is expected to be approximately $264 million for the remainder of 2012, $470 million for 2013, $406 million for 2014, $351 million for 2015, $304 million for 2016 and $1,023 for 2017 and thereafter.

6. Debt

Debt as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011 is as follows ($ in millions):

	March 30, 2012	September 30, 2011
Current maturities of long-term debt:
Capital lease obligations . . . . .	$ 1	$ 1
Current maturities of long-term debt . . . . .	1	1
Long-term debt:
Allocated debt . . . . .	1,478	1,482
Capital lease obligations . . . . .	23	24
Total long-term debt . . . . .	1,501	1,506
Total debt . . . . .	$1,502	$1,507

Tyco used a centralized approach to cash management and financing of its operations excluding debt directly incurred by any of its businesses, such as capital lease obligations. Accordingly, Tyco's consolidated debt and related interest expense, exclusive of amounts incurred directly by the Company, have been allocated to the Company based on an assessment of the Company's share of external debt using historical data. Interest expense was allocated in the same proportions as debt and includes the impact of interest rate swap agreements designated as fair value hedges. For the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, Tyco has allocated to the Company interest expense of $42 million and $45 million, respectively. The fair value of the Company's allocated debt was $1,711 million and $1,717 million as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, respectively. The fair value of its debt was allocated in the same proportions as Tyco's external debt.

Management believes the allocation basis for debt and interest expense is reasonable based on an assessment of historical data. However, these amounts may not be indicative of the actual amounts that the Company would have incurred had the Company been operating as an independent, publicly-traded company for the periods presented. The Company expects to issue third-party debt based on an anticipated initial post-separation capital structure for the Company. The amount of debt which could be issued may materially differ from the amounts presented herein.

7. Related Party Transactions

Cash Management—Tyco used a centralized approach to cash management and financing of operations. The Company's cash was available for use and was regularly "swept" by Tyco at its discretion. Transfers of cash both to and from Tyco are included within parent company investment on the Combined Statements of Parent Company Equity. The main components of the net transfers (to)/from Parent are cash pooling and general financing activities, cash transfers for acquisitions, investments and various allocations from Tyco.

Trade Activity—Accounts payable includes $1 million and $9 million of payables to Tyco affiliates as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, respectively. These amounts primarily relate to the purchase of inventory from Tyco affiliates which totaled $56 million and $32 million for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, respectively.

Service and Lending Arrangement with Tyco Affiliates—The Company has various debt and cash pool agreements with Tyco affiliates, which are executed outside of the normal Tyco centralized approach to cash management and financing of operations. As of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, other liabilities include $65 million and $63 million of payables to Tyco affiliates, respectively.

Additionally, the Company, Tyco and its affiliates pay for expenses on behalf of each other. Prepaid expenses and other current assets include $6 million and $7 million of receivables from Tyco and its affiliates as of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, respectively. Accrued and other current liabilities include $2 million of payables to Tyco and its affiliates as of both March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011.

Debt and Related Items—The Company was allocated a portion of Tyco’s consolidated debt and interest expense. Note 6 provides further information regarding these allocations.

Insurable Liabilities—In 2011 and 2012, the Company was insured for workers’ compensation, property, product, general and auto liabilities by a captive insurance company that was wholly-owned by Tyco. Tyco has insurance for losses in excess of the captive insurance company policies’ limits through third-party insurance companies. The Company paid a premium in each year to obtain insurance coverage during these periods. Premiums expensed by the Company were $12 million for both the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011. These amounts are included in the selling, general and administrative expenses in the Combined Statements of Operations for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011.

As of March 30, 2012 and September 30, 2011, the Company recorded insurance-related liabilities of $13 million and $14 million, respectively, in accrued and other liabilities and $41 million and $43 million, respectively in other liabilities in the Combined Balance Sheets, with offsetting insurance assets of the same amounts due from Tyco.

General Corporate Overhead—The Company was allocated corporate overhead expenses from Tyco for corporate related functions based on the relative proportion of either the Company’s headcount or net revenue to Tyco’s consolidated headcount or net revenue. Corporate overhead expenses primarily related to centralized corporate functions, including finance, treasury, tax, legal, information technology, internal audit, human resources and risk management functions. During the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011, the Company was allocated $28 million and $36 million, respectively, of general corporate expenses incurred by Tyco. These amounts are included within selling, general and administrative expenses in the Combined Statements of Operations for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011. See Note 1 for further discussion of allocations.

8. Financial Instruments

The Company’s financial instruments consist primarily of cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable, accounts payable, and debt. The fair value of cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable and accounts payable approximated book value as of March 30, 2012. See Note 6 for the fair value of the Company’s debt.

9. Commitments and Contingencies

Legal Proceedings

The Company is subject to various claims and lawsuits in the ordinary course of business, including from time to time, contractual disputes, product and general liability claims, claims that the Company has infringed the intellectual property rights of others, and claims related to alleged security system failures. The Company has recorded accruals for losses that it believes are probable to occur and are reasonably estimable. While the ultimate outcome of these matters cannot be predicted with certainty, the Company believes that the resolution of any such proceedings (other than matters specifically identified below), will not have a material adverse effect on its financial condition, results of operations or cash flows beyond amounts recorded for such matters.

Broadview Security Contingency

On May 14, 2010, the Company acquired Broadview Security, a business formerly owned by The Brink’s Company. Under the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992, as amended (the “Coal Act”), The Brink’s Company and its majority-owned subsidiaries at July 20, 1992 (including certain legal entities acquired in the Broadview Security acquisition) are jointly and severally liable with certain of The Brink’s Company’s other current and former subsidiaries for health care coverage obligations provided for by the Coal Act. A Voluntary Employees' Beneficiary Associate ("VEBA") trust has been established by The Brink's Company to pay for these liabilities, although the trust may have insufficient funds to satisfy all future obligations. At the time of its spin-off from The Brink's Company, Broadview Security entered into an agreement in which The Brink's Company agreed to indemnify it for any and all liabilities and expenses related to The Brink's Company's former coal operations, including any health care coverage obligations. The Brink's Company has agreed that this indemnification survives the Company's acquisition of Broadview Security. The Company has evaluated its potential liability under the Coal Act as a contingency in light of all known facts, including the funding of the VEBA, and indemnification provided by The Brink's Company. The Company has concluded that no accrual is necessary due to the existence of the indemnification and the belief that The Brink's Company and VEBA will be able to satisfy all future obligations under the Coal Act. However, if The Brink's Company and the VEBA are unable to satisfy all such obligations, the Company could be held liable, which could have a material adverse effect on its financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Income Tax Matters

As discussed above in Note 4, the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain tax liabilities with respect to periods or portions thereof ending on or before the date of the Distribution. ADT is responsible for all of its own taxes that are not shared pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae. Tyco and Tyco Flow Control are responsible for their tax liabilities that are not subject to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement's sharing formulae.

With respect to years prior to and including the 2007 separation of Covidien and TE Connectivity by Tyco, tax authorities have raised issues and proposed tax adjustments that are generally subject to the sharing provisions of the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which may require Tyco to make a payment to a taxing authority, Covidien or TE Connectivity. Tyco has recorded a liability of $411 million as of March 30, 2012 which it has assessed and believes is adequate to cover the payments that Tyco may be required to make under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Tyco is reviewing and contesting certain of the proposed tax adjustments.

With respect to adjustments raised by the IRS, although Tyco has resolved a substantial number of these adjustments, a few significant items remain open with respect to the audit of the 1997 through 2004 years. As of the date hereof, Tyco has not been able to resolve certain open items, which primarily involve the treatment of certain intercompany debt issued during the period, through the IRS appeals process. As a result, Tyco expects to litigate these matters once it receives the requisite statutory notices from the IRS, which is likely to occur within the next six months. However, the ultimate resolution of these matters is uncertain and could result in Tyco being responsible for a greater amount than it expects under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement.

To the extent ADT is responsible for any liability under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there could be a material adverse impact on its financial position, results of operations, cash flows or its effective tax rate in future reporting periods.

ADT Dealer Litigation

As previously reported, in 2002, a number of former dealers and related parties have filed lawsuits against the Company in the United States and in other countries, including a class action lawsuit filed in the District Court of Arapahoe County, Colorado, alleging breach of contract and other claims related to the Company's decision to terminate certain authorized dealers in 2002 and 2003. In February 2010, the Court granted a directed verdict in the Company's favor dismissing a number of the plaintiffs' key claims. Upon appeal, the Colorado Court of Appeals affirmed the verdict in the Company's favor in October 2011. The parties agreed to settle this matter in April 2012 with no cash consideration being paid by either side, which is subject to final court approval.

Telephone Consumer Protection Act

The Company has been named as a defendant in two putative class actions that were filed on behalf of purported classes of persons who claim to have received unsolicited "robocalls" in contravention of the U.S.

Telephone Consumer Protection Act (“TCPA”). These lawsuits were brought by plaintiffs seeking class action status and monetary damages on behalf of all plaintiffs who allegedly received such unsolicited calls, claiming that millions of calls were made by third party entities on the Company’s behalf. The Company asserts that such entities were not retained by, nor authorized to make calls on behalf of, the Company. These matters have been consolidated in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois into one civil action. Each violation under the TCPA provides for $500 in statutory damages ($1,500 if a willful violation is shown). The Company believes that it has meritorious defenses to these claims and, accordingly, intends to vigorously defend against these actions. The Company has made no provision for this contingency as a reasonable estimate of loss cannot be made at this time.

10. Retirement Plans

Defined Benefit Pension Plans—The Company sponsors one defined benefit pension plan. The net periodic benefit cost for this plan was not material for the six months ended March 30, 2012 and March 25, 2011.

The estimated net actuarial loss for the pension benefit plan that will be amortized from accumulated other comprehensive income into net periodic benefit cost over the current fiscal year is expected to be $1 million.

The Company’s funding policy is to make contributions in accordance with U.S. laws as well as to make discretionary voluntary contributions from time-to-time. The Company anticipates that it will contribute at least the minimum required to its pension plan in fiscal year 2012 of $4 million. During the six months ended March 30, 2012, the Company made $3 million of contributions to its pension plan.

The plan is a co-mingled plan that includes plan participants of other Tyco subsidiaries. The Company has recorded its portion of the co-mingled plan expense and the related obligations which have been actuarially determined based on the Company’s specific benefit formula by participant and allocated plan assets. The contribution amounts were determined in total for the co-mingled plan and allocated to the Company based on headcount. Management believes such allocations are reasonable; however, during 2012, when the plan is legally separated, the Company expects there will be a reallocation of assets based on the ERISA prescribed calculation which will result in adjustments to the components of the net amount recognized and future expense.

Postretirement Benefit Plans—Net periodic benefit cost was not material for both periods.

11. Share Plans

During the quarter ended December 30, 2011, Tyco issued its annual share-based compensation grants to Company employees. The total number of awards issued was approximately 0.4 million, of which 0.3 million were share options, 0.1 million were restricted unit awards and 0.03 million were performance share unit awards. The options and restricted stock units vest in equal annual installments over a period of 4 years, and the performance share unit awards vest after a period of 3 years based on the level of attainment of the applicable performance metrics of Tyco, which are determined by the Compensation and Human Resources Committee of the Board of Tyco. The weighted-average grant-date fair value of the share options, restricted unit awards and performance share unit awards was $12.21, $44.32 and $49.42, respectively. The weighted-average assumptions used in the Black-Scholes option pricing model included an expected stock price volatility of 36%, a risk free interest rate of 1.39%, an expected annual dividend per share of $1.00 and an expected option life of 5.5 years.

During the quarter ended December 24, 2010, Tyco issued its annual share-based compensation grants to Company employees. The total number of awards issued was approximately 0.6 million, of which 0.4 million were share options, 0.2 million were restricted unit awards and 0.03 million were performance share unit awards. The options and restricted stock units vest in equal annual installments over a period of 4 years, and the performance share unit awards vest after a period of 3 years based on the level of attainment of the applicable performance metrics of Tyco, which are determined by the Compensation and Human Resources Committee of the Board of Tyco. The weighted-average grant-date fair value of the share options, restricted unit awards and performance share unit awards was $8.78, $37.29 and $41.95, respectively. The weighted-average assumptions used in the Black-Scholes option pricing model included an expected stock price volatility of 33%, a risk free interest rate of 1.10%, an expected annual dividend per share of $0.84 and an expected option life of 4.8 years.

15. Guarantees

In certain situations, Tyco has guaranteed the Company's performance to third parties or has provided financial guarantees for financial commitments of the Company. Tyco and the Company intend to obtain releases from these guarantees in connection with Separation. In situations where the Company and Tyco are unable to obtain a release, the Company will indemnify Tyco for any losses it suffers as a result of such guarantees.

In the normal course of business, the Company is liable for contract completion and product performance. In the opinion of management, such obligations will not significantly affect the Company's financial position, results of operations or cash flows.

16. Subsequent Events (updated as of July 27, 2012)

The Company has evaluated subsequent events for recognition through May 25, 2012 and for disclosure through the time it issued its financial statements on July 27, 2012.

On June 22, 2012, ADT entered into a new unsecured senior revolving credit facility with an aggregate commitment of $750 million (provided that until the Distribution has occurred and certain related conditions have been met, availability under the revolving credit facility will be limited to $250 million). This revolving credit facility is available to be used for working capital, capital expenditures and other corporate purposes, however, we do not anticipate drawing upon the facility at this time. Tyco is a guarantor under the revolving credit facility, which guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution. The interest rate for borrowings under the revolving credit facility is based on the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") or an alternative base rate, plus a spread, based upon ADT's credit rating. To date, no amounts have been drawn under the revolving credit facility.

A series of transactions were initiated on June 30, 2012 and completed on July 3, 2012 in order to transfer to ADT certain assets and liabilities of Tyco's ADT North American Residential Security Business that are necessary in advance of the Separation.

On July 5, 2012, ADT issued $2.5 billion aggregate principal amount of unsecured notes, of which $750 million aggregate principal amount of 2.25% notes will mature on July 15, 2017, $1.0 billion aggregate principal amount of 3.50% notes will mature on July 15, 2022, and $750 million aggregate principal amount of 4.875% notes will mature on July 15, 2042. Net cash proceeds from the issuance of this term indebtedness totaled approximately $2.47 billion and will be used to repay intercompany debt and to make other cash payments to Tyco to allow it to fund repurchases or redemptions of its indebtedness. Tyco is initially guaranteeing the notes, and its guarantee will be released and cancelled in connection with the Distribution. Interest is payable on January 15 and July 15 of each year, commencing on January 15, 2013. ADT may redeem each series of the notes, in whole or in part, at any time at a redemption price equal to the principal amount of the notes to be redeemed, plus a make-whole premium.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM

To the Board of Directors of Tyco International Ltd.:

We have audited the accompanying balance sheet of The ADT Corporation (the "Company") as of January 27, 2012. This financial statement is the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States). Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free of material misstatement. The Company is not required to have, nor were we engaged to perform, an audit of its internal control over financial reporting. Our audit included consideration of internal control over financial reporting as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, such balance sheet presents fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Company as of January 27, 2012, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

TYCO FLOW CONTROL PROSPECTUS

PROSPECTUS

Tyco Flow Control International Ltd.
Common Shares
(par value CHF 0.50 per share)

This Prospectus is being furnished in connection with the planned distribution by Tyco International Ltd. ("Tyco") on a pro rata basis to its shareholders of all of the outstanding common shares of its wholly-owned subsidiary Tyco Flow Control International Ltd. ("Tyco Flow Control"), which owns and operates the flow control business of Tyco. We refer to such distribution as the "Distribution." We expect that immediately following the Distribution, an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will merge with and into Pentair, Inc. ("Pentair"), with Pentair surviving the merger as a wholly-owned, indirect subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control. We refer to such merger as the "Merger."

Each Tyco common share outstanding as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on September 17, 2012, the record date for the Distribution (the "record date"), will entitle its holder to receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under U.S. generally accepted accounting principles ("U.S. GAAP")) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share. The distribution of shares will be made in book-entry form. As consideration for the Merger, shareholders of Pentair will receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control for every Pentair common share that they hold at the time of the Merger, with the result that Tyco's shareholders as of the record date and their transferees will hold approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully-diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares). We expect that the Distribution and the Merger will be tax-free to Tyco's shareholders for Swiss withholding tax and, except for any cash received in lieu of fractional shares, U.S. federal income tax purposes. Immediately after the Transactions (as defined below), we will be an independent, publicly-traded company that will own and operate the combined businesses of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair.

We expect that Tyco Flow Control will apply to have its common shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange (the "NYSE") under the symbol "PNR," which is Pentair's current trading symbol, and that prior to the Distribution, Tyco Flow Control will change its corporate name to "Pentair Ltd."

Approval of certain matters required for the Distribution is being sought from the holders of Tyco common shares at a special general meeting of Tyco's shareholders to be held at 9:00 a.m., Central European Summer Time, on September 14, 2012 at Tyco's offices in Schaffhausen, Switzerland. In connection with and prior to the special general meeting, Tyco will distribute a proxy statement, which we refer to as the "Tyco Proxy Statement," to all holders of its common shares. The Tyco Proxy Statement will contain a proxy and will describe the procedures for voting your Tyco common shares and other details regarding the special general meeting. As a result, this Prospectus does not contain a proxy and is not intended to constitute solicitation material under the U.S. federal securities law. Tyco does not require, and is not seeking, the approval of its shareholders for the Merger, but the Merger will not take place unless Tyco's shareholders approve the Distribution at the special general meeting as described immediately above. Pentair is seeking the approval of its shareholders for the Merger, and approval by Pentair shareholders of the Merger is required for the Transactions to take place.

By the time that you receive this document in completed form, the Distribution and certain related matters will have been approved by Tyco's shareholders, the Merger will have been approved by Pentair's shareholders and certain other conditions to the Transactions will have been satisfied. However, because this document must be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") prior to the completion of those steps, the descriptions contained in this document are written from the perspective that they have not yet occurred.

Other than shareholder approval of the Distribution, no action will be required of you to receive common shares of Tyco Flow Control, which means that:

- you will not be required to pay for our common shares that you receive in the Distribution; and
- you do not need to surrender or exchange any of your Tyco shares in order to receive our common shares, or take any other action in connection with the spin-off.

There is currently no trading market for our common shares. However, we expect that a limited market, commonly known as a "when-issued" trading market, for our common shares will develop on or shortly before the record date for the Distribution, and we expect "regular way" trading of our common shares will begin the first trading day after the completion of the Distribution.

In reviewing this Prospectus, you should carefully consider the matters described under "Risk Factors" beginning on page 25 of this Prospectus for a discussion of certain factors that should be considered by recipients of our common shares.

Neither the SEC nor any state securities commission has approved or disapproved of these securities or determined that this Prospectus is truthful or complete. Any representation to the contrary is a criminal offense.

This Prospectus does not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy any securities.

The date of this Prospectus is August 3, 2012.

INTRODUCTION

On September 19, 2011, Tyco announced that its board of directors had approved a plan to separate Tyco into three independent, publicly-traded companies: one for Tyco's flow control businesses (Tyco Flow Control), one for its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada (ADT) and one for its remaining business, including its commercial fire and security businesses (Tyco). Tyco will effect the Distributions (as defined below) through distributions to Tyco shareholders of all of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control and all of the outstanding shares of common stock of ADT that, together, hold or will hold, through their respective subsidiaries, all of the assets and liabilities of their respective businesses.

On March 28, 2012, Tyco announced that it, Tyco Flow Control, Panthro Acquisition, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control, and Panthro Merger Sub, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Panthro Acquisition, had entered into the Merger Agreement with Pentair, providing that immediately following the Distribution and on the terms and subject to the other conditions of the Merger Agreement, Panthro Merger Sub will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the Merger.

On September 28, 2012, the expected date of the Distribution (the "distribution date"), each Tyco shareholder as of the record date will receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under U.S. GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share. As consideration for the Merger, shareholders of Pentair will receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control for every Pentair common share that they hold at the time of the Merger. Although the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding may increase or decrease prior to the distribution date and as a result this distribution ratio may change, it will nonetheless result in Tyco shareholders as of the record date and their transferees owning approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares). Immediately following the Distribution, but prior to the Merger, Tyco's shareholders will own all of the outstanding common shares of Tyco Flow Control. You will not be required to make any payment, surrender or exchange your Tyco common shares or take any other action to receive your shares of Tyco Flow Control and ADT. In lieu of fractional shares of Tyco Flow Control, shareholders will receive a cash payment. To that end, the distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of Tyco Flow Control in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of Tyco Flow Control, as applicable, in the special dividend.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE TRANSACTIONS

Set forth below are commonly asked questions and answers about the spin-off, the Merger and the transactions contemplated thereby. You should read the sections entitled “The Transactions,” “The Merger Agreement” and “The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements” of this Prospectus for a more detailed description of the matters described below.

Q: What are the Transactions?

A: The Transactions are the Distribution and the Merger. The Distribution is the final step in the separation of Tyco Flow Control from Tyco, which will be accomplished through a series of transactions that will result in our shareholders owning the flow control business which is currently operated by Tyco. The Distribution will be a pro rata distribution of our common shares by Tyco to holders of Tyco shares. Under the terms of the Merger Agreement, immediately following the Distribution, Panthro Merger Sub will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the Merger. As consideration for the Merger, shareholders of Pentair will receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control for every Pentair common share that they hold at the time of the Merger, with the result that Tyco’s shareholders as of the record date and their transferees will hold approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully-diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares).

In addition, Tyco expects to separate its residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada from Tyco through the ADT Distribution. Information regarding the ADT Distribution will be provided to Tyco shareholders in an Information Statement filed with the SEC. Our Distribution and the ADT Distribution are not cross-conditioned—either may occur without the other.

Q: What is Tyco Flow Control?

A: We are a wholly-owned subsidiary of Tyco organized under the laws of Switzerland. Following the Transactions, we will be an independent, publicly-traded company organized under the laws of Switzerland operating Tyco’s flow control business and Pentair’s business.

Q: What is the reason for the Transactions?

A: In assessing and approving the spin-off on September 19, 2011, Tyco’s Board of Directors had determined that the spin-off would be in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide a number of key benefits, including primarily: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management’s efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities and (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency. In assessing and approving the entry by Tyco Flow Control, Panthro Acquisition and Panthro Merger Sub into the Merger Agreement and the Merger, Tyco’s Board of Directors determined that the Merger would be in the best interest of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide substantially the same key benefits as those underlying the board’s reasons for approval of the spin-off, while adding the following key benefits: (i) increased value to Tyco’s shareholders, in particular relative to Tyco Flow Control’s anticipated value on a stand-alone basis, (ii) increased size and market capitalization, which could further improve Tyco Flow Control’s ability to use stock as an acquisition currency, (iii) a product and service offering that is broader but complimentary to many of the products manufactured and sold by the flow control business and (iv) the ability to incorporate Pentair’s public company infrastructure and senior management team, who have significant experience managing a publicly-traded company. See “The Transactions—Tyco’s Reasons for the Transactions.”

Q: What will I receive in the Transactions?

A: Each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date, will entitle its holder to receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under U.S. GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share. Although the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding may increase or decrease prior to the distribution date and as a result this distribution ratio may change, it will nonetheless result in Tyco shareholders as of the record date and their transferees owning approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares). Tyco shareholders will not receive any new shares in the Merger and will continue to hold the Tyco Flow Control shares they received in the Distribution.

Q: What shareholder approvals are needed?

A: Approval of certain matters required for the Distribution is being sought from the holders of Tyco common shares at a special general meeting of Tyco shareholders. In conjunction with the shareholder approval of the Distribution, Tyco shareholders will also be asked to approve the ADT Distribution, but approval of the ADT Distribution is not a condition to the Distribution. In connection with the special general meeting, the Tyco Proxy Statement is being distributed to Tyco's shareholders. The Tyco Proxy Statement contains a proxy, the procedures for voting your Tyco shares and other details regarding the special general meeting being called to approve certain matters required for the Distribution. As a result, this Prospectus does not contain a proxy. Other than shareholder approval of the Distribution, no action will be required of Tyco shareholders to receive Tyco Flow Control shares, which means that (1) you will not be required to pay for the Tyco Flow Control shares that you receive in the Distribution, and (2) you do not need to surrender or exchange any Tyco common shares in order to receive Tyco Flow Control shares, or to take any other action in connection with the spin-off.

The Merger cannot be completed unless the Merger Agreement is approved by the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the voting power of the outstanding Pentair common shares. The Pentair board of directors has unanimously approved and authorized the execution, delivery and performance of the Merger Agreement and the consummation of the transactions contemplated thereby and unanimously recommended that Pentair shareholders approve the Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby and all other actions or matters necessary or appropriate to give effect to the Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby.

Q: Can Tyco decide to cancel the Distribution of Tyco Flow Control common shares after the shareholders have approved that transaction if all the conditions have been met?

A: No. Under Swiss law, the power and authority to authorize the distribution of a dividend falls within the sole competence of the shareholders of the relevant company acting pursuant to a shareholders' meeting and may not be delegated to the company's board of directors. However, the shareholder resolution proposed at the special general meeting of Tyco's shareholders to approve the Distribution will contain certain conditions. In the event that any of these conditions have not been met by March 31, 2013, Tyco will have the ability to discontinue the Distribution. These conditions will track the conditions to the completion of the Merger contained in the Merger Agreement and those for the completion of the Distribution contained in the Separation and Distribution Agreement. See "The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger" and "The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements—Separation and Distribution Agreement—Conditions and Termination" for a description of these and other conditions.

Q: What is the record date for the Distribution?

A: Subject to Tyco shareholders approving the Distribution, record ownership will be determined as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on September 17, 2012, which we refer to as the record date.

Q: When will the Transactions occur?

A: The date of the Distribution is expected to be September 28, 2012, which we refer to as the distribution date. The Merger will occur immediately thereafter. We expect that it will take the distribution agent, acting on behalf of Tyco, up to three business days after the distribution date to fully distribute our common shares to Tyco shareholders.

Q: Are there any conditions to the consummation of the Transactions?

A: Yes. Consummation of the Transactions is subject to a number of conditions, including (i) the approval of the Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby by Pentair’s shareholders and approval of the Distribution by Tyco’s shareholders, (ii) subject to certain exceptions, the accuracy of representations and warranties in the Merger Agreement and performance by the other party in all material respects of its obligations under the Merger Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements, (iii) the absence of legal impediments prohibiting the consummation of the Merger and the transactions and agreements contemplated thereby, (iv) the expiration or termination of the applicable HSR Act waiting period and receipt of certain other regulatory approvals, (v) the Distribution having occurred, (vi) the effectiveness of the registration statements to be filed with the SEC and the approval for listing on the NYSE of Tyco Flow Control common shares, (vii) receipt of a solvency opinion with respect to Tyco and Tyco Flow Control, (viii) a maximum market capitalization of Tyco Flow Control prior to the Merger, (ix) the receipt of tax opinions from counsel and rulings by governmental authorities regarding the tax treatment of the Transactions and (x) the absence of a material adverse effect on the other party’s business (limited in the case of Tyco to Tyco’s flow control business) since the end of its last full fiscal year. This document describes these conditions in more detail in “The Merger Agreement—Conditions to the Completion of the Merger” and “The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements—Separation and Distribution Agreement—Conditions and Termination.”

Q: What will happen to the listing of Tyco shares?

A: Nothing. Tyco shares will continue to be traded on the NYSE under the symbol “TYC.”

Q: Will the spin-off affect the trading price of my Tyco common shares?

A: Yes. We expect the trading price of Tyco common shares immediately following the Distribution to be lower than immediately prior to the Distribution because the trading price will no longer reflect the value of Tyco’s flow control business, which is being spun-off through the distribution of Tyco Flow Control shares. Furthermore, until the market has fully analyzed the value of Tyco without its flow control business and without its ADT residential and small business security business in the United States and Canada, the price of Tyco common shares may fluctuate.

In addition, it is also anticipated that, shortly before the record date and continuing up to and including the distribution date, there will be two markets in Tyco common shares: a “regular way” market and an “ex-distribution” market. Tyco common shares that trade on the regular way market will trade with an entitlement to Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distribution. Shares that trade on the ex-distribution market will trade without an entitlement to Tyco Flow Control common shares distributed pursuant to the Distribution. See “The Transactions—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date.”

Q: What if I want to sell my Tyco common shares or my Tyco Flow Control common shares?

A: You should consult with your financial advisors, such as your stockbroker, bank or tax advisor. Neither Tyco nor Tyco Flow Control makes any recommendations on the purchase, retention or sale of Tyco common shares or the Tyco Flow Control common shares to be distributed in the spin-off.

If you decide to sell any shares before the Distribution, you should make sure your stockbroker, bank or other nominee understands whether you want to sell your Tyco common shares or the Tyco Flow Control common shares you will receive in the Distribution. If you sell your Tyco common shares in the “regular way” market up to and including the distribution date, you will be selling your right to receive Tyco Flow Control common shares in the Distribution. If you own Tyco common shares as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on the record date and sell those shares on the “ex-distribution” market up to and including the distribution date, you will still receive the Tyco Flow Control common shares that you would be entitled to receive in respect of the Tyco common shares you owned as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time on the record date. See “The Transactions—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date.”

Q: How will Tyco distribute our common shares?

A: Holders of Tyco common shares as of the record date will receive Tyco Flow Control common shares in book-entry form. See “The Transactions—Manner of Effecting the Spin-Off.”

Q: How will fractional shares be treated in the spin-off?

A: Holders of Tyco common shares will not receive fractional shares in connection with the spin-off. Instead, the distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares in the open market at prevailing market prices. The distribution agent will then distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and other costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share in the Distribution. See “The Transactions—Manner of Effecting the Spin-Off.”

Q: Will there be post-closing working capital and net debt adjustments in connection with the Merger?

A: Yes. Pursuant to the Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco Flow Control is required to have working capital, defined as current assets minus current liabilities, in the amount of $798 million, as of the close of business on the day prior to the Distribution. If the actual amount of the working capital exceeds $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco Flow Control will pay to Tyco the full amount of the excess. If the actual amount of the working capital is less than $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco will pay to Tyco Flow Control the full amount of the deficit.

Also, pursuant to the Separation and Distribution Agreement, before the close of business on the day prior to the Distribution, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue an intercompany note to a subsidiary of Tyco in an amount not to exceed $500 million, which will be repaid at the closing of the Merger with proceeds to Tyco Flow Control from a third party financing upon terms negotiated by Pentair. If such third party financing is not available on terms acceptable to the parties, instead of a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control issuing to a subsidiary of Tyco the intercompany note that would be repaid at the closing of the Merger, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue a one year unsecured “bridge” note for up to $500 million to a subsidiary of Tyco in accordance with the Merger Agreement that will bear interest at a rate of 14.0% and be prepayable at any time. Tyco Flow Control is then to transfer cash and cash equivalents to Tyco such that, immediately prior to the Distribution, the net indebtedness of Tyco Flow Control will be $275 million.

Q: What are the benefits and disadvantages arising from Tyco Flow Control’s domicile in Switzerland?

A: We anticipate that our domicile in Switzerland, a major business center known for its economic and political stability and financial sophistication, will produce important economic and operational benefits for us that help ensure our continued competitiveness in global markets, including the ability:

- to maintain a competitive worldwide effective tax rate and increase the ease of global cash management to support our global growth;
- to centrally locate Tyco Flow Control in an area that we believe will support our global growth, particularly in fast growth regions where economies are developing, as we anticipate approximately 60% of our revenues will come from outside the U.S.; and
- to better integrate Tyco’s flow control business, which has a substantial European business and has its largest segment, Valves & Controls, headquartered in Switzerland.

Although we believe that there are significant benefits resulting from a domicile in Switzerland, we cannot provide any assurance that the anticipated benefits will be realized. See the discussion under “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off and the Merger” on pages 42-53 for a discussion of risk factors relating to Tyco Flow Control’s domicile in Switzerland. We do not believe that there are any material disadvantages resulting from our domicile in Switzerland.

Q: What are the U.S. federal income tax consequences to me of the Transactions?

A: Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the Internal Revenue Service (the “IRS”) to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distribution and the ADT Distribution, except in each case for cash received in lieu of fractional common shares, will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “Code”). The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distributions for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The private letter ruling relies and the opinion will rely on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, provided by us, ADT and Tyco regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters. The receipt by Tyco of the opinion from McDermott Will & Emery LLP is a condition to effecting the Distribution.

Assuming that the Distribution qualifies under Section 355 of the Code, for U.S. federal income tax purposes no gain or loss will be recognized by a Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax, and no amount will be included in the income of a shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax, upon the receipt of our common shares pursuant to the Distribution. A Tyco shareholder that is subject to U.S. federal income tax generally will recognize gain or loss with respect to any cash received in lieu of a fractional share.

Tyco shareholders are not expected to recognize any gain or loss, or include any amount in income, for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a result of the Merger.

See “The Transactions—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Transactions” and “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off and the Merger—If the Distribution, the ADT Distribution or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the spin-off are determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we, our shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax and/or Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities” for more information regarding the potential tax consequences to you of the Distribution.

Each Tyco shareholder is urged to consult his, her or its tax advisor as to the specific tax consequences of the Distribution to that shareholder, including the effect of any state, local or non-U.S. tax laws and of changes in applicable tax laws.

Q: How will I determine the tax basis I will have in the Tyco Flow Control shares I receive in the Distribution?

A: Generally, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, your aggregate basis in the stock you hold in Tyco and the new Tyco Flow Control common shares and/or shares of ADT common stock received in the Distributions (including any fractional share interests in Tyco Flow Control and/or ADT for which cash is received) will equal the aggregate basis of Tyco common shares held by you immediately before the Distributions. This aggregate basis will be allocated among your Tyco common shares and the Tyco Flow Control common shares and/or the shares of ADT common stock you receive in the Distributions (including any fractional share interests in Tyco Flow Control and/or ADT for which cash is received) in proportion to the relative fair market value of each immediately following the Distributions. See the section entitled “The Transactions—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Transactions” included elsewhere in this Prospectus for more information.

You should consult your tax advisor about how this allocation will work in your situation (including a situation where you have purchased Tyco shares at different times or for different amounts) and regarding any particular consequences of the Distribution to you, including the application of state, local and non-U.S. tax laws.

Q: What are the Swiss withholding tax and income tax consequences to me of the Transactions?

A: Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to Tyco’s and Tyco Flow Control’s shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). Tyco has obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Authorities confirming that the Distributions qualify as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distributions.

Shareholders who are not residents of Switzerland for tax purposes, and who, during the applicable tax year, have not engaged in a trade or business carried on through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes, and who are not subject to corporate or individual income taxation in Switzerland for any other reason will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distributions including any cash received in lieu of a fractional Tyco Flow Control common share.

Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as private assets, will not be subject to any Swiss federal, cantonal or communal income tax on the Distributions out of the qualifying contributed surplus, including any cash received in lieu of a fractional Tyco Flow Control common share. Capital gains resulting from the sale or other disposition of Tyco Flow Control common shares are not subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax and, conversely capital losses are not tax-deductible for Swiss resident individuals who hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distribution, as private assets.

Corporate and individual shareholders who are resident in Switzerland for tax purposes, and corporate and individual shareholders who are not resident in Switzerland, and who, in each case, hold their Tyco shares and, consequently, the entitlement to the Distributions, as part of a trade or business carried on in Switzerland, in the case of corporate and individual shareholders not resident in Switzerland, through a permanent establishment or fixed place of business situated in Switzerland for tax purposes, will be subject to Swiss federal, cantonal and communal income tax on the Distribution out of the qualifying contributed surplus including any cash received in lieu of a fractional Tyco Flow Control common share, to the extent that the participation income cannot be reduced by depreciation on the investment in Tyco and/or where the participation relief (Beteiligungsabzug) is not applicable.

It is a condition to closing of the Merger that, at the Effective Time, Tyco will have obtained one or more rulings from the Swiss Tax Administrations, which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date (as defined below), confirming: (i) that the Merger will be a transaction that is generally tax-free for Swiss federal, cantonal and communal tax purposes (including with respect to Swiss withholding tax); (ii) the relevant Swiss tax base of Panthro Acquisition for Swiss tax (including federal and cantonal and communal) purposes; (iii) the relevant amount of capital contribution reserves (Kapitaleinlageprinzip) which will be exempt from Swiss withholding tax in the event of a distribution to the Tyco Flow Control shareholders after the Merger; and (iv) that no Swiss stamp tax will be levied on certain post-Merger restructuring transactions. The Swiss Tax Rulings do not address the Swiss income tax consequences of the Merger to Pentair shareholders. However, it is expected that for Swiss resident individual shareholders holding their Pentair shares as private assets (Privatvermögen) the Merger should be tax free for federal, cantonal and communal income tax purposes. For Swiss resident individual shareholders holding their shares as business assets (Geschäftsvermögen) and for Swiss resident corporate shareholders the Merger may not be recognized as tax neutral by the Swiss tax authorities. In such case, the difference between the fair market value of the shares and the relevant tax basis may be treated as taxable income even if no income has been booked in the Swiss statutory profit and loss statement.

For more information regarding the potential tax consequences to you of the Transactions, see “The Transactions—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Transactions” and “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Transactions—If the Distributions or the Merger are determined to be taxable for Swiss withholding tax purposes, we and Tyco could incur significant Swiss withholding tax liabilities.”

Q: Does Tyco Flow Control intend to pay cash dividends?

A: It is expected that Tyco Flow Control will initially pay a quarterly dividend of $0.22 per share. See “Dividend Policy” on page 108 and “Description of Our Capital Stock—Dividends.”

Q: How will Tyco Flow Control common shares trade?

A: Currently, there is no public market for our common shares. We intend to list our common shares on the NYSE under the symbol “PNR,” which is Pentair’s current trading symbol.

We anticipate that trading will commence on a “when-issued” basis on or shortly prior to the record date and before the distribution date. When-issued trading in the context of a spin-off refers to a sale or purchase of securities effected on or before the distribution date and made conditionally because the securities of the spun-off entity have not yet been distributed. When-issued trades generally settle within four trading days of the distribution date. On the first trading day following the distribution date, any when-issued trading in respect of our common shares will end and “regular-way” trading will begin. Regular-way trading refers to trading after the security has been distributed and typically involves a trade that settles on the third full trading day following the date of the sale transaction. See “The Transactions—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date” for more information. We cannot predict the trading prices for our common shares before or after the distribution date.

Q: Do I have appraisal rights?

A: No. Holders of Tyco common shares are not entitled to appraisal rights in connection with the Transactions.

Q: Who is the transfer agent for Tyco Flow Control shares?

A: Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (“Wells Fargo”) will be the transfer agent for Tyco Flow Control shares.

Q: Are there risks associated with owning Tyco Flow Control common shares upon consummation of the Transactions?

A: Our business is subject to both general and specific risks and uncertainties relating to Tyco’s historical flow control business and Pentair’s business. Our business is also subject to risks relating to the spin-off and the Merger. Accordingly, you should read carefully the information set forth in the section entitled “Risk Factors.”

Risk Factors

We face numerous risks related to, among other things, our business operations, our strategies, general economic conditions, competitive dynamics in our industry, the legal and regulatory environment in which we operate, our spin-off from Tyco, our Merger with Pentair and our status as an independent public company following the spin-off and the Merger. These risks are set forth in detail under the heading "Risk Factors." If any of these risks should materialize, they could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows. We encourage you to review these risk factors carefully. Furthermore, this Prospectus contains forward-looking statements that involve risks, uncertainties and assumptions. Actual results may differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of many factors, including but not limited to those under the headings “Risk Factors” and “Cautionary Statement Concerning Forward-Looking Statements.”

Summary of the Transactions

The following is a summary of certain terms of the spin-off and the Merger. See “The Transactions” for a more detailed description of the matters described below. You should also carefully consider the matters discussed under the section entitled “Risk Factors” beginning on page 25 of this Prospectus.

The spin-off

Distributing company	Tyco International Ltd. After the Distribution, Tyco will not own any shares of Tyco Flow Control.
Distributed company	Tyco Flow Control International Ltd. We expect that prior to the Distribution, Tyco Flow Control will change its corporate name to “Pentair Ltd.”
Record date	Subject to Tyco shareholders approving the Distribution, record ownership will be determined as of 5:00 p.m., New York City time, on September 17, 2012.
Distribution date	The distribution date is expected to be September 28, 2012.
Distribution ratio	Each Tyco common share outstanding as of the record date will entitle its holder to receive a number of Tyco Flow Control common shares determined by a formula based on the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding on a fully diluted basis (calculated in accordance with the treasury method under U.S. GAAP) at 12:01 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the distribution date. Based on the number of fully diluted Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding as of June 30, 2012, we expect the distribution ratio to be approximately 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares per each Tyco common share. Although the number of Pentair and Tyco shares outstanding may increase or decrease prior to the distribution date and as a result this distribution ratio may change, it will nonetheless result in Tyco shareholders as of the record date and their transferees owning approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares).
Securities to be distributed	All of the outstanding Tyco Flow Control common shares will be distributed pro rata to Tyco shareholders who hold Tyco common shares as of the record date, other than a limited number of Tyco Flow Control common shares that will be transferred by Tyco to Tyco Flow Control as treasury shares. Assuming a record date of June 30, 2012 and based on the 459,773,947 common shares of Tyco outstanding as of such date, and applying the assumed distribution ratio of 0.24 Tyco Flow Control common shares for every Tyco common share, approximately 110,345,000 of our common shares would have been distributed to Tyco shareholders. The number of Tyco Flow Control common shares that Tyco will ultimately distribute to its shareholders will (i) fluctuate depending on the number of Tyco common shares actually outstanding as of the record date and (ii) be reduced to the extent that cash payments are to be made in lieu of fractional shares, as described below.

The Distribution

On the distribution date, Tyco will cause the distribution agent to distribute the Tyco Flow Control common shares to the Tyco shareholders. The distribution of shares will be made in book-entry form. It is expected that it will take the distribution agent up to three business days to electronically issue Tyco Flow Control common shares to you or your bank or brokerage firm on your behalf by way of direct registration in book-entry form. You will not be required to make any payment, surrender or exchange your Tyco common shares or take any other action to receive your Tyco Flow Control common shares.

No fractional shares

Holders of Tyco will not receive any fractional Tyco Flow Control common shares. In lieu of fractional shares of Tyco Flow Control, shareholders will receive a cash payment. To that end, the distribution agent will sell whole shares that otherwise would have been distributed as fractional shares of Tyco Flow Control in the open market at prevailing market prices and distribute the aggregate cash proceeds of the sales, net of brokerage fees and similar costs, pro rata to each Tyco shareholder who would otherwise have been entitled to receive a fractional share of Tyco Flow Control, as applicable, in the special dividend. Recipients of cash in lieu of fractional shares will not be entitled to any interest on payments made in lieu of fractional shares. The receipt of cash in lieu of fractional shares generally will be taxable to the recipient shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax as described in “The Transactions—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Transactions,” but generally should not be subject to Swiss withholding tax, as described in “The Transactions—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Transactions.”

Conditions to the spin-off

The Distribution is subject to a number of important conditions. Under Swiss law, the approval of a relative majority of Tyco’s shareholders is required to effect the Distribution. Under the terms of the Separation and Distribution Agreement and those of the proposed shareholders’ resolution regarding the Distribution, the consummation of the Distribution is conditioned upon (i) the satisfaction (or waiver by Tyco) of each of the conditions to Tyco’s obligation to effect the closing of the transactions contemplated by the Merger Agreement (other than the consummation of the Distribution) and (ii) each of Tyco and Pentair having irrevocably confirmed to the other that each of the conditions to its obligations to effect the closing of the Merger has been satisfied or waived and that it is prepared to proceed with the Merger. For a more detailed description of the Merger conditions see “—The Merger—Conditions to the Merger.”

In addition, we expect that prior to the special general meeting approving the Distribution Tyco shall have received an audit report of Deloitte AG (Zürich), as state supervised auditing enterprise, stating that the Distribution complies with Swiss law and Tyco's Articles of Association.

In the event that shareholder approval of the Distribution is received and the conditions to the spin-off included in the shareholders' resolution are met or otherwise satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, Tyco will be obligated to effect the Distribution. Conversely, if the conditions have not been satisfied prior to March 31, 2013, the Distribution will not take place.

Working capital and net indebtedness

Pursuant to the Separation and Distribution Agreement, Tyco Flow Control is required to have working capital, defined as current assets minus current liabilities, in the amount of $798 million, as of the close of business on the day prior to the Distribution. If the actual amount of the working capital exceeds $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco Flow Control will pay to Tyco the full amount of the excess. If the actual amount of the working capital is less than $798 million by an amount in excess of $125 million, Tyco will pay to Tyco Flow Control the full amount of the deficit.

Also, pursuant to the Separation and Distribution Agreement, before the close of business on the day prior to the Distribution, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue an intercompany note to a subsidiary of Tyco in an amount not to exceed $500 million, which will be repaid at the closing of the Merger with proceeds to Tyco Flow Control from a third party financing upon terms negotiated by Pentair. If such third party financing is not available on terms acceptable to the parties, instead of a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control issuing to a subsidiary of Tyco the intercompany note that would be repaid at the closing of the Merger, a subsidiary of Tyco Flow Control will issue a one year unsecured "bridge" note for up to $500 million to a subsidiary of Tyco in accordance with the Merger Agreement that will bear interest at a rate of 14.0% and be prepayable at any time. Tyco Flow Control is then to transfer cash and cash equivalents to Tyco such that, immediately prior to the Distribution, the net indebtedness of Tyco Flow Control will be $275 million.

Trading market and symbol

We intend to file an application to list our common shares on the NYSE under the ticker symbol "PNR," which is Pentair's current trading symbol. We anticipate that, on or shortly before the record date for the Distribution, trading of our common shares will begin on a "when-issued" basis and will continue up to and including the distribution date. See "The Transactions—Trading Prior to the Distribution Date"

Dividend policy

It is expected that Tyco Flow Control will initially pay a quarterly dividend of $0.22 per share. See "Dividend Policy" and "Description of Our Capital Stock—Dividends."

Tax consequences to Tyco shareholders

Tyco shareholders are not expected to recognize any gain or loss, or include any amount in income, for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a result of the Distribution or the Merger, except to the extent of cash received in lieu of fractional shares in the Distribution. See “The Transactions—Material U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences of the Transactions” for a more detailed description of the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Transactions.

Tyco shareholders are not expected to be subjected to any Swiss withholding tax (Verrechnungssteuer), including on any cash received in lieu of fractional shares, as a result of the Distribution. See “The Transactions—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Transactions” for a more detailed description of the Swiss tax consequences of the Transactions.

Each shareholder is urged to consult his, her or its tax advisor as to the specific tax consequences of the Transactions to that shareholder, including the effect of any Swiss, U.S., state, local or foreign income tax consequences of the Distribution.

Relationships with Tyco and ADT after the spin-off

We have entered into the Separation and Distribution Agreement and shortly before the Distribution, we expect to enter into other agreements with Tyco and ADT related to the spin-off. These agreements will govern the relationship between Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco subsequent to the completion of the Distribution and provide for the allocation between Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco of various assets, liabilities and obligations (including employee benefits and tax-related assets and liabilities). The Separation and Distribution Agreement, in particular, provides for the settlement or extinguishment of certain obligations between Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco and for certain employee compensation and benefit matters between Tyco Flow Control, ADT and Tyco. We will enter into a Transition Services Agreement with Tyco and ADT pursuant to which a limited number of services will be provided by Tyco to us on an interim basis following the Distribution. Further, we will enter into a tax sharing agreement with Tyco and ADT (the “2012 Tax Sharing Agreement”) that will govern the rights and obligations of ADT, Tyco and Tyco Flow Control for certain tax liabilities with respect to periods or portions thereof ending on or before the date of the Distribution. The 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement will also contain certain restrictions to preserve the tax-free status of the spin-off. We describe these and related arrangements in greater detail under “The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements” and describe some of the risks of these arrangements under “Risk Factors—Risks Relating to the Spin-Off and the Merger.”

The Merger

Structure of the Merger

Panthro Merger Sub, our indirect wholly-owned subsidiary, will merge with and into Pentair, with Pentair surviving the Merger. We expect the Merger to be consummated immediately following the Distribution and on the terms and subject to the other conditions of the Merger Agreement. The Merger Agreement provides that the Merger will take place on the later of (x) September 28, 2012 and (y) the fifth business day following satisfaction or waiver of the conditions to closing (other than those to be satisfied at, or immediately prior to, closing) (such date the “Closing Date”).

Primary purposes of the Transactions

In assessing and approving the spin-off on September 19, 2011, Tyco’s Board of Directors determined that the spin-off would be in the best interests of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide a number of key benefits, including primarily: (i) greater strategic focus of financial resources and management’s efforts, (ii) direct and differentiated access to capital resources, (iii) enhanced investor choice through investment opportunities in three separate entities and (iv) improved ability to use stock as an acquisition currency. In assessing and approving the entry by Tyco Flow Control, Panthro Acquisition and Panthro Merger Sub into the Merger Agreement and the Merger, Tyco’s Board of Directors determined that the Merger would be in the best interest of Tyco and its shareholders because it would provide substantially the same key benefits as those underlying the board’s reasons for approval of the spin-off, while adding the following key benefits: (i) increased value to Tyco’s shareholders, in particular relative to Tyco Flow Control’s anticipated value on a stand-alone basis, (ii) increased size and market capitalization, which could further improve Tyco Flow Control’s ability to use stock as an acquisition currency, (iii) a product and service offering that is broader but complimentary to many of the products manufactured and sold by the flow control business and (iv) the ability to incorporate Pentair’s public company infrastructure and senior management team, who have significant experience managing a publicly-traded company. See “The Transactions—Tyco’s Reasons for the Transactions.”

Consideration for the Merger

Tyco Flow Control shareholders will not receive any consideration in the Merger and Tyco Flow Control will remain the parent company for the combined business. Each Pentair common share outstanding as of the Effective Time will be converted into the right to receive one newly issued common share of Tyco Flow Control, with the result that Tyco’s shareholders as of the record date and their transferees will hold approximately 52.5% of the common shares of Tyco Flow Control on a fully-diluted basis immediately following the Merger (excluding treasury shares).

Conditions to the Merger

The obligations of Tyco, Tyco Flow Control and Pentair under the Merger Agreement are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of certain conditions including:

- no temporary restraining order or preliminary or permanent injunction or other order by any governmental authority preventing consummation of the Merger or the related transactions shall have been issued and remain in effect;
- Tyco's shareholders shall have approved the Distribution, and the Distribution shall have been consummated in accordance with the Separation and Distribution Agreement;
- Pentair's shareholders shall have approved the Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby and all other actions or matters necessary or appropriate to give effect to the Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby;
- our common shares to be issued in the Merger shall have been authorized for listing on the NYSE, subject to official notice of issuance;
- each of the Registration Statement on Form S-1 relating to the Distribution (the "Form S-1") and the Registration Statement on Form S-4 relating to the Merger (the "Form S-4") shall have become effective under the Securities Act of 1933 (the "Securities Act") and shall not be the subject of any stop order suspending their effectiveness or proceedings initiated or threatened by the SEC seeking a stop order, and all necessary permits and authorizations under state securities or "blue sky" laws, the Securities Act and the Exchange Act relating to the issuance and trading of our common shares to be issued pursuant to the Merger shall have been obtained and shall be in effect;
- (i) the waiting period applicable to the consummation of the Merger and the related transactions under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act (the "HSR Act") shall have expired or been earlier terminated and (ii) except as otherwise provided for in the Merger Agreement, all applicable approvals shall have been obtained and all waiting periods shall have expired or been terminated under certain scheduled and other material antitrust laws, in each case as required for the consummation of the Merger and the related transactions;
- Tyco shall have obtained a solvency opinion from Duff & Phelps LLC, in form reasonably satisfactory to Tyco, to the effect that (i) immediately following the Distribution, Tyco, on the one hand, and Tyco Flow Control, on the other hand, will be solvent and (ii) Tyco's assets will exceed its liabilities and capital as determined pursuant to applicable Swiss law;
- the aggregate implied market capitalization of Tyco Flow Control, before giving effect to the Merger, shall not exceed CHF 17.5 billion based on (x) the closing price of the Tyco Flow Control common shares trading on the last "when-issued"

trading day prior to the Distribution or (y) in the absence of a “when-issued” trading market for Tyco Flow Control common shares, the closing price of Pentair common shares on the last trading day prior to the Distribution;

- the private letter ruling obtained by Tyco from the IRS to the effect that (i) the Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and 361 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional common shares and (ii) certain internal transactions will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date;
- Tyco shall have received one or more rulings from the IRS (the “IRS Supplemental Rulings”), which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date, to the effect that (i) the Merger will qualify as a reorganization pursuant to Section 368(a) of the Code, (ii) Section 367(a)(1) of the Code will not cause the Merger to be taxable to Pentair shareholders (except for a U.S. shareholder who is or will be a “five-percent transferee shareholder” within the meaning of applicable Treasury Regulations but who does not enter into a “gain recognition agreement” with the IRS), and (iii) certain anticipated post-closing transactions will not prevent the tax-free treatment of the Distribution or the Merger; and
- Tyco shall have received one or more rulings from the Swiss Tax Administrations, which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date, confirming: (i) that the Merger will be a transaction that is generally tax-free for Swiss federal, cantonal, and communal purposes (including with respect to Swiss stamp tax and Swiss withholding tax); (ii) the relevant Swiss tax base of Panthro Acquisition for Swiss tax (including federal and cantonal) purposes; (iii) the relevant amount of capital contribution reserves which will be exempt from Swiss withholding tax in the event of a distribution to the Tyco Flow Control shareholders after the Merger; and (iv) that no Swiss stamp tax will be levied on certain post-Merger restructuring transactions.

In addition, the obligation of Pentair to effect the Merger is subject to the following additional conditions, among others:

- each of the Tyco Merger Parties shall have in all material respects performed all obligations and complied with all covenants required by the Merger Agreement, the Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements to be performed by them on or before closing;
- the representations and warranties of Tyco in the Merger Agreement shall be true and correct both at and as of the date of the Merger Agreement and at and as of the Closing Date, except where their failure to be true and correct would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a material adverse effect on the business, financial condition or results of operations of Tyco's flow control business or on the ability of Tyco or Tyco Flow Control to consummate the Transactions (a "Tyco Flow Control MAE");

- no Tyco Flow Control MAE shall have occurred;
- as of the Effective Time, the board of directors of Tyco Flow Control will consist of the persons serving on the board of directors of Pentair as of the mailing of the Tyco Proxy Statement and up to two persons to be selected by Tyco prior to the mailing of the Tyco Proxy Statement and reasonably acceptable to Pentair;
- Pentair shall have received the opinion of Cravath, Swaine & Moore LLP to the effect that (i) the Merger will qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code and (ii) Section 367(a)(1) of the Code will not cause the Merger to be taxable to Pentair shareholders (except for a U.S. shareholder who is or will be a "five-percent transferee shareholder" within the meaning of applicable Treasury Regulations but who does not enter into a "gain recognition agreement" with the IRS); and
- Tyco shall have executed and delivered to Pentair, and caused each of its subsidiaries that is a party to an Ancillary Agreement to execute and deliver to Pentair, each of the Ancillary Agreements.

Furthermore, the obligations of the Tyco Merger Parties to effect the Merger are subject to the following additional conditions, among others:

- Pentair shall have in all material respects performed all obligations and complied with all covenants required by the Merger Agreement, the Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements to be performed by it on or before closing;
- the representations and warranties of Pentair in the Merger Agreement shall be true and correct both at and as of the date of the Merger Agreement and at and as of the Closing Date, except where their failure to be true and correct would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a material adverse effect on the business, financial condition or results of operations of Pentair and its subsidiaries as a whole or on the ability of Pentair to consummate the Merger (a "Pentair MAE");
- no Pentair MAE shall have occurred;
- Tyco shall have received the opinions of McDermott Will & Emery LLP (i) to the effect that (x) the Merger will qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code and (y) Section 367(a)(1) of the Code will not cause the Merger to be taxable to Pentair shareholders (except for a U.S. shareholder who is or will be a “five-percent transferee shareholder” within the meaning of applicable Treasury Regulations but who does not enter into a “gain recognition agreement” with the IRS) and (ii) confirming that the Distributions will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and/or 361 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of fractional shares; and

- Pentair shall have executed and delivered to Tyco each Ancillary Agreement to which it is a party.

Termination of the Merger Agreement

Tyco and Pentair may agree to terminate the Merger Agreement by mutual written consent. Additionally, either Tyco or Pentair may terminate the Merger Agreement for the following reasons, among others:

- the Merger has not been consummated by February 1, 2013, provided that the terminating party’s failure to perform or comply in all material respects with such party’s covenants and agreements set forth in the Merger Agreement and the Separation and Distribution Agreement is not the cause of the Merger not being consummated by February 1, 2013;
- the existence of any law that makes consummation of the transactions under the Merger Agreement illegal or otherwise prohibited;
- any governmental authority having competent jurisdiction has issued an order, decree or ruling or taken any other action permanently restraining, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting any material component of the transactions under the Merger Agreement, and such order, decree, ruling or other action becomes final and non-appealable, provided, however, that such right to terminate will not be available to any party whose failure to perform certain of its obligations under the Merger Agreement resulted in such order, decree or ruling;
- Pentair shareholders fail to adopt the Merger and approve the Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby and all other actions or matters necessary or appropriate to give effect to at the Pentair special shareholders’ meeting; or
- Tyco shareholders fail to approve the Distribution at the Tyco special shareholders’ meeting.

In addition, Tyco may terminate the Merger Agreement for the following reasons, among others:

- if the Pentair board of directors or any committee thereof (i) fails to include its recommendation relating to the Merger in its proxy statement to its shareholders; (ii) withholds, withdraws, qualifies or modifies, or publicly proposes to withhold, withdraw, qualify or modify, its recommendation in a manner adverse to Tyco; or (iii) approves, adopts or recommends any Pentair Takeover Proposal (each such action being a “Pentair Change of Recommendation”);

- if Pentair breaches or fails to perform in any material respect any of its representations, warranties, covenants or other agreements contained in the Merger Agreement or the Separation and Distribution Agreement such that any of the conditions described in the Merger Agreement or the Separation and Distribution Agreement cannot be satisfied and such failure has not been cured within 60 calendar days after Tyco provides written notice of the breach to Pentair or where any such condition is incapable of being satisfied and has not been waived by Tyco.

Pentair may also terminate the Merger Agreement for the following reasons, among others:

- prior to the receipt of the Pentair shareholder approval, in order to enter into a written definitive agreement for a Pentair Superior Proposal (as defined in “The Merger Agreement—No Solicitation”), provided it has complied with certain conditions related to a Pentair Change of Recommendation;
- if the Tyco Board of Directors or any committee thereof (i) fails to include its recommendation to Tyco shareholder to approve the Distribution in the Tyco Proxy Statement, (ii) withholds, withdraws, qualifies or modifies, or publicly proposes to withhold, withdraw, qualify or modify, its recommendation in a manner adverse to Pentair, or (iii) approves, adopts or recommends any Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or Tyco Takeover Proposal (each such action being a “Tyco Change of Recommendation”);
- if Tyco breaches or fails to perform in any material respect any of its representations, warranties, covenants or other agreements contained in the Merger Agreement or the Separation and Distribution Agreement such that any of the conditions described in the Merger Agreement or the Separation and Distribution Agreement cannot be satisfied and such failure has not been cured within 60 calendar days after Pentair provides written notice of the breach to Tyco or where any such condition is incapable of being satisfied and has not been waived by Pentair.

Termination fees and expenses

Pentair has agreed to pay to Tyco a termination fee of $145 million as liquidated damages in the following circumstances:

- Tyco terminates the Merger Agreement due to a Pentair Change of Recommendation; or
- prior to receipt of Pentair shareholders’ approval of the Merger Agreement and the Merger, Pentair terminates the Merger Agreement to enter into a written definitive agreement for a Pentair Superior Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Pentair shareholders’ meeting any person publicly makes a Pentair Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Pentair enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Pentair Takeover Proposal.

In addition, Tyco has agreed to pay Pentair a termination fee of $145 million as liquidated damages in the following circumstances:

- Pentair terminates the Merger Agreement due to a Tyco Change of Recommendation other than in connection with a Tyco Takeover Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Tyco shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Tyco enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal or a Tyco Takeover Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Tyco shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Tyco Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Tyco enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal.

Tyco has further agreed to pay Pentair a termination fee of $370 million as liquidated damages in the event that:

- Pentair terminates the Merger Agreement due to a Tyco Change of Recommendation in connection with a Tyco Takeover Proposal; or
- more than five days prior to the Tyco shareholders' meeting any person publicly makes a Tyco Takeover Proposal and within 12 months of termination of the Merger Agreement under specified circumstances, Tyco enters into a definitive agreement to consummate or consummates a Tyco Takeover Proposal.

Pentair is not, in any event, to receive both the $145 million termination fee and the $370 million termination fee.

For purposes of determining the termination fees as described above, a Pentair Takeover Proposal, Tyco Flow Control Takeover Proposal and Tyco Takeover Proposal apply to a transaction relating to 50% of any class of equity securities, consolidated net revenues, net income or assets of Pentair, Tyco Flow Control or Tyco, as applicable, rather than 10%.

Tax consequences to Tyco shareholders

Tyco shareholders are not expected to recognize any gain or loss, or include any amount in income, for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a result of the Merger.

RISK FACTORS

You should carefully consider the risks described below, together with all of the other information included in this Prospectus, in evaluating us and our common shares. If any of the risks described below actually occurs, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected. Any such adverse effect may cause the trading price of our common shares to decline and as a result you could lose all or part of your investment in us. Our business may also be adversely affected by risks and uncertainties not known to us or risks that we currently believe to be immaterial.

Risks Relating to Tyco Flow Control

Our business depends on the levels of capital investment and maintenance expenditures by our customers, which in turn are affected by numerous factors, including growth rates in developed and developing markets, the cyclical nature of the industries we serve, global energy demand, commodity prices, our customers' liquidity, the condition of global credit and capital markets.

Demand for most of our products and services depends on the level of new capital investment and planned maintenance expenditures by our customers. Capital investment and maintenance expenditures are, in turn, influenced by several factors, including general and industry-specific economic conditions, volatility in energy and commodity prices, availability of credit, expectations of future market behavior, and, in the case of our customers that are governments or that rely on public funding, a variety of political factors.

The businesses of many of our customers in all of the markets we serve are to varying degrees cyclical and have experienced periodic economic downturns. During such economic downturns customers whose demand for our products and services is primarily profit-driven historically have tended to delay major capital projects, including greenfield construction, expensive maintenance projects and upgrades. Additionally, demand for our products and services may be affected by volatility in energy and commodity prices and fluctuating demand forecasts, as, under these circumstances, our customers tend to be more conservative in their capital planning. Reduced demand for our products and services could result in the delay or cancellation of existing orders, which could adversely affect our level of backlog and our ability to convert backlog to revenue, lead to excess manufacturing capacity, which unfavorably impacts our absorption of fixed manufacturing and distribution costs, or erode average selling prices in our industry. Any of these results could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Additionally, some of our customers may delay capital investment and maintenance even during favorable conditions in their end-markets if they are unable to obtain sufficient financing. Access by our customers to local, regional and global credit and capital markets could be hindered by disruptions in financial and banking systems, such as recent disruptions related to the European sovereign debt crisis, raising the cost of new debt for our customers to prohibitive levels. Any difficulty in accessing these markets and the increased associated costs can have a negative effect on investment in major capital projects, including greenfield construction, necessary maintenance projects and upgrades, even during periods of favorable end-market conditions. In addition, the liquidity and financial position of our customers could impact their ability to pay in full and/or on a timely basis. Any of these factors, whether individually or in the aggregate, could materially and adversely affect our customers and, in turn, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Certain of our segments are affected by seasonality. Demand for products and services in our Thermal Controls and Water & Environmental Systems segments is impacted by seasonal factors, with our Thermal Controls business generally experiencing increased demand for products and services during the fall and winter months in the Northern Hemisphere and our Water & Environmental Systems generally experiencing increased demand during Australia's prime agricultural seasons. These seasonal effects coincide with our first two fiscal quarters (from October through March) and may vary from year-to-year based on weather conditions, including temperatures and precipitation. Deviations from usual weather patterns can adversely affect our results of operations, financial condition and cash flows. Unusually warm winter weather conditions in the Northern Hemisphere can negatively impact order flow in our Thermal Controls segment. Likewise, unusually wet weather conditions in Australia during its summer months, along with holiday slowdowns, can result in our inability to access customer work sites and lead to decreased revenue during these periods.

Our future revenue depends in part on the existence of and our ability to win new contracts for major capital projects. Our failure to effectively obtain such future contracts could adversely affect our growth prospects.

An increasing portion of our revenue in our Thermal Controls and Water & Environmental Systems segments is derived from major capital projects, including water pipeline and desalination projects in our Water & Environmental Systems segment. Accordingly, our future revenue and overall results of operations require us to successfully win new contracts for major capital projects. The number of such projects we win in any year fluctuates, and is dependent upon the general availability of such projects and our ability to bid successfully for them. Contract proposals and negotiations are complex and frequently involve a multi-year technical specification phase and bidding and selection process. The length of this process and the ultimate decision by a customer to proceed is affected by a number of factors, such as market conditions, financing arrangements and required governmental approvals. For example, a customer may require us to provide a bond or letter of credit to protect the customer should we fail to perform under the terms of the contract. If negative market conditions arise, fewer such projects may be available, and if we fail to secure adequate financial arrangements or required governmental approvals we may not be able to pursue particular projects. Either condition could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We maintain a sizable backlog and the timing of our conversion of revenue out of backlog is uncertain. Our inability to convert backlog into revenue, whether due to factors that are within or outside of our control, could adversely affect our revenue and profitability.

Backlog represents the accumulation of uncompleted customer orders that we have not yet recognized as revenue. At March 30, 2012, our backlog was $1.9 billion. We typically convert approximately 85% of our backlog to revenue within 12 months. However, the timing of our conversion of revenue out of backlog is subject to a variety of factors that may cause delays, many of which, including fluctuations in our customers' delivery schedules, are beyond our control. This is especially true with respect to major global capital projects, where the extended timeline for project completion and invoice satisfaction increases the likelihood for delays in the conversion of backlog related to modifications and order cancellations. Such delays may lead to significant fluctuations in results of operations and cash flows from quarter to quarter, making it difficult to predict our financial performance on a quarterly basis. For example, during the second fiscal quarter of 2011, severe weather-related events and flooding in Australia significantly impacted shipments to customers, resulting in lost productivity and delays in converting backlog into revenue in our Water & Environmental Systems business. Further, while we believe that historical order cancellations have not been significant, if we were to experience a significant amount of cancellations of or reductions in orders, it would reduce our backlog and, consequently, our future sales and results of operations.

Our ability to meet customer delivery schedules for backlog is dependent on a number of factors including sufficient manufacturing plant capacity, adequate access to raw materials and other inventory required for production, a trained and capable workforce and effective scheduling of manufacturing resources. Many of the contracts we enter into with our customers are long-lead and contain penalty clauses related to on-time delivery. Any untimely delivery could subject us to financial penalties, damage our relationship with existing customers and tarnish our reputation among existing and potential customers. If any of these risks materializes, our business, financial condition, results of operation and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

We compete in attractive markets with a high level of competition, which may result in pressure on our profit margins and limit our ability to maintain or increase the market share of our products.

The markets for our products and services are geographically diverse and highly competitive. We compete against large and well-established national and global companies, as well as regional and local companies and lower cost manufacturers. We compete based on technical expertise, reputation for quality and reliability, timeliness of delivery, previous installation history, contractual terms and price. Some of our competitors, in particular smaller companies, attempt to compete based primarily on price, localized expertise and local relationships, especially with respect to products and applications that do not require a great deal of engineering or technical expertise. In addition, during economic downturns average selling prices tend to decrease as market participants compete more aggressively on price. If we are unable to continue to differentiate our products, services and solutions based on such factors as our reputation, technical expertise and ability to deliver on time, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Some of our customers have been attempting to reduce the number of vendors from which they procure products and services in order to reduce the size and diversity of their supplier base. Although we have strategically pursued and executed frame agreements with some of our large customers, whereby we are selected as one of a few designated providers of specified products on a global or regional basis, there is a risk that our competitors could be awarded such agreements to our exclusion. In addition, a number of engineering, procurement and construction (“EPC”) integrators have recently positioned themselves as providers of vertically integrated solutions covering the spectrum of project design, planning and execution in the markets we serve. We believe that our success depends partly on maintaining close relationships with our customers and working with them on specific solutions that best serve their processes, applications and cost considerations. The successful encroachment of intermediaries, including EPCs, could disrupt these relationships. If we are unable to successfully manage competitive developments in the industries we serve, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

In addition, to remain competitive, we must continue to invest in R&D, manufacturing, marketing, customer service, our distribution networks and our global network of after-market service centers. Currently, key components of our competitive position are our ability to adapt to changing competitive environments and to manage expenses successfully. This, however, requires continuous management focus on reducing costs and improving efficiency through cost controls, productivity enhancements and regular appraisal of our asset portfolio. If we are unable to achieve appropriate levels of scalability or cost-effectiveness, or if we are otherwise unable to manage and react to changes in the global marketplace, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

We are subject to tort, product liability and warranty claims and may suffer reputational damage relating to products we manufacture or install. Because many of our products perform mission-critical functions in potentially dangerous environments, these claims could result in significant costs and liabilities and reduce our profitability.

We may be exposed to tort, product liability and warranty claims and may suffer reputational damage among customers, potential customers, regulatory bodies and the public in the event that the use of any of our products results in, or is alleged to result in, injury to people or damage to property or the environment, or actually or allegedly fails to perform as expected. In particular, many of our products perform mission-critical functions in large and complex facilities or systems, including oil & gas rigs and pipelines, nuclear power plants, petroleum refineries, chemical processing plants and other potentially dangerous environments. We maintain rigorous quality testing procedures and our products adhere to demanding regulatory specifications, and historically we have not encountered financially material failure costs. However, given the nature of the markets we serve and the mission-critical application of our products, there is an inherent risk that a product failure could cause serious damage to people, property or the environment. Moreover, our customers are generally not required to obtain service, repair or maintenance work from us, which could result in unqualified persons performing after-market services on our products. While we maintain insurance coverage with respect to certain product liability claims, our insurance may not provide adequate coverage against all product liability claims and would not compensate us for damage to our reputation and any resulting loss of business. Furthermore, warranty claims are not generally covered by insurance, and we may incur significant warranty costs in the future for which we would not be reimbursed. We also may not be able to obtain insurance on acceptable terms in the future. Tort, product liability and warranty claims can be expensive to defend and can divert the attention of management and other personnel for significant periods of time, regardless of the ultimate outcome. Any unsuccessful defense of such a claim could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Even if we are successful in defending against a claim relating to our products, our customers may lose confidence in our products and our company. One or more of these factors could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

We are exposed to liquidated damages in many of our customer contracts.

Many of our customer contracts contain liquidated damages provisions in the event that we fail to perform our obligations thereunder in a timely manner or in accordance with the agreed terms, conditions and standards. Liquidated damages provisions applicable to us typically provide for a payment to be made by us to the customer if we fail to deliver a product or service on time. We generally try to limit our exposure to a maximum penalty within a contract. However, because our products are often components of large and complex systems or capital projects, if we incur liquidated damages they may materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Certain of our products require certifications by regulators or standards organizations, and our failure to obtain or maintain such certifications could negatively impact our business.

In certain industries and for certain applications, in particular with respect to our pressure relief valves and valves used in the nuclear power generation industry, we must obtain certifications for our products or installations by regulators or standards organizations. For example, our products used in the nuclear power generation industry must carry an “N Stamp” certification from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and many of our Water & Environmental Systems’ products require the approval of the Water Services Association of Australia prior to any sale in the country. In addition, as we expand our products offering into emerging markets, we will need to comply with additional and potentially different certification requirements. If we fail to obtain required certifications for our products, or if we fail to maintain such certifications on our products after they have been certified, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

We have significant operations outside of the United States, which are subject to political, economic and other risks inherent in operating outside of the United States.

Our net revenue derived from sales in non-U.S. markets for fiscal year 2011 was 79% of our total net revenue, and we expect revenue from non-U.S. markets to continue to represent a significant portion of our total net revenue. Business operations outside of the United States are subject to political, economic and other risks inherent in operating in certain countries, such as:

- the difficulty of enforcing agreements, collecting receivables and protecting assets, especially our intellectual property rights, through non-U.S. legal systems;
- the difficulty of communicating and monitoring standards and directives across our global network of after-market service centers and manufacturing facilities;
- trade protection measures and import or export licensing requirements;
- difficulty in staffing and managing widespread operations and the application of certain labor regulations outside of the United States;
- compliance with a wide variety of non-U.S. laws and regulations;

- changes in the general political and economic conditions and political and social unrest in the countries where we operate, particularly in emerging markets;
- the threat of nationalization and expropriation;
- the presence of corruption in certain countries;
- increased costs and risks of doing business in a wide variety of jurisdictions, including compliance with local compensation programs, employment policies and other administrative programs;
- cultural and language barriers and different business practices;
- changes in enacted tax laws and tax treaties;
- limitations on repatriation of earnings;
- fluctuations in revenue, operating margins and other financial measures due to changes in currency exchange rates; and
- fluctuations in available funding in those instances where a project is government financed (for example, by a regional water authority).

One or more of these factors could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Volatility in currency exchange rates, commodity prices and interest rates may adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We are exposed to a variety of market risks, including the effects of changes in currency exchange rates, commodity prices and interest rates.

Our net revenue derived from sales in non-U.S. markets for fiscal year 2011 was 79% of our total net revenue, and we expect revenue from non-U.S. markets to continue to represent a significant portion of our total net revenue. Our financial statements reflect translation of items denominated in non-U.S. currencies to U.S. dollars, our functional currency (using year-end exchange rates for balance sheet data and average exchange rates for statement of operations data). Therefore, if the U.S. dollar strengthens in relation to the principle non-U.S. currencies from which we derive revenue as compared to a prior period, our U.S. dollar reported revenue and income will effectively be decreased to the extent of the change in currency valuations, and vice-versa. Changes in the relative values of currencies occur regularly and in some instances, may have a significant effect on our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

In addition, we are a large buyer of metals (including steel, ductile iron and copper) and other non-metallic commodities, specialty polymers, synthetic rubber and other raw materials for our manufacturing operations, the prices of which have fluctuated significantly in recent years. Increases in the prices of some of these commodities could increase the costs of manufacturing our products and providing our services. We may not be able to pass on these costs to our customers or otherwise effectively manage price volatility and this could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We monitor these exposures as an integral part of our overall risk management program. In some cases, we enter into hedge contracts to insulate our results of operations from these fluctuations. These hedges are subject to the risk that our counterparty may not perform. As a result, changes in currency exchange rates, commodity prices and interest rates could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our future growth is dependent upon our ability to continue to adapt our products, services and organization to meet the demands of local markets in both developed and emerging economies and by developing or acquiring new technologies that achieve market acceptance with acceptable margins.

Our businesses operate in global markets that are characterized by customer demand that is often global in scope but localized in delivery. We compete with thousands of smaller regional and local companies that may be positioned to offer products produced at lower cost than ours, or to capitalize on highly localized relationships and knowledge that are difficult for us to replicate. For example, our Water & Environmental Systems segment has recently faced pricing competition from ductile iron pipe and fittings offered by companies who source their products from lower-cost countries. We have also found that in several emerging markets potential customers prefer local suppliers, in some cases because of existing relationships and in other cases because of local legal restrictions or incentives that favor local businesses. Accordingly, our future success depends upon a number of factors, including our ability to accomplish the following: adapt our products, services, organization, workforce and sales strategies to fit localities throughout the world, particularly in high growth emerging markets; identify emerging technological and other trends in our target end-markets; and develop or acquire competitive products and services and bring them to market quickly and cost-effectively. Adapting our businesses to serve more local markets will require us to invest considerable resources in building and expanding our network of after-market service centers and engineering and manufacturing facilities in those markets, as well as developing or acquiring new products and services. These expansion and development efforts divert resources from other potential investments in our businesses, and they may not lead to the desired outcome. As a result, the failure to effectively adapt our products or services to the needs of local markets, the failure of our technology, products or services to gain market acceptance, the potential for product defects or the obsolescence of our products and services could significantly reduce our revenue, increase our operating costs or otherwise materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Inability to protect our intellectual property and expiration of our patents could negatively affect our competitive position.

We rely on a combination of patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, know-how, confidentiality provisions and licensing arrangements to establish and protect our proprietary rights. Although we have taken steps to protect our intellectual property, we cannot assure you that these steps will be adequate to prevent infringement of our rights or misappropriation of our technology, trade secrets or know-how. For example, effective patent, trademark, copyright and trade secret protection may be unavailable or limited in some of the countries in which we operate. In addition, while we generally enter into confidentiality agreements with our employees and third parties to protect our trade secrets, know-how, business strategy and other proprietary information, such confidentiality agreements could be breached or otherwise may not provide meaningful protection. Any proceedings to protect our intellectual property rights could be burdensome and costly, and we may not prevail. Further, adequate remedies may not be available in the event of an unauthorized use or disclosure of our trade secrets and manufacturing expertise. Finally, for those products in our portfolio that rely on patent protection, once a patent has expired the product is generally open to competition. Products under patent protection usually generate significantly higher revenue than those not protected by patents. If we fail to successfully enforce our intellectual property rights or register new patents, our competitive position could suffer, which could harm our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

If we cannot obtain sufficient quantities of materials, components and equipment required for our manufacturing activities at competitive prices and quality and on a timely basis, or if our manufacturing capacity does not meet demand, our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may suffer.

We purchase materials, components and equipment from unrelated parties for use in our manufacturing operations. If we cannot obtain sufficient quantities of these items at competitive prices and quality and on a timely basis, we may not be able to produce sufficient quantities of product to satisfy market demand, product shipments may be delayed or our material or manufacturing costs may increase. In addition, because we cannot always immediately adapt our cost structures to changing market conditions, our manufacturing capacity may at times exceed or fall short of our production requirements. Further, the costs of certain raw materials, such as copper and nickel, have been volatile historically and are influenced by factors that are outside our control. In addition, while we manufacture certain of the highly-engineered castings and forgings which are essential to our fabrication of valves for our customers at our foundries, we also purchase other castings and forgings from qualified and approved sources. Because we and many of our competitors rely on the same foundries to supply castings and forgings for our respective products, during periods of growth in the worldwide market for valves, we and our competitors have experienced delays in the supply of components in the past and could potentially experience such delays in the future. While we strive to offset our increased costs from material inflation and avoid component shortages through effective supply chain management and contractual provisions, we may be unable to pass increases in the costs of our raw materials on to our customers or achieve operational efficiencies. Any of these problems could result in the loss of customers, provide an opportunity for competing products to gain market acceptance and otherwise materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Failure to attract, motivate, train and retain qualified personnel could adversely affect our business. We also rely on certain key personnel, the loss of whose services would adversely affect our business.

Our culture and guiding principles focus on continuously training, motivating and developing employees, and in particular we strive to attract, motivate, train and retain qualified engineers and managers to handle the day-to-day operations of a highly diversified organization. Many of our manufacturing processes, and many of the integrated solutions we offer, are highly technical in nature. Our ability to expand or maintain our business depends on our ability to hire, train and retain engineers with the skills necessary to understand and adapt to the continuously developing needs of our customers. The increasing demand for qualified personnel worldwide, and particularly in emerging markets, makes it more difficult for us to attract and retain employees with requisite technical skill sets. If we fail to attract, motivate, train and retain qualified personnel, or if we experience excessive turnover, we may experience declining sales, manufacturing delays or other inefficiencies, increased recruiting, training and relocation costs and other difficulties, and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

In addition, certain of our businesses depend on the efforts, skills, reputations and business relationships of certain key personnel who are not obligated to remain employed with us. The loss of these personnel, particularly to competitors, could jeopardize our relationships with customers and materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We have recognized, and may recognize in the future, substantial impairment charges.

Pursuant to accounting principles generally accepted in the United States, we are required to assess our goodwill, intangibles and other long-lived assets periodically to determine whether they are impaired. Disruptions to our business, unfavorable end-market conditions, protracted economic weakness, unexpected significant declines in operating results of reporting units, divestitures and market capitalization declines may result in material charges for goodwill and other asset impairments. For example, in the first quarter of 2011, we recorded a non-cash impairment charge of $35 million in our Water & Environmental Systems business segment. As of March 30, 2012, we maintained over $2 billion of goodwill and intangible assets on our balance sheet, which we believe is recoverable. However, fair value determinations require considerable judgment and are sensitive to change. Impairments to one or more of our reporting units could occur in future periods whether or not connected with the annual impairment analysis that we conduct in the fourth quarter of each year. Future impairment charges could materially affect our reported earnings in the periods of such charges and could adversely affect our financial condition and results of operations.

A material disruption of our operations, particularly at some of our manufacturing facilities, could adversely affect our business.

Many of our products are sourced from multiple manufacturing facilities. However, certain products, such as our Raychem brand of heat-tracing products, are sole-sourced from one manufacturing facility. If operations at our facilities, and in particular our sole-source facilities, were to be disrupted as a result of significant equipment failures, natural disasters, power outages, fires, explosions, terrorism, sabotage, adverse weather conditions, public health crises, labor disputes or other reasons, we may be unable to fill customer orders and otherwise meet customer demand for our products, which could adversely affect our financial performance. Interruptions in production could increase our costs and reduce our sales. Any interruption in production capability could require us to make substantial capital expenditures to fill customer orders, which could negatively affect our profitability and financial condition. We maintain property damage insurance that we believe to be adequate to provide for reconstruction of facilities and equipment, as well as business interruption insurance to mitigate losses resulting from any production interruption or shutdown caused by an insured loss. However, any recovery under our insurance policies may not offset the lost sales or increased costs that may be experienced during the disruption of operations, which could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flow.

Our business may be adversely affected by work stoppages, union negotiations, labor disputes and other matters associated with our labor force.

As of September 30, 2011, we employed approximately 15,500 people worldwide, of which approximately 3,700 were employed in the United States and 11,800 were employed outside the United States. Approximately 4,800 of our employees were covered by collective bargaining agreements or works councils as of September 30, 2011. Although we believe that our relations with the labor unions and work councils that represent our employees are generally good and we have experienced no material strikes and only minor work stoppages recently, no assurances can be made that we will not experience in the future these and other types of conflicts with labor unions, works councils, other groups representing employees or our employees generally, or that any future negotiations with our labor unions will not result in significant increases in our cost of labor. Additionally, a work stoppage at one of our suppliers could materially and adversely affect our operations if an alternative source of supply were not readily available. Stoppages by employees of our customers also could result in reduced demand for our products.

If we do not successfully maintain and/or upgrade our information and technology networks, or if we are unable to maintain the security of our information and technology networks, our operations could be disrupted.

We rely on various information technology systems to manage our operations. We are continuously upgrading and consolidating our systems, including making changes to legacy systems, replacing legacy systems with successor systems with new functionality and acquiring new systems with new functionality. These types of activities subject us to inherent costs and risks associated with replacing and changing these systems, including impairment of our ability to fulfill customer orders, potential disruption of our internal control structure, substantial capital expenditures, additional administration and operating expenses, retention of sufficiently skilled personnel to implement and operate the systems, demands on management time and other risks and costs of delays or difficulties in transitioning to new systems or of integrating new systems into our current systems. Our system implementations may not result in productivity improvements at a level that outweighs the costs of implementation, or at all. In addition, the implementation of new technology systems may cause disruptions in our business operations and have an adverse effect on our business and operations, if not anticipated and appropriately mitigated.

We depend on the Internet and our information technology infrastructure for electronic communications among our locations around the world and between our personnel and suppliers and customers. Security breaches of this infrastructure can create system disruptions, shutdowns or unauthorized disclosure of confidential information. If we are unable to prevent such breaches, our operations could be disrupted or we may suffer financial damage or loss because of lost or misappropriated information.

Risks Relating to Legal, Regulatory and Compliance Matters

We will share responsibility for certain of our, Tyco's and ADT's income tax liabilities for tax periods prior to and including the distribution date, and such liabilities may include a portion of Tyco's obligations under its tax sharing agreement with Covidien Ltd. ("Covidien") and TE Connectivity Ltd. ("TE Connectivity") for tax liabilities for tax periods prior to and including June 29, 2007.

In connection with the 2007 distributions of Covidien and TE Connectivity by Tyco (the "2007 Separation"), Tyco entered into a tax sharing agreement (the "2007 Tax Sharing Agreement") that governs the rights and obligations of each party with respect to certain pre-2007 Separation tax liabilities and certain tax liabilities arising in connection with the 2007 Separation. More specifically, Tyco, Covidien and TE Connectivity share 27%, 42% and 31%, respectively, of income tax liabilities that arise from adjustments made by tax authorities to Tyco's, Covidien's and TE Connectivity's U.S. and certain non-U.S. income tax returns and certain taxes attributable to internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the 2007 Separation. In addition, in the event the 2007 Separation, or certain related transactions, is determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the 2007 Separation by Tyco, Covidien or TE Connectivity, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on Tyco, Covidien or TE Connectivity as a result thereof. If none of the companies is responsible for such failure, then Tyco, Covidien and TE Connectivity would be responsible for such taxes in the same manner and in the same proportions as other shared tax liabilities under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Costs and expenses associated with the management of these shared tax liabilities are generally shared equally among the parties.

With respect to years prior to and including the 2007 Separation, tax authorities have raised issues and proposed tax adjustments that are generally subject to the sharing provisions of the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which may require Tyco to make a payment to a taxing authority, Covidien or TE Connectivity. Tyco has recorded a liability of $411 million as of March 30, 2012 which it has assessed and believes is adequate to cover the payments that Tyco may be required to make under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement. Tyco is reviewing and contesting certain of the proposed tax adjustments.

With respect to adjustments raised by the IRS, although Tyco has resolved a substantial number of these adjustments, a few significant items remain open with respect to the audit of the 1997 through 2004 years. As of the date hereof, Tyco has not been able to resolve certain open items, which primarily involve the treatment of certain intercompany debt issued during the period, through the IRS appeals process. As a result, Tyco expects to litigate these matters once it receives the requisite statutory notices from the IRS, which is likely to occur within the next six months. However, the ultimate resolution of these matters is uncertain and could result in Tyco being responsible for a greater amount than it expects under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement.

In connection with the Distributions, we will enter into the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement with Tyco and ADT that will be separate from the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement and which will govern the rights and obligations of Tyco Flow Control, Tyco and ADT for certain pre-Distribution tax liabilities, including Tyco's obligations under the 2007 Tax Sharing Agreement, as more fully described under "The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements—Tax Sharing Agreement," below. To the extent we are responsible for any liability under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, there could be a material adverse impact on our financial position, results of operations, cash flows or our effective tax rate in future reporting periods.

We are party to asbestos-related product litigation that could adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We, along with numerous other companies, are named as defendants in a substantial number of lawsuits based on alleged exposure to asbestos-containing materials. These cases typically involve product liability claims based primarily on allegations of manufacture, sale or distribution of industrial products that either contained asbestos or were attached to or used with asbestos-containing components manufactured by third parties. Each case typically names between dozens to hundreds of corporate defendants. Historically, we and our subsidiaries have been identified as defendants in asbestos-related claims along with other Tyco subsidiaries. We have experienced an increase in the number of asbestos-related lawsuits over the past several years, including lawsuits by plaintiffs with mesothelioma-related claims. A large percentage of these suits have not presented viable legal claims and, as a result, have been dismissed or withdrawn. Our strategy has been, and continues to be, to mount a vigorous defense aimed at having unsubstantiated suits dismissed, and, only where appropriate, settling claims before trial. As of March 30, 2012, there were approximately 1,700 lawsuits pending, some involving multiple claimants, against entities that Tyco Flow Control will acquire in connection with the Distribution. We cannot predict with certainty the extent to which we will be successful in litigating or otherwise resolving lawsuits in the future and we continue to evaluate different strategies related to asbestos claims filed against us including entity restructuring and judicial relief. Unfavorable rulings, judgments or settlement terms could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We currently record an estimated liability related to pending claims and claims estimated to be received over the next seven years, including related defense costs, based on a number of key assumptions and estimation methodologies. These assumptions are derived from claims experience over the past five years and reflect our expectations about future claim activities over the next seven years. These assumptions about the future may or may not prove accurate, and accordingly, we may incur additional liabilities in the future. A change in one or more of the inputs or the methodology that we use to estimate the asbestos liability could materially change the estimated liability and associated cash flows for pending and future claims. Although it is possible that we will incur additional costs for asbestos claims filed beyond the next seven years, we do not believe there is a reasonable basis for estimating those costs at this time. On a quarterly and annual basis, we review and update as appropriate, such estimated asbestos liabilities and assets and the underlying assumptions. Such an update could result in a material change in such estimated assets and liabilities.

We also record an asset that represents our best estimate of probable recoveries from insurers or other responsible parties for the estimated asbestos liabilities. There are significant assumptions made in developing estimates of asbestos-related recoveries, such as policy triggers, policy or contract interpretation, success in litigation in certain cases, the methodology for allocating claims to policies and the continued solvency of the insurers or other responsible parties. The assumptions underlying the recorded asset may not prove accurate, and as a result, actual performance by our insurers and other responsible parties could result in lower receivables and cash flows expected to reduce our asbestos costs. Due to these uncertainties, as well as our inability to reasonably estimate any additional asbestos liability for claims that may be filed beyond the next seven years, it is not possible to predict with certainty the ultimate outcome of the cost, nor potential recoveries, of resolving the pending and all unasserted asbestos claims. Additionally, we believe it is possible that the cost of asbestos claims filed beyond the next seven years, net of expected recoveries, could have a material adverse effect on our financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

We could be adversely affected by violations of the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act ( the “FCPA”) and similar anti-bribery laws outside the United States.

The FCPA and similar anti-bribery laws in other jurisdictions generally prohibit companies and their intermediaries from making improper payments to government officials or other persons for the purpose of obtaining or retaining business. Recent years have seen a substantial increase in anti-bribery law enforcement activity, with more frequent and aggressive investigations and enforcement proceedings by both the U.S. Department of Justice (“DOJ”) and the SEC, increased enforcement activity by non-U.S. regulators and increases in criminal and civil proceedings brought against companies and individuals. Our policies mandate compliance with these anti-bribery laws. We operate in many parts of the world that are recognized as having governmental and commercial corruption and in certain circumstances, strict compliance with anti-bribery laws may conflict with local customs and practices. Because many of our customers and end users are involved in infrastructure construction and energy production, they are often subject to increased scrutiny by regulators. We cannot assure you that our internal control policies and procedures will always protect us from reckless or criminal acts committed by our employees or third-party intermediaries. In the event that we believe or have reason to believe that our employees or agents have or may have violated applicable anti-corruption laws, including the FCPA, we may be required to investigate or have outside counsel investigate the relevant facts and circumstances, which can be expensive and require significant time and attention from senior management. Violations of these laws may result in criminal or civil sanctions, which could disrupt our business and result in a material adverse effect on our reputation, business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Furthermore, we are subject to investigations by the DOJ and the SEC related to allegations that improper payments have been made by our subsidiaries and third-party intermediaries in recent years in violation of the FCPA. We have continued to report to the DOJ and the SEC the remedial measures that we have taken in response to the allegations and our own internal investigations, and in February 2010, we initiated discussions with the DOJ and SEC aimed at resolving these matters, which remain ongoing. Although we have recorded our best estimate of potential loss related to these or other similar matters, it is possible that this estimate may differ from the ultimate loss determined in connection with the resolution of this matter, as we may be required to pay material fines, consent to injunctions on future conduct, consent to the imposition of a compliance monitor, or suffer other criminal or civil penalties or adverse impacts, including being subject to lawsuits brought by private litigants, each of which could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our failure to satisfy international trade compliance regulations may adversely affect us.

Our global operations require importing and exporting goods and technology across international borders on a regular basis. Certain of the products we manufacture are “dual use” products, which are products that may have both civil and military applications, or may otherwise be involved in weapons proliferation, and are often subject to more stringent export controls. From time to time, we obtain or receive information alleging improper activity in connection with imports or exports. Our policy mandates strict compliance with U.S. and non-U.S. trade laws applicable to our products. However, even when we are in strict compliance with law and our policies, we may suffer reputational damage if certain of our products are sold through various intermediaries to entities operating in sanctioned countries. When we receive information alleging improper activity, our policy is to investigate that information and respond appropriately, including, if warranted, reporting our findings to relevant governmental authorities. Nonetheless, we cannot provide assurance that our policies and procedures will always protect us from actions that would violate U.S. and/or non-U.S. laws. Any improper actions could subject us to civil or criminal penalties, including material monetary fines, or other adverse actions including denial of import or export privileges, and could damage our reputation and our business prospects.

Legislative action by the U.S. Congress could adversely affect us.

Legislative action could be taken by the U.S. Congress which, if ultimately enacted, could override tax treaties, or modify statutes or regulation upon which we rely, which could materially adversely affect our effective corporate tax rate. We cannot predict the outcome of any specific legislative proposals. If proposals were enacted that had the effect of disregarding our incorporation in Switzerland or limiting our ability as a Swiss company to take advantage of the tax treaties between Switzerland and the United States, we could be subject to increased taxation.

Changes in legislation or governmental regulations or policies can have a significant impact on our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We operate in regulated industries and due to the international scope of our operations, the system of laws and regulations to which we are subject is complex. Our U.S. operations are subject to regulation by a number of federal, state and local governmental agencies with respect to safety of operations and equipment, labor and employment matters and financial responsibility. Intrastate operations in the United States are subject to regulation by state regulatory authorities, and our international operations are regulated by the countries in which they operate and by extra-territorial laws. We and our employees are subject to various U.S. federal, state and local laws and regulations, as well as non-U.S. laws and regulations. Changes in laws or regulations could require us to change the way we operate, which could increase costs or otherwise disrupt operations. No assurances can be made that we will continue to be found to be operating in compliance with, or be able to detect violations of, any such laws or regulations. In addition, we cannot predict the nature, scope or effect of future regulatory requirements to which our international operations might be subject or the manner in which existing laws might be administered or interpreted. Failure to comply with any applicable laws or regulations could result in substantial fines or revocation of our operating permits and licenses. If laws and regulations changed or we failed to comply, our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be materially and adversely affected.

Our operations expose us to the risk of material environmental liabilities, litigation and violations.

We are subject to numerous U.S. federal, state and local and non-U.S. environmental protection and health and safety laws governing, among other things:

- the generation, storage, use and transportation of hazardous materials;
- emissions or discharges of substances into the environment;
- the investigation and remediation of contaminated sites; and
- the health and safety of our employees.

We cannot assure you that we have been or will be at all times in compliance with environmental and health and safety laws. If we violate these laws, we could be fined, criminally charged or otherwise sanctioned by regulators.

Certain environmental laws impose liability on current or previous owners or operators of real property for the cost of removal or remediation of hazardous substances at their properties or at properties at which they have disposed of hazardous substances. In addition to cleanup actions brought by governmental authorities, private parties could bring personal injury or other claims due to the presence of, or exposure to, hazardous substances.

We have projects underway at several current and former manufacturing facilities to investigate and remediate environmental contamination resulting from past operations by us or by other businesses that previously owned or used the properties. These projects relate primarily to hazardous substance contamination cleanup.

In addition, we remain responsible for certain environmental issues at manufacturing locations previously sold by us. We are also currently the plaintiff in several lawsuits to recover remediation costs from other businesses that previously owned or used properties that we own or previously owned, but these lawsuits may not be successful or if successful, we may not be able to enforce any judgments awarded in our favor.

The ultimate cost of cleanup at disposal sites and manufacturing facilities is difficult to predict given uncertainties regarding the extent of the required cleanup, the interpretation of applicable laws and regulations and alternative cleanup methods. Based upon our experience, current information regarding known contingencies and applicable laws, we concluded that it is probable that we would incur remedial costs in the range of approximately $10 million to $33 million as of March 30, 2012. As of March 30, 2012, we concluded that the best estimate within this range is $14 million, of which $9 million is included in accrued and other current liabilities and $5 million is included in other liabilities in the Combined Balance Sheet. Environmental laws are complex, change frequently and have tended to become more stringent over time. While we have budgeted for future capital and operating expenditures to maintain compliance with such laws, we cannot provide assurance that our costs of complying with current or future environmental protection and health and safety laws, or our liabilities arising from past or future releases of, or exposures to, hazardous substances will not exceed our estimates or materially adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. We may also be subject to material liabilities for additional environmental claims for personal injury or cleanup in the future based on our past, present or future business activities or for existing environmental conditions of which we are not presently aware.

Enacted and proposed climate protection regulations and legislation may impact our operations or those of our customers.

Government authorities and agencies in the United States and in other jurisdictions have in recent years promulgated or considered promulgating climate-related legislation and regulations that are focused on restricting greenhouse gas emissions. To the extent our customers, particularly those involved in the oil & gas, power generation, petrochemical processing or petroleum refining industries, are subject to any of these or other similar proposed or newly enacted laws and regulations, we are exposed to risks that the additional costs by customers to comply with such laws and regulations could impact their ability or desire to continue to operate at similar levels in certain jurisdictions as historically seen or as currently anticipated, which could negatively impact their demand for our products and services. For example, new laws and regulations establishing an emissions cap-and-trade regime and those that might favor the increased use of non-fossil fuels, including nuclear, wind, solar and bio-fuels or that are designed to increase energy efficiency, could dampen demand for oil & gas production or power generation, resulting in lower spending by our customers for our products and services. Finally, our business could be negatively affected by physical changes or changes in weather patterns related to climate change, which could result in damages to or loss of our physical assets, impact to our ability to conduct operations and/or disrupt our customers' operations.

We are subject to a variety of claims and litigation that could cause a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

In the normal course of our business, we are subject to claims and lawsuits, including from time to time claims for damages related to product liability and warranties, litigation alleging the infringement of intellectual property rights, litigation alleging anti-competitive behavior and litigation related to employee matters and commercial disputes. In addition, the Separation and Distribution Agreement will require us to indemnify Tyco and ADT for certain claims related to our activities (including our activities as subsidiaries of Tyco prior to the Distribution) and also provide that under certain circumstances we may be liable for certain legal liabilities incurred by Tyco or ADT following the spin-off. See "Information About Tyco Flow Control—Legal Proceedings" and "The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements" for additional information regarding our potential legal liabilities. In certain circumstances, patent infringement and antitrust laws permit successful plaintiffs to recover treble damages. The defense of these lawsuits may divert our management's attention, and we may incur significant expenses in defending these lawsuits. In addition, we may be required to pay damage awards or settlements, or become subject to injunctions or other equitable remedies, that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Moreover, any insurance or indemnification rights that we have may be insufficient or unavailable to protect us against potential loss exposures.

Risks Relating to Pentair

General economic conditions, including difficult credit and residential construction markets, affect demand for Pentair's products.

Pentair competes in various geographic regions and product markets around the world. Among these, the most significant are global industrial markets (for both Technical Products and Water & Fluid Solutions) and residential markets (for Water & Fluid Solutions). Important factors for Pentair's businesses include the overall strength of the economy and its customers' confidence in the economy; industrial and governmental capital spending; the strength of the residential and commercial real estate markets; unemployment rates; availability of consumer and commercial financing for its customers and end-users; and interest rates. New construction for housing and home improvement activity fell in 2007, 2008 and 2009, which reduced revenue growth in the residential business within Water & Fluid Solutions. While Pentair saw some stabilization in 2010 and 2011, it believes that weakness in this market could negatively impact its revenues and margins in future periods. While Pentair attempts to minimize its exposure to economic or market fluctuations by serving a balanced mix of end markets and geographic regions, it cannot assure you that a significant or sustained downturn in a specific end market or geographic region would not have a material adverse effect on it.

Pentair is exposed to political, regulatory, economic and other risks that arise from operating a multinational business.

Sales outside of the United States, including export sales from Pentair's domestic businesses, accounted for approximately 40% of its net sales in 2011. Further, most of Pentair's businesses obtain some products, components and raw materials from foreign suppliers. Accordingly, Pentair's business is subject to the political, regulatory, economic and other risks that are inherent in operating in numerous countries. These risks include:

- changes in general economic and political conditions in countries where Pentair operates, particularly in emerging markets;
- relatively more severe economic conditions in some international markets than in the United States;
- the difficulty of enforcing agreements and collecting receivables through foreign legal systems;
- trade protection measures and import or export licensing requirements and restrictions;
- the possibility of terrorist action affecting Pentair or its operations;
- the imposition of tariffs, exchange controls or other trade restrictions;
- difficulty in staffing and managing widespread operations in non-U.S. labor markets;
- changes in tax laws or rulings could have an adverse impact on Pentair's effective tax rate;
- the difficulty of protecting intellectual property in foreign countries; and
- changes in and required compliance with a variety of foreign laws and regulations.

As a result of its international operations and sales, Pentair is subject to the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the United Kingdom Bribery Act and other laws that prohibit improper payments or offers of improper payments. Pentair's international activities create risk under such laws because its employees, consultants, sales agents or distributors are not always subject to its direct control. Any violations or alleged violations of these laws could result in significant fines or settlements, criminal sanctions against Pentair or its employees, reputational damage and prohibitions on the conduct of its business, including its business with the U.S. government.

Pentair's business success depends in part on its ability to anticipate and effectively manage these and other risks. Pentair cannot assure you that these and other factors will not have a material adverse effect on its international operations or on its business as a whole.

Pentair's international operations are subject to foreign market and currency fluctuation risks and the European Union debt crisis could adversely affect its results.

Pentair expects the percentage of its sales outside of the United States to continue to increase in the future. In some cases, foreign markets are susceptible to greater political, economic and social volatility than in Pentair's other markets. Furthermore, its increased foreign business operations expose Pentair to currency fluctuations which could materially affect its financial results. The European Union currently accounts for the majority of Pentair's foreign sales and income. The current debt crisis in Europe could lead to the re-introduction of individual currencies in certain European Union countries or in the wholesale dissolution of the euro currency. The resulting impact on euro-denominated obligations and assets is impossible to predict, but it could adversely affect the value of such obligations and assets. Also, the effect of the debt crisis in Europe could have an adverse affect on the capital markets generally, specifically impacting the ability of Pentair's business and financial partners to finance their businesses on acceptable terms, if at all, the availability of materials and supplies and demand for Pentair's products.

Pentair's inability to sustain organic growth could adversely affect its financial performance.

Over the past five years, Pentair's organic growth has been generated in part from expanding international sales, entering new distribution channels, introducing new products and price increases. To grow more rapidly than its end markets, Pentair would have to continue to expand its geographic reach, further diversify its distribution channels, continue to introduce new products and increase sales of existing products to its customer base. Difficult economic and competitive factors may materially and adversely impact Pentair's financial performance. Pentair has chosen to focus its growth initiatives in specific end markets and geographies. Pentair cannot provide assurance that these growth initiatives will be sufficient to offset revenue declines in other markets.

Pentair has significant goodwill and intangible assets and future impairment of its goodwill and intangible assets could have a material negative impact on its financial results.

Pentair tests goodwill and indefinite-lived intangible assets for impairment on an annual basis, by comparing the estimated fair value of each of its reporting units to their respective carrying values on their balance sheets. At December 31, 2011 Pentair's goodwill and intangible assets were approximately $2,866.2 million and represented approximately 62.5% of its total assets. Long-term declines in projected future cash flows could result in future goodwill and intangible asset impairments. Because of the significance of Pentair's goodwill and intangible assets, any future impairment of these assets could have a material adverse effect on its financial results.

In the fourth quarter of 2011, Pentair completed its annual goodwill impairment review. As a result, Pentair recorded a pre-tax non-cash impairment charge of $200.5 million in the fourth quarter of 2011. This represents impairment of goodwill in its Residential Filtration reporting unit, part of Water & Fluid Solutions. The impairment charge resulted from changes in Pentair's forecasts in light of economic conditions prevailing in these markets and due to continued softness in the end-markets served by residential water treatment components.

Material cost and other inflation have adversely affected and could continue to affect Pentair's results of operations.

In the past, Pentair has experienced material cost and other inflation in a number of its businesses. Pentair strives for productivity improvements and implements increases in selling prices to help mitigate cost increases in raw materials (especially metals and resins), energy and other costs such as pension, health care and insurance. Pentair continues to implement operational initiatives in order to mitigate the impacts of this inflation and continuously reduce its costs. Pentair cannot provide assurance, however, that these actions will be successful in managing its costs or increasing its productivity. Continued cost inflation or failure of Pentair's initiatives to generate cost savings or improve productivity would likely negatively impact its results of operations.

Pentair's businesses operate in highly competitive markets, so Pentair may be forced to cut prices or to incur additional costs.

Pentair's businesses generally face substantial competition in each of their respective markets. Competition may force Pentair to cut prices or to incur additional costs to remain competitive. Pentair competes on the basis of product design, quality, availability, performance, customer service and price. Present or future competitors may have greater financial, technical or other resources which could put Pentair at a disadvantage in the affected business or businesses. Pentair cannot provide assurance that these and other factors will not have a material adverse effect on its future results of operations.

Seasonality of sales and weather conditions may adversely affect Pentair's financial results.

Pentair experiences seasonal demand in a number of markets within Water & Fluid Solutions. End-user demand for pool equipment in Pentair's primary markets follows warm weather trends and is at seasonal highs from April to August. The magnitude of the sales increase is partially mitigated by employing some advance sale or "early buy" programs (generally including extended payment terms and/or additional discounts). Demand for residential and agricultural water systems is also impacted by weather patterns, particularly by heavy flooding and droughts. Pentair cannot assure you that seasonality and weather conditions will not have a material adverse effect on its results of operations.

Intellectual property challenges may hinder Pentair’s ability to develop, engineer and market its products.

Patents, non-compete agreements, proprietary technologies, customer relationships, trademarks, trade names and brand names are important to Pentair’s business. Intellectual property protection, however, may not preclude competitors from developing products similar to Pentair’s or from challenging Pentair’s names or products. Pentair’s pending patent applications, and its pending copyright and trademark registration applications, may not be allowed or competitors may challenge the validity or scope of its patents, copyrights or trademarks. In addition, Pentair’s patents, copyrights, trademarks and other intellectual property rights may not provide it a significant competitive advantage. Over the past few years, Pentair has noticed an increasing tendency for participants in its markets to use conflicts over and challenges to intellectual property as a means to compete. Patent and trademark challenges increase Pentair’s costs to develop, engineer and market its products. Pentair may need to spend significant resources monitoring its intellectual property rights and it may or may not be able to detect infringement by third parties.

Pentair’s results of operations may be negatively impacted by litigation.

Pentair’s businesses expose it to potential litigation, such as product liability claims relating to the design, manufacture and sale of its products. While Pentair currently maintains what it believes to be suitable product liability insurance, Pentair cannot provide assurance that it will be able to maintain this insurance on acceptable terms or that this insurance will provide adequate protection against potential or previously existing liabilities. In addition, Pentair self-insures a portion of product liability claims. A series of successful claims against Pentair for significant amounts could materially and adversely affect its product reputation, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Pentair is exposed to potential environmental and other laws, liabilities and litigation.

Pentair is subject to federal, state, local and foreign laws and regulations governing its environmental practices, public and worker health and safety, and the indoor and outdoor environment. Compliance with these environmental, health and safety regulations could require Pentair to satisfy environmental liabilities, increase the cost of manufacturing its products or otherwise adversely affect its business, financial condition and results of operations. Any violations of these laws by Pentair could cause it to incur unanticipated liabilities that could harm its operating results and cause its business to suffer. Pentair is also required to comply with various environmental laws and maintain permits, some of which are subject to discretionary renewal from time to time, for many of its businesses and it could suffer if Pentair is unable to renew existing permits or to obtain any additional permits that it may require. Compliance with environmental requirements also could require significant operating or capital expenditures or result in significant operational restrictions.

Pentair has been named as defendant, target or a potentially responsible party (“PRP”) in a number of environmental clean-ups relating to its current or former business units. Pentair has disposed of a number of businesses in recent years and in certain cases, Pentair has retained responsibility and potential liability for certain environmental obligations. Pentair has received claims for indemnification from certain purchasers. Pentair may be named as a PRP at other sites in the future for existing business units, as well as both divested and acquired businesses.

The cost of cleanup and other environmental liabilities can be difficult to accurately predict. In addition, environmental requirements change and tend to become more stringent over time. Thus, Pentair cannot provide assurance that its eventual environmental clean-up costs and liabilities will not exceed the amount of its current reserves.

Pentair is exposed to certain regulatory and financial risks related to climate change.

Climate change is receiving ever increasing attention worldwide. Many scientists, legislators and others attribute global warming to increased levels of greenhouse gases, including carbon dioxide, which has led to significant legislative and regulatory efforts to limit greenhouse gas emissions. The U.S. Congress and federal and state regulatory agencies have been considering legislation and regulatory proposals that would regulate and limit greenhouse gas emissions. It is uncertain whether, when and in what form a federal mandatory carbon dioxide emissions reduction program may be adopted. Similarly, certain countries have adopted the Kyoto Protocol and this and other existing international initiatives or those under consideration could affect Pentair's international operations. These actions could increase costs associated with Pentair's operations, including costs for raw materials and transportation. Because it is uncertain what laws will be enacted, Pentair cannot predict the potential impact of such laws on its future consolidated financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Risks Relating to the Liquidity of the Combined Business and Financial Markets

Disruptions in the financial markets could adversely affect us, our customers and our suppliers by increasing funding costs or reducing availability of credit.

In the normal course of our business, we may access credit markets for general corporate purposes, which may include repayment of indebtedness, acquisitions, additions to working capital, repurchase of common shares, capital expenditures and investments in our subsidiaries. Although we expect to have sufficient liquidity to meet our foreseeable needs after completing the financing transactions contemplated in connection with the Transactions, our access to and the cost of capital could be negatively impacted by disruptions in the credit markets. In 2009 and 2010, credit markets experienced significant dislocations and liquidity disruptions, and similar disruptions in the credit markets could make financing terms for borrowers unattractive or unavailable. These factors may make it more difficult or expensive for us to access credit markets if the need arises. In addition, these factors may make it more difficult for our suppliers to meet demand for their products or for prospective customers to commence new projects, as customers and suppliers may experience increased costs of debt financing or difficulties in obtaining debt financing. Disruptions in the financial markets have had adverse effects on other areas of the economy and have led to a slowdown in general economic activity that may continue to adversely affect our businesses. These disruptions may have other unknown adverse effects. One or more of these factors could adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows.

Our customers, prospective customers and suppliers may need assurances that our financial stability on a stand-alone basis is sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing or continuing to do business with them.

Some of our customers, prospective customers and suppliers may need assurances that our financial stability following the Transactions is sufficient to satisfy their requirements for doing or continuing to do business with them. If our customers, prospective customers or suppliers are not satisfied with our financial stability, it could have a material adverse effect on our ability to bid for and obtain or retain projects, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Covenants in our debt instruments may adversely affect us.

As discussed under "Description of Material Indebtedness," we expect to complete financing transactions in connection with the completion of the Transactions, as a result of which we would incur new indebtedness under one or more credit agreements or indentures. We expect our credit agreements and indentures to contain customary financial covenants.

Our ability to meet the financial covenants can be affected by events beyond our control, and we cannot provide assurance that we will meet those tests. A breach of any of these covenants could result in a default under our credit agreements or indentures. Upon the occurrence of an event of default under any of our credit facilities or indentures, the lenders or trustees could elect to declare all amounts outstanding thereunder to be immediately due and payable and, in the case of credit facility lenders, terminate all commitments to extend further credit. If the lenders or trustees accelerate the repayment of borrowings, we cannot provide assurance that we will have sufficient assets to repay our credit facilities and our other indebtedness. Furthermore, acceleration of any obligation under any of our material debt instruments will permit the holders of our other material debt to accelerate their obligations, which could have a material adverse effect on our financial condition.

We expect to incur new indebtedness at or prior to consummation of the Transactions, and the degree to which we will be leveraged following completion of the Transactions could have a material adverse effect on the combined business, financial condition or results of operations.

We have historically relied upon Tyco for working capital requirements on a short-term basis and for other financial support functions. After the Transactions, we will not be able to rely on the earnings, assets or cash flow of Tyco, and we will be responsible for servicing our own debt, and obtaining and maintaining sufficient working capital. As discussed under “Description of Material Indebtedness,” we expect to complete financing transactions in connection with the completion of the Transactions, as a result of which we would incur new indebtedness under one or more credit agreements or indentures.

Our ability to make payments on and to refinance our indebtedness, including the debt incurred pursuant to the Transactions as well as any future debt that we may incur, will depend on our ability to generate cash in the future from operations, financings or asset sales. Our ability to generate cash is subject to general economic, financial, competitive, legislative, regulatory and other factors that are beyond our control. If we are not able to repay or refinance our debt as it becomes due, we may be forced to sell assets or take other disadvantageous actions, including (i) reducing financing in the future for working capital, capital expenditures and general corporate purposes or (ii) dedicating an unsustainable level of our cash flow from operations to the payment of principal and interest on our indebtedness. The lenders who hold such debt could also accelerate amounts due, which could potentially trigger a default or acceleration of any of our other debt.

We may increase our debt or raise additional capital in the future, which could affect our financial health, and may decrease our profitability.

At the Effective Time, we expect the combined company to have approximately $1.8 billion of total debt outstanding. We may increase our debt or raise additional capital in the future, subject to restrictions expected to be in our debt agreements. If our cash flow from operations is less than we anticipate, or if our cash requirements are more than we expect, we may require more financing. However, debt or equity financing may not be available to us on terms acceptable to us, if at all. If we incur additional debt or raise equity through the issuance of additional capital stock, the terms of the debt or capital stock issued may give the holders rights, preferences and privileges senior to those of holders of our common stock, particularly in the event of liquidation. The terms of the debt may also impose additional and more stringent restrictions on our operations than we currently have. If we raise funds through the issuance of additional equity, your percentage ownership in us would decline. If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, it could affect our financial health, which could negatively affect your investment in us. Also, regardless of the terms of our debt or equity financing, the amount of our stock that we can issue may be limited because the issuance of our stock may cause the Distribution to be a taxable event for Tyco under Section 355(e) of the Code, and under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, we could be required to indemnify Tyco for that tax. See “—We might not be able to engage in desirable strategic transactions and equity issuances following the Transactions because of restrictions relating to U.S. federal income tax requirements for tax-free distributions.”

Risks Relating to the Spin-Off and the Merger

If the Distribution, the ADT Distribution or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the spin-off are determined to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we, our shareholders that are subject to U.S. federal income tax and/or Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities.

Tyco has received a private letter ruling from the IRS regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the Distributions to Tyco shareholders to the effect that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Sections 355 and 361 of the Code and the ADT Distribution will qualify as tax-free under Section 355 of the Code, except for cash received in lieu of a fractional share of our common shares and the shares of ADT common stock. The private letter ruling also provides that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution will qualify for favorable treatment under the Code. In addition to obtaining the private letter ruling, Tyco expects to receive an opinion from the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP confirming the tax-free status of the Distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The private letter ruling relies and the opinion will rely on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from us, ADT and Tyco regarding the past and future conduct of our respective businesses and other matters.

Notwithstanding the private letter ruling and the opinion, the IRS could determine on audit that the Distribution or the internal transactions should be treated as taxable transactions if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings is not correct or has been violated, or that the Distribution or the internal transactions should be taxable for other reasons, including as a result of significant changes in stock ownership (which might take into account changes in Tyco Flow Control stock ownership resulting from the Merger) or asset ownership after the Distribution. An opinion of counsel represents counsel's best legal judgment, is not binding on the IRS or the courts, and the IRS or the courts may not agree with the opinion. In addition, the opinions will be based on current law, and cannot be relied upon if current law changes with retroactive effect. If the Distribution ultimately is determined to be taxable, the Distribution could be treated as a taxable dividend or capital gain to you for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and you could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities. In addition, Tyco would recognize gain in an amount equal to the excess of the fair market value of our common shares and the shares of ADT common stock distributed to Tyco shareholders on the distribution date over Tyco's tax basis in such common shares, but such gain, if recognized, generally would not be subject to U.S. federal income tax. However, we, ADT or Tyco could incur significant U.S. federal income tax liabilities if it is ultimately determined that certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distribution are taxable.

In addition, under the terms of the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, in the event the Distribution, the ADT Distribution, or the internal transactions were determined to be taxable as a result of actions taken after the Distributions by us, ADT or Tyco, the party responsible for such failure would be responsible for all taxes imposed on us, ADT or Tyco as a result thereof. If such failure is not the result of actions taken after the Distributions by us, ADT or Tyco, then we, ADT and Tyco would be responsible for any taxes imposed on us, ADT or Tyco as a result of such determination in the same manner and in the same proportions as we share Shared Tax Liabilities (as defined in the section "The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements—Tax Sharing Agreement"). Such tax amounts could be significant. In the event that any party to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement defaults in its obligation to pay Distribution Taxes (as defined in the section "The Separation and Distribution Agreement and the Ancillary Agreements—Tax Sharing Agreement") to another party that arise as a result of no party's fault, each non-defaulting party would be responsible for an equal amount of the defaulting party's obligation to make a payment to another party in respect of such other party's taxes.

If the Distributions or Merger are determined to be taxable for Swiss withholding tax purposes, we and Tyco could incur significant Swiss withholding tax liabilities.

Generally, Swiss withholding tax of 35% is due on dividends and similar distributions to Tyco's shareholders, regardless of the place of residency of the shareholder. As of January 1, 2011, distributions to shareholders out of qualifying contributed surplus (Kapitaleinlage) accumulated on or after January 1, 1997 are exempt from Swiss withholding tax, if certain conditions are met (Kapitaleinlageprinzip). Tyco has obtained a ruling from the Swiss Federal Tax Authorities confirming that the Distributions qualify as payment out of such qualifying contributed surplus and no amount will be withheld by Tyco when making the Distributions.

It is a condition to closing of the Merger that, at the Effective Time, Tyco will have obtained one or more tax rulings from the Swiss Tax Administrations ("The Swiss Tax Ruling"), which rulings shall be in full force and effect on the Closing Date, confirming: (i) that the Merger will be a transaction that is generally tax-free for Swiss federal, cantonal, and communal tax purposes (including with respect to Swiss stamp tax and Swiss withholding tax); (ii) the relevant Swiss tax base of Panthro Acquisition for Swiss tax (including federal and cantonal and communal) purposes; (iii) the relevant amount of capital contribution reserves (Kapitaleinlageprinzip) which will be exempt from Swiss withholding tax in the event of a distribution to the Tyco Flow Control shareholders after the Merger; and (iv) that no Swiss stamp tax will be levied on certain post-Merger restructuring transactions.

These tax rulings rely on certain facts and assumptions, and certain representations and undertakings, from Tyco. Notwithstanding these tax rulings, the Swiss Federal Tax Administration could determine on audit that the Distributions or the Merger or certain internal transactions undertaken in anticipation of the Distributions should be treated as a taxable transaction for withholding tax or other tax purposes if it determines that any of these facts, assumptions, representations or undertakings is not correct or has been violated. If the Distributions or the Merger ultimately are determined to be taxable for withholding tax or other tax purposes, we and Tyco could incur material Swiss withholding tax or other tax liabilities that could significantly detract from, or eliminate, the benefits of the Distributions and the Merger. In addition, we could become liable to indemnify Tyco for part of any Swiss withholding tax liabilities to the extent provided under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement. See “The Transactions—Material Swiss Tax Consequences of the Transactions.”

We might not be able to engage in desirable strategic transactions and equity issuances following the Transactions because of restrictions relating to U.S. federal income tax requirements for tax-free distributions.

It is not expected that, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the Merger will result in the recognition of gain or loss, or the inclusion of any amount of income, by Tyco Flow Control, Panthro Acquisition, Panthro Merger Sub, or the Tyco shareholders. However, the Merger could significantly limit or restrict our ability to engage in desirable strategic transactions or equity issuances after the Transactions in order to preserve, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the tax-free nature of the Distribution and certain related transactions. Even if the Distribution otherwise qualifies for tax-free treatment under Section 355 of the Code, it may result in corporate-level gain to Tyco and certain of its affiliates under Section 355(e) of the Code if 50% or more, by vote or value, of our shares or Tyco’s shares are acquired or issued as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distribution. Any acquisitions or issuances of our shares or Tyco’s shares within two years after the Distribution will generally be presumed to be part of such a plan, although we or Tyco may be able to rebut that presumption. For purposes of this test, the Merger might be treated as part of such a plan or series of related transactions, but if so would not, by itself, cause the Distribution to be taxable to Tyco since Pentair shareholders will acquire less than 50% of Tyco Flow Control in the Merger. The change in ownership resulting from the Merger, if treated as part of a plan or series of related transactions that includes the Distribution, would be aggregated with other acquisitions or issuances of our shares that occur as part of a plan or series of related transactions that include the Distribution in determining whether a 50% change in ownership has occurred. The process for determining whether a change of ownership has occurred under the tax rules is complex, inherently factual and subject to interpretation of the facts and circumstances of a particular case. If Tyco Flow Control does not carefully monitor its compliance with these rules, Tyco Flow Control could inadvertently cause or permit a change of ownership to occur, triggering its obligation to indemnify Tyco or ADT pursuant to the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement.

To preserve the tax-free treatment to Tyco of the Distribution, under the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement, we expect that we will be prohibited from taking or failing to take any action that prevents the Distribution and related transactions from being tax-free. Further, for the two-year period following the Distribution, without obtaining the consent of Tyco and ADT, a private letter ruling from the IRS or an unqualified opinion of a nationally recognized law firm, we may be prohibited from:

- approving or allowing any transaction that results in a change in ownership of more than 35% of our common shares, when combined with any other changes in ownership of our common shares;
- redeeming equity securities;
- selling or otherwise disposing of more than 35% of Tyco Flow Control’s assets, or
- engaging in certain internal transactions.

These restrictions may limit our ability to pursue strategic transactions or engage in new business or other transactions that may maximize the value of our business. Moreover, we expect the 2012 Tax Sharing Agreement to also provide that we will be responsible for any taxes imposed on Tyco or any of its affiliates or on ADT or any of its affiliates as a result of the failure of the Distribution or the internal transactions to qualify for favorable treatment under the Code if such failure is attributable to certain actions taken after the Distribution by or in respect of us, any of our affiliates or our shareholders.

The combined company may not realize the growth opportunities and cost synergies that are anticipated from the Merger.

The benefits that we expect to achieve as a result of the Merger will depend, in part, on the ability of the combined company to realize anticipated growth opportunities and cost synergies. The combined company's success in realizing these growth opportunities and cost synergies, and the timing of this realization, depends on the successful integration of our business and operations and the Pentair business and operations. Even if the combined company is able to integrate the Tyco Flow Control and Pentair businesses and operations successfully, this integration may not result in the realization of the full benefits of the growth opportunities and cost synergies that we currently expect from this integration within the anticipated time frame or at all. For example, the combined company may be unable to eliminate duplicative costs. Moreover, the combined company may incur substantial expenses in connection with the integration of Tyco Flow Control's business and the Pentair business. While we anticipate that certain expenses will be incurred, such expenses are difficult to estimate accurately, and may exceed current estimates. Accordingly, the benefits from the Merger may be offset by costs incurred or delays in integrating the businesses.

Our business strategy includes acquiring companies and making investments that complement our existing businesses. These acquisitions and investments could be unsuccessful or consume significant resources, which could adversely affect our operating results.

Together with Pentair we will continue to analyze and evaluate the acquisition of strategic businesses or product lines with the potential to strengthen our industry position or enhance our existing set of product and services offerings. We cannot assure that we will identify or successfully complete transactions with suitable acquisition candidates in the future. Nor can we assure you that completed acquisitions will be successful.

Acquisitions and investments may involve significant cash expenditures, debt incurrence, operating losses and expenses that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Acquisitions involve numerous other risks, including:

- diversion of management time and attention from daily operations;
- difficulties integrating acquired businesses, technologies and personnel into our business;
- difficulties in obtaining and verifying the financial statements and other business information of acquired businesses;
- inability to obtain required regulatory approvals and/or required financing on favorable terms;
- potential loss of key employees, key contractual relationships or key customers of acquired companies or of ours;
- assumption of the liabilities and exposure to unforeseen liabilities of acquired companies, including risks related to the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (the "FCPA"); and
- dilution of interests of holders of our common shares through the issuance of equity securities or equity-linked securities.

It may be difficult for us to complete transactions quickly and to integrate acquired operations efficiently into our current business operations. Any acquisitions or investments may ultimately harm our business or financial condition, as such acquisitions may not be successful and may ultimately result in impairment charges.

After the Merger, we may not enjoy the same benefits that we did as a segment of Tyco.

There is a risk that the combined business of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will be more susceptible to market fluctuations and other adverse events than Tyco historically has been. As part of Tyco, we have been able to enjoy certain benefits from Tyco's operating diversity, purchasing power, available capital for investments and opportunities to pursue integrated strategies with Tyco's other businesses. The combined business of Tyco Flow Control and Pentair will not be as diverse as Tyco's business is currently and may not enjoy comparable integration opportunities, purchasing power or access to capital markets.

Our business, financial condition and results of operations may be adversely affected if we, Pentair and Tyco are unable to obtain required third party consents for certain contracts.

Certain contracts which are required by the Separation and Distribution Agreement to be transferred or assigned to Tyco Flow Control by Tyco and its subsidiaries contain provisions which require the consent of a third party to the transactions to effect such transfer or assignment. Similarly, certain of Pentair's existing contracts contain provisions which require the consent of a third party to the Merger. If we, Pentair and Tyco are unable to obtain these consents on commercially reasonable and satisfactory terms or at all, our ability to obtain the benefit of such contracts in the future may be impaired.

Tyco Flow Control's accounting and other management systems and resources may not be adequately prepared to quickly integrate and update the financial reporting systems of Tyco's flow control business and Pentair following the Transactions.

Our financial results of Tyco's flow control business previously were included within the consolidated results of Tyco, and we were not directly subject to the reporting and other requirements of the Exchange Act. As a result of the Transactions, we will be directly subject to reporting and other obligations under the Exchange Act. The Exchange Act requires that we file annual, quarterly and current reports with respect to our business and financial condition. Following the Merger, we will be responsible for ensuring that all aspects of our business comply with Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (the "Sarbanes-Oxley Act"), which will require annual management assessments of the effectiveness of our internal control over financial reporting and a report by independent registered public accounting firm addressing these assessments. Although the management of Pentair, which will continue as the management of Tyco Flow Control, has experience with these reporting and related obligations, ensuring compliance with respect to Tyco's flow control business may place significant demands on our management, administrative and operational resources, including accounting systems and resources.

Under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, we are required to maintain effective disclosure controls and procedures and internal controls over financial reporting. To comply with these requirements, we may need to upgrade our systems; implement additional financial and management controls, reporting systems and procedures; and hire additional accounting and finance staff. We expect to incur additional annual expenses for the purpose of addressing these requirements, and those expenses may be significant. If we are unable to upgrade our financial and management controls, reporting systems, information technology systems and procedures in a timely and effective fashion, our ability to comply with our financial reporting requirements and other rules that apply to reporting companies under the Exchange Act could be impaired. Any failure to achieve and maintain effective internal controls could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our and Pentair's historical and pro forma combined financial data are not necessarily representative of the results we would have achieved as a combined company and may not be a reliable indicator of our future results.

Our and Pentair's historical and pro forma financial data included in this Prospectus may not reflect what our results of operations, financial condition and cash flows would have been had we been a combined company during the periods presented, or what our results of operations, financial condition and cash flows will be in the future when we are a combined company. Among other factors, this is because:

- Prior to the Transactions, Tyco operated its flow control business as part of its broader corporate organization, and Tyco, or one of its affiliates, performed significant corporate functions for that business, including tax and treasury administration and certain governance functions, including internal audit and external reporting. Tyco Flow Control's historical and pro forma financial statements reflect allocations of corporate expenses from Tyco for these and similar functions and may not reflect the costs that the combined company will incur for similar services in the future.
- The working capital and other capital required for the general corporate purposes of Tyco's flow control business, including acquisitions and capital expenditures, historically have been satisfied as part of the company-wide cash management practices of Tyco. Following the completion of the Transactions, the combined business will need to generate its own funds to finance working capital or other cash requirements and may need to obtain additional financing from banks, through public offerings or private placements of debt or equity securities or other arrangements.
- Other significant changes may occur in our cost structure, management, financing and business operations as a result of Tyco's flow control business and Pentair's business operating as a combined business.
